TWO BANDITS ROB BANK BRANCH OF $5,000

80 Red Prisoners Killed, 120 Injured In Cheju Is. Riot

Attack U.S. Guards When Ordered to Stop Celebration

CHEJU ISLAND, Korea (AP)—United States guards with blazing guns today killed 80 Chinese prisoners of war and injured 120 others in quelling a riot. The P.O.W.s were celebrating the third anniversary of China's Communist regime when some fanatics turned the jubilee into an attack on their guards.

The majority of those killed and wounded were shot," said a command spokesman.

Two U.S. soldiers were injured slightly.

Many Details Lacking

The spokesman said:

"It was really a fight. Due to all the confusion that surrounds an incident like this one, many details are lacking."

The 500 prisoners battled two infantry platoons—about 80 men—with stones, rocks, clubs, tent poles and improvised weapons.

On Feb. 18, 1952, 85 were killed and 121 injured in a riot at the Koje Island, 600 prisoners were killed.

About 6,400 hard-core Chinese Communists are quartered in various camps around Cheju City on the island south of Pusan. Also on Cheju are about 13,600 Chinese captives who have said they would resist repatriation to Communist China.

Full Scale Riot

Today's fighting was a full-scale riot, the army said, with the prisoners "reverting to former pitched battle methods" in terms of violence.

The army said the commander of the 8,000-man camp yesterday issued an order against prisoner demonstrations. Officers and guards went to the compound at 7:30 a.m. to begin carrying out the command.

An army announcement added:

"The guards not only found the prisoners demonstrating, milling around and singing, but found that they had erected barricades and communist flags in the compound."

The guards called the camp commander and he ordered over the loudspeaker that if the demonstrations was not stopped, force would be used to effect compliance."

"The P.O.W.s refused to obey this lawful order of the camp commander and two platoons of U.S. infantry entered the compound to restore order."

Shower of Stones

The P.O.W.s took cover and "met the infantry with a hail of showers of stones and rocks and improvised weapons," the announcement said, which were in the compound for "construction purposes."

The army spokesman said that only U.S. troops are assigned to guard the Communist prisoners.

The Chinese prisoners were transferred to Cheju last summer when the United Nations command broke up the huge compounds on Koje.

H.E. McCallum Succeeds Hughes As CNE Manager

TORONTO (CP)—Elwood Hughes, associated with the Canadian National Exhibition for 47 years, 18 of them as general manager, resigned yesterday from the $15,000-a-year post.

Mr. Hughes will continue on full salary for a year and then will receive a $7,500-a-year pension. He will act as a "consultant."

In a statement, Mr. Hughes, 68, said he had wanted to resign some years ago.

Tributes to him were paid by Leslie Norsworthy, exhibition president, and Mayor Allan Lampert, sometimes one of Mr. Hughes' severest critics. Mr. Norsworthy said: "Mr. Hughes, more than any one individual, has been responsible for bringing the exhibition to its present high level." The mayor said he had contributed much to the success of the C.N.E.

Expect to Arrest 120 Canadians On Visa Charges

DETROIT (CP)—United States immigration officials said yesterday the number whose Canadian citizens arrested on visa fraud charges probably will reach 120.

Eighty-seven have so far been arrested as the result of an immigration Department investigation which began during the summer. Of these, 62 were indicted by a Detroit grand jury.

The officials said most of the 62 are accused of submitting false bank statements in connection with their visa applications.

Most of those slated for arrest—they also had submitted false bank statements—now are outside of Michigan although they entered the U.S. at Detroit.

Social Credit Founder Dies In Scotland

FEARNAN, Scotland (CP)—Clifford Hugh Douglas, prominent economist whose Social Credit theory of public finance were tried by the Alberta government in the depression years, died at his home here Monday. He was 73.

Douglas was the author of the Social Credit system and wrote several books on the subject including "The Alberta Experiment". When he first expounded his ideas in 1918 he was ridiculed for proposing to keep prosperity by juggling money values and giving citizens bonds said to keep industries going. Then Social Creditors were known as the "funny money" group.

The Alberta legislature passed legislation based on the Douglas theories but it was held invalid by the courts.

He resigned as reconstruction adviser in 1936 because he disagreed with the provincial government on how to put Social Credit into effect. In 1937 he was asked to be an adviser again but he refused.

SCHACHT IN SPAIN

MADRID, Spain (AP)—Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, Hitler's old financial wizard, arrived by air yesterday from Germany on what he called a short private visit. Schacht refused, to say what he will do in Spain. He received several Spanish arguments in recent months on financial matters, among them Indonesia, Egypt and Iran.

BOYD CLAIMS 'FRIEND' STOLE $10,000 OF LOOT

Confessed in March To $46,000 Holdup

TORONTO (CP)—"so-called friend" stole $10,000 back loot from Edwin Alonzo Boyd, the master bank robber claimed in a statement admitted at his trial yesterday.

Boyd, who has pleaded guilty to one bank-robbery charge and faces eight others, confessed in the statement to the $46,000 armed holdup of the Leaside branch of the Royal Bank of Canada, Nov. 20, 1951.

Two other members of the gang also are charged with the robbery but won't be tried. Steve Sichan and Leonard Jackson, no relation to William, have been sentenced to be hanged for the murder of a Toronto detective.

Det.-Sgt. Adolphus Payne told the jury Boyd last March 15 confessed to the robbery in the statement which was admitted as evidence. It was in that statement he is considered that an unnamed confederate had stolen $10,000 of the Leaside loot.

Tells Friend

Boyd, in the statement, told how he and four others robbed the bank and made their getaway. He did not name his confederates.

He told how they agreed to split the loot four ways but "some one of the other fellow's was stolen from me that night by a so-called friend."

"Did you report this loss to the police?"

"Are you kidding?"

"What would you wish to say?"

"I hope to catch that guy that stole my money."

Norman Boyd denied taking part in the Leaside robbery. He testified he had worked on a survey job for the city the day of the robbery. Two of his supervisors in the Works Department at City Hall supported his testimony.

Four witnesses have identified Edwin Boyd as one of the holdup men. Another said William Jackson was present with a gun.

Mrs. Betty Coates, a bank clerk, was the only witness to testify that Norman Boyd was one of the bank bandits.

Italian Town Hails Canadian Mayor as Native

VENICE (AP)—The little town of Bassano Decimo, north of here, is decorated with green leaves and flowers for the return today of Umberto Badanai, Italian emigrant who became mayor of Fort William, Ont.

Badanai left Bassano Decimo in 1912 when he was 19. He crossed the ocean on an emigrant ship and settled in Toronto. During the First World War he returned with Canadian troops to fight on the Italian front.

Canadian Seaman Yeiji Imouye Finds Japan Confusing Place

He is Lt. Yeiji Imouye of New Westminster, B.C., whose interest in the Japanese tongue is regularly called into play when ships call in Japan and at sea off Korea.

The burly lnouye, a spare-time judo expert, is chief boatswain's mate on the Crusader's 4.5-inch guns. He does his interpreting job as a member of the ship's boarding party at sea and as a jeep driver in port.

Due to years of occupation by Canadian troops, Japanese language is readily understood by Koreans.

Brought up in Vancouver, Inouye was moved with his family during the Second World War to a camp in the Slocan area, B.C., along with other west-coast Japanese families. He eventually left the area to Guelph, Ont. Inouye joined the navy in Hamilton in 1948 and served a couple of years at Halifax, where he was a noted athlete.

He has been on the Crusader since June, 1951. His roommates, who claim his first name is too difficult to pronounce, call him "Jimmy".

Like other native Canadians, he is confused by customs in Japan. He says he was "really embarrassed" during a visit to the family of a great-uncle at Yokohama.

"The ladies of the family bowed and bowed and I kept saying 'the emperor,'" he said. "That's the way they live. . . . I'm certainly hard to get used to their customs."

Dodgers, Yankees Tied 1-1 At End of Four Innings In Opening Game of World Series

By JOE REICHLER

EBBETTS FIELD, Brooklyn (AP)—Rookie Joe Black of Brooklyn and veteran Allie Reynolds of New York, faced each other on the mound in a battle of righthanders today as the Dodgers and Yankees clashed in the first game of the 1952 world series.

Black, winner of 15 games against only four defeats, was expected to be the hero of the year. It was only his third start. Reynolds, the Yankees' ace flamegaw winner, was making his ninth appearance in a world series game. His inter-league record is four wins and one loss. This was his third opening game assignment in a World Series. He blanked Brooklyn 1-0 in 1949 and lost to New York Giants 5-1 last year.

Manager Charlie Dressen of the Dodgers stuck to the lineup and batting order he announced last Monday. Casey Stengel of the Yankees announced changes up for the first time an hour before game time. Irv Noren was to be lunged for the murder of a Toronto detective.

Det.-Sgt. Adolphus Payne told the jury Boyd last March 15 confessed to the robbery in the statement which was admitted as evidence. It was in that statement he is considered that an unnamed confederate had stolen $10,000 of the Leaside loot.

Italian Town Hails Canadian Mayor as Native

VENICE (AP)—The little town of Bassano Decimo, north of here, is decorated with green leaves and flowers for the return today of Umberto Badanai, Italian emigrant who became mayor of Fort William, Ont.

Badanai left Bassano Decimo in 1912 when he was 19. He crossed the ocean on an emigrant ship and settled in Toronto. During the First World War he returned with Canadian troops to fight on the Italian front.

Martin went down swinging to become Black's first strikeout victim.

Reynolds also struck out, swinging at a fast ball.

Bauer was called out on strikes for Black's third straight strikeout.

Coxo one hit, no runs, two left.

Dodgers: Furillo fouled to Berra alongside the first base foul line. Black struck out on three pitches, looking at a sharp curve for the third strike.

Cox attempted to steal but was out, Berra to Martin, who made a spectacular catch of the throw to the wrong side of the bag and followed with a sprawling lag of the sliding runner.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Fourth Inning

Yankees: Rizzuto lined a single over Reese's head into left field. Mantle bunted and beat Black's throw to first. Berra struck out for speed. Rizzuto advanced to second.

Hodges grabbed Berra's bopper on the first bounce and threw to Reese forcing Mantle at second. Hodges' throw to first was in time to out.

Furillo came in fast for Collins' whistling liner to right and the right fielder's throw to the plate was perfect, but Rizzuto slid into score after the catch, to scamper back to third. Berra stayed glued to first.

Campanella rapped a hot grounder to Mantle who tagged Snider on the baseline and forced Hodges to Collins at first for a double play.

PORT LORING (CP) — Police here were unable to find $8,000 of the $74,000 cache which a Florida dentist's son has been charged with stealing from his friend, a prominent lumberman here.

Dr. Winstead H. Moore, 58, of Palm Beach has been charged with the theft of the money from Henry S. Clapperton, 37. The theft was discovered when customs men found $55,000 in a car carrying Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Clapperton and Clapperton's son to the Port Erie border crossing.

The case has been set for Thursday at Parry Sound. Officials, however, believe it will be held over for a week, 9 when it will be heard at Powassan.

Port Loring is about 45 miles north of Parry Sound.

GERMAN CHARGES CANADIAN RIOT WRECKED TAVERN

27th Brigade Soldiers Reported on Rampage

CELLE, Germany (Reuters)—Canadian Army officers went to the nearby village of Bergen today to inve..igate a riot last night in which their men wrecked a tavern and injured two Germans.

The inn had been the scene of an earlier disturbance, broken up when provost Willy Hohgrave summoned a Canadian officer whose wife lives there.

Hohgrave said today he thought the troops were seeking "revenge" against him for having called the officer. He said about 20 men took part in their early morning raid.

Hohgrave said that six Canadians entered his hotel and started throwing beer glasses at the German guests. Then 20 other Canadians "stormed" in, Hohgrave s aid. They smashed nearly all the furniture, the cash register, the bar and all windows. Then they used their legs to beat Germans who were present.

German officials said today the Canadians had not appeared to have been drinking. They said British military police intervened.

Spokesmen of the 27th Canadian Infantry Brigade declined comment except to say that the Canadians came from a training camp outside Bergen. A report will be made to brigade headquarters.

The brigade's public relations office reported later that at least 30 soldiers took part in the riot. They were believed to be from the Royal Canadian Artillery or the Royal Canadian Dragoons, stationed near Bergen.

Police spokesmen said the culprits will be "punished justly" if discovered.

Say Reds Use Old Nazi Films In Middle East

BONN, Germany (AP)—The West German government said today the Russians are using old Nazi propaganda films to incite the Middle East Arabs against Israel and Britain.

The government's official information bulletin said the Soviets had bought up copies of two films produced by Vih Harlan—"Jew Suess" and "The Rothschilds"—as well as the Joseph Goebbels' film "Der Leader which lambasts "British colonialism."

The bulletin said that the Soviet film export monopoly was distributing these films in Arab countries by "having changed their titles but not their contents." Both films were produced on orders of Nazi Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels.

Varied Uses for Lowly Seaweed Promise Riches for Nova Scotia

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nova Scotia some day may reap a rich harvest from the humble seaweeds which grow along her coasts.

Dr. Foster Woodward, director of the Institute of Seaweed Research at Edinburgh, says that "greater development must certainly will be feasible in a few years' time."

Seaweeds in Scotland yield about $3,000,000 a year, Dr. Woodward says the Nova Scotia seaweeds are essentially the same.

The sea growth, which disappeared before the war because of a disease, is reappearing along the Nova Scotia coast. For years it has been used as a fertilizer and also as an insulating material when packed around houses or laid on the side of their homes in winter. Some farmers also use it as a dry, dusty here yet it will grow where required," Mr. Woodward said. In Scotland the seaweeds are processed for use in foodstuffs and medicinal fodder.

The most popular branch of the seaweed industry in Nova Scotia at present is as Irish moss harvest.

It is carried out mainly by fishermen and farmers as a part-time venture. Most of it is dumped on the raw state to the United States where it is processed for use as a thickening agent in ice cream.

Collection of the moss, which grows on the rocks of the shoreline, is simple. Each man works from a dory, using as his only equipment a hoe-like instrument.

Local buyers usually dicker for the harvest on the wharves although some of the men dry it first and thus demand a higher price. Most of the seaweed harvested with United States companies which provide a ready market.

Sub-Agent Slugged Over Head, Bound Hand And Foot

Witnesses Say Getaway Car Was Driven by a Woman

PRINCETON (CP) — Two men looted the bank here of $5,000 today and escaped in a grey car witnesses said was driven by a woman.

It is believed much of the cash stolen from the Canadian Bank of Commerce sub-branch was made up of tobacco growers' proceeds of the season just ended.

Cash Box Found

Provincial police at Brantford announced about two hours after the robbery that the cash box in which the bandit carried away their loot had been found near Burtch, 10 miles east of Brantford. The box had been emptied of money.

In the Kitchener district Provincial Police organized a hunt. A Kitchener city police car also assigned to the search, was reported to be in the hunt.

R. R. Butson, sub-agent of the bank here at Paris, was assaulted inside the bank by a man who stuck a gun in his ribs. As Butson turned, he was struck twice over the head by a rubber hose filled with BB-shot and then bound hand and foot.

Witnesses Slugged

He said the faces of his assailant and the second robber were masked with handkerchiefs.

As the intruders left, they took with them the bank's sawed-off 38-calibre pistol.

After the bandits left, Butson crawled across the floor and knocked the erable telephone from its hook. He reported the robbery to the telephone operator.

The operator got in touch with Postmaster C. G. Carson, whose post office is near the bank. Carson went to the bank and released Butson.

Witnesses said the getaway car, reported driven by a woman, was dressed as a man and possibly the leader of the holdup gang, was a grey 1952 model.

The bank, a sub-branch operated by the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch at Paris, is open Mondays, Wednesday and Friday. Population is about 12 miles east of Woodstock.

Butson suffered a bruise on the forehead and another on the face when the robbers attacked him.

Mrs. Bert Mey, and Mrs. M. Rayerart, both of Princeton, said they saw a car driven from a side door of the bank with a box under his arm and get into a car. Another followed. Both got into the back seat of the getaway car. which was driven by a third person.

Driven by Woman

Other witnesses told of seeing the grey car cruising around the quiet village earlier in the morning. One of them said the driver was a woman dressed as a man.

The Franklin Moore said she watched from a window across the street as the men dashed from the bank. She gave police descriptions of them, as did Mrs. Myers and Mr. Rayerart.

They said one of the bandits was dressed in a coat and a gray shirt. The other wore overalls and a coat.

The automobile went south from the Princeton business section toward Highway No. 2, which runs through the edge of the village. The highway in this area runs east to Brantford and Paris and west to Woodstock and London.

U.S. Proposes U.N. Pressure For Armistice in Korea Or Sterner Allied Action

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United States is discussing with several close allies of double-barreled plan to call on the U.N. Assembly to urge the Communists to accept an immediate armistice in Korea or risk a wider U.N. embargo and condemnation.

A diplomatic source in close touch with the situation said yesterday that the U.S. favors such a course in the Assembly opening Oct. 14.

1. State Secretary Dean Acheson would put before the Assembly a resolution which the Assembly would express its approval on the armistice talks and would call on urge the Communist Chinese and North Koreans to accept them.

2. The Communists would be given a reasonable time to answer.

3. If they still refused to accept the appeal, the U.S. would want the Assembly to approve a resolution condemning the aggressors against Communist China and North Korea, for a strong condemnation of those two regimes, and for U.N. members who have not yet been forced to leave to ship in troops for the fight. Only 16 U.N. members, however, including the South Korea actually have troops in Korea.

The reaction here was said to have been mixed. One diplomat said that Britain would be very warm to the American proposals.

The city and nearby district children will leave the Shrine Club at approximately 9.30 a.m. and will pick up another bus load from Picton, at Trenton.

Accompanying the caravan will be the Bush ambulance and members of the St. John Ambulance Brigade of Belleville. A doctor and nurse will also travel with the children.

The caravan will be under the supervision of Shrine Noble Chas. Cawkey, with a large number of "daddy" shriners going along to look after their young charges. Chairman Jack Bush, both child and parents have been blessed by the union."

Patience Required

Judge Anderson also presides over the juvenile court. "For this type of work," he said, "a great deal of patience and tact is required. A lot of good work is done by the court, both child and parents have been blessed by the union."

Patience Required

Judge Anderson also presides over the juvenile court. "For this type of work," he said, "a great deal of patience and tact is required. A lot of good work is done by the court, both child but considerably more could be accomplished if we could have better contact between parents and teachers in the early stages of the child's development.

"Lawyers and judges have often been the object of the public scorn and ridicule," Judge Anderson said, "but there is no doubt about it, that theirs is an easy job." Many times people ask the question, 'How can you sit and send a man knowing he is guilty' In this country," said the judge, "unlike many others, including Europe, a man is innocent until proven guilty. It would be far better that 100 guilty men go free than one innocent man suffer."

In conclusion the speaker said: "Justice is the corner stone we have on our lives and property and obedience is the price we pay."

Judge Anderson was introduced by Louis Maraska and thanked by Harold Craig.

Belleville Lawyers Earn Praise From Judge Anderson

"The lawyers of Belleville are so keen and anxious to present their cases in a satisfactory manner to reflect favorably upon their clients that they often cause me a good deal of puzzlement in deciding the outcome of a case," Judge J. C. Anderson said in an address delivered at the Kiwanis luncheon Tuesday noon.

Judge Anderson spoke to Kiwanians on the duties of a county judge. He outlined the various commitments, the different courts he must preside over and his position in the community as a county judge.

"In the past year," the speaker said, "I have seen approximately 50 adoptions consummated locally. I think it is one of the most pleasant duties a judge may have, to watch the way in which the Children's Aid Society will bring together a child in need of parents, and parents in need of a child. The Children's Aid Society," Judge Anderson said, "have worked out a plan whereby both child and parents have been blessed by the union."

The accident took place on a grade and following the crash the Giles' car rolled backwards and crashed into a car owned by Peter Kellar of Bancroft. Kellar had parked his car some distance away and was approaching the Giles' auto when it rolled back into his own causing minor damage.

Albert Dickerson, Lindsay, was conductor on the train with Robert Thompson as engineer. The accident is being investigated by Police Chief Fred Chapman, and Constable George Lloyd of the provincial police.

Robot Planes Tricky Targets For Ground-to-Air Gunnery Exercises at Mohawk Air Field

Unknown except to a few slightly alarmed citizens in the Deseronto area and to certain members of the RCAF at Trenton, pilotless aircraft have been zooming about the skies this summer over the Mohawk Indian reservation 15 miles east of here.

The robot planes, capable of speeds well over 200 miles per hour, have been taking off, circling and diving thousands of feet and have come back to the ground all without human hands at the controls.

It has all been part of experiments being conducted during the past summer by the RCAF with radio-controlled pilotless aircraft with the idea of providing a freely manoeuvrable target for ground-to-air gunnery exercises. Experiments are being conducted from the Mohawk Air Station.

Many Advantages

Air force officials point out that a radio controlled target possesses many advantages over "drone" or towed type of aerial target. One of the advantages is the economy factor. Only one robot plane and another is that gunners can fire away at the target without danger of hitting aircrew personnel as in the case of a towed or in the towing aircraft.

Control of the robot planes thus far has been from radio equipment on the ground, but it is expected that in the future all training is completed air-to-air control will follow. Training for this type is now virtually completed with the first team having been trained in the operation of the radio controlled craft.

Use 75 H.P. Engine

The aircraft models used by the air force in the experiments are no toy affairs as many of the Indian residents on the Mohawk Reservation can testify.

The models are 300-pound machines with an 11-foot wing span and are powered with 75-horsepower four cylinder motors. They can be made to zoom and dive as though an experienced pilot was at the controls.

Occasionally the models have gotten away from their ground control operators and have crashed in the woods. Then air force personnel, sometimes assisted by Indian children go on a search to find the runaway aircraft.

The air force purchased ten of the models on a trial basis. Several of them have hit the dirt in crash landing on the Mohawk air field.

The operating range of the robot planes is about two miles or the distance from their base to even by the ground operator. It was pointed out the operators can not let the speeding craft get out of their sight because then they would lose control and there would be danger of crashes.

Fly at Full Throttle

The planes take off and fly always at full throttle and for this reason ordinary approach landings cannot be followed. When the flight is finished the operator by radio control cuts the motor, the parachute pops out and lowers the craft to the ground. Sometimes it comes in for a carrel, or enough for an hour's flight.

Takeoff of the robot plane is controlled by a cable device extending from a tower set to a circular runway about 200 feet in circumference. At approximately 90 miles per hour the plane is released from its device and takes to the air.

Keeping the plane from going out and lowers the craft to the ground. Sometimes it comes in for a carrel, or enough for an hour's flight.

Takeoff of the robot plane is controlled by a cable device extending from a tower set to a circular runway about 200 feet in circumference. At approximately 90 miles per hour the plane is released from its device and takes to the air.

Crew Size

It takes a four-man launching crew to get the machines into the air. Four men are always at wheel-ed out to get the 75-horsepower engines started. Then the warm-up period electrical controls are checked and the throttle opened wide open.

Atop its detachable undercarriage the plane gains speed around its circular runway and at the proper time becomes airborne, its gyrations controlled by electrical impulses sent out from the ground control unit.

The training is under the direction of Wing Commander George Godson, AFC, staff officer, of the armament school at training command headquarters at Trenton. Squadron Leader A. M. Shaw is commandant. Is the senior officer under instruction with FO. Frederick Burnside a member of the team under instruction.

CANTOR COLLAPSES

Gift of Records Presented To A. W. Simpson

The senior men's section of Bancroft public held a social evening last Friday at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Gander on George Street.

During the evening, a presentation of the complete recordings of Sir Edward Elgar's "Dream of Gerontius" was made to Arthur N. Simpson in recognition of his fine work for the choir.

Harold Agar proposed a toast to Mr. Simpson in the absence of President J. Wagg, whose duties at Peterborough Normal School prevented his attendance.

Bill Carder, secretary of the group, made the presentation, in reply, Mr. Simpson thanked the group for the fine gift and said he felt sure that a lot of thought had gone into the selection of such a work and also that the recordings free from defects as a whole had made his task a pleasure.

Added feature of the evening was that the records were flown from England, special consignment and also that some years ago Arthur sang in a choral presentation of this work in Toronto.

Trip to Pakistan Greatly Enjoyed

Miss Dorothy Potts, former director of nursing at Belleville General Hospital who has been appointed by the United Nations to open a school of nursing at Dacca, Pakistan, is apparently having plenty of that part of the world.

In a communication to friends here, Miss Potts states she has spent 10 days in Geneva, 12 in Alexandria and at time of writing was bound for Karachi, India.

After stay in Geneva and Alexandria where she was in close touch with United Nations officials, has increased her enthusiasm for the "new venture" tremendously, Miss Potts writes.

On her way to Karachi by air, she flew over the Sinai and Egyptian deserts. She landed at Basra, on one leg of the journey, where it was "hot and dry in 120 degrees of heat."

Miss Potts expects to spend the next three weeks in Karachi, Lahore and Peshawar before proceeding to her destination at Dacca.

Cause of the fire is unknown. The Kushners live six miles south of Wellington near Hyrcke's Point. Four years ago they lost their barn by fire.

Inring Service of Dedication Induces New Version of Bible; Re R. Armitage Guest Speaker

Inspiring and unique service took place last evening in Bridge Street United Church when Reverend Ramsay Armitage, A., D.D., principal of Victoria College, University of Toronto, addressed the service of thanksgiving and dedication, commemorating the completion of the revised version of the Holy Bible. He was assisted by Archdeacon Arthur Smith, of St. Thomas Anglican Church; Reverend J. S. Harrington, of Upper Canada Bible Society; Reverend S. E. Larman, pastor of Bridge Street United Church and Reverend Duncan McEwan, pastor of Bridge Street United Church.

The service was unique in the fact that it was one of the 3,000 taking place simultaneously across Canada, in which those attending were joining Previous to the meeting, chimes rendered the old hymn "Immortal Love" which were "Rock of Ages, Savior Of Thy Children" and "Let Us Keep Me Near the Cross" followed by a prelude of organnists, Mrs. Alec Hon.

Dr. Armitage, who was introduced by Archdeacon Arthur Smithbok as the topic of his address, "The Word of Life in Living Language" giving a concise time of the translation into English of the Holy Bible from earliest edition in 1526 by Wm Tyndale who gave his life being burned that the people might have the Word of God.

He outlined the dates of 1066, 1384, 1914, all of which were standing in the world's history as the most important dates in those of 1526, 1611 when King James version of the scriptures was given, 1885 when first revised version came and now 1952 when "The best Bible from the oldest text," was published.

Dr. Armitage contrasted the Bible with the best sellers of today, with Bible being far in advance, as well as the number of copies published. In 1400 the only Bible came out with 90 copies, but today's new revised version has one million copies. He stated the great need for the revised version, in order that the meaning might be made clearer to the people, and told of the advance made in the finding and use of ancient manuscripts which the earlier translators did not have.

When William Tyndale was dying his last wish was that "the eyes of the King of England might be opened, in ten years after his death the New Testament was printed and in 1536 it was in all churches. He also mentioned the similarity of Tyndale's request, as he lay in prison, for the Hebrew Bible, the Hebrew dictionary, other books and his cloak, to that of the apostle Paul, who was also a prisoner for the Gospel's sake, in his letter "Timothy, his son in the faith, that he would send to him the books, his cloak and especially the parchments. This version of the Bible is for the people, by the people, and by the people, in the revising of which 21 scholars participated.

Dr. Armitage closed his address saying that it was his hope, and earnest prayer that the revised version of the Bible would speak to men, helping them to understand and obey His Word; that it be a lamp unto their feet and a light unto their path."

Presentations of the Revised Version

An interesting part of the service was the presentation by Rev. S. E. Larman of several copies of the new revised version to outstanding representative citizens of the city; Mrs. C. W. Stapley, of Christ Church, for faithful service; to Mrs. Lorne Elliott, Sunday School superintendent of the Wesleyan Methodist Church; to Mr. Archibald Cameron, of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, who was not present due to illness, but his pastor, Reverend J. G. Haggerty, accepted the Bible for him; to the Reverend Andrew McKenzie, principal of Albert College, and to Mr. J. Blackburn, of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, who has taught in the Sunday School for a period of 35 years or more.

The Scripture was read by Mayor McLean Haig, from Romans 15: 4-13.

The service comprised hymns in keeping with the occasion, and several Scriptures, read responsively. One of the hymns "O God of Light, thy Word a Lamp Unfailing," was written especially for this observance, and accompanied by the Hymn Society of America.

Archdeacon Arthur Smith voiced his appreciation to Reverend Duncan McTavish for the use of the church; to Alec Gordon for the beautiful music provided; to the ushers; to the members of the subcommittee and to the Ministerial Association as a whole, and to Reverend Canon J. R. Cresggan; Reverend Keith Daniel, and to the Reverend J. S. A. Spearman of the Wesleyan Methodist.

Rev. Canon Harrington closed the meeting.

Iran Trade Union Leader Wans Bevan Against Bid For Control of Labor Party

MORIAMBE, England (Reuters)—Iran's trade union leader today used Aneurin Bevan and his supporters their face powerful opposition in any bid to grab control of the Labor party.

Ali Mohammad Deskin, leader of the 1,200,000-strong Transport and General Workers Union, did not name the but rebel who calls for a pepped-up brand of socialism. There is no doubt his remarks to the party's annual convention were aimed at Bevan.

Deskin was invited to the platform as fraternal delegate from the trade unions, from which the Labor movement draws most of its strength. He emphasized that Bevanism was not for nothing but a fight him that quieter, whatever support he has elsewhere.

Against a noisy background of heckling and catcalls, he said nobody was fooled by the suggestion that the real issue in the party was more or less rearmament.

Could Wreck Party

Such arguments could wreck the Labor party, he said—"let them cease their vicious attacks they have launched upon those with whom they disagree, and abandon their vituperation."

He told the convention the unions were prepared to set up an organization to counteract the rebels.

Deskin's speech will give the Bevanites plenty to think about and encourage the moderates who are opposing them. The unions are responsible for about 5,000,000 of Labor's 6,000,000 registered members. They have 12 members on the executive.

REDS READY FOR FEDERAL VOTE

Among other things the prospect of a 1953 federal election provides Canada's Communists a tailor-made forum for the biggest propaganda campaign they have had open to them since the hey-day of Canadian-Soviet friendship during the war years.

That they will take fullest advantage of it was indicated last week in Toronto when Tim Buck was nominated as the Labor-Progressive candidate in the constituency of Toronto-Trinity. It was an occasion for Buck to announce with his usual devious nonchalance that the fortunes of the party are prospering. The party, he said, will run 80 candidates. The party's manifesto was presented as a document that might well delude many a voter, but in it of course was the inevitable joker - - - indeed the keynote, of the Red program.

There are such acceptable objectives as a national health scheme, reforestation and several catch-calls designed to lull the drowsy public into the social welfare state. But the program in its bald Communist objective is disclosed in the plank which demands "the disentanglement of Canada from all war alliances such as the North Atlantic Treaty Organization."

Actually the Labor-Progressive campaign has no other aim than to preach this Kremlin doctrine for the next sight or ten months across the length and breadth of the country. And to make it easier the window-dressing is presented in an "invitation" to all "progressive" Canadians to join hands with them to work for "common cause."

It is typical effrontery on the part of Buck and his crew to presume that they can beguile the Canadian electorate into complete forgetfulness of the record. We are supposed to forget that when the party made its last largescale campaign with 68 candidates in 1945, most of them found a seat in the House of Commons only to be removed from there to a cell in the penitentiary as a traitor and a spy.

It is not asking for some misguided citizens to be taken in by a Red front organization such as the Peace Council. Surely it is something else again to expect that the purposes of the Labor-Progressive party can be any longer disguised. The party has been so clearly branded as the Trojan horse of Moscow in Canada that any success at the polls is unthinkable.

In fact the prospect of a federal election campaign as a forum for the phony peace propaganda of the party will be carried to the very limit.

BIGGEST EMPLOYER

Monday Ottawa announced the encouraging news that Canada's unemployment lists had been reduced by nearly 30,000 in the last five weeks.

It is interesting to note from another source that the Government itself has been perhaps the biggest single employer in the country in the last year.

The federal payroll is growing daily. The Korean war, and defence preparations generally, have created a great deal of additional payroll. Ottawa has hired thousands of extra hands and is still looking for more.

At the latest count this year, federal departments and agencies and Government-controlled crown companies had a total of 165,137 employees. The corresponding total a year ago was 172,624.

Not included in this count are the many thousands in the armed forces, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and the Canadian National Railways.

CANADA'S JET GAMBLE

The announcement of Canada's great new jet aircraft plant in Toronto by Defence Production Minister C. D. Howe has been hailed as a significant advance in the development of the Canadian aircraft industry.

An Ottawa correspondent for the Montreal Gazette has stated, however, that there were a few things Mr. Howe did not mention. Where, he asks, in 1952 does the Orenda stand in the jet power race?

According to jet experts it has lost ground in the two years between its development and the stage now when production is to start on a large scale. It is, though, considered to be better than anything of its type which is in or near production on the North American continent. But there is no doubt that Britain, which did not have to establish a new industry to produce its new jets, is now far ahead.

It is pointed out that development of military aircraft is always a race against obsolescence. The All-Canadian CF-100 jet fighter and the Orenda are described as "Canada's gamble for jet supremacy." Some feel it is still too early to tell whether or not the gamble will pay off.

WATCH FOR KIDS

A master of English pure forbids
The custom of calling the children "kids."

But driving a street where in play
Children play
"Watch out for the kids!" to myself I say.

For the word that's proper to me today
When I have something to warn or say,

"Watch out for the kids," I always say.

But whenever a friend of mine draws away
"Be sure to watch out for the kids," I say.

There are the words the vulgar and ill-bred use
Which in conversation I'd never choose,

But driving the car, by night or day,

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A disc jockey playing records put on two songs by the Yale Glee Club, "Shenandoah" and "Johnny Was a Shoemaker." And listening to the records were 1,000 of these university students, an enquiring mind could not help but regret that our Canadian universities, especially those lost in the wilds of the Canadian Shield, should involve themselves a little more upon the Canadian public. Except for rugby football and a few other strictly collegiate teams, no university activity ever seems to suit outside the institution and into the public interest and attention. On the night mentioned at the year that they were part of the life of the community of Kingston, a town of 30,000 thousands of university students are all talents and purposes elaborately ored.

No doubt there are glee clubs, student theatricals, and the field naturalist clubs and possibly a great variety of other little communities within the student bodies of our great colleges. But in a university even something more to the public than merely to operate a clinical research factory. The glee clubs should be on the air, at least once a week. The art club should hold well publicized shows. The dramatic society should hold public theatre and not cuddle inside a collegiate auditorium. Every student activity capable of being shared with the whole community should be projected into the open, not merely in order to make the public aware of the students, but to make the students aware of the public. It is a tricky little point to make, and perhaps we have not made it here.

But in the struggle in which all our universities are now involved against the massive growth of technology and its smothering effect upon the humanities which are of the very essence of liberal education, the same little point might prove to be quite timely.

The only really important public interest may be in intercollegiate rugby. And of all the technological manifestations of the colleges, rugby, a barbaric game, growing ever more technical, and shaped in by only a handful of intensely specialized and selected students, is surely the worst to employ as a contact with the public. It is, in fact, a game which every week, rising out of the colleges and flooding the great land,

Each Man Marches

(By Aldous Huxley, in Saturday Night)

Each man's drummer is invisible, but his music is audible and compelling. Some of us hear the tom-tom, and march to the rhythm of Negro jungle inspiration. Others march to the steady thudding of the big bass drum of ambition. Others again can hear only the monotonous onetwo-three-four of the snare.

Among the crowd there are a few who hear no drums and more or less completely inaudible to the rolling thunder of all kinds of drums of art, of science or of philosophy; unearthly drums of religious delight; drums, too, of madness, drums of criminal malevolence.

Church and state do their best to discourage the man who step to the anti-social drums, and this is as it should be. But there is also a tendency to treat as lunatics they were anti-social a great many centuries whose only offence is that they respond to a drummer to which other people happen to be deaf.

At different times and in all places eccentricity has been regarded as something to be derided or even repressed. Even the fate of the boy who is more interested in the engine than in athletics has never been enviable. And when he leaves school, his chances are not much better for him.

Among many other things, democracy is non-interference. By leaving other people alone. So long as they are doing no positive harm, the temptation to interfere in non-conformists ought to be resisted. It ought to be resisted. Indeed, even if they do not appear to be doing any positive good.

Miracle of Chain Saw Recalls Early Cutting of Giant Pines

(By John Gould in the Christian Science Monitor)

Not too long ago I was up in the woods after blackberries, and I was up again yesterday looking for mushrooms. In the meantime I was aware of activity in that direction with a modern interval between the early days. My neighbor next below was cutting off a few trees.

A chain saw is quite a rig. It has an 8-cylinder motor which looks like an outboard on a boat, and this energizes a thing like the chain drive on a motorcycle, which has cutting teeth spaced on it. It takes through a tree like a hot knife through butter, and a couple of men with a chain saw can outwork the oldtime woods crew, including the cook and the tote team, estimated at how much wood my neighbor had laid up in such a short time, and how much land was now stumps and brush.

I recalled the boyhood of Henry Coombs, who was a contemporary of my father's. Coombs father back around the turn of 1900, and he cut off a nice growth on the same piece my neighbor had harvested again. Coombs senior had 200 acres, so they could have more fields to the plow. Coombs senior's holdings here ran to a mile square, more or less, and when the last section of the tract was courteously ingored. Enough to establish the two sons financially wound up around 100 acres, and Henry and his brother Alexander had given farms to his sons and daughters, who were scattered from Kingston quite a little community by themselves.

Coombs senior, that I speak of, was given to halfsections, which is 320 acres, and asgins, etc., and although seven different assigns have yet stood since Jacob - - - was named alone and still refer to the farm as the Coombs place, they continue to take a forefatherly interest in its doings.

When Henry Coombs first showed up around here the tourist was virtually unknown. There were a few summer homes at the head of tidewater, ten miles down from the city, and nine miles up the river an even smaller settlement perched above the old stockyards at Pallo. These were the nearest neighbors, and the highway of the day were not the product of long-term bond issues. How Henry happened to find great-grandfather is a question I can't answer. But Henry was here, and he cleared the fields that became the Jacob place. He grubbed out an acre for doing this work.

I suppose the present-day imaginations can rightly picture the woodlands of those times before and during the monumental--but all too few--we can still see, old-growth pine in Algonquin Maloe. They were already big trees when Henry Coombs drove good long bows at Hastings. You go back to 1492, counting rings, and see a country that is mostly bark and heart.

Those were the mast pines that got married with the broad arrow of the King. The masts that were sold by weight and sawn only in England. They had a considerable influence also in the development of the American Revolution. Because it was made lady Pepperell's husband a big mad, when her husband came back from the sea-coast into the valleys and onto the hills.

The Coombs boys describe them was to say that a yoke of oxen could be driven around on the stump and turned completely by around without moving, and there were no chain saws then. A man tackled them with an ax and with a sense of the direction of fall, and then yanked on the saw when he had the raker teeth and not as much temper as a man would have. A more prodigious work in clearing an acre of these trees was, to say the very least, well worth $10 an acre, and I have always claimed that Mr. Coombs earned his money.

But later, on a strip of land in the other direction, Henry felt he was being had, somewhat, and there was a squabble of long standing. He was perfectly satisfied with the $10 an acre, but her felt the acres were running large. The details of the dispute are lost, of course, in time, but after the custom of the day the litigants put their affair to arbitration, and brought in a trio of disinterested citizens to view the tract and make a decision.

Finality in disinterested citizens called for time and their convenience, there was some delay before the appointed day arrived, during which time Henry continued to clear the land with the understanding that terms would be adjusted if his contention was sustained. He lived in and was one of the family.

Meanwhile, it must have occurred to great grandfather that the controversy was bigger than the values, because one evening he approached Henry with another solution. Why don't you, Henry, take the land you've cleared and have it? Pay over and, I won't owe you anymore and we'll call it a whole thing off? Henry pondered this and felt it was fair. A deed was drawn, and in the event you've been wondering, that's how come the Coombs homestead is standing here today. Henry resided on his acreage all his life, and raised his own fields regardless of size free of charge.

It's just a story in the family, signifying not too much, but I've always had a liking for what saw did in a few days. I wonder-ed what Henry would have done and if the land he cleared would be worth his bill.

DEGENERATION AND REGENERATION

Degeneration in the medical sense of the word, means "deterioration of a tissue or an organ in which its efficiency is diminished; a substitution of a lower for a higher form of structure, either by chemical change of the tissue (true degeneration) or the deposit of abnormal matter in the tissues (infiltration)." So says Webster.

Physical degeneration (medical) is a slow process. Whether the deterioration is manifest primarily in the gums, teeth, arteries or joints, it usually progresses for years before a dentist or physician labels it "pyorrhea, arteriosclerosis, chronic arthritis, or whatnot. Then begins the familiar quest for a thirty cause and a specific remedy.

Although my dentist claims to cure pyorrhea many of them get miffed when I have the temerity to talk about it. Most of these periodontists (dentists who deal with the supporting tissues) have scold me in technical language which, as nearly as I can understand, says in substance that I may be right, but who am I to question our gurus?

Although no reputable physician claims to cure arteriosclerosis (rheumatism) most general practitioners and specialists will give the impression that they can as long as patients will take it, and when patients feel up to par with it the doctors and them to a warm dry climate. There other doctors and specialists take over and firmly but gently explain that the rheumatic is an incurable hereabouts as it is back home.

If all this strikes you as unduly pessimistic, cynical, it is because you are just too ... come to the point, you haven't been insulted your intelligence -- that would be im - - - I mean to say if you have intelligence, you have opinions are not despicable. Constantly in mind is the wish to persuade you to send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 200 words or less to Dr. Brady % Keys to Vile.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

FOR THE LOVE OF PEOPLE AND PLACES

It was said of Vachel Lindsay that he was a child who had left home and travelled by foot over many states, trading his poems for food, that he still had much loved meeting people and places. Lindsay was a great poet with a royal soul, who was recognized throughout America, and unappreciated during his life.

I have been reading a most interesting book about this great American poet, called "City of Discontent," by Mark Harris. It is really an interpretive biography of Vachel Lindsay, as well as the story of Springfield and Illinois where the poet lived all of his life, whether city, state, or nation. Springfield and Illinois were to him as somewhere, even before they meant home! And that's the way it is with all of us. We love the place of our birth, and the people of those fields whom we early came in contact.

But if you love too much you may regret it, as the poet did. He had deep and living ideas of beauty and honest ideals, and he wanted to imbue others with them. As in so many other cases, Lindsay had to die in order to live. Lindsay loved Springfield and Illinois because it is one place that belongs to every man, and the place he loves best is the most beautiful and by-precept and example shows the world that each will let other men in other places do likewise."

Such thinking, drawing and associations Lindsay forever sought to keep clear and unspoiled, especially to the humble and the great mass that men like Lincoln loved. He was poor, with no compromise in his art. He was a poet of integrity, and he knew that his best is well brought out in this absorbing book about him, as the poet himself brought out of the ordinary as used by writers of biography.

I hope this book will be widely read, so that what Vachel Lindsay have been all too rare in the world. When we read of the struggles of this poet in his youth, and his over-all courage and sacrifices, it makes us ashamed that each of us lacks so much of the sincerity and character that was outstanding in his life. I have written but one poem, and that is my honest opinion of it, "Vachel Midnight," his fame would have been secure.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

UNSEEN NEIGHBORS

Some time ago a friend of mine who prides himself on being an amateur electrician undertook to repair a faulty ceiling light fixture. He shut off the current at the main switch in the cellar where the wires enter. All the apartments in the building were located. Then he set a careful watch on it. When the resulting shock knocked my friend off the step ladder, he was injured in falling to the floor.

The actual piece of inconsiderateness by one man in the basement violently affected another man working unseen two floors above. This incident symbolizes the fatally state of modern society. The striking picket in Pennsylvania who undertook to soldier in Korea of vital equipment. The incompetence of the motorist whose careless driving disasters the families of men whom he kills. The drunk and criminally negligent intoxication by motorists that is a fruitful cause of innocent victims completely unknown to him.

The increased complexity of society today makes even more vital than ever the commandment of each person for others. And such considerateness is basic Christianity. The second great commandment was, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

Council Considering Administration Of Sewerage System As a Utility

PICTON—Town council is considering the possibility and desirability of turning over the administration and annual debt retirement charges of Picton's sewerage system to Picton Public Utilities. A delegation, comprising Mayor H. J. McFarland, Deputy Reeve C. Scott, Councillors L. S. E. Calnan, Woodrow Blakely, F. J. MacArthur, Town Treasurer C. G. Rutter, Utilities Commissioners H. G. Blakely and H. S. Tully, superintendent Fred Higginson, Town Solicitor R. E. Nourse, went to Toronto on Monday to interview Hon. George Dunbar, minister of municipal affairs, and W. A. Orr, the deputy minister.

The delegation was informed by Mr. Dunbar, that if the matter proceeds, the question of turning over the system to the utilities would have to be voted on by Picton ratepayers as a statutory vote plebiscite. The minister and his deputy were outlined the give general approval to the principle of administration of a sewerage system by its public utilities commission rather than town council.

Providing that the utilities is willing to take over the system and to collect the annual charges in the form of an additional "water rate", or sewer rental rate, council is now in a position to decide whether or not to put the question to the people as a plebiscite, and to set a date when such a plebiscite will be held. The public utilities board previously has agreed in principle to undertaking responsibility for the sewerage system, subject to completion of the matter. Mr. Dunbar stated that in some municipalities the sewerage system is handled as a utility by its commission. Local spokesmen felt there would be more efficient administration under the commission.

Frogmen Prove Their Value in Naval Manoeuvres

Taking part in large-scale manoeuvres off Jutland, Denmark, NATO frogmen, as in actual combat, were the first ones ashore. The frogmen went in to search for hidden beach defences, and then came back out again to give their reports. Here, a member of the navy underwater demolition team, still wearing his invaluable flippers, is picked up by a launch. The boats travel at high speed, so the frogmen disembark by rolling off the raft that is carried alongside. On returning, they are picked up in the same manner. — Central Press Canadian.

Sunday afternoon at St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Catherine Edna, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Boyd of Calgary, Alberta, formerly of Belleville, also Raymond Harry Joseph, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald (Jud) Seymark of Belleville, received the rite of baptism by Archdeacon Arthur Smith, rector of the church.

Right Hair-do Said Woman's Crowning Glory

TORONTO (CP)—It is a hairdresser's duty to create a hair-do so that a woman's hair may rightly be called "her crowning glory," says Ingrid Avesen, director of the Ingrid school of hair design, New York City.

Miss Ingrid, here to instruct Hairdressers at the second annual convention of the Ontario Hairdressers Association, at one session showed delegates 15 ways to dress long hair.

Short hair, she said, is the smartest and healthiest because it gets more brushing and shampooing and is better cared for by the woman herself.

Weddings

WANNAMAKER-WOODS

Dunn Memorial Presbyterian Church, 'Long Branch, was the scene of the marriage of Louise Nelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Woods and Clifford Isaac, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wannamaker, of West Huntingdon, Bay. Very Officiated.

The organist was Mrs. Celia Aird Smith, and the soloist, Mr. Hugh Campbell, who sang "Because," before the service, "For You Alone" during the signing of the register, and "Bless This House" at the reception.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a princess gown of bridal ivory silk velvet with full length train and veil of English silk net which had been embroidered and worn by her sister. She carried a cascade of white roses and stephanotis.

Her attendants, Miss Jo Woods, as maid of honor, and Miss Betty Wannamaker, of Belleville, and Mrs. Lloyd Irvine of Grand Valley as bridesmaids, were princess gowns of emerald green silk velvet and matching hats with yellow ostrich plume and carried cascades of yellow and rust mums. Miss Hazel Pike, of Aurora, cousin of the bride, made a lovely flower girl wearing a miniature gown similar to those of the senior attendants in turquoise silk velvet and matching hat with rust plume and carried a basket of rust and yellow mums.

Mr. Elwin Wannamaker, of Batawa, was groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Lloyd Irvine of Grand Valley and Mr. Earle Wannamaker of West Huntingdon.

The reception was held in the church hall where the bride's mother, wearing a princess gown of wood violet triscana with matching hat and accessories, received the guests, assisted by the bridegroom's mother wearing dove grey silk crepe with matching hat and accessories. Both wore corsage of white and yellow pom-poms.

Children of Mary Sodality Elects New Officers

The Children of Mary recently held their first meeting of the fall season in St. Michael's High School.

Catherine Meagher, acting as chairman for this meeting, welcomed the members, expressing the wish that all would co-operate in the work of the Sodality for the coming year.

Sister Mary Lenore then gave an interesting address on "The Aims and Ideals of the Sodality."

A presentation was made to Joan McIntyre, bride of the month, in appreciation of her work in the sodality.

Officers Elected

Father Brennan spoke briefly following which committees were formed for the coming year.

Refreshments were then served and the meeting adjourned.

Grand Valley, Cookville, Buffalo, Lancaster, N.Y., and Niagara Falls, N.Y.

DEAN—BABCOOKE

The Church of the Redeemer, Deseronto, was the scene of the marriage of Mary Joan, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Babcooke, and Mirton Moore Dean, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell A. Dean, of Bristol, Quebec.

The Rev. A. J. Fowlie officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

The wedding music was played by Mrs. T. E. Tunnicliffe, and Mr. Earl Gray was soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked lovely in her gown of bracaded lace on nylon net, over taffeta with bodice of nylon lace. Her fingertip veil was held in place by a Queen Anne cap of lace over satin. She carried a bouquet of white mums and sweetheart roses, and wore the bridegroom's gift, a gold strand of pearls.

The attendants, Misses Joan and Jean Babcooke, sisters of the bride, were similar gowns of nylon and pink satin, with matching accessories and carried bouquets of mums and roses.

The reception was held in the church parlor. The bride's mother wore a dress of navy crepe with navy accessories and a corsage of red roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was gowned in navy with a corsage of roses.

For traveling to Niagara Falls and the United States, the bride wore a brown tweed suit with tan accessories, and orchid corsage.

On their return the happy couple will reside in Ottawa.

Mrs. C. Ashley Talks Of St. John Ambulance Work

After the summer recess, St. Andrew's Women's Guild met in the School Hall for its monthly meeting. The president, Mrs. A. D. McLean, opened the meeting in the usual manner. Rev. J. G. Hignasty brought an important letter of interest before the meeting.

As the "Thanksgiving" season is drawing near, Mrs. D. L. Fleming gave a most interesting resume of the Pilgrim Fathers and the origin of the first Thanksgiving over three hundred years ago in the United States.

Mrs. Fleming concluded her remarks by referring to several points which are special reasons for rejoicing and thanksgiving.

Reports of the secretary and treasurer were read and approved. Thirty-six members answered roll call.

Following considerable discussion, the request to cater for a banquet was given a negative vote.

The bazaar convener asked that members support all the different booths and not just the one which had been assigned to their group.

For the October Guild meeting Mrs. Fleming's group will serve refreshments and the welcome group will be in charge of entertainment.

Guest Speaker

At this time Mrs. Caniff Ashley was introduced by Mrs. Gelshorpe. Mrs. Ashley gave a most informative talk on "St. John Ambulance" work. This worthwhile work originated hundreds of years ago in the Holy Land during the Crusades. The work became more active again in Great Britain during war years. It was first introduced into Canada in 1891. This is not entirely adult education, but children are also being trained in home nursing.

Princess Margaret Rose is head of all the training for the Empire. The speaker urged that everyone should have some training in home nursing and first aid in order to help serve humanity during accidents, emergencies or disaster and know the proper method of applying artificial respiration. Persons trained in "first aid" will not take the chances others would. One never knows when one may be called upon to render assistance to an accident victim. Statistics show that most of these victims will be members of one's own family.

Many thanks were expressed by Mrs. Elvidge to Mrs. Ashley for her most enlightning address.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. R. Ketcheson and her group.

Mrs. Vesteroff Tells Melrose W.I. About Life in Holland

The September meeting of the Melrose W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. J. Blatherwick with a good attendance of members and visitors.

Mrs. G. English opened the meeting and conducted the business. Mrs. O. Stratton and Mrs. J. Blatherwick were appointed delegates to the area convention to be held on the 16th and 17th of October.

Mrs. J. English, convener gave an interesting talk on "Sister Institutes Abroad." Mrs. G. Stratton gave a paper "Holland a Land of Flowers."

Guest Speaker

Mrs. A. E. English introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Vesteroff from Holland, who has been in Canada three years. Mrs. Vesteroff gave an interesting historic outline of the Dutch people mentioning that it had a population of 10 million people and on their particular farm of 50 acres, they had 18 cows. They never paid for any doctor or hospital bills. There seemed to be and had no cars. Housework differs a great deal as they washed by hand and had no electrical appliances.

A address was given by Miss G. Mowers of Tyendinaga East, on the Folk School held last January at Miss Moorcroft's home in Madoc.

Votes of thanks were tendered all for their hospitality and after the meeting closed refreshments were served.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

...e years of marriage, and she believes it's a failure

...ld anything be more tragic ...his 21, by no means of ...ness in the life you chose ...you were an optimistic 18? ...y husband had already begun ...to spent most of his time and ...ey on drinking? I loved him, ...ough, so I thought that if we ...e a child the responsibility of it ...ld would straighten him out. ...At the time of my son's birth, ...ever, my husband accused me ...at he thought of me. He ...ver, soon came to see me or ...baby until the third day. La- ...I found out that he had spent ...time drinking and playing ...ds. This hurt me so badly that ...instinctively turned to my new ...e for comfort, which resulted ...a spending most of my time ...h the child and made my husband ...e worse. So I tried to put ...y feelings and live a nor- ...social life with him.

...Then, last winter, we were at ...arty together which my hus- ...d left early with some other ...men. This understanding was ...t another man would see that I ...home. He was a man I had ...own for quite some time, and of ...om I was very fond, and when ...y husband he kissed me and ...ddenly I realized that I was in ...e with him. We haven't seen ...h other since then, except on ...street in town, but I know he ...him very much. Still, I have ...husband and son to think of, ...d though my husband makes ...life very miserable, I know ...my life, happily and I do ...hope that he may some time ...ange. I've thought of leaving ...m, but I hate to break up our ...ly life when my son is only ...and very fond of his father. ...ll, I love this other man very ...ch, and I know I could find ...e happiness if I was free. ...What do you think I should ...?

Dreams?

Now the first question that ...es in my mind on reading this ...ter, is: Does the man with ...om this girl believes herself in ...e return her feelings? Did he ...y anything the night he took ...e home to the effect that he ...ould marry her if circumstances ...re free? ...e doesn't say that he did, which ...es me wondering if she has ...perhaps turned to daydreams ...order to ease her unhappiness? ...That, however, I think is only ...e part of the picture. In the ...er part of it, which is even ...re important, this second man ...es not appear at all. For what ...ers here is an unhappy wife, ...spiritual and apparently callous ...husband, and a small child who is ...apparently, that holds the two ...gether. The question then be- ...es: Should she, regardless of ...ether or not there may be an- ...her man in her life, leave her ...band and start out on her ...n?

...hat I think she should do, be- ...e attempting to make any de- ...sion about this, is to try and ...e a frank talk with her hus- ...band, telling him plainly that she ...thinking of leaving him. She ...ould say that she does not want ...do this unless she is forced into ...by the loneliness and misery she ...s so long endured. Let her tell ...m that if there is any chance ...their recovering their early re- ...tionship, she would like to do so, ...d then ask him if he wants to ...again as much as she does. ...Possibly, his reaction to what ...e says will be revealing, and ...ould give her a very fair indi- ...tion of what she may expect of ...e future. On the other hand, he ...ight try to bluster through, too ...ghtborn to let her see that what ...e has said has jolted him.

...Whichever it may be, she will, ...think, have to let a reasonable ...riod pass before she is to come ...to which way his mind is actual- ...working. And while she waits, ...r best bet is to try to summon ...e courage and she will pow- ...s act normally and try to make ...pleasant thing of what there ...y be of a life together.

...All this poses a question which ...nnot be decided right now with ...eality. I have outlined what ...eems to me the wisest step to take ...the moment. Subsequent de- ...velopments alone can make it ...clear to this wife what she can ...reasonably expect of the future. ...Only at that point can she see ...what step should be taken next.

Pork Chops on Potato and Corn Casserole
Spanish Eggplant (don't miss this)
Savoy Cabbage, Celery and Green Pepper Salad
Old Cheddar Cheese
Coffee Cake

DIRECTIONS

I was puzzled to know what to do with three left over cooked cobs of corn. I could have tossed them in the garbage pail, of course, but my Scottish ancestors won't let me be wasteful—even from their final resting-place. So —I did what I describe, below.

PORK CHOPS ON POTATO AND CORN CASSEROLE

It was good too—otherwise I wouldn't pass it on to you—would I?

I pared 6 medium potatoes and for speed's sake shredded them on the coarsest shredder—instead of slicing them. I had about 3 cups but this is my big glass casserole and did this shredding directly into it so they would not brown. I cut the corn off of the cobs and mixed it into them, then I sprinkled it liberally with salt, not so liberally with pepper. Placed the pork chops on top, with the fat edges overlapping the bone edges, put on the cover and left this while the whole business at 400 deg. Fahr. for 20 minutes, until the milk boiled. I then reduced heat to 300 deg. Fahr. for another hour. Little liver I served would have been good in this too —about 1 cup. Or you could use cooked rice or macaroni instead of potatoes.

SPANISH EGGPLANT

I had never tasted this before, but liked it very much—as did Marianne who was home on her day off, and Pete, and my two sisters. All pretty good eating critics too.

One medium to medium-large egg plant (to serve 5), 1-4 cup chopped green pepper, 1-4 cup chopped onion, about 1-2 cup good bacon fat or salad oil, 1 medium tomato, 1 tsnsp sugar, 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, grated cheese to be sprinkled over this is optional. Pare and dice the eggplant in about 1-2 or 3-4 inch dice, and saute this together with the chopped pepper and onion in the fat—but do not brown it—it should merely soften a little and shorten the fat. Peel the tomatoes and slice them into it, and add the salt and sugar, stir well, cover and reduce heat and let very gently for about 10 minutes, then remove cover and let cook 10 minutes longer until some of the liquid evaporates. Put into mine without cheese and liked it. The others used grated cheese on theirs. I think with the cheese on it would be a good item for a vegetable plate—quite rich and satisfying.

VIENNESE COFFEE RING

There are so many recipes for Coffee Cakes I do not know which one to select—so am giving you the one we like in our house—not necessarily the best—but the present favorite.

One fresh compressed yeast cake, 1-4 cup lukewarm water, 1-2 cup milk, 1-4 cup white sugar, 1-2 teaspoons salt, 2 tablespoons butter or shortening, 1 well-beaten egg, 3 cups sifted bread flour, 1-2 cup washed and dried raisins, 3 tablespoons chopped peel. Ingredients for top: 3 tablespoons brown sugar, 1-4teaspoon cinnamon, 1 tablespoon (or more) finely chopped nuts—we prefer almonds or pecans. Have ready an 8 1-2-inch ring mold if you have one—if not use any pan. Crumble yeast cake in lukewarm water and stir until dissolved. Scald the milk and add the sugar, salt and shortening to it while still hot. Cool to lukewarm—blood temperature. Add well-beaten egg and dissolved yeast. Add 2 sifted flour and beat until thoroughly mixed. Add the raisins and peel, then remainder of flour. Beat for at least 3 minutes —this beating takes the place of kneading. Turn mixture into greased ring mold and spread evenly. Mix the sugar, cinnamon and nuts together and carefully sprinkle over and press into top. Cover and let rise in warm room for 1 1-2 hours or until doubled. Bake in over of 375 deg. Fahr. for about 30 to 35 minutes.

Young Viscount Likes His Mother's Piano Playing

LONDON (CP)—A little photograph of Royal baby is David, Viscount Lascelles, who will be two years old Oct. 31.

Twelfth in line of succession to the throne, David's parents are the Earl and Countess of Harewood, whose mutual love of music led to the wedding-of-the-year in 1949.

The dark-haired Lady Harewood, formerly Maria Stein, believes that a mother should bring up her own children. So, although there is a "nanny" for general routine, David spends much time with his mother mostly outdoors at the Harewood estate near Leeds.

If she has no engagements, Lady Harewood takes charge of her son after his afternoon walk — and there's always a music session before bedtime. David likes it best when his mother plays the piano.

Once a week at least, he goes to see his maternal grandparents at their home in Kensington. He is also a great favorite with his father's mother, Queen Mary. An even greater occasion is a visit to Marlborough House to see "great grandmamma," Queen Mary. She is "a favorite with all the Royal children."

Air Hostesses Return to Work After Marriage

LONDON (CP)—One of the biggest staff problems of Britain's airlines may soon be resolved, reports British Overseas Airways Corporation.

Months of expensive training are necessary to fit girls for the work of air hostesses. They often leave to marry within a year's service, said an official.

One "old timer," serving on B.O.A.C. after a three-year break, is attractive Mrs. T. Punsford, who left to marry one of the corporation's senior officials.

"It may sound silly and sentimental, but I found I really missed the atmosphere," she said.

Man Surrenders For Questioning In Bombing

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Police said Monday that Emilio Arellano Schetelay, sought for questioning in the bombing of a Mexican airliner last Wednesday, has surrendered.

Police also detained the Mexican singer, Paco Sierra, who is married to the owner of one of the capital's principal variety theatres, and two of her friends.

Police have been looking for Arellano to explain why he took out $240,000 in insurance policies on seven persons aboard the [illegible] for $80. The names of Sierra and her two friends appeared as beneficiaries on some of the policies.

A time bomb on the plane exploded after it had taken off from Mexico City, blowing out one side of the plane and endangering the 20 persons aboard. The pilot made an emergency landing.

KEREMEOS, B.C. (CP)—Premier W.A.C. Bennett said Monday a general provincial election is "not very far away."

The premier told the Similkameen riding Social Credit convention here: "If the other parties want to fight we accept the challenge."

The announcement is the first official confirmation of rumors that have been coming from Victoria for several weeks.

The case arose from the deaths of Anne Vanderhule, 15, and William Green, 14, who were struck by a car while walking home from a Port Credit theatre.

Due to the U.S. embargo against Canadian cattle, 500 Manitoulin Island farmers lost an estimated $250,000 compared to last year's figures at the Manitoulin livestock co-operatives 8th annual feeder and stocker sale held at Little Current, Ont. In 1951, 2,543 head grossed $681,501.80. This year, 2,756 head brought only $443,802.25. This year's top price was 23 cents a pound for whitefaced steers as compared with last year's 36 cents and the averages were proportionately lower. It was definitely a buyer's market and the experts explained another reason for the drop was the fact many of the 200 cattlemen on hand who might have been in the market are still holding last year's for better prices. — Central Press Canadian.

STRASBOURG, France (AP) — Anthony Nutting, Britain's undersecretary for foreign affairs, today told the European consultative assembly that "Britain means business" in promoting the unity of Europe.

In a speech to the assembly he urged adoption of the "Eden plan" for establishing links between Britain and continental Communities like the Schuman Plan through the Council of Europe.

Nutting said the Council of Europe should negotiate with the six-country Schuman Plan organization to carry out the future relationships. This, he added, should be the pattern for relations with other communities like the European Defence Community still in the planning stage.

Answers Reynaud

Nutting charged that Paul Reynaud of France made a "cynical or ungenerous accusation" against Britain in saying Britain now is demonstrating a "sudden affection" for Europe.

"Where is the suddenness of our affection?" Nutting asked. "Has Mr. Reynaud forgotten two world wars and the price Britain paid in both in defending Europe's freedom?

"Does he ignore as of no consequence the contribution we are now making in arms and men to the defence of Western Europe or the guarantees which we have given to the E.D.C. or the commitments we have undertaken under the Brussels Treaty and the North Atlantic Treaty to safeguard Western Europe against attack?"

Nutting said Britain's record in relations with Europe was a record of pledges "wholeheartedly given and consistently honored."

He added: "A moment's reflection must demonstrate beyond all doubt that Britain means business in the matter of furthering the unity of Europe."

Mack M. Sipp, 23, serving a term for forgery, swiped some civilian clothes from the laundry, donned them and walked out the gate with the Kiwanians. Then he skedaddled.

Chief Justice Denies Court Interference

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario's new Chief Justice, Hon. J. W. Pickup, issued a statement Monday in which he said that he did not intend to suggest in a recent interview that either the Ontario or federal government was guilty of interference in the conduct of the courts.

The Chief Justice was quoted as saying in the interview:

"I will hear every case on its merits and decide it according to what is just, regardless of instructions from the Attorney-General or the Minister of Justice."

He said yesterday:

"The statement made by me to a newspaper a few days ago was intended to assert the independence of the court. Crew of 74 Rescued at Sea

LISBON, Portugal (Reuters) — A radio message picked up here by the Portugese Navy Tues., said all 74 crew members of the Portugese ship Joao Costa, which sank in a storm a week ago when refloating from the Newfoundland fishing banks, have been rescued.

An American vessel, the 2,200-ton Compass, rescued 13 survivors found adrift in three boats, but then abandoned the search because of engine trouble. She asked other shipping to join the search.

Earlier report said the total crew was 92, and that 80 remained unaccounted for after the rescue of the 12.

Empty Safe Broken By Yeggs 44 Times

We're a FIVE ROSES family

FIVE ROSES ALL-PURPOSE FLOUR

There's a real satisfaction in baking good things to eat with FIVE ROSES for my family. Whether it's a party for the neighbourhood children . . . or just my own family . . . the healthy, happy smiles that greet me when I bring in the cake or cookies, always seem to give me a big thrill!

Just like good cooks all across Canada . . . I've learned that the modern way to get perfect results every time . . . is to use this one purpose flour for all my baking!

"Mother brought our whole family up on crisp, country-fresh home-bakings from FIVE ROSES flour, and Grandma used it, too. So naturally I do all my baking with FIVE ROSES! My little one—and my husband—can't wait to get into the cookie jar or taste pies made with FIVE ROSES flour, and when I bake a batch of bread, it seems to be eaten up in a minute! As soon as my little girl is old enough, she'll begin baking with FIVE ROSES —making four generations!"

A large congregation attended the services observed on "The Birth of the Prophets" known as Carmel Camilled Church in Rawdon township for their 77th anniversary services last Sunday.

The church was filled at both services with an overflow crowd in Jubilee Hall. The evening worshippers started to arrive at 6.30 p.m. in order to save seats in the church. A bus system carried the messages to Jubilee Hall so that all could hear even if they did not see.

The church was adorned with flowering plants, baskets of autumn blooms with chrysanthemums and asters predominating. Pretty foliages were placed in the windows and cast the hall in a fall floral arrangement was the whole effect.

Mrs. Arthur Pryer, church organist presided over both services. A full choir rendered "Let Mount Zion Rejoice" and "Wait On The Lord". Miss Verna Dafoe and Mr. Douglas Pryer sang a duet, "Never Divided" at the evening service. In the evening Aunt Blossom and members of the Girls' Auxiliary of the Salvation Army rendered the vocals: "Without A Song" and "Ascalon", by the group in the round; a cornet solo by Miss Joyce Sinclair; "Rock of Ages", by the band. Following the special Remembrance Day Service, band "Softly and Tenderly Jesus is Calling", with congregation to follow. The quartet rendered "God is a Spirit".

Morning Guest Speaker

The pastor Rev. A. E. Baker, U.E. minister Carmel-St. Paul's, presided over both services.

The guest speaker in the morning was Rev. A. R. MacKenzie, B.A., principal of Albert College, Belleville, who gave a message of interest.

The anniversary penant was won this year by the Pryer family with 18 members in attendance: "The Ballerys", won in 1950 and "The Grills" in 1951.

The morning offering was $227. A junior thanksgiving was offered for God's many blessings to the people of Carmel. The morning offering closed on the words of William De Witt Hyde, "Greatest Love Gives The Most Thanks, That Work Awaits Our Hands and Feet".

The Union Jack flew in the breeze all day from the newly erected flag pole and in the evening the red beacon light on the church steeple shone for miles around the countryside.

Evening Service

The evening service at 7.30 was opened with the hymn "Praise written by Charles Wesley.

The visitors from far and near were welcomed and these included: Mr. Mrs. Grills, warden of Hastings county and several officers of the Orange Lodge.

The offering was gathered in the church and hall by Messrs. Ernest Carlisle, Ray Hagerman, Russell Pryer and Everett Grills.

A period of silent remembrance for the fathers and forefathers who built the church and established here for many years was observed. Some of them are now resting in "God's Acre" nearby. The congregation sang as one voice "A Heart to Praise My God."

Evening Guest Speaker

Rev Brother Fred Bateman of Bridge Street and member of Centre East Loyal Orange Lodge, duly introduced the guest speaker Controller Leslie H. Saunders, vice chairman of the Board of Control, Toronto, and who is interested in the cause of Protestantism and he is a devoted worker in the vineyard of the Master.

Controller Saunders gave a brief tribute to the workers in this little country church and chose for his theme, "Now Then, We Are Ambassadors For Christ." He said, "The world's greatest need is that people of God should speak out and let their voice be heard. There is a challenge on all sides to do greater work for the Master in these days with all the evils that beset us. God should be given more than this "once over" and above all "The Bible should be a cherished book as it is the most outstanding of all literature."

Mr. Saunders felt the first commandment should be emphasized first as it was the most important. He said, "A Christian should be different from the mill-run of people. It should not be difficult to distinguish Christians anywhere. They should live differently, carry themselves accordingly and above all, observe certain things. Do today what God reveals to you to do, don't wait till tomorrow and don't be afraid of losing prestige. You don't have to work on Sunday and you don't have to compromise with what you know is wrong.

The speaker gave several vivid illustrations in his own life when he had lost out, but felt he had been right in his decisions. The goal of every person's life should be to say 'yes' when it should be 'yes' and 'no' when 'no' is required.

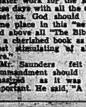
Sermon by Chairman

If you are a Christian you are expected to follow the Lord Jesus Christ, you should show an interest in the Lord's Day and attend service in God's House. Christians should ever be in the forefront of trying to improve social conditions and church people should be far more interested in their fellowmen.

The quarter billion of dollars spent in Ontario for liquor yearly is more money than is spent on education and social welfare.

Protestant Faith

Mr. Saunders explained in detail the Protestant interpretation of Christianity and reminded his audience that Paul said, "Christ is the only mediator between God and man." If you believe your Bible then you must believe that Protestantism is the correct faith, and that Christ died on the cross made it possible for anyone to be reconciled by the Father if they so wish.



In closing he stressed that the victor is in the struggle, not in victory. The challenge today is for man to be for Christ and be His ambassador. The Christian should not try to conform to the world, better they should lift high the Royal Standard.

Rev. A. E. Baker, father-in-law of Rev. A. E. Baker announced the closing hymn, "Fight the Good Fight" as written in 1819 by John S. S. Monsell and which it is still points the way that Christ is all in all to all who believe and follow His directions.

At the close of the service, many folk gathered in Jubilee Hall to chat for a brief time with the special guests.

$2 Million Duties On McCullagh Estate Probable

OTTAWA (CP) — Government sources said yesterday federal and provincial succession duties on the estate of George McCullagh, Toronto newspaper publisher, possibly will amount to more than $2,000,000.

The government sources said that if the dutiable value of the estate was $4,000,000, then the federal and Ontario succession duties would amount to more than $2,000,000.

However, there might be some exemptions.

Both have been held for return to Kitchener today to face charges of conspiring to defraud. Corbett is also charged with forging and uttering.

Salt Lake Convicts On Sit-down Strike

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Some 900 convicts staging an orderly sit-down strike at the Utah state prison today refused to leave their cells.

Warden Marcell Graham said he suggested to prisoners he is communicate with him later today for the first time since the strike began at midnight Sunday.

Graham, who has not attempted to meet with the inmates, said he believed the convicts were striking over the state parolees board's interpretation of regulations covering time off for good behavior.

Meanwhile, two more hostiles escaped from the prison camp last night.

Gen. Van Fleet To be Given Relief from Duty

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Times said Tues., that relief of Gen. James A. Van Fleet, after 17 months of gruelling command of the Eighth Army in Korea, has been decided on at military headquarters in Washington.

There will be no formal announcement, however, until his successor has been selected, says a Washington dispatch to the Times.

(When asked about the report, an informed official at military headquarters said he knew of no discussion of Van Fleet's removal or of anything to indicate such a move was under way.)

The Times sto, says the most prominently — mentioned name in considering Van Fleet's successor is that of Lt.-Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor. Also reported to be under consideration is Lt.-Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe. Both men are assigned to army headquarters in Washington.

Taylor formerly was superintendent of the United States Military Academy at West Point, and was commander of the 101st Airborne in the Second World War.

McAuliffe was the commander who said "nuts", to the German command that his encircled troops in Bastogne in December, 1944. He was acting commander of the 101st at the time, serving in the absence of Taylor, who was in Washington. Taylor returned to Belgium at the height of the action.

The hearing was adjourned to Oct. 15.

Mysterious Plague Kills English Pigs

LONDON (CP) — Ministry of Agriculture officials seek to learn the source of a mysterious disease that has caused heavy death to hundreds of pigs in farming areas of southern England.

Although the cause has not yet been traced, one theory is that the pigs may have got the virus from a vegetable protein imported from Africa.

Research men report that, despite difficulties, the disease is not revealed by normal blood tests.

C.M.A. Wants Govt. Action Taken Against Dumping Foreign Goods

MONTREAL (CP) — The executive council of the Canadian Manufacturers Association today called for adequate government measures to safeguard against dumping of foreign goods in the Canadian market.

The council, presided over by G.K. Sheils of Toronto, 1952-53 president of the C. M. A., said in its declaration the recent request by Japan for most-favored-a t i o n treatment "brings the matter right to the foreground."

The council said that in pre-war years Canada's export trade to Commonwealth countries expanded through operation of empire preferential tariff system. Today the situation had radically changed due to import prohibitions and restrictions and exchange permit regulations established by Commonwealth countries to meet severe dollar shortage.

The council strongly urged that use be made by Canada of the "escape clause" in the general agreement on tariffs and trade in a similar manner to the United States and that adequate safeguards be provided by the government for hearings by interested parties under this clause.

Pearson Says Canada and US Respect Each Other's Privilege In Barring Undesirable Aliens

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Pearson said Tues., Canada made informal representations in Washington at the time as members of the former communist phony orchestras were refused entry to the United States but accepted the U. S. decision not to change its mind.

The minister told a press conference that when members of the orchestra applied for visas to go to Detroit last November, it became apparent six of them would have difficulty "because of security considerations in the United States."

At that time the Canadian ambassador in Washington approached the State Department but Washington stuck by its decision. Nothing was done later because the orchestra returned to Toronto.

The case of the six orchestra members, later released by the Toronto symphony, opened up a general discussion on border crossing rights.

Subject to Security

The minister said border crossing by Canadians into the United States and vice-versa is always subject to security and other considerations.

Although Canada has not yet been traced, one theory is that the pigs may have got the virus from a vegetable protein imported from Africa.

Railways, Unions Long Way From Meeting Point in Dispute

OTTAWA (CP) — The railways and their non-operating unions are still a long way from a meeting point in their $150,000,000-a-year wage dispute.

The railways were understood today to have gone about one-third of the way toward meeting the 18 per cent money demands of the 125,000 employees who do not actually operate the trains. The unions had taken a relatively stand-pat position.

Informants said this was the situation on the main issues in the deadlocked negotiations that led to the current federal conciliation proceedings.

Companies: They have reached the point of offering an 11-per-cent wage increase across the board, against the 45-cents-an-hour demand of the unions. They have rejected the union request for an escalator cost-of-living clause to give a one-cent-an-hour boost for every point rise in the cost-of-living index.

Unions: They have turned down the 11-per-cent offer. They have said they will agree to "reasonable" terms but have not laid a specific compromise figure on the bargaining table.

Sources in touch with the dispute said it is unlikely either party has receded beyond these positions in the private hearings before a conciliation board under Mr. Justice J.L. Kellock of the Supreme Court of Canada. The board's proceedings have been adjourned to next Monday.

Value of Organic Matter in Potato Growing Stressed

OTTAWA — Since potatoes have become the main commercial crop in Prince Edward Island there has been a tendency to depend almost entirely on commercial fertilizer as a source of fertility without the use of organic amendements, particularly manure, according to G. W. Bellwall, agronomist, Charlottetown Experimental Station. Observations over a period of years indicate that this practice has resulted in deterioration of the fertility of the soils in many parts of the province, paving the way to depletion of organic matter content.

Among the remedies advocated are green manure crops, where farmers carry on mixed farming with a fair number of livestock, manure is relatively plentiful and the soil fertility is usually maintained." However, farmers who specialize in potato growing have little or no manure and green manure crops and composts, prepared from old hay, straw, potato vines, together with some chemical fertilizer to assist in decomposition, can be used to advantage.

Mold Made

A project was conducted at the Charlottetown station during the past 25 years where manure and chemical fertilizer were compared. The yield of potatoes grown in a three-year rotation on chemically fertilized plots was 20 per cent greater than on manured plots, and during the past few years barley grown on the fertilized plots has yielded 40 per cent more than the manured plots. Also during the 25 years the continuous block produced 20 percent less potatoes than the rotation. Therefore, advises Mr. Bellwall, farmers who specialize in potatoes should not overlook the fact that a rotation of crops should be used, if at all possible, to conserve humus and help maintain fertility.

More important is the fact that where manure is used a combination of manure and a complete fertilizer gives a better return than to the plots receiving manure alone, and in recent years they are outyielding the manure plots. Therefore farmers with a limited amount of manure should endeavor to it about twice the area and supplement it with a complete fertilizer so the beneficial effects of manure would be spread over more of the farm than when manure alone is applied.

Bank Messenger Captures Robber At Gunpoint

MONTREAL (CP)—Jimmie Edison celebrated his 35th anniversary as a bank messenger yesterday by single-handedly capturing a long-wanted bank robber.

When the 56-year-old Edison shoved a gun in the robber's back the man surrendered with a b u t a struggle. It believed the same man who on Sept. 10 took $1,500 from the same bank, the last Cote Square branch of the Imperial Bank of Canada.

The bank was crowded with customers yesterday and the bandit waited in line to cash a $10 cheque through the grill. On the cheque was written: "This is a holdup. Give me money."

Edison pulled a gun from his pocket, shoved it against the bandit's back and told him: "Move and I'll blow your head off."

The man said "I'll do nothing," and meekly surrendered.

85-Ton Atomic Gun Unveiled By U.S. Army, Has Range Of 20 Miles and Is Mobile

She's Growing Up

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States Army has unveiled a new 85-ton atomic gun and shown that it can roll amidst arrows fields into position to fire super-explosive barrages within 30 minutes.

It is the world's first atomic artillery piece.

The gun, which the army calls an "all-purpose weapon," was put through its paces at a special preview recently for photographers at the Aberdeen, Md., proving grounds.

Ordnance experts have been trying out its mobility and firing capacity for months at the giant testing grounds, but standard ammunition was used rather than atomic rounds.

The army indicated that the weapon can use either atomic or standard rounds merely by changing the type of missile.

The gun has a calibre of 280 millimetres — approximately 12 inches. This, in itself, discloses how completely the Atomic Energy Commission scientists now are able to build atomic missiles which at one time could barely crowded into the bomb bay of a B-29.

Wide Range

There was talk at the demonstration of a 30-mile range for the gun.

This approximates the range for coastal defence and naval guns of somewhat similar calibre.

Twenty miles would be a practical distance for artillery which is safely behind friendly lines, firing over those lines and lacking even an atomic barrage on enemy infantry and armor without endangering friendly troops from the blasts, heat or radiation.

In the demonstration concentration at Aberdeen, conventional projectile charges of standard powder, in bags, were loaded behind an ordinary test projectile.

The rate of fire seemed to be approximately that of any of the heavy calibre, non-automatic guns used by the army and navy.

All Musicians In Orchestra To be Screened

TORONTO (CP)—The directors of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra yesterday set up a committee to screen all 85 members of the orchestra.

Six members of the orchestra were recently refused entry by U.S. immigration authorities r e f u s e d them permission to enter that country.

Woman Cremates Herself in Oil Furnace

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The medical examiner's office last night said a 44-year-old housewife, despondent over ill-health, carefully removed her wedding ring and then cremated herself in the oil furnace of her home.

Detectives said Mrs. Marguerite Albert apparently turned off the master switch of the furnace and set it thermostat at 76 degrees, warmer than the house temperature. A rubber band and a stout cord were found knotted in the switch and hanging in front of the furnace door.

Detectives said Mrs. Albert climbed into the furnace and pulled the cord to the master switch before closing the furnace door.

Mamals Survive Historic Ride Into Space

With two white mice among its mammal passengers, an Aerobee rocket is seen at left, leaving the launching platform at Alamogordo, New Mexico, during one of the recent tests made by the medical laboratory of the USAF research and development command. Following the historic ride into the upper atmosphere, the animals were reported recovered alive and unharmed after being fired 200,000 feet or 40 miles into space. At right, a motion picture reveals a side view of the Aerobee after separation of the rocket nose from the Aerobee and after two minutes of zero-gravity. The mouse in rear drum grasps sides of his platform to maintain balance. Mouse in front is floating in air, as is the rubber ball. Bottom photo was made a few seconds after the parachute opened, applying deceleration to the nose cone. The mouse in front is standing poised and normally orientated while the one in rear is jumping off a small ball with normal agility. The ball is now supported by the drum. Results of tests may determine man's reaction to zero gravity and extreme altitudes.—Central Press Canadian.

JOHNSTOWN

Rev. McLean, Assisted By Rev. C. Puttenham, Holds Services

Johnstown — Johnstown United Church held its anniversary services last Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7.30 p. m. The Rev. Frank McLean, Training Command Padre at the air station was the minister at the morning service. He took verses from Ruth and Acts for his inspiration concerning "He said that "the only people who really mattered in this world today were the Christians and the Communists for they really believed in something."

The evening service was also taken by Rev. McLean with Rev. Puttenham assisting. Mr. McLean took his lesson from Romans and he said that he had had some rather embarassing questions asked him in regard to his job in the Air Force. "Just what do you do?" "Is it necessary?" A lot of fellows have never had teaching about the Bible in their lives. Everyone gets religious training in the forces and for a Christian nation we all need to be ashamed of ourselves that our young people do not receive better religious training."

A large crowd attended both morning and evening services and the church was in receipt of a good offering. A lot of credit is due the young people and their leader for their choir and their flowers and decorations were very nice.

A chicken supper in connection with the anniversary services will be held at the Acme Cheese Factory which has been made into a community centre from 5:30 p. m. until 8.00 p. m. Oct. 1st. Everyone is welcome.

MARRIAGE

Major Canon W. Kidd Brings Fine Address At St. Paul's Festival

Marmora — "While the Christian ideology is opposed by the non-Christian ideology, God will require witnesses to His truth." That was the dominate note struck in a stirring address given by Major Canon W. P. Kidd, of Brockville, at St. Paul's Anglican Church, on Sunday as the congregation observed its annual harvest festival.

Taking as his text, Deuteronomy 8: 18, "Thou shalt remember the Lord, thy God, for it is He that giveth thee power to get wealth," he mentioned that this book of the Bible has been called by some the book of remembrances — because so many times in it, the Israelites were exhorted to remember the Lord and His commandments.

The preacher also remarked that "the description of the Promised Land as given therein befitted to a large extent our own Dominion of Canada, and we as citizens should remember that the blessings we enjoy here come from God's hand and consequently we should not be lacking in our witness to this in the face of those who reject God."

The church was tastefully decorated for the service with fruits and vegetables, flowers and foliage.

A full choir led in the singing of appropriate hymns and rendered Caleb Simper's "His Name is Excellent," with Mrs. P. Gray and Mrs. R. Frost taking the duet part.

Canon Kidd also officiated at the harvest service in St. Mark's, Roseariew, in the evening.

Chico In Need of Refining Influence

George Hardy's pet monkey Chico had a brief fling at freedom from his Windsor home before citizens of Windsor, Ont., found George and had Chico reinstalled in his home. Escaping from George while in downtown Windsor, Chico bit three policemen, scratched innumerable people, and then, when picked up by a service station operator Alex Matis, bit seven Matis brothers, tore the drapes in his home to shreds, and exchanged blows with Mrs. Matis. That did it. Chico was without a home and Mr. Hardy took him back and is now looking for a female monkey companion to improve Chico's manners. — Central Press Canadian.

SENIOR "B" WORKOUT

The Glen Ray Athletic Club senior "B" hockeyists put some of the kinks and wrinkles out of their skating legs at Memorial Arena last night when the squad skated out for their first seasonal get-together. There wasn't much of a "practice" about the session since the workout was held mainly to find skating legs. One newcomer, at the goaltending is most of the rubbish showed up well on his first time out was "Red" Wasson, starry goalie of last year's Peterborough Junior "B" squad. "Red" is trying for this year's goaltending spot but nothing definite will be decided until the goalie spot but nothing definite will be decided until later.

Most of the veterans of last year's squad were on hand including Vern Gagne, Keith MacDonald, Peter Rose, "Red" Doran, Huck Reeves, Doug Hardacre, Jackie Wardhaugh, Gerry Dorsey, Hank Reeves, Doug Hardacre, Jackie Wardhaugh, Gerry Dorsey, Hank Reeves, Doug Hardacre, Jackie Wardhaugh, Gerry Dorsey, "Nobber" Day, Trumble and Semark. New faces included Ted Degray Duke Doran and Billy Strahan of last year's junior "B" squad, Gord Graham and brother and Brian Mulvihill.

Alderman Don McNevin did not push his charges too far and ordered another practice for next Tuesday night starting at 6.30. No coach has been named as yet. It is expected a defenseman or two from out of town will be added to the roster in the near future.

JUNIORS WITH HAWKS FRIDAY

When the Black Hawks skate out on the ice here Friday night there will be at least two familiar faces in the black, white and red livery. They are Jackie Lalonde, a starry young centre of last year's junior "B" Hawks here and Rob Wilson, thumping defence stalwart of the same club. Both Wilson and Lalonde are said to be in the good graces of Coach "Red" Hamill of the Galt junior "A" squad and in all likelihood will see service with that club this season. Henry Thorrien and Gerry Gallivan will see action this year with the Belleville team as will four other juniors who will be sent here from the Galt training camp.

Lalonde and Wilson will line up with Al Rollins' "Whites" at the Hawks' practice while two other promising Galt juniors, Sleaver and White will see service with the "Blacks." Incidentally Moe Roberts the 'ten' year old son of the Hawks' boss stopped into the goal-tending breach at a game last season when Harry Lumley was hurt, will not wear the pads Friday night, as the official program states. His place will be taken by Binkley, Galt junior goalie.

JUNIORS PRACTISE MONDAY

The Black Hawk juniors will step on the ice for the first practice next Monday night, Coach "Red" Doran has announced. The workout will start at 6.30 sharp.

"Red" extends a cordial invitation to all youngsters of junior age in the district to attend the practice and join in the pre-season calisthenics. Every player who shows a ability will be given every opportunity to display his hockey wares and if need enough will make the team. Every position is open and the 1952-53 edition of the junior Hawks will be one of players who have made the grade strictly on their merits.

GLEN BOYS—DIESELS TONIGHT

Don McNevin's Glen Ray junior softballers go at it again tonight against the CNR Diesels in their quest for the city championship of the Belleville District Softball League. The game is slated for Alemite Field starting at seven o'clock, it says here, and it could be the last game of the season. The Glens are in bad game off their stride on Monday night when the railroaders gave them a 6-0 shellacking in the first game of the best-of-three series. They'll have to hike up their pitches tonight if they want to force the series into a third tussle.

It is just as well perhaps to see the youngsters get these bad exhibitions out of their system for they face a tough test here on Saturday afternoon when they meet the Windsor Local 195 UAW at Alemite Field in the senior "A" finals. They face elimination since they are a game down in the best-of-three series and they must cop the two p. m. edition of the hoped-for doubleheader if they want to survive.

TEA, BROOKLYN!

By the time this is being read the first game of the world series will be history since the tilt started at Ebbet's Field in Brooklyn at one o'clock this afternoon.

Whether young Joe Black weathered the storm and defeated that second master Allie Reynolds of the Yankees is also known, at time of reading but tomorrow's game is another tilt. Carl Erskine of no-hit fame, unless Chuck Dressen changes his mind will face Vic Raschi, another National League nemesis in the second round of the best-of-seven deal. The wise ones are betting the Yanks to come through beating their odds on the superior hurling staff supposed to be had by the Brown Boomers.

The experts of the experts around this village in Brooklyn, since the Flatbush Faultiers are 8-5 underdogs, or were at the beginning of the series. In any event, the Yanks have won sufficient hoopoe, moolah, flags and pennants for the noose so we're rootin' for the "Bums" to come through. They deserve it, even if they don't win it.

FIGHT FIX

On that recent safari to Windsor and Detroit we took in the fight pictures of the Walcott-Marciano heavyweight do, in the cool of Saturday evening. George Forhan, manager of the Bells Theatre here tells us he has the film booked for this week starting today and running through Friday. Take a tip and don't miss it. You'll see the rugged young challenger slugging his way against a master-boxer and getting somewhat the worst of it in the early rounds. And you'll see the smashing 13th round climax when the terrific right and left hooks of Marciano won him the title. It is fast, furious action throughout and should not be missed by fight fans.

By GAYLE TALBOT

BROOKLYN (AP) — The key game of the 1952 World Series begins at 1 p.m. EST today at Ebbets Field, baseball park of Brooklyn's Dodgers. Joe Black, sensational rookie relief artist of the National League champions, will give his all against Allie Reynolds, the kingfish of the Yankee corps.

Never in the history of baseball has a first-year pitcher carried a more appalling burden than that assigned to the husky Negro. His team's chances of winning a world championship, or even of giving the famed Bombers a lengthy wrestle for the honor, are believed by the experts to rest upon his ability to turn back the Yankees today.

The consensus of the critics is that the Yankees will win their fourth straight championship in five or six games. Only the possibility that Black, a relief pitcher of impeccable control, might throttle the champions today and perhaps offer valuable assistance later kept many prophets from picking the American Leaguers to wrap it up in four straight.

Almost Demoted

It's a throat-catching spot for a rookie to find himself in. Back in April, after a series of poor exhibitions, Black was at the bottom of the Brooklyn mound staff and he barely escaped being shipped back to the minors.

Though eventually he proved his mettle in relief roles and established himself without argument the most valuable single player in either league, the rookie never started a big league game in his life until the fag end of the season. He went the distance easily, set Boston Braves down with three hits and won his 15th victory in assuring the Dodgers at least a tie for the flag. In a succeeding start he was knocked out in the fifth inning.

And Joe is the pitcher the National League—traditionally a "pitchers' league—is forced to call upon today in a desperate hope of stilling New York bats and beating Reynolds, winner of three Series and money hurler of renown. Beyond Black, nobody can predict with any confidence what any Brooklyn thrower will do on a given day. Manager Chuck Dressen sums up his Series pitching strategy this:

"I'm starting Black and from there on I'll do what I've been doing all season. If it's necessary to win a game, I'll use two or three pitchers—or all five. The record shows we've done pretty good that way."

Up to now, it has been axiomatic that the National League goes into the fall frolic with the finer pitching, the American League with the greater power at the plate. Now the National finally comes up with a club which should at least on even terms with the Yankees, yet cannot summon three starters who appear to compare with Reynolds, Vic Raschi and Eddie Lopat.

No Excuse Series

What makes the lack doubly distressing to National Leaguers is the fact that this is their World Series of no-excuse. For the last three years their champions have gone into the playoff whipped to a frazzle after last-day flag finishes. Last fall the Giants had time only for a quick shower after their three-game playoff with the Dodgers. Then, the Series was an anti-climax.

The Dodgers are well rested this time. They clinched several days ahead of the windup—a matter of fact. This should be the one Series in many years where the batters are not tired from a long campaign.

Pitching, not batting, has been the big factor in the Yankees' success. Their hitters have been mediocre, with the exception of Mickey Mantle, the switch-hitting rookie sensation. Mantle has been the big gun in the Yankee attack, with Yogi Berra, Gene Woodling and Hank Bauer contributing their share.

Mantle, Berra and Woodling will be the big guns for the Yankees today, with Jackie Robinson, Duke Snider and Roy Campanella the chief hopes of the Dodgers. Robinson has been hitting well, Snider has been hitting with power, but Campanella has been in a batting slump.

Pee Wee Reese, Gil Hodges and Andy Pafko are the other Dodgers who have been hitting well. Carl Furillo, Brooklyn's batting champion, has been in a slump.

Manager Dressen has announced that Clem Labine, Ben Wade and Carl Erskine will be the pitchers to follow Black. Labine is a relief pitcher, Wade a starter and Erskine a starter who has been used in relief.

Manager Casey Stengel of the Yankees has announced that Eddie Lopat will be the pitcher to follow Reynolds. Lopat is a starter. Vic Raschi, another starter, will be held in reserve.

Series Notes

By ED CORRIGAN

BROOKLYN (AP) — Last-minute notes from the opposing pitchers in the opener of the World Series today at Ebbets Field:

Joe Black, Brooklyn—"The way I feel right now it's just another ball game. The Yankees don't awe me at all. After watching them much as I realized they were just another ball club. They're a good ball club, but the Dodgers seem to be a pretty good club, too."

Allie Reynolds, New York—"I feel okay. I want to win the Series starts today. I believe we're up for the game. I know I am, and that's about it."

Outfielders Carl Furillo of the Brooks and Gene Woodling of the Yankees, both right-handed hitters, a slight injury, are not worrying.

Furillo's head is taped. "It's only time I feel any pain is when I swing at one and miss it," said Carl.

Woodling's groin injury seems to have healed and he said he felt "fine" when he lifted his bat.

Steve O'Neill, who managed both Philadelphia Phillies and Cleveland Indians, should be an authority on the Dodgers and Yanks, having hired to beat both of them.

"These are two remarkably strong opponents," he said, "the Dodgers got a well-pitched game they can beat the Yanks. Brooklyn has a full line-up of players who can run and hit the long ball, and they're likely to win if they get the pitching."

Brooklyn captain Peewee Reese, who played in the 1941 Series against the Bronx Bombers said:

"We haven't talked much about the Yanks, but we are in a good mental state and we think we can win. We've got confidence in our own pitcher. The Yanks are a fast-ball hitting club and we have several pitchers who can change up."

This isn't like the old days in Brooklyn. Not a parade, nor even a demonstration. When the Brooks won it '41, you would have thought the millenium had arrived. Now the Ebbets Field Dodger rooters are getting blase about it.

Black Hawks Edge Ottawa 3-2

PEMBROKE (CP) — Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League last night edged Ottawa 3-2 exhibition game victory over Ottawa Senators of the Quebec Senior Hockey League.

Chicago scorers were Jim Peters, Fred Glover and Pete Babando.

Canadiens, Threat for Stanley Cup, Richard Will Break Record—Irvin

This is the second of a Canadian Press series on pre-season prospects of the N.H.L. clubs.

By W.R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—On the basis of past performances alone, Montreal Canadiens must be rated at least equally as good as last season. It is a stand-pat club.

Indications are there won't be a rookie in sight when Canadiens open the National Hockey League season at home Oct. 9 against Chicago Black Hawks.

Coach Dick Irvin predicts:

"If Rocket Richard plays the full 70-game schedule he will break the league scoring record of 50 goals he set in the 1944-45 season."

ROCKET IN SHAPE

Richard, laid low by a mysterious groin ailment last season, is free of his abdominal pains and has been flashing in old-time form. He needs only five goals to tie the life-time record of 324 set by Nels Stewart.

Elmer Lach, named All-Star centre, shows no signs of wear and tear. Neither does play-making Billy Reay. Ken Mosdell and Johnny McCormack have been doing all that was expected of them.

But Canadiens' fortunes may rest with a trio of sophomore forwards who startled the league last season.

They are Bernie Geoffrion, voted Rookie of the Year; Dickie Moore and Dick Gamble. Geoffron scored 30 goals, Gamble 25 and Moore, who played in only 35 games, scored 18. All coach Irvin asks is that they keep right on where they left off.

Irvin says he has forward-line reserves "three deep at each position" he can summon from farm clubs.

DEFENCE SOLID

Backed by Gerry McNeil in the nets, the Montreal defence is solid, experienced and capable.

Irvin likely will start with these five defencemen: Doug Harvey, All-Star man; veteran captain Butch Bouchard, Tom Johnson, Jim MacPherson and Dollard St. Laurent, a rookie last year. Reserves, ready for call-up, will be Ross Lowe, Ivan Irwin and Stan Long.

Winnipeg May Stage Grey Cup Final In 30,000 Capacity Stadium in '54

By AL VICKERY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Grey Cup final, Canada's greatest sports spectacle, may be staged here within two years.

A 10,000-seat stadium will be available for football Aug. 1 next year. Capacity can be increased to 30,000 by addition of portable bleachers and eventually it may go up to 60,000.

The 30,000-crowd would be nearly 3,000 better than that of Toronto's Varsity Stadium, scene of the annual last-Saturday-in-November classic since 1940. A final in Western Canada would be the first since the east-west game was inaugurated in 1921.

CONSTITUTION CHANGE

A change in the Canadian Rugby Union constitution would be neces sary to make the switch from Toronto to Winnipeg. The weather may be an important factor in any decision.

The go-ahead for the $500,000 bowl-shaped stadium—as yet unnamed—was given last April and tenders will be called next week-end by Mayor Garnet Coulter. Several sites about three miles from the downtown area. Construction of concrete and steel is expected to start this fall.

The 880-south field will be sodded in the spring and, if plans go according to schedule, everything will be set for the opening Blue Bomber home game of the Western Canada Conference late in August.

URGED FOR YEARS

Sports-minded citizens have been screaming for years for a new to replace obsolete Osborne Stadium, home of the Bombers, that holds 9,500 persons.

The Winnipeg Enterprises Corporation was formed by Canadian men last year and the final obstacles were cleared when city council okayed the plans for the new stadium in January and the Manitoba Legislature approved an amendment to the city's charter in April. It allows the city to guarantee the principal and interest of a loan up to $500,000.

The city also granted a 20-year-ule to the stadium site, a four-block area north of Polo Park racetrack between Portage and Ellice Avenues, a semi-residential area. The corporation will pay a nominal rent, expected to be $1 a year, for the site.

City council has exempted the land and buildings from all municipal taxes except for local improvements.

The non-profit corporation, headed by W. Culver Riley, president of the Blue Bombers, will have 11 directors, six to be named by the city. The six will be named the stadium say time it wishes and it will handle the city's property at the end of 20 years.

BASEBALL TOO

A baseball section will be completed in the spring of 1954. The ball field will overlap on to the football field while the latter will be rimmed by a quarter-mile cinder track. Floodlights will be mounted on 85-foot towers. Parking space will be available for 2,500 automobiles.

Sport in Brief

HERSHEY, Pa. (CP)—There is optimism in the training camp of Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League because the sick are recovering and the injured are back on their skating legs.

Sugar Jim Henry, veteran goalie, and Jerry Toppazzini, leading contender for a defence job, are back in play. Both suffered ankle injuries. Milt Schmidt and Dave Creighton, both sidelined by the flu, are ready for action.

The Bruins signed two amateurs, goalie Jack Gamble and defenceman Bill Mathers, and assigned them to Tacoma of the Western Hockey League. Gamble is from Kitchener and played in Scotland with Paisley. Mather, 20, played for Port Arthur Bruins.

MONTREAL (CP) — Defenceman Doug Harvey signed his 1953-53 contract yesterday with Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League. He is a member of the squad to come to terms.

This will be the sixth season with Canadiens for Harvey, who was named to last season's first all-star team.

"We are looking forward to a big year from Doug," said Manager director Frank Selke.

TORONTO (CP)—Winger Ray Timgren has agreed to terms with Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League and is to report to the Leafs' American League farm, Pittsburgh Hornets, at Niagara Falls.

Hap Day, assistant manager of the Leafs, said yesterday a request will be sent to N.H.L. governors asking that Timgren's suspension be raised.

Timgren had requested a salary increase and did not show up at the Pittsburgh camp Sunday. Next day his suspension was requested.

TORONTO (CP)—Gordie Howe, leading scorer in National Hockey League for the last two years, was back on skates yesterday after seven days of benchwarming because of an exhibition game injury. Detroit Red Wings' star right winger confined his activities to solo skating and shooting exercise.

MONTREAL (CP)—A meeting of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and its Quebec division will be held Oct. 4 at St. Jovite, Que., it was announced yesterday. Delegates expected to attend include E. Dudley Dorey, Ottawa; Carl Ramage, Brantford; E.R. Hebert, Sorel.

STRATFORD (CP)—Firing three third-period goals as Cleveland Barons won out at Toronto Maple Leafs took a 4-1 victory over Coach Fred Cook's club here last night.

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Manager Dixie Walker, former Brooklyn outfielder, has parted company with Atlanta Crackers after leading them to a pennant and to sixth and second place finishes in the Southern Association.

GRANDMERE, Que. (CP)—Led by Zellio Toppazzini with three goals, Providence Reds of the American Hockey League last night defeated Quebec Aces of the Quebec Provincial League 6-1 in an exhibition game.

Pat Egan, Ray Powell and Jean-Paul Denis scored for the Quebec Provincials, while Jean Beliveau counted for Quebec.

WALLACEBURG (CP) — Orillia Terriers eked out a 12-11 decision here last night in the first game of the O.L.A. intermediate A final series over Sarnia Beavers. The game was a hard, fast contest with the score tied four times. The return game will be in Orillia Saturday.

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Sep Palin of Indianapolis, veteran trainer and driver of harness horses, is reported in critical condition here. He is 74.

Palin is in hospital for treatment of a skull fracture and cerebral hemorrhage suffered Monday at the trotting track.

NEW YORK (AP)—St. Louis Cardinals last night sold infielder Tommy Glaviano to Philadelphia Phillies. Cards' officials said it was a straight waiver deal. Glaviano, who played second base, third base and shortstop, batted 245 in 77 games for the Redbirds.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Sacramento Solons announced today that Player-Manager Joe Gordon is out. He came to the Pacific Coast Baseball League team from Cleveland Indians in 1950 and before that was a star second-baseman with New York Yankees.

Riders Cut Chambers From Playing List

OTTAWA (CP) — Coach Clem Crowe yesterday dropped inside wing Bill Chambers from Ottawa Rough Riders to bring the club's roster within the eight-import limit allowed in the Big Four.

Chambers, who left for his home in Los Angeles, came to Ottawa this season from Montreal Alouettes with Gene Roberts, one import Roughies will keep.

Gino Mazzanti, who played several early-season games with Riders, remains as non-playing backfield coach. He played formerly with University of Arkansas and Philadelphia Eagles.

Beattie Ramsay Hockey Star, Dies

REGINA (CP)—Beattie Ramsay, whose hockey career ranged from the quaint rinks in his native Lumsden, Sask., to the 1934 winter Olympic Games, died in hospital yesterday after a short illness.

The 56-year-old Ramsay, who gave up playing for engineering work in Saskatchewan in 1939, continued his interest in the game until his death. He resigned early this month as president of the Regina Pats junior hockey club.

Beattie was one of the few players to write his own professional contract. The management of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League told him to name his own terms for the 1925-26 season. He took them up that year and for the next two seasons but when the same offer was extended for 1928-29 he turned it down.

At 32, he said, he wasn't worth his weight in hockey and stayed with his engineering work in Saskatchewan.

His organized playing career started in 1921 while he was studying engineering at the University of Toronto. He captained the Blue and White team, managed by Conn Smythe who later offered him his first pro contract with the Leafs.

Babe Ruth set the home run record for the major leagues when he banged his 60th homer of the year for New York Yankees 25 years ago today. In his whole career from 1914 to 1935 Ruth, who died in 1948, hit 714 homers.

Ralph Kiner Up for Sale

NEW YORK (AP)—Ralph Kiner, seven-time home-run king of the National League, has been placed on the market-to the highest bidder, the Associated Press learned today.

It was also learned that Chicago Cubs and Boston Braves had shown interest in the Pittsburgh Pirate slugger, but were balking at the "skyscraping" figure put on Kiner by General Manager Branch Rickey.

"Sure, we're interested in Kiner" a Braves official said. "Why shouldn't we be?"

A Cub official said practically the same thing.

"We'd like to have Kiner," the Chicago representative confessed. "We're willing to go pretty high for him, too. But from what I've heard, Rickey wants too much."

Kiner, who will be 30 Oct. 27, has led or tied for the National League lead in home runs ever since he came up to the majors in 1946.

Buckets Hirsch Off Ticat Club

HAMILTON (CP)—Snap Buckets Hirsch, chosen for the Big Four all-star teams in 1950 and 1951—his first years of Canadian football—yesterday was cut from the Hamilton Tiger-Cat club. With him went Don Bicket, 34-year-old halfback from the professional New York Giants.

Their departure left Tiger-Cats with the maximum list of eight American imports before today's pruning date. And, ironically enough, it made Toronto Argonaut Coach Frank Clair look good.

Clair sent Hirsch, a two-year Argonaut lineman, and Canadian-born Dan-Durno to the Tiger-Cats this season in a straight trade for Jack Carpenter, 26-year-old middle who formerly played with Buffalo Bills. Durno retired from the game early this month after suffering a back injury.

With the departure of Hirsch, also a former Buffalo Bill stalwart, Clair can figure he got Carpenter for nothing. Carpenter has been playing a tremendous game for the Toronto club.

Quiocey Armstrong, formerly of New York Giants who joined Tiger-Cats last week, was chosen to fill the snap position instead of Hirsch and Ray Dohn Dillon, formerly of Detroit Lions, got the call over Bickle.

Heck Dropped By Argonauts

Heck was the first to go as senior clubs across the country scanned their import lists to trim them down to eight Americans before the Oct. 1 deadline set by the Canadian Rugby Union. He was beaten out by Zeke O'Connor from Dallas Texans who joined the Big Four club last week.

Alouettes Drop Allen, Smith

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four cut Louis Allen and Larry Smith from the roster of their football club yesterday to limit of eight American football imports.

The club had previously released Fran Nagle, Hank Tiedermann and Charlie Hubbard.

Allen, a middle wing, and Smith, inside wing, were acquisitions since the season opened, previously with Pittsburgh Steelers and Chicago Bears respectively.

Here are the National League flag-winners of 1952 — the Brooklyn Dodgers, who, by the charts, should win the world championship title. The Dodgers are recognized as being superior at four positions — catcher, first and second base, and left field. Nevertheless, the Yanks are favored because they have history on their side, 14 world series titles, with Brooklyn their victim three times. Last time they met, in 1949, Yanks took classic four games to one. Seated, alone in front is bathoy Charles Glovyans. Front row (l. to r.): George Shuba, Andy Pafko, Pee Wee Reese, George Pfister, Cookie Lavagetto, Mgr. Chuck Dressen, Jake Pitler, Billy Herman, Billy Cox, Roy Campanella and Bobby Morgan. Sifting Fact from Fancy Big Job In Preparing for Titanic Epic

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — They're sinking the Titanic again, this time as a movie lot, and they're having a terrible time sifting fact from fiction.

The Titanic epic will star Clifton Webb and Barbara Stanwyck and is being helmed by Charles Brackett.

"The stories we have uncovered about the sinking are fabulous," the producer remarked. "We have had to discard some of them because they are too fantastic for movie audiences to believe. Some are too fantastic for me to believe. That's only natural since human testimony is inclined to be faulty in times of great stress."

Claimed Unsinkable

The facts, as Brackett related them, are these: The Titanic was built at a cost of $7,500,000. Its building was accompanied by a big publicity campaign citing it as the most modern, unsinkable ship. Newsreels still exist of the captain confidently embarking on the maiden voyage. Aboard were nine multi-millionaires, several editors, a novelist, a countess and President Howard Taft's aide-de-camp.

On the night of April 14, 1912, a lookout sighted an iceberg dead ahead. The alarm was sounded and the ship was swerved to one side, missing the iceberg. The ship struck a spur of underwater ice, which ripped open the bottom of the ship "like a sardine can."

The Titanic went down with 1,517 persons. When the liner Carpathia arrived on the scene only 707 survivors could be found.

Fantastic Story

Many stories of the disaster, came out of Senate hearings and newspaper accounts. Among them:

That the first officer on the bridge continued the ship's speed for 10 minutes after ice waters were deemed dangerous and that he shot himself after the iceberg was struck.

That the captain swam to a lifeboat, deposited a child there and swam back to go down with his ship.

That Mrs. Isadore Straus declined to enter a lifeboat and leave her millionaire husband, saying, "I stayed with him a good many years. I'm not going to leave him now."

The acts of heroism outnumbered the selfish ones. As the ship was sinking, those aboard sang "Nearer My God to Thee," and that is the title of the picture. (The title "Titanic" is owned by another producer.)

"The Brave Warrior Tecumseh in Technicolor"

Since the time the first settlers from Columbus' ship saw a coppery-hued face staring at him from the forest, the path of the Indian and the white man have crossed and criss-crossed. At times the two peoples have lived in peace; more often they have been at embittered odds.

Columbia Pictures' "Brave Warrior," filmed in color by Technicolor and starring Jon Hall at the Capitol Theatre, Thursday, Friday and Saturday depicts a phase of the centuries long struggle between the Indian and the white man. Story of the great Shawnee 'spriting whose savage raids struck terror across the plains, "Brave Warrior" also story of great Shawnee chieftain Tecumseh who dreamed of peace between the white man and his people only to be caught up in America's greatest Indian war.

On the strength of his reputation in a military man, principally his participation in the battle of Tippecanoe, Harrison was swept into the presidency, in 1840.

In "Brave Warrior," Jon Hall is cast as a government troubleshooter in the Indiana Territory. Supporting players include Christine Larson, as the daughter of one of those agents; Jay Silverheels as Tecumseh, and Michael Ansara, as the Prophet.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

THURSDAY, OCT. 2, 1952.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Your problem "I" is mostly how to plan and follow through to completion. Co-ordination methods, existing should be carefully watched. Be tuned to detect unexpected good openings.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Most of day's indications say your affairs will need close scrutiny, especially in money matters. Waste no time in non-essentials. Get on the beam!

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Start with Taurus now, you will need extra care" in how you approach others. Conduct important things first and well.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Don't be dull in spots for other people's business. Concentrate all what you know you can handle properly. Private affairs honored.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—Caution rays for heart influences. Watch matters. Business, investments, travel, ask more care. Look outside influences, check them if in doubt.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)—Practicality is name of game as Leo today. Level-headedness can help considerably. You can't afford to shirk chores, duties. Unseen friends pull for you.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Unmistakable lessons before us in what comes from arrogance and other such egotistic ills. Work against these trouble-makers always.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Accept graciously any increase in authority, gains, courtesies. Don't change attitudes or quality of work in unwarranted fashion.

November 23 to December 23 (Sagittarius)—Try to avoid a tendency to pass up hard or "rough" tasks for easy ones. Use your all-round capability to conquer hazards with good humor intact.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—May have extra load but don't allow it to cause doubts, irritation. Be your serious, practical, good humored self.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—No let-up to some unsolved situations? Keep on the intelligent, logical side. Some personal matters very favored.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Sextagram, diplomacy can make a bull's eye today. Don't need to be a genius to discern good from bad.

YOU BORN TODAY: Intuition and balance dominating characteristics. You can be relied upon to a high degree to do the right things for all concerned; nothing underhand about you. Naturally calm, unassuming and affectionate, but can be aroused to vigorous anger. Birthdate of: Cordell Hull, U.S. statesman.

Mice Subjected to A-Bomb Rays

This is the first generator of its kind anywhere. It produces gamma rays similar to those given off in an atom bomb explosion. Designed to give complete uniform total body irradiation of target materials, it was built by scientists of the U.S. navy at Bethesda, Md. Here Capt. R. H. Draeger (left), and N. J. Moss observe the visible effects on an animal during exposure to irradiation of gamma rays. The main advantage of the new apparatus is that the animal is shot with rays from all sides, just as it would be by an atomic explosion, and effects of such exposure can be determined. — International Press Canadian.

Why We Say —
TO TURN THE TABLES

A "good deal" is the suggestion of a mind to be kept enlightened in the 1600's with a set of books on the Seven Wonders of London, England. No bath a crocodile basks was known to exist in the Thames. Nor was a sewage system. Nor the fact that we did not want to be enslaved about the time the people got "good."

Pioneer Figure In Radio Networks Dies in New York

NEW YORK (AP)—Merlin H. Aylesworth, 86, a legendary figure in the early days of broadcasting and first president of the National Broadcasting Company, died yesterday after a long illness.

A public relations executive at the time, Aylesworth was 46 years old when he was chosen in 1926 to launch NBC as the first major radio network in the United States. He had no previous experience in radio and did not even own a set.

Two weeks after NBC was formally organized he put its premiere broadcast on the air over 24 stations.

That broadcast included Wm Rogers, Walter Gieden, Dr. Walter Damrosch conducting the New York symphony orchestra; The Suite of the Metropolitan Opera; Edwin Franko Goldman and his band, Weber and Fields, Vincent Lopez and his orchestra and others.

That first broadcast was typical of the scale on which Aylesworth operated. He brought a pair of comedians, who were broadcasting from a Chicago station, to New York for their network broadcasts. They were Charles Correll and Freeman Gosden—Amos and Andy.

By the time Aylesworth left NBC in 1936 to become president and board chairman of Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corp., network radio had become firmly established in the U.S.

Aylesworth, for the last several years operated his own office as advisory counsel and was on the executive board of Ellington and Co., advertising agency.

In 1937 he became a member of the management of the Scripps-Howard newspapers and was publisher of the New York World-Telegram from 1938 to 1940. For a time he also was consultant to the Scripps-Howard radio station subsidiary of The Associated Press.

Textile Workers Out on Strike In Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP)—Some 750 textile workers went out on strike here today. About 400 workers at Hamilton Cottons Limited and 250 at Cosmos Imperials mills are involved.

Jack Robinson, Ontario director of the United Textile Workers (A.F.L.-T.L.C.) announced the strike last night. He said Sunday that union officials had given the two companies a 48-hour deadline to meet with the elected committee of the union to negotiate a settlement.

During recent negotiations and conciliation procedure officials of the rival Textile Workers Union of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) represent ed the employees.

T.W.U.A. officials said last night negotiations were still under way and "any strike action at this time would be illegal."

Bitter Reprieve

By Drexel Drake

"Talent had a report from Chicago on Joe Steppo, Thursday. He had said intermittent jobs, mostly in West Side poolrooms, which justified his social accounts by numbers, but he was generally recognized as a smalltime gangster and racetrack tipster. There were no convictions in his record but he had been more or less known to the police for five years because of his associations. What interested Talent chiefly was the final item in the report. It had been learned that Steppo was around his usual haunts Monday as recently as Tuesday night of the preceding week when he was talking about making a trip to New York. Gosslo was that he expected to take a girl with him.

The same day was to bring a still more illuminating report from Chicago to Lieut. Talent's desk. It was mid-afternoon when a detective brought in a late typo message.

"Something on those fingerprints, Lieut." the detective said. "Chicago dug them up. They belong to a fellow got out of a dead almost 12 years.

The message referred to the fingerprints found in the Sterling library . . . on the arm of a chair, a bottle, a glass and a radio dial.

Talent read:

Prints are those of George Bandello, supposedly died July 18, 1928, at age of 37. Height build, black hair, black beady eyes, weight 140, stocky type, prominent nose, wide thin mouth. Death by gunshot, right temple from old bullet wound that of murder. Date of this record, April 10, 1928, when Bandello was held in connection with shooting he'll released insufficient evidence. Three previous arrests, one conviction for assault in 1925, served 15 months in Joliet. Bandello was West Side gangster and also identified with gambling racket in Cicero, in minor capacity. In May, 1928, Bandello was one of four men trailed to hideout on Northwest side, where political kidnap victim was held. Place was surrounded but Bandello and two others escaped through police barrage and made boat to power boat concealed at landing on North Branch. The boat exploded a few seconds after it passed through the mouth of the Chicago River into Lake Michigan. A police boat in close pursuit picked up one survivor and the body of another man was recovered the following day. Bandello's body was never recovered but survivor established that Bandello was the third man in the speed boat.

Talent read the report a second time . . . studied it thoughtfully. He sensed the slightest beginning of a pattern. Joe Steppo, from Chicago. Bandello, Chicago gangster and racketeer, counted dead in 1928, but still very much alive. Fingerprints don't change. And the right man at the Sterling-drexel apparently noticed a scar on the stranger's right temple. Twenty-seven in 1928 . . . Bandello would be 39 now, 40 . . . the man had made a guess of around 40 . . . the man was chunky, with small dark eyes.

Talent stopped a hint of his thoughts later in the afternoon, when Richard Traypood had wandered into his office. He managed adroitly to skim over the fact that he had held back exclusively for himself the circumstance of the missing $10,000. . .

"Could be, Dick, that the next thing is beginning to take shape" Talent said.

"You've hit on something, Chris!"

"Something to chew on, anyway. We learned that Mrs. Sterling never put some hundred dollar bills last Thursday . . . new ones and her bank had the numbers. They've been shoved into the Belmont mutuel windows. We did them up by a young reporter named Joe Steppo who came here from Chicago some time after last Tuesday, but somebody decided to bump him off before he could get that in here."

"A crowd that plays rough, eh!" Talent grinned. "Might read this, Dick," he said. "That third set of prints we found in the Sterling library." He shoved the telotype message across to Traypood.

"I see," Traypood said when he had read the message. "So Bandello didn't go down with that power boat, unless . . . could there be a mixup on the prints?"

"The man who drank two cups of black coffee in that Broadway diner, near Clifton, around one o'clock last Thursday night was about 40 years old, the night man guessed, and he had a scar across his right temple."

"So it is. That makes Bandello your man, doesn't it, Chris!"

"I think we'll make some headway if we got him in here."

"If they didn't see any more of him around Chicago for 12 years, he must have pulled out and set up somewhere else, and still Steppo gives the job a Chicago angle. How do you add it up, Lieut?"

"My guess is, Dick, that Bandello was already set up here, and Steppo was told to look him up when he got here."

Traypood hesitated over an observation . . . "Chris, you can't tie up Marcia Sterling with this Bandello-Steppo angle, can you? Doesn't it look as if somebody put a finger on Mrs. Sterling for her necklace?"

Talent looked across at the younger man soberly. "I'll tell you something, Dick," he said. "Somebody had something on either Miriam Sterling or Marcia Sterling. Mrs. Sterling can't tell us, and Sterling won't. The trouble is, we don't know enough to force anything out of him. We may never know any more than we do now until we haul in George Bandello."

"But that's something, isn't it, Chris, to know that Bandello's the man you're looking for?"

"Yes, that something. It would be interesting to have Bandello tell us how he happened to be sitting in the Sterling library last Thursday night, smoking a cigar. That doesn't fit into the rest of the picture."

Miriam Sterling had been dead two weeks when Marcus Sterling and Janet Weirhaven had their first meeting since the funeral. It was not a meeting in private, nor pre-arranged. It was on a Thursday, toward evening, and they were surrounded by the Memorial Day crowd at Edgecraft Country Club.

Sterling had gone out to the club in response to urgings to fill the place scheduled for him in the club's holiday handicap tournament. He had played listlessly, yet his methodical game had made him definitely a contender for the day's trophy. He acknowledged lackcrroom praise with detached politeness, but with an absence of spirit that could not escape attention.

Sterling rushed through his shower and his dressing. He was crossing the foyer when Janet Weirhaven accosted him.

"Marcus dear, how happy I am to see you!" Janet said.

"Oh, hello, Janet."

"I'm glad you've come out of hiding."

"Not hiding. Just tremendously busy."

"I know. Too busy for telephone calls. Have you any idea how many times I've left my name with Brant? Once or twice, even, with your secretary!"

Janet studied the serious face, the unsmiling eyes. "I'm glad the holiday rescued you for a day," Janet said, "You'll join my table for dinner, won't you, or aren't you free?"

"I'm free, but I'm not staying here for dinner."

"You're not at all like yourself, Marcus. At least we can sit down for a drink before you rush away?"

"Well, we can do that."

They found a small table in the lounge. The place was crowded, rang with laughter. There were calls from other tables, cheery greetings to Janet, cordially restrained salutations to Sterling.

They sat silently with their cocktails, sipping at them. Sterling was attentive. Janet struggled against chagrin, nourished over the pronounced change in Sterling.

Janet took out her cigaret case, selected a cigaret. Sterling produced himself just in time to hold a light for her. She was smiling at him through the smoke when he reached for her open case, plucked it up, ran a finger over the cigarets in it.

"Strange I've never noticed before that they smoked Luckies" Sterling said.

"Shouldn't I?"

"That's startling Marcus, or is it a riddle?"

Sterling forced a grin that succeeded poorly. "Lieutenant Talent is looking for a woman who mashed out a smoked Lucky on my library rug," he said, with deathly absence of emphasis.

Sterling's eyes were still fixed on the cigaret case. He did not see the pallor that spread over Janet's face, nor the sudden frightened widening of her eyes. Janet was gulping the last of her cocktail when Sterling looked up. She offered no remonstrance when, setting down his empty glass, he suggested that he'd be handing along. The emptiness in her words matched his own when they parted. Richard Traypood's voice startled her visibly, some minutes later, when he found her on the terrace staring vacantly toward the faintly defined shore of Long Island.

Toward the middle of June, Sterling learned that Janet had sailed for a long visit in South America. Her home would be boarded up for the summer. The European war had precluded travel across the Atlantic.

In August, Sterling heard from T. Bryan Steadman. The lawyer imparted news that at another time would have created a crescendo of rejoicing. Sterling received it calmly. His thanks were perfunctory. The lawyer told him a check for $100,000 had been deposited to his credit. The Insurance company, upon expiration of the stipulated 60 days, was indemnifying Sterling for the stolen diamond necklace.

When the directors of Harbor Trust Company met in December to consider ways and means of expressing the spirit of the approaching Yuletide in proportion to duly loyally performed, it was unanimously voted to double Marcus Sterling's $6,000 a year.

"He's earning it," said a director.

"He's living up to what we expected," said another. "Old Chester K. back in the flesh. Too bad it took his wife's death to put him on his feet."

The chairman smiled. "He's a Sterling, gentlemen," he said. "We'll have him sitting with us on the board in another year."

Not quite a year later, because the directors of Harbor Trust Company had not understood what had driven Marcus Sterling into his intensive application to work, they were inexpressibly shaken from their dream of his future. On the day after Pearl Harbor, with only unemotional announcement of his decision, Sterling enlisted in the armed forces of the United States for the duration of the war. Only T. Bryan Steadman knew that Sterling had taken time out to write a will. He left it with the lawyer in a sealed envelope.

MOTHER, FIVE CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH

Severe Electrical Storm Hits District

2 Barns Burned, Many Interruptions In Hydro Service

Power Breaks Cause Much Inconvenience in S. Ontario

Electrical transformers on the city and rural hydro systems took the brunt of the severe lightning storm which swept through the Bay of Quinte district Wednesday evening.

The storm out of the worst in the district in many years put at least 125 transformers out of service, some for a few minutes and others for longer periods, causing power interruptions in all parts of the city and rural districts.

In addition two farmers' barns were struck by lightning and burned. In both cases livestock was saved from the burning buildings in the nick of time. The barns were owned by James Wales of Ameliasburg and Arthur Bowerman, Ameliasburg township in Prince Edward County.

Worst in Years

"It was simply hectic—and was the worst electrical storm in the district in years," said Ernie Elliott, manager of the local public utilities. Lightning was directly responsible for the breaks in at least 125 transformers going out and causing power interruptions.

In most cases the trouble could be remedied by replacement of the transformer fuses, but in at least six instances the entire transformer was ruined by the lightning and will have to be replaced. Equipment was also lost at the Reid Street sub-station where an oil switch and a transformer reactor were burned out.

Power interruptions throughout the city were frequent during the storm with some sections going out two and three times.

Hydro Crews Busy

Hydro crews were called out early as lightning caused trouble to develop and in the case of one the hydro manager "they are still out." At noon most electrical service in the city had been restored but there were still isolated sections where the power was off.

Despite the high wind which at times during the storm reached a velocity of 85 miles per hour, there was little trouble with trees dropping over hydro wires.

One lineman said, "It was on Yeomans Street where a large branch dropped on the wires and tangled them causing a short circuit. Firemen were called to stand by but there was no need to send the road, as well as cutting hydro service in the area.

Small Livestock Loss

A morning check from insurance agents revealed that little stock in the rural area due to lightning had been killed or crippled. In Prince Edward county a horse was reported killed but there was no word of animals lost.

Most "but there is still time," one insurance man said, "when cattle are out to pasture it takes farmers a good deal longer to find them."

First farm loss reported was that of James Walsh, Tyendinaga township, Thursday after the upper hour a lightning bolt ripped into his barn setting it on fire. Mr. Walsh raced to the burning barn and freed five calves before they were in the building. The Belleville fire department answered the alarm but was unable to do anything to saving three nearby buildings, Seymour Bain, 19.

The storm then seemed to abate slightly but at nine o'clock another farm blaze was reported. This time it was from Ameliasburg township in the barn of Arthur Bowerman was struck by lightning.

Mr. Bowerman had gone to bed when the bolt ripped into his barn about 11 p.m. It set the badly donned clothes and ran to the barn freed six cattle that had been placed in the stalls for the night.

City firemen also went to the Bowerman blaze but it was too late. A big tree had crashed across the road near the Bowerman farm and blocked firemen.

TORONTO (CP) — Severe electrical storms and heavy rain swept Ontario yesterday, disrupting communications and power supplies, starting fires and blocking roads with uprooted trees.

Many sections of the province were blacked out by hydro failures as the storm moved in a southeasterly direction from a line between North Bay and southwestern Ontario.

Communications through services had been disrupted in several places and in Toronto, the CBL radio station, CBL and CJBC, went off the air for most of the night. Canadian Press leased news wires between Toronto and Montreal and Ottawa and from New York to Windsor and London were affected for several hours.

London Blackout

Lightning started several fires in the Belleville district. Two barns were destroyed. Power failure in London, blacked out most of the city for 30 minutes and minor fires were started. All hydro and telephone communications in the Dutton area were disrupted and in St. Thomas, police, hydro and telephone officials were besieged for a time with calls reporting breakdowns.

Gales of 75 miles an hour swept Chatham and felled trees. Nine areas were listed by the Hydro-Electric System as being without power at 7:30 p.m. Fire and police were called out to assist crews in repairing damage. Streetcars were held up in some sections of Kitchener by fallen high tension wires.

Council Urges London Teachers 'Spare the Rod'

LONDON (AP) — Teachers in schools run by the London county council are being urged to go a little easier on the rod.

It is backed by punishment put out by the council today, the teachers were told:

Don't—they have to get there through heavy traffic.

The booklet omitted to say exactly what teachers should do to keep children from getting out of hand.

TORONTO (CP) — Eleven persons in Toronto, Hamilton and Montreal have been arrested by R.C.M.P. narcotics squads.

Seven persons, including a woman, were arrested in Toronto.One was Samuel Stone, 36, a half-brother of Leonard Jackson who has been sentenced to die for the fatal shooting last March of Sergeant of Detectives Edmund Tong.

In Hamilton Stanley Caron and Richard Hardin Nicolls were charged with selling. In Thorold John Murray was charged with selling and Edward Joseph Reich with possessing drugs.

Montreal police officers said that there is a "startling increase" in the number of drug addicts in southern Ontario and that definite information is in police hands that the illegal traffic is well organized, possibly by the "United interests."

Police said the raids were "only the beginning" in their war against the narcotics trade. There will be many more just like them in weeks to come."

GUILTY VERDICTS RETURNED AGAINST BOYDS, JACKSON

Sentences Postponed Until All Cases Heard

TORONTO — Guilty verdicts were brought in yesterday against Edwin Alonzo Boyd, William Russell Jackson and Boyd's younger brother, Norman, by a jury which heard conspiracy charges and two charges that the three men had robbing a Leaside bank last Nov. 30.

The jury recommended leniency for Norman Boyd, who was taken on the stand in his own defence and said he was forced into the holdup on the day of the robbery. Two of Norman's bosses at the Boyd Construction Company testified to his character.

Fred McMahon, counsel for the two Boyds, asked that the jury be polled on its findings for Norman Boyd. Clerk replied: "Guilty with a recommendation for leniency." Mr. McMahon then asked:

Mr. McMahon told reporters he would appeal the verdicts on behalf of Norman Boyd.

The jury took three hours and 10 minutes to reach a decision after a trial lasting 2 1-2 days.

Five men were charged with the $46,207 armed robbery of the Bank of Commerce, Leaside branch, but two—Val Lesso, alias Steve Suchan, and Leonard Jackson—Boyd and Jackson are still missing in future. They were convicted by a jury Monday night on charges of murder.

The Crown produced five witnesses who identified Edwin Boyd as the apparent leader in the robbery; two witnesses said Jackson was one of the gunmen and one said one of these was not sure and Judge Forsyth told the jury to disregard his testimony; and one witness who said Norman Boyd was one of the robbers.

None of the Crown witnesses saw more than four men in the robbery and most saw fewer than that.

Judge Forsyth said Norman Boyd's alibi evidence was very strong and he instructed Edwin Austin to acquit Norman "if you think it might reasonably be true."

Crown Counsel Arthur Klein suggested that one of Norman Boyd's alibi witnesses, Gordon Anderson, a city hall employee, had "grave suspicions" perhaps too enthusiastic a worker and that Norman Boyd could easily have slipped away while doing a survey with Anderson.

Mr. McMahon said Edwin Boyd was admitted as evidence in the trial, but Mr. Klein admitted that he and three other men had held up the Leaside Bank and had separated, and then had met later in a rooming house where they divided the loot, totalling $42,000.

Edwin told police in the statement that a "so-called friend" had taken $2,000 of the loot, including his that night.

Immediately after the Leaside bank trial ended, Mr., and Mrs. Joseph Lesso, parents of Val Lesso, were held on charges of harboring Edwin Boyd and William Russell Jackson.

Dodgers and Yankees Tied 1-1 at End of Fourth Frame In Second Game of Series

BY JOE REICHLER

EBBETS FIELD, Brooklyn (AP) Encouraged by their first opening game triumph in the world series, Brooklyn Dodgers today sent righthander Carl Erskine (14-6), to the mound in an effort to take a two-in a row over New York Yankees.

Manager Casey Stengel, apparently undisturbed by yesterday's 4-2 defeat, stuck to his original pitching choice, Vic Raschi. The veteran righthander, who won 21 and lost six, has not won a complete game since July 25.

Another capacity crowd of some 35,000 was on hand despite the warm, humid, cloudy weather with threats of rain.

Starting lineups:

YANKEES	DODGERS
Bauer rf	Cox 3b
Reese ss	Snider cf
Mantle cf	Robinson 2b
Woodling lf	Campanella c
Berra c	Furillo rf
Collins 1b	Hodges 1b
McDougald 2b	Reese ss
Martin 3b	Furillo rf
Raschi p	Erskine p

First Inning

Yankees: Bauer worked the count to 2-2, then dropped a single between Snider and Furillo. With a count of 1 and 2 on Reese, Bauer, the Yankees attempted a hit and run play. Rizzuto, however, swung and missed, and Bauer was an easy out at second, Campanella to Robinson. Mantle drew a pass on 3 balls on the next pitch.

Mantle struck out, swinging on a last ball. With a 3-2 count on Woodling, Rizzuto lit out for second but was nailed easily by Reese, no run, one hit, no errors, one left.

Second Inning

Yankees: Woodling walked.Berra singled to right-centre, Woodling racing to third. Collins popped out on three pitches. McDougald also struck out. Reese came in fast for Martin's grounder to short right, but dove hooked at a third straight strike. Erskine, no runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Dodgers: Robinson drew a base on balls to become the first Dodger to reach base. Campanella, swinging at the first pitch on a hit-and-run play,rapped sharply to Collins who made the unassisted putout at first as Robinson raced to second. Furillo filed deep to Bauer, Robinson advancing to third after the catch. Hodges walked. Robinson raced with the latter to his station on the baseline, giving the capacity crowd a thrill. The harried pitcher finally walked Furillo on a full count, causing Manager Stengel to emerge from the dugout for a brief conference on the mound. Pitcher Raschi remained in with the bases loaded, and hit the first pitch to Mantle for the third out. No runs, no hits, no errors, three left.

Third Inning

Yankees: Erskine walked Raschi on four pitches. Reese raced to his right for Bauer's sharp grounder, relayed to Robinson to force Raschi at second and Robinson relayed to first to double up Bauer. Reese backed up for Rizzuto's high hop and tossed him out at first. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Dodgers: Cox was called out on strikes. Snider drew a walk on a left-centre for the Dodgers' first hit. Snider caught the Yankees flatfooted, leaving down a perfect bunt inside the third baseline and crossed the first baseline standing up a throw. Reese stopped at second. Campanella popped a slow bouncer to Collins who threw to Rizzuto, forcing Snider at second as Reese advanced to third. Snider accidentally spiked Rizzuto on the right foot as he slid into second. The injury was not serious and Rizzuto remained in his position. Campanella smashed a ground single in the hole between third baseman Martin and shortstop Reese, first run of the game and sending Reese to third. Furillo struck out. One run, three hits, no errors, two left.

Fourth Inning

Yankees: Mantle crashed a double off the scoreboard in right-centre field for a clean hit off Snider's throw.

Collins grounded to on the grass for Woodling's slow bounder to get his first hit in close play as Mantle took third.

Berra fled to Furillo in medium right, Mantle scoring after the catch to tie the score at 1-1 as McDougald grounded a bouncer to Hodges, who arrived much too late.

Dodgers: Hodges struck out but had to be thrown out at first when Berra dropped the third strike. Furillo flied to Bauer, Erskine busted the first pitch to McDougald threw him out. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

STALIN PREDICTS CAPITALISTIC WARS CERTAIN

Says Way to Peace Destroy Imperialism

MOSCOW (Reuters)— Marshal Stalin today proved the theory that "war is inevitable" between capitalist states.

He reiterated earlier statements that the only way to abolish war is to destroy "imperialism."

He made the statements in an article in the Bolshevik magazine.

Stalin forecast a deepening crisis for the western powers as a result of a world decline in markets.

Slower Rivalry

He said rivalry between capitalist countries would be slower in practice than rivalry between systems. Example: Germany and France would be obliged to tear loose from the embrace of the United States.

Stalin's article, "The Economic Problems of Socialism in the U.S.S.R.," gave a detailed analysis of the economic problems facing the Soviet Union.

The most important economic result of the Second World War, Stalin wrote, was the collapse of a unified all-embracing world market.

Deepened Crisis

The war further deepened the general crisis of the world capitalist system, he contended.

Two parallel markets had developed opposing each other. Stalin said. Besides the expansion of the new parallel world market constituted by the countries of China and Eastern Europe which the western "blockade" had helped to form.

Stalin said the narrowing and narrowing of the markets for capitalist countries was little likelihood of conflicts between capitalistic countries because the United States was in a position to subjected them to astelite positions.

Stalin said:

"Certain comrades contend that because of new international conditions following the Second World War, wars between capitalistic countries have become inevitable.

These comrades, the Soviet leader said, are mistaken. He explained they felt that contradictions between socialism and capitalism were stronger than contradictions between capitalistic countries themselves. He said that such a view the United States has so subjected capitalist countries that that there is little possibility of future wars between them.

Not so, said Stalin.

Tariff Board to Investigate Anti-Freeze Retail Price At Minister's Request

OTTAWA (Oct. 1) — Just as motorists across Canada are buying their anti-freeze for the winter, the tariff board will open an investigation into the retail price of that cold weather driving necessity. On Nov. 17 the board will begin hearings intended to establish whether there has been increased between the retail price of ethylene glycol sold by manufacturers pay for ethylene glycol, the basic ingredient of certain brands of anti-freeze.

The inquiry is being held at the specific request of Trade Minister Albert. It is the first time he has exercised the power given on him by the Tariff Board Act to order such an investigation.

At the same time the board will determine whether ethylene glycol should have tariff protection against imports of the commodity from the United States. The price spread at the hearings arises out of the request for protection.

When a motorist pulls up at a service station and asks for a widely advertised brand of anti-freeze, he pays $5.95 a gallon for it. It is claimed that the makers of the product sell it at a price of $1.50 a gallon for its principal ingredient, ethylene glycol, made by the Dow Chemical Co.

Under the terms of the Geneva Tariff, the board will have the authority to continue to admit ethylene glycol and related products free of duty, as has been the practice since 1939, if the tariff board finds that the price of the product, the agreements will continue to apply or the duty will have to be revised.

The chemical company's report points out that conditions created by a surplus of ethylene glycol in the United States. The company claims it cannot profitably manufacture the product and sell it at a price low enough to compete with the import. It is asserted that by the end of July more than enough ethylene glycol had been imported than was needed for Canada's whole 1952 requirements.

Ramming of Enemy Aircraft In A-Attack Possible US Defence

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States Air Force disclosed today it has organized, as a last-ditch defence against any atomic attack, the use of pilots that would ram their planes into enemy aircraft.

But, a spokesman said, there is no evidence that anyone has yet to develop such a rammer plane. He said it was considered "risky" using all possible methods, no matter how fantastic."

The question of using specially-designed piloted planes for, crashing into enemy craft—similar to the Japanese kamikaze of the Second World War—except that it is not theoretically suicide if we were raised this week by the Air Force Association.

The A.F.A., composed largely of air force veterans, suggested in its magazine "Air Force" that ramming might be necessary as a last-ditch defence.

The article said that this is especially true because of the likelihood that the Soviet Union has been amazingly successful in jamming the Voice of America, could jam our electronically-guided missiles.

The air force spokesman, commenting on the proposal, said that, generally speaking, if a fighter gets close enough to a bomber for ramming, the fighter will be "in a perfect position for pursuit shot."

One-Storey Home Near Sudbury Quickly Destroyed

Blaze Likely Caused By Overheated Pipes

SUDBURY (C)—A mother and her five children were burned to death early today in a fire that destroyed their one-storey frame home on Garson road, about eight miles northeast of here.

Dead are: Mrs. Milton Gauvreau, 30; Helen, 12; Leslie, 8; June, 4; Roy, 2, and William, 18 months. There were no survivors.

The house burned within a few minutes after the fire broke out.

Mrs. Gauvreau's husband, a nickel miner at Garson, arrived home during the height of the blaze. He had to be restrained from entering the building by Provincial Police Constable Harold Kerns and others on the scene.

Constable Kerns, one of the first persons to reach the fire scene, had been providing an escort for a road nearby. He reported that one moment all was quiet and, seconds later, the whole building was in flames.

He said it would have been impossible for anyone to enter the house to attempt a rescue.

Provincial Police said the deaths were probably caused by suffocation. The house was insured and partitioned with cardboard and the police said it was likely set on fire by an overheated stovepipe.

The Garson volunteer fire brigade arrived on the scene too late to be of any assistance in fighting the flames.

57 R.C.A.F. Jets Of Fighter Wing Reach Greenland

OTTAWA (CP)—A group of 57 jet fighter planes, which had been waiting at Goose Bay, Labrador, since Monday to resume their flight across the Atlantic, have arrived safely at Greenland on the second hop of the journey, R.C.A.F. headquarters announced today.

Word reaching headquarters said the planes made the jump to the Greenland station, blue west one, yesterday afternoon.

Meanwhile six other jets which left their home base at Uplands, Ont., last Sunday and were forced to stop over at Bagotville, Que., have arrived on to Goose Bay.

The 63 planes—a full fighter wing—are bound for Grea Tenquin, near Metz, France. They left Goose base at Uplands, near Ottawa, St. Hubert, near Montreal and North Bay last Sunday.

They will make up the first of a four-wing division to be established near Metz under the North Atlantic Treaty Organization by 1954. Their new home will be by Keflavik, Iceland.

Parked Car Rolls Into Harbor, Woman Drowns

PORT ELGIN, Oct. 2 (CP) — Miss Anna R. McCrea, of Toronto, sister of Lady Eaton, drowned at this Lake Huron resort Wednesday when a parked car suddenly rolled out of control and ran down an incline into the harbor.

Eye witnesses said the car was headed for the pier when it veered toward the dock and plunged over the edge into eight feet of water.

Miss McCrea was trapped in the water in an attempt to get the woman out of the car. She died overnight on the harbor bottom. Their ages were not immediately known.

Thirty-five minutes after the car pitched into the harbor, a two ton truck hauled it onto the dock. Firemen and local doctors worked for almost an hour with a respirator rushed to the scene but were unable to revive Miss McCrea.

Police said the car ran only some 25 feet before it spun off the dock. Miss Mary McCallum, surveyor companion of Miss McCrea, said she left the car parked on Main St. near the lakefront to call at Sunset Beach.

"I was on my way to the lodge when I heard a splash," she told police. She turned around to see the car gone and people running onto the dock.

Firemen Answer Ten Alarms During Storm

Members of the Belleville Fire Department hope that nights like Wednesday night come few and far between. During the night the firemen answered no less than ten alarms, about half of the calls being the result of lightning fires.

But firemen started to get busy before the storm commenced.

At the supper hour the rests were called to South Front Street to Belleview Fisheries where an electric light bulb had set fire to a partition filled with sawdust insulation. The blaze ate its way up through the partition and onto the roof before it was extinguished. Damage of about $800 was caused, according to Fire Chief Gerald Vance.

During the height of the storm firemen were called to two barn fires, one at 70 Yeomans Street where a big branch had fallen across before wires, thus resulting short setting the branch ablaze.

A few minutes later they went to 24 Hamilton Road house where electric wires had shorted in a partition. There was no fire.

Also during the storm firemen went to Jeanette's Creek where lightning had set fire to the kitchen of Mr. A. J. Castle. The fire was under control before firemen arrived.

This morning the reels were called to 13 Boswell Street where a chimney had been set on fire by a day bed. Damage was only minor.

Storm Causes Break In News Service

Along with many power breaks caused by Wednesday night's storm was one which interrupted news wires into the Intelligencer office. For over seven hours early today the paper was without its usual wire service including that to the teletypewriter equipment.

However by 10 a.m. everything was in working order again and the been taken to provide the day's news with a minimum of delay, a somewhat brief form in some stories.

Casting Session Held by Guild

The meeting of the Belleville Theatre Guild, Wednesday night was postponed until next week as could dampen dramatic aspirations, as more than fifty members were present to attend the casting session for "The Ghost Train", a comedy-thriller in three-act presentation.

During a most fruitless meeting preceding the casting, Mrs. W. J. Doyle announced that, owing to the increasing demands on the Ontario Department of Education, she was necessary to discontinue the course in acting, which had been planned for next week-end. Disappointment had been felt by those looking forward keenly to this course and would be most disappointed at this turn in events.

Mrs. H. G. Tanner, who is in charge of the director for the production of "Rebecca", which is at present in rehearsal under Mrs. W. Jardine's direction, spoke briefly on the work which has been being done to make ready the stage setting for this play. Sketches, illustrated by sack drawings and models, the latter being the handiwork of Mary Moult, which showed the highly professional standards which is the problem. It is quite clear that this elaborate set will reflect great credit to this young organization.

Mrs. R. H. Tanner described "The Ghost Train" as a comedy-thriller and outlined the various characters, without telling the whole plot, which, she said, contained a surprise twist at the end, and the fewer people who knew about it, the better.

Since there was a number of members who could not attend the meeting, Mrs. Tanner announced that there would be a further casting session at her home on Sunday evening and all who were interested were invited to attend, when members then adjourned for casting with a large number of members trying out for each part a very high standard was achieved.

Remarkable Pyrotechnic Display Accompanies Worst Storm in Years

It was the first time in this observer's memory, the entire heavens in the total perimeter of horizon, was split almost continuously by lightning that thrust viciously downwards.

For upwards of four and one-half hours, starting before six o'clock, it was estimated that five different electrical storms were chained to give a continuous "performance".

Lightning that sheeted blue illuminated the sky in the distance heralding the approach of another storm, or the crackling, rippling thunder marked the "stubborn departure of its predecessor.

Sharply staccato thunder-crashes that in their immediacy left the lightning flash denoting the close proximity of the storm, were evident over the whole length and entire period of the storm.

Lightning bolts ripping earthward to the accompaniment of the rolling thunder bore at transformers plunging the city into darkness for brief periods.

During the blackouts, the lightning effects of the storm showed weird, almost terrifying effects. People of the less nervous type who kept their minds up, looked at one another in an almost ghastly bluish light as the lightning played over the scene.

Of the city in a cottage that has a "reputation of windows" and the effect of the lightning was almost uncanny. The brilliant yellowish flash at the same time momentarily tinged, with the simultaneous reddish blue of silent lightning that lighted the heavens from approaching storm clouds.

The "lighting effects" of this natural drama of the skies were the best witnessed in many years, as the clouds exuded a deluging rain water by the evening accompanied by almost-gale-like winds.

The wind-driven rain which smashed against windows and doors was backlighted by an almost ghostly glow that momentarily drops threw a glare-softening blanket against the vividness of the lightning flashes.

TRENTON (Special)— Some sound thinkers in Trenton feel that civic officials are slow in getting next year's centennial program organized and underway.

When the proposed celebration was discussed in council some months ago the local Chamber of Commerce was included in the picture and there was considerable talk about letting the chamber shoulder the responsibility. For some reason it was suggested that local service clubs sponsor a day each and there would be no need for worry about a central committee.

The Chamber of Commerce had a plan and made suggestions to council but so far council has not expressed an opinion.

It is apparent that Trenton's 100th birthday will be observed in grand style. Council agreed to be responsible for any extra spending and studied centennial celebrations held by other centres.

Councillor Claude Graham, of Grafton, who has been one who strongly advocates the birthday party, would like to see the program started right away. He explains that months will be needed to invite all those former Trentonians now living in all parts of the world. Much of the time will be taken up in obtaining their adopted addresses, he believes.

Mid-summer has been suggested as the most proper time to stage the celebration while one interested person suggested that the birthday fall on the date of the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth II early in June.

Weaver Funeral Home Damaged By Lightning Bolt

TRENTON, (Special.)—No second demonstration is needed to convince Trentonians, however, that lightning can do a lot of damage in a very short time.

Proof of the fact was furnished during the TV set in the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Sharpe, Dundas Street West, Mr. Morgan literally saw the television set explode in front of his eyes as the fire to the apartment.

Mrs. Sharpe was watching the two Weaver children, Carol and Bradley, while Mr. Sharpe was at a street-teachers meeting. He was watching TV when a bolt of lightning struck the antenna, followed the lead-in into the apartment, then the set up and down to the wall.

Grabbing the two children, Morgan made them to safety and came back to fight the fire with extinguishers. By the time he had control the blaze and Trenton firemen were ready to investigate, and their damage was caused to the Weaver apartment, and to the Weaver Funeral Home downstairs.

Child's Arm Caught in Wringer, No Bones Broken

TRENTON (Special) — Gordon Berry, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Berry, 23 Quinte Street, Trenton, suffered a painful accident in his home early today, when his hand caught in the wringer of the washing machine he was drying and up to the shoulder. His screams attracted his mother who was working in another part of the house, and she with the help of a neighbor removed the arm from the wringer and rushed the child to the hospital. Dr. Bellesley and J. McDonald examined the child but found no broken bones. The child is still confined to the hospital suffering from shock.

Rioting Prelude To Mass Escape Say Officials

CHEJU ISLAND, Korea (AP) — Yesterday's rioting on this prison-of-war island was only a prelude to a planned mass escape of 5,384 Chinese Communists, United States authorities said today.

Maj.-Gen. Thomas W. Herren told correspondents the escape is to be a signal for a mass breakout, that the U.S. troops moved in and "broke the back of the planned revolt."

Herren said the prisoners planned to join Communist guerrillas in the mountains if they escaped.

Fifty-six of the rioting prisoners were killed or fatally wounded. More than 100 others were injured. were injured.

Herren said the break-out was planned for Oct. 1, the third anniversary of the founding of the Chinese Communist regime.

Learned Break Plans

Col. Richard D. Boerem, commander of the main city camp, said P.O.W. command headquarters learned of the planned break last Aug. 24th and immediately began making plans to stop it.

He said that the Reds in compound seven were supposed to throw over their barbed wire fence a signal for Reds in the nine other compounds to "come on and break out."

Yesterday Communists in compound seven threw a barrage of rocks at 80 U.N. infantrymen. It was then that the riot broke out with a volley of fire.

Today U.S. troops entered and searched every P.O.W. compound on the island. The army said there were no incidents and that calm was stable.

Herren, speaking for the five U.S. troops when the Reds refused to lower their home-made flags or the portrait of Red leader Stalin.

Stone Into Compound

At the second barrage of rocks, the troops opened fire and stormed into the compound. The battle lasted four hours.

Prisoners in the other compounds quickly hauled down their flags and stopped singing, Boerem said.

Concerning yesterday's riot, Boerem said "we have to maintain unconditional surrender." Otherwise, troops do not temporize with the prisoners in any way. They have been told, and have been told for some time, when they are assaulted—shoot."

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Prices continued weak today in early afternoon stock market trading.

Industrials and base metals improved slightly from early lows but remained below yesterday's prices while golds fluctuated mildly without making an index gain. Western oils recorded a gain as leading issues advanced but the section as a whole showed a majority of losses.

Federated Pete led the western oil list with a gain of 35 cents while losses ranged to the 15 cents suffered by General Pete A. Other losers were Bailey Selburn, Landover and Altermont but Calvan Consol, Canada Southern and Husky gained.

US Price Controls May End Soon Says Iron Age

NEW YORK (AP) — The Iron Age, metalworking trade weekly, said today the end of price controls may come sooner than most people expect.

"Weight of its paperwork is putting a staggering burden on the budget-trimmed Office of Price Stabilization," the publication said. "At the same time its profit-squeeze policy toward manufacturers is bringing an avalanche of complaints."

These complaints were described as resulting from an O. P. S. rule under which industry's prices can reflect higher steel costs but not higher labor, freight and other material costs.

The Iron Age commented that "in most manufacturing plants the labor increases amount to much more than steel price rises."

Outlining the market for steel, the trade weekly said:

"Although some easing has been noted in wire products, most tonnage items continued in tight supply. Sources which had been expecting some easing in sheet despaired report consumers' appetite for both hot- and cold-rolled sheets still very strong. Bars, plates, structurals and all country goods are as tight as had been expected."

But the Iron Age reported steel production now has fully recovered from the strike of June and July, and for the second week in a row the industry hopes to operate at 104 per cent of rated capacity.

Couple Receives Wires from The Queen, St. Laurent

L'AMABLE—Mr. and Mrs. Ira Foster, of Dungannon township, quietly celebrated their diamond wedding on September 23, in the home of their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Mc-Gibbon, L'Amable.

They were presented with flowers and beautiful gifts from their children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren, many of whom were present for this special anniversary occasion.

Perhaps the highlight of the day was a message of congratulations from Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth, from Buckingham Palace. They also greatly appreciated congratulatory messages from Mr. Louis St. Laurent, the Prime Minister; Mr. Arthur Welsh, the Provincial Secretary; Mr. Tracey Adams, the Reeve of Dungannon township, and from the president of the Supertest Oil Company, as well as those received from a host of friends and relatives from Halifax, N.S., to Vancouver, B.C.

Mr. and Mrs. Foster are highly respected residents of this community where they have lived for sixty years. Their many friends wish them health and happiness in the years that lie ahead.

Bedraggled Stranger Chased from Refuge Of Warm Garage

'Tis a far cry from the comfort of a warm home, the electrical storm that deluged downpour of Wednesday night's storm.

Anyway, the kitty which apparently had been caught outdoors in the midst of the storm sought the first haven of refuge.

After all, you can't have a nearly full-grown skunk fraternizing with people, it it hasn't a bus ticket.

Eventually the woe-begone striped kitty was chased out of the building and was last seen loping its weary way up Pinnacle Street.

It apparently did not appreciate its brief but welcome sojourn in the comfort of the garage for it didn't leave a (s)cent.

2 BARNS

Farmers armed with axes soon got rid of the tree but nothing could be done to save the barn.

Heavy Rainfall

Throughout the storm which lasted over three hours rain came down literally in sheets with close to two inches of rain being recorded at the local pump house.

Refuse on streets was washed to catch basins and in many instances streets were aflood as storm sewers were inadequate to handle the rain.

At the Trenton air station the meteorological officers reported the wind gradually rose from 20 to 30 m.p.h. at six o'clock to 65 m.p.h. at 9:30. A total of 1.96 inches of rain was reported.

Apparently the worst of the storm was centred in the immediate Bay of Quinte district with damage north and south not being so extensive.

At Tweed power was interrupted for three hours and theatres were forced to close. Trees were downed but no fires were reported. In the Picton area two horses were reported killed, one owned by Leo Bedard of Carrying Place and the other by Ernest Hayes of Consecon. Clarence Brummels of Cherry Valley had the roof blown off his shed and the branch knocked over the chimney and damaged the roof.

The tree fell on the spot from which he had moved his new 1952 Chrysler car only a few minutes previously.

High winds also caused a big fence loss in the county. Fences of all kinds were knocked and blown over by the force of the wind.

See Rigid Soviet Censorship Big Factor in War or Peace

ZURICH, Switzerland (Reuters) A survey conducted by an organization of the west's prominent newspapers warned today that the absence of straight news reporting in Russia is a factor which may affect the whole course of war or peace.

1. There are no ungoverned telephone calls out of Russia.

2. Foreign broadcasts by western correspondents are not allowed.

3. The state secrets law classes as espionage the passing of information on a wide range of topics, economic, agricultural and scientific as well as purely military.

4. Soviet citizens are forbidden to have any dealings with foreign ers unless officially authorized to do so. A correspondent needs a special permit to visit a public library.

5. Correspondents are excluded from more that one-third of Moscow and may not travel more than 25 miles from the centre of the city.

The survey recommends the newspapers and news agencies should concentrate more on perfecting the journalistic training of experts on Soviet affairs, who would be capable of explaining the information — "indeterminate, in quantity and complicated in character"—which is received today from Russia.

THE THREAT OF BEVAN

The struggle that is going on within the British Labor party between Clement Attlee and the rebel Welshman, Aneurin Bevan, is something more than a domestic affair in its implications.

Bevan's bid for favor is based on an openly proclaimed anti-American and anti-rearmament policy. How powerful his support has become with the rank and file was shown this week when two of his henchmen ousted such old guard stalwarts of the party as Herbert Morrison and Hugh Dalton from the executive committee.

The Conservative press in London saw the party on the verge of civil war as a result of Bevan's show of strength. One newspaper, the Graphic, stated: "Tomorrow there may be two parties . . . the big trade unions who pay the socialist piper are tired of rebels who call the wilder tune."

This view was confirmed Wednesday when Arthur Deakin, leader of the 1,200,000-strong Transport Workers, warned Bevan against any attempt to split control of the party. As the unions represent 5,000,000 of the 6,000,000 registered members of the Labor party Deakin's angry warning was encouraging to the Attlee forces but it was no sure indication that the Bevan campaign would or could be stopped.

Outside observers saw the possibility that the veteran union leaders such as Deakin may find that they are without the stature of Attlee's party and file members if it comes to a showdown between Bevan and Attlee for the leadership.

This prospect is not one that can be viewed with equanimity in the rest of the western world. Bevan is farther to the left than anyone who has yet risen to an eminent place in the inner circles of the British Labor party. He is an ardent admirer of Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia, for the moment should arouse more concern about him than his antipathy toward the United States and rearmament.

At the moment Tito happens to be in the good graces of the western democracies for no other reason than that he is out of favor with Stalin. The stark reality is that Tito is a thorough-going Communist who was schooled by Stalin and spent a lifetime serving the Communist cause in the Kremlin's name. And that break only came when Tito had become the little Stalin in his own homeland, had set up his own rigid Red dictatorship and became powerful enough to ignore directions from Moscow.

It is only because of his strategic anti-Stalin position in the Balkans that Tito has been accepted in the western family. It is certainly not because of any pretentions to a functioning democracy in Yugoslavia. We realize that it is this man and this state that Bevan regards with the highest admiration is to understand that it will be an unhappy day for Britain if the Welsh rebel should gain control of the British Labor party.

SCHOOLS OF ALUMINUM

Belleville, in common with nearly every other Ontario community today, is faced with the problem of providing more school accommodation at burdensome cost to the taxpayer. Within the last two years half a million has been granted for school rooms and we find students still being accommodated in auditoriums, basements and every available space which can be converted to temporary use as a classroom.

It is expected that it might cost a million dollars more to provide adequately for the public and high school population in the immediate future. That the same conditions are to be found in many other communities is small consolation for the ratepayer who must foot the bill.

Looking at this situation, the Windsor Star has suggested that it is possible that in this country we have not given enough study as to how buildings costs can be reduced and wonders whether we could learn something from the United Kingdom in this respect.

In Britain the Ministry of Education has ordered that new primary schools cost more than $430 per pupil. To prove that this could be done and economy in manpower also could be effected, it entered into the building field itself, co-operating with local authorities and private enterprise.

The first of these schools has been completed within the prescribed cost. It is in Coventry and is built of permanent aluminum construction. By special design costly doors have been entirely eliminated, giving extra classroom space. It was built with fewer men on the job and completed much more quickly than it could have been by customary methods.

The Star suggests that in view of the fact Britain has to import its aluminum from Canada, the experiment there is one which might be explored in this country, to the benefit of the taxpayer.

CRANKMIRE ON YOUTH

Said old Crankmire: "It can teach,
I've done all I can with me.
Change— my ways can little touch,
I'm too old to alter
Said: I'm not too old and gray
To help youth along the

I can tell what I have
How esteem and pride are earned
To the young minds I can reach.

Love of country I can teach,
I can show them, straight and true
For the tasks they'll have to do.

"There are goals I can't attain
Boys today, as men will gain.
It's too late for me to change
And the methods new and strange,
But perhaps the youth to lead
Is why some of us grow old."

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO
October 2nd., 1932.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn McKinnon have left for Toronto where in future they will reside. Mr. McKinnon has been a member of the Ontario Hydro staff here for fifteen years and has been transferred to the Toronto office.

Mrs. W. Luscombe, Miss Thelma Luscombe and Miss Helena Hill spent Saturday in Toronto.

Belleville is building despite poor times; the building permits for the month of September amounted to $7,900.

The old Anglo American Hotel block on Front Street is being demolished to make room for the erection of the Kresge Store building. About twenty-five local men are engaged in the work.

Shipments of boxes of cheese and 400 cases of canned goods are being loaded on the steamer Lucerne at this shipment, to Montreal. This has been a very busy season at this port and shipments by water have been the greatest for many years.

Coal passed over the market scales and was delivered to citizens today. This is the first time in many months that the scales have been used, for weighing hard coal. The price has been set at $16. per ton of 2000 pounds. Large quantities are under the supervision of fuel controller, Thos. Wills. This price is 50 cents per ton higher than it is in Toronto. It is explained that the freight rate is 60 cents higher to Belleville than to Toronto and an additional charge for weighing at the market scales is made. More coal is on the way to this port.

Ald. Harry Greenleaf has given notice that he will introduce a motion to have a Parks, Playgrounds and Athletic Commission appointed. The matter will come upon the next meeting of the City council.

40 YEARS AGO
October 2nd., 1912.

At the meeting of the Belleville Cheese Board 2540 boxes of cheese were boarded; sold all sold at 13 7-8 cents, 12 15-16 cents, 13 cents and 13 1-16 cents.

Mr. Thomas Bowie is home from Winnipeg o na visit.

50 YEARS AGO

Coal is scarce. The city council contracted for twenty-five tons at $7 per ton, but can get only ten tons of this amount as the dealer claims that he was not notified sufficiently far ahead of the acceptance of his tender.

Mr. John R. Gordon of this city will celebrate his 82nd. birthday anniversary on Oct. 3rd.

Mr. A. W. Robertson of Cascades was in town today.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Coulson of Thomasburg spent Sunday with Mrs. George Pearson.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In rural Canada, both English and French speaking, there is a farmer living just a couple of concessions to the north or the south of the one you never can get his roof mended.

"It's a queer thing," he says, "it is too wet to get out and fix the leak and when it isn't rainin' you don't need to fix it."

Probably this joke goes back to the days when there was a doubtless in the folklore of every country about the queer habits of English speaking Canada. And it can be attached to villages, towns and city streets as well as to farmers a couple of concessions north, south or east of us. It can be told of our next door neighbors. It can be credited to members of our own families. Heck, it can be tied onto us! For it is one of the most valuable and most endearing of all human characteristics, which is laissez faire, let her ride, leave her lay, never bother, do it tomorrow. This is not generally conceived to be a virtue. In fact, if your dig down and examine the large, basic substructure and timbers of human society, you will find that we have been trying for about 5,000 years to live with the everybody the principle of getting things done, of doing the sensible thing, of doing it now. Forethought, thrift, providence, anticipation, have been the watchwords of the teachers and corrupters of society since the days before the Babylonians. A small number of us, a fringe of us, have responded to the exhortations of the centuries, and they are the makers, the bosses, the foremen, the leaders, the head ones of our society. But what a blessing it is that the vast majority of us have preferred to stay blissfully with rain and the roof leaks, and to forget all about the leak when the rain stops. For if we had all been thrifty, and had been forever sighted, thrifty and provident, then we would all have been materialists, and the good old human race would have exterminated itself about 4,000 years ago. For as we dopes who keep the world in such peace and comfort as it has had.

Facial Adornment

(The Saint John Telegraph-Journal)

A generation ago a man's moustache received much more solicitous care from a barber than it does today. There were several kinds of sulpiment ready to be brought into play to keep the moustache in trim, and to make it look like a ram's horn, or fiercely turning up at the ends, as however the customer preferred it.

One veteran Saint John barber recalls that only did his shops have little curling tongs that were heated over an alcohol flame and clamped on moustaches at his request, but also many men had their flowing moustaches wrapped in tinfoil while in the act of their face was shaved, so the latter wouldn't get in.

This practice is almost gone, as the tinfoil helped to shape the moustache; first as a fixture; when the tinfoil was removed the moustache held its shape beautifully for hours afterward. Some well-to-do patrons even brought special fixtive from Europe, and it was kept locked up for their exclusive use.

Genuine Suckers

(Manchester Guardian)

That fishing stories should so often provoke a suspension of belief is regrettable but the merit of genuine rarity may suffer. From the Kenya fisheries department comes the account of the sucker fish.

The creature is apparently employed by the turtle catching Bajuans. Once a turtle is caught is tied with a line through fill opening and pouch, then thrown back. The fish promptly adheres to the bottom of the boat, which proceeds to the haunts of the turtles. There the sucker fish is removed, a 25-30 fathom line made fast to its tail, and again it clings to the boat.

They leave the boat by themselves when they scent a turtle, shark, dugong or large grouper. The line is played out by the fisherman and the sucker fish attaches itself to its prey, when the anchor is taken up and the boat is towed by the turtle until it is played out, when it is pulled in and again as the turtle leaves the water the sucker fish lets go and attaches itself to the bottom of the boat again.

The extraordinary fish appears unduly docile in working for its captors—or suggests that the Bajuans are docile fishermen—it is seemingly not unwilling to change labour. The report adds that a good sucker fish will catch about six turtles a day before being too tired—"when it is rested for 36 hours." Unfortunately its attendances are sometimes described as irregular and fish lazy and do not leave the boat when a turtle is sighted, in which case the fisherman has to whip it with a small stick or bite it—they usually then go and do their work!"

Tartans Run Riot

(Ottawa Journal)

As we put our Buchanan tartan (bright as the sunset) upon a back in methodically clever a good Samaritan we toyed with the knowledge that the Highlanders were never so at home as when such gaudy cloth when the trousers were worn them. Against the heather and rocks of the Scottish hills a Buchanan in the wet we call his tartan would be a certain target for the Hanoverian bullets. Highlanders With all their chivalry, were not romantics to believe they should give an even break to the scarlet and red battlions of their foes.

The sober truth is that the gay tartan, possibly as we suspected by the enthusiastic Scot at 500 pesetas, is a modern invention. Until 1746, when the old clan system was shredded by English arms and the Highland chieftainders wove their own tartans from the dyes that the heather came from the heather, the moss, the forest, and the lochs were subdued if handsome. They blended naturally with the colors of the hills and the heather the clansman fought and hunted. Highland dress was prohibited for 36 years after 1745 in the United Kingdom and it is worth note to history that early Highland immigrants to Canada defiantly wore their kilts during the time when they could not have worn them. It was the time when Queen Victoria, by her Royal patronage, revived the Highlands, their music, their tartans and their purple glens fashionable and the time when the native dyes in cottage weaves had very largely given way to the aniline imagination and color were already in use. Hence the tartans for our lighter hours sattened cloth that may not be well found highlanders will be hugely nice just the same.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

DIVINE SOLICITUDE

The love of God indeed passes human understanding. Certain theologians used to teach that Christ had been offered up on the cross to placate the anger of God, which had been aroused by men's sin. No one believes that today, and we wonder how anyone read 'g the New Testament could ever have believed it. Paul expressed the core of the gospel in this one sentence: "But God commendeth his own love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us."

The love of God is such that He never ceases to seek after us. Our sins are no deterrent to Him, our perverse contradiction of His will does not turn his love into anger. Still He continues to seek after our highest welfare and to lead us into the paths of peace. Though He persistently we say No and continue this perverse attitude until our day of grace is over, still then we believe that He will, with sadness, reject all those who have rejected Him. This is perfectly consistent with His loving purpose, for He would have all men come into a knowledge of Him, and those who refuse to see his love, to admit it, and to cast themselves upon it, must condemn themselves at life's end to be content with the kind of world Him whom they have spurned.

Trip To Utopia

(The Edmonton Journal)

Geography has never been a strong point with the average Canadian. So it is not surprising that at least 100 citizens of Marseilles have said good-bye, for passports supposedly issued by the government of Utopia.

This came out during a police investigation recently, when parents "owing that the bearer was a citizen of the imaginary nation of Utopia. They evidently did a flourishing business among the gullible until the police stepped in.

The most astonishing aspect of the whole affair is that many of the people had actually obtained passports on trips to Italy, and the documents were accepted without question by both the French and Italian border officials. It looks as though nearly as well as France needs to brush up on elementary geography.

Spoils Not To The Victor

(The San Francisco Argonaut)

The right of the conqueror to loot looks unchallengeable to us so many centuries that when the practice is abandoned, as it usually has been after modern wars, and measures have been taken to restore stolen property, it has always seemed like something of an innovation. Long post-war practice it is well to remember this in retailing the story that the Military Section, a branch of OSS, which was included in the Army occupation back to France, Holland, Austria and Germany, in Germany was even divided into zones.

But the sight of treasure, as always, has its effect on some and on some individuals. It is not standing to disgrace the name of a Rembrandt, especially when that name is signed on the wall where it formerly hung, but a jewel, that was kept locked away, that is hidden from the hollow of one's hand, is too much of a temptation to certain natures.

An American army colonel and his wife got away with a good many of the Hapsburg jewels before Intelligence got up with them. The latest scandal of this nature involves agents of the military censure of Japan, including Empress Nagako's diamond - studded corset.

The missing treasure, national property, is valued at millions of yen, since to date it cannot be found. There is a strong suspicion that the culprits include not only Japanese government officials but also high officers of the Army edifices. The Japanese Government and the Japanese press are making much of the "affair" and the Japanese people are taking a very "grave view," and in this they have largely enlisted the sympathy of the world.

The discovery could not have been made at a more opportune time, for us, since there is currently a high tide of resentment and feeling in Japan. Too many of the occupying forces made the mistake of thinking Japanese had been making in the Orient for too long and were ready to be easily at the expense of the "natives."

They naturally brought up the case of Colonel Edward Murphy, former U.S. Customs with the Bank of Japan, who appropriated $2,000,000 during the months left in his care. For this he was convicted of grand larceny by an Army court martial in May, 1947, and sentenced to ten years at hard labor. Less than three years later he was at liberty.

This time, the estimated value of the loss is $10,000,000, and the Japanese are apparently determined that whoever is guilty shall be punished effectively or can only capture him.

LIPSTICK, ROUGE AND TUBERCULOSIS

Over a period of five years 413 girls from 15 to 19 years of age and 190 boys in the same age group succumbed to pulmonary tuberculosis or, as we called it when I was a boy on Chapel Street in Canandaigua, the western gateway to the Seven Finger Lakes region of the Empire State, consumption.

Why do more girls than boys develop lung tuberculosis? A great authority on tuberculosis, Dr. Adolphus Knopf, ascribed the difference to two factors: First, the use of rouge and lipstick by girls, and second, the flimsy and insufficient clothing they wear.

Here again the insufferable, egotistic, know-it-all quack who conducts this column begs to fragment of it that get into print must inject his opinion, not as an authority, for you and I know he is nothing of the sort, but as a fumbler, a bungler, a horse-and-buggy practitioner — distinguishable from the motorized horse-and-buggy doctors because the horse, a sorrel, is the first wife, Micky, a beautiful sorrel, and their first born, Lady Stockdale, now in this is 1950—but, boy, were we proud when we got Micky's name in pocketbook. I mean.

Now I beg to agree with Dr. Knopf's opinion of the use of lipstick and rouge by girls and to disagree with his opinion that insufficient clothing makes any girl susceptible to or in any way capable of recovering from tuberculosis. I regret to mention that a great many physicians of the highest repute share the view expressed by Dr. Knopf, which, speaking as an insufferable, egotistic etc., I take leave to think of step but you know whom.

On their side the old timers have tradition, the climate of the nineteenth century school of tuberculosis ignorance of hygiene such as that which enabled nineteenth century doctors to ascribe acute blood poisoning (septicemia) in surgery, obstetrics and simple wounds entirely to "taking cold". On our side we have only negative evidence to offer, but I challenge any physician of standing to dispute the fact — that neither animal nor human tests or experiments have shown that "exposure" to drafts, dampness, wet feet, insufficient clothing, a sudden sudden weather, chilly atmosphere or other everyday environmental condition measurably alter's an individual's susceptibility to or immunity to any known ailment.

Girls who paint a passable caricature of vile or health are likely to be less concerned than they should be about any decline or deterioration in health than they would be if signs of it were not concealed with paint. Their living habits are likely to be just the habits of those which enable one with incipient tuberculosis to recover if he or she is fortunate enough to be admitted to a mansorium where one learns how to live.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

DAYS AND NIGHTS

Alexander Smith, poet, and author of a delightful volume of essays entitled "Dreamthorp," once stated his one desire for fame was that he might be occasionally quoted. That statement was made nearly a hundred years ago, and he has well earned his desire, for I hardly ever find a quotation from the book mentioned that I do not like.

"In my garden I spend my days," he says, "and in my study my nights. My interests are divided between my geraniums and my books. I live in the present and in the past; with the flowers I am at home, with the latter I am a traveler."

Wordsworth had a similar plan. His study was in the open air—v. This past summer I spent all my days outside my library, but at night I read some of my books eagerly awaited me. Perhaps the reading was sometimes too brief, so did the night-light hours. When one takes interests to balance our love of them, we never grow weary or lonely. Somebody is flowering in the mind all the time!

During the open days we can commune with all the marvels of nature, exploring or wondering, or reflecting on our own account, but when the gentle drapories of night are drawn we go to our friends and our books. The past centuries are ransacked before us. The learning and speculations of thinkers - teem within our reach. Our minds drink as from a cool spring in the summer heat. One precious gain is ours from our days and nights—refreshment of the body, the mind, and the spirit.

A melted hour leaves no living trace behind it, but we should cultivate alertness, curiosity, and desire to know. The days are for observation and contact. The nights for thinking and meditation. From the Sanskrit I quote these lines: "Today well lived, makes every yesterday a dream of Happiness, and every Tomorrow a Vision of Hope."

Place those days and nights of your years in the mystical and spiritual richness. Make each hour count. Then, indeed, will you be content.

CAMPBELLFORD

Power House Problem Aired By Council

Campbellford, Oct. 2 — The Campbellford Council held a special meeting Monday evening to discuss their position in regard to the question of the local power house.

The power house is now barely able to produce the amount of power required by the town during the peak periods. The Campbellford Public Utilities Commission has discussed signing a contract with the H.E.P.C., but if such a contract were signed, it has been said that the P.U.C. would be able to make no grants to the town as they have done for the past several years. These grants are used to lower the mill rate, and are turned back to the town out of the operating profits of the commission.

The local power house is now undergoing repairs and even after repairs are completed, the plant will not be able to produce an amount of power sufficiently greater than the peak loads to carry on for more than possibly a few years.

Clerk J. F. McGregor read the act outlining the position of the council in the question. The P.U.C. is a separate body that runs their own affairs without reference to council, and is not responsible to council, except in the line of debentures, or other financial matters where taxpayers' money would be involved.

Councillor F. H. MacMillan suggested hiring a qualified electrical engineer, providing the M.U.C. will co-operate with him, to go over the power house in order to see what could be done to better it. He would like an estimate of what it would cost to get the plant in efficient working condition, and to make any suggestions he could regarding its operation.

A third wheel could be installed but there is the question of getting sufficient water to operate it. The water at the present time is held back and stored up by the hydro during off-peak hours, then released to carry the peak load, and if this were not done, the local plant would be unable to carry its present peak, due to insufficient natural flow in the Trent River.

The cost of installing a third wheel would be in the neighborhood of $400,000 and the plant would have to be rebuilt from the foundation up, in order to house the new equipment.

On a motion of Councillor George Free, a committee was named by the Mayor to draw up a question, asking any questions they believe council should get answers to regarding the operation of the P.U.C., or what they intend to do about signing a contract with the H.E.P.C. They will present the questionnaire to council at the next meeting when council will consider it before it is passed on to the P.U.C.

Council will no doubt ask the P.U.C. to name a committee to meet with council to talk the matter over. It is the general feeling of council that they want to avoid any ill-feeling between the two bodies, as some solmosity has already been stirred up in the past.

Mayor Kingston named Councillor Isobel Patham as chairman of the questionnaire committee, with Councillor Ness and Deputy Reeve Oscar Mason as members.

The Court of Revision which will sit on October 31 was named by the Mayor, Chairman will be Councillor Arthur F. Collette, with Councillors Mayhew, Free, MacMillan and Deputy Reeve Mason as members.

Weddings

IRVINE—PHILLIPS

On Saturday morning, September 27th, at 9:00 a.m. the marriage took place in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, in Belleville, of Miss Mary Phillips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Phillips, of Frankford, and Mr. Peter Raymond Irvine, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Irvine, of Belleville. The Nuptial Mass was celebrated by Reverend Gerald O'Hearn, of Stirling. The church was beautifully decorated with gladioli and autumn flowers.

The wedding music was played by Sister Mary Wilhelmine, and Mr. Joseph LaSarge and Marie, of Peterborough, were soloists.

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Hugh Phillips, of Frankford, the bride was radiant in her strapless gown of white Chantilly lace and nylon tulle over white satin, with lace bodice, fashioned with a Peter Pan collar and long fitted sleeves, ending in points over the wrists. The full circular skirt was floor-length with peplum of lace. A tiara of seed pearls held her fingertip veil of embroidered tulle, and she carried a shower cascade bouquet of red and white roses.

The bridesmaid was Miss Marion Baker, of Frankford, who wore a strapless gown of silk green Chantilly lace and tulle, over satin with a brief lace bolero and silk green headdress of lily-of-the-valley and roses with matching mittens. She carried an old-fashioned nosegay of pink carnations and yellow poms.

Mr. Donald Finnegan, of Belleville, was groomsman. Mr. Harold Hopkins of Frankford, and Mr. Osborne and Mr. Frank Irvine, brother of the groom were ushers.

The reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents, where the bridegroom's mother received the guests, wearing a powder blue sheer gown, with matching accessories, and a corsage of pink carnations and yellow poms.

For a short wedding trip to Peterborough, Parry Sound and points north, the bride chose a nasty blue suit with small grey feather-trimmed hat, and matching accessories. She also wore a corsage of red roses.

Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Irvine will reside in Belleville.

Prior to her departure from the Bata Shoe Company, where the bride had been employed, she was presented with a tri-light lamp by members of the staff.

Pioneer Woman Doctor Recalls Life in Early Days of The West

REGINA (CP)—More than half a century ago, when a great part of Western Canada was called the Northwest Territories, Mrs. Elizabeth Matheson was the first woman doctor in that vast region.

Dr. Matheson also was the only doctor in a 100-mile area around the Onion Lake Mission when she went there in 1891 with her missionary husband, John Matheson. Onion Lake is about 40 miles north of the present town of Lloydminster, straddling the Alberta-Saskatchewan border.

She had taken only one year at medical school when she arrived at Onion Lake Mission. The Methodist church there was keen to conduct an Indian school. But after many requests for medical attention, John Matheson decided that his wife must return to medical school.

Graduated in 1896

Dr. Matheson received her degree from Trinity College, Toronto, in 1896 and rejoined her husband at the lonely mission settlement.

The only other white settlers there until the founding of the Barr colony at Lloydminster in 1903 were a detachment of five policemen, the Indian agent and his family, the Hudson's Bay Company clerk and a Roman Catholic missionary.

Visiting her daughter here this summer, Dr. Matheson, now 86, recalled how she travelled 75 miles in a buckboard wi' a three-month old baby in her arms to set a broken leg, raced a bush fire to go to the aid of an aged Indian couple deserted by their tribe as the fire threatened, battled diphtheria and smallpox epidemics and examined hundreds of hundred men after she later became the area's coroner.

"I liked the life very much," she said. "If I were a young woman today with the same people to work with I would go right back to it. The Indians didn't ask for instruction, but they did as they were asked and came regularly to their children's meetings. They were intelligent and easily taught."

In 1905 a three-storey hospital was built at Onion Lake. However, few people wanted to come to hospital. Except for the few white maternity cases, Dr. Matheson still attended people in their homes.

Moved to Winnipeg

John Matheson, many years older than his wife, died in 1916. A year later Dr. Matheson moved to Winnipeg.

She became a medical inspector for the Winnipeg Public School Board and had the post until her retirement in 1941.

She speaks with pride of three of her daughters who are carrying on the Matheson tradition of working with the Indians. Two of them teach school on Indian reserves in Northern Ontario and the other assists.

Stout Hearts Brave Storm to Welcome New Pastor, Family

Despite the severe electric storm and torrents of rain, a happy time was spent last evening at the YMCA, when about 45 stout hearts of the Alliance Tabernacle met to welcome the new pastor, Rev. Kelt Strain, B.M., Mrs. Strain and family.

Mr. Harold Vanderwater, church treasurer, and Mr. Kenneth Dixon, church secretary, were in charge of the "get-acquainted" gathering, while Mr. Paul Delaney, assisted by Mrs. Delaney at the piano, led in the singing of several gospel choruses. Mr. Strain added a pleasing trombone number, "The Old Rugged Cross," and Mr. Dixon, a new chorus, embodying in it the aspects of prayer, praise and work, which he rendered as a solo to the tune of "When Irish Eyes are Smiling," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. W. H. Gervais.

Following a social get-together, beautiful refreshments were served by the young people's group climaxing a splendid time of fellowship.

New Ballet Produced Through Long-Distance Collaboration

OTTAWA (CP) — Long-distance collaboration between a Winnipeg choreographer and an Ottawa composer has produced a new ballet with a Canadian theme which will have its premiere in Winnipeg Oct. 30.

Gweneth Lloyd, director of the Winnipeg Ballet, and Robert Fleming of the National Film Board here matched their ideas through eight or nine letters, two telegrams and a few telephone calls, and a new ballet — still nameless — was born.

Last July Fleming read in a newspaper story that Miss Lloyd wanted an idea for a Canadian ballet. He wrote her he was interested.

Scots' Favor

Not until Aug. 6 did Miss Lloyd decide on the theme—the vast emptiness of the prairies and its effect on a sensitive Scottish settler in the Selkirk migration a century ago.

In her first letter to Fleming she said the ballet should last about 25 minutes. Music for group scenes should have "a Sc.-ttish flavor, but not too obvious." Beyond saying she wanted a solo and a duet in the first scene she left the rest pretty well up to him.

Along with his busy job as one of the Film Board's three composers, Fleming had to write much of the music by early September. Miss Lloyd could spend only 12 days with the Winnipeg Ballet, Sept. 24-36, before leaving on a trip to Toronto.

Sending tape recordings and sketches of the music as he completed it bit by bit, Fleming had 15 minutes of music by Labor Day. As more pages came in, Miss Lloyd in Winnipeg, she worked out the choreography and taught it piecemeal to the company.

On Sept. 14 Fleming sent off the last few bars of music and Miss Lloyd finished her work with "the company only an hour before leaving for Toronto.

"I'm absolutely delighted with the music," Miss Lloyd said when it was all over. "Bob has caught exactly the mood I wanted."

Fruit Desserts in The Land of Plenty

By Mary Moore

It's safe to say I could scream because you won't believe me anyway.

Out in my kitchen at the present moment are five baskets of fruits and vegetables. It always happens when we are going out for dinner two nights in succession or some member of the family is leaving to go to school or something.

Barb. arrived with tomatoes and potatoes (bless her); Peddy arrived with Hearts of Gold Mercouna, Olive; my neighbor brought plums from her mother's farm, and Pete has just walked in with a basket of pears that looked so wonderful Mum, I couldn't pass them."

Up until this moment I have never thought of this column as being an escapist occupation, but today it is. For instead of panicking over all of that fruit and stuff I acted as if a staff of slaves would arrive any moment to look after it somehow, and I elegantly started to make

POACHED PLUMS WITH CREME BRULEE

The poached plums part is for ordinary people like you and me, but the Creme Brulee demands guests. I want you to make these lovely dishes in your files for entertaining occasions. The poached plums are good with heavy cream or nothing added, but must be cold. A good accompaniment on week-day nights for dinner is crackers and cheese.

POACHED PLUMS OR PLUM COMPOTE

Mix together 3 cups water and 1 cup sugar and bring to boiling. Drop into this boiling syrup enough washed whole plums to cover the bottom of pan—not one layer. Simmer very gently, turning after first 5 minutes. Turn only once, for as these cook they easily break. Simmer about 10 minutes. Skim out plums into bowl and add more until you have enough to serve your family. Pour remaining syrup over plums and chill. Use this same method for Pear compote but pare and core pears and add lemon rind and cinnamon stick to syrup.""

CREME BRULEE

Heat until it almost reaches boiling point—3 cups milk. Silver and shimmer on top—3 cups whipping cream (I). Have ready 12 yolks beaten with rotary or electric beater for at least 10 minutes. Stir these into the hot cream over very low heat until it thickens. Pour into glass baking dish about 12x7 inches that is shallow. Cool at room temperature. One hour before serving time sprinkle over the top 1-3 cup sifted brown sugar. Place under hot broiler to melt sugar and make a dark glaze—this takes about 1 minute. Chill. When serving, ladle the chilled plums into steamed glasses and spoon the creme brules over them.

MARIGOLD PEAR SALAD

Wash, pare and core ripe Bartlett pears. Make cream cheese and to it add a little cream and some chopped nuts and blend until it is of stiff but creamy consistency. Fill the cavities of the pear halves with this and put them together again, and place,

Add 3 cups finely chopped tart apples. Pour into pastry-lined pie plate. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes, then reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. for 30 minutes.

Agricultural and School Fair At Demorestville Successful

PICTON—Showers which fell twice during the afternoon failed to mar the success of Sophiasburg Agricultural Society agriculture and school fair at Demorestville on Wednesday, during its 12 years as secretary, Harry Gordine stated that the fair had never been rained out. President Bert Ketchepaw expressed pleasure at the attendance at the fair, both by the exhibitors and by the large crowd which thronged the grounds.

District Fairs director, Sid Fitzgerald of Shannonville, praised the society on its efforts to promote agriculture, especially mentioning the calf and swine clubs and the nice display of farm products. Mr. Fitzgerald stated that on his visits to fairs this year he had noted many improvements since the last year, but that many societies have much to do to reach the standard sought.

Catching the eye in the main building was the home cooking which included 68 pies, 32 cakes, 34 lots of tarts as well as cookies, candy, bread, sandwiches and school lunches.

Display Outstanding

The display of work by the schools was outstanding and included murals, art, dressed dolls, writing as well as fruits, vegetables and grain.

The ladies' section was filled to capacity, while another colorful spot was formed by flowers and plants. Walls were hung with paintings and rugs. Grains and seeds reflected a bountiful harvest.

Among the poultry was found pets including cats, dogs, pigeons and bantams.

Sizzling fair on the same day sat down the entry of horses but several were on hand.

Three horses competed in a running race with E. Potter's entry finishing 1-2-3 and Lavern Way's two entries finishing 2-3-4 and 3-3-3.

Willard James Gordon Ray, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Pierce, Chapel Street, Picton, was grand champion baby in a show which saw twenty entries judged by Dr. John Wells, M. O. H. and nurses of the Health Unit.

The champion was first in the class for babies under one year. In second place was Sharon Rose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Norton, Demorestville, third Rebecca Sue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Laurel Williams, Demorestville, fourth; Carolyn Joyce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Langman, Milford, fifth.

In the one year to 18 months class, Orene William Allan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Cox, Doxsee was first; Donna Ruth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Jones, Picton, second; John, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hawley, R. R. 3 Demorestville, third; the child of Mr. and Mrs. C. Brooks, Consecon, fourth.

CAMPBELLFORD
Discuss Plans For Air Show

CAMPBELLFORD — Rotarians discussed plans for the proposed air show to be held here on Oct. 25th, when they met at their regular luncheon meeting on Monday.

Forty-two paratroopers from Petawawa are expected to make a mass jump. Trenton RCAF station will probably supply half a dozen jet aircraft to put on a display of precision flying and aerobatics, and several army bands will be in attendance. The RCAF will also put on a display of bombing and rocket firing, and several members of the local Rotary Club are now busily engaged in building a small shack and painting it a bright yellow, so that it can be easily seen, and probably just as easily blown up, by the RCAF planes.

The show will be held at what used to be Campbellford's airport, but what is now a wheat field. The land was sold some years ago after the airport venture failed to get the support it needed for continued operation. The spot is located a few miles north of Campbellford on Highway 30, and accommodation at the field is good.

The show was originally planned for Peterborough, but after the Peterborough Rotary Club arranged it the army turned down the idea due to the fact that the 'spot picked for' the show would not be satisfactory. The army looked around and found what they were looking for at Campbellford, so the Peterborough and Campbellford clubs are planning to have the paradrop here.

RAWDON

Mt. Pleasant United Church Holds Rally Service

Rawdon — Mount Pleasant United Church Sunday School held its annual rally service on Sunday afternoon. The programs presented by the Board of Christian Education of the United Church of Canada, which was centred on the theme, "Let us now prepare to build," were used.

Mrs. Raymond McConnell built an altar and worshipped read the story which was based on the day's theme.

The offering was gathered by Walter Wrightman and Malcolm Reid and will be used to build new Sunday Schools and churches wherever needed.

Third-Party Candidates Seek Portion of Popular Vote; Over All-Results Not Affected

By JOHN TRACY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP)—The 1952 presidential contest, is a clear-cut race between the Democrats and Republicans but a host of political also-rans are out after a portion of the vote.

Third-party candidates pop up at every U.S. election and then disappear. They rarely make much of a dent in the popular vote. This year at least a dozen are claiming a chance of the voters' attention but few will get on the ballot in all 48 states because most cannot meet state election requirements. On the 1948 presidential election, ballot of the third parties was 5 States Righters led by Governor Strom Thurmond of South Carolina. Thurmond, whose party was opposed by southern Democrats rebelling against President Truman's policy of equal treatment for Negroes, got about 1,169,000 of his nearly 48,000,000 votes cast.

Henry Wallace, a former Democratic vice-president, won 1,157,000 votes as head of the Progressive Party which was accused of domination by Communists and fellow travellers.

This year, although there has been some indication of revolt among Democrats in the so-called solid south, no States Rights party has appeared. The Progressive Party is running candidates but Henry Wallace has repudiated the party as a Communist front. The Communists, with no presidential candidate, urge a vote for the Progressives.

The Progressives are expected to be foremost among the so-called radical parties in the Nov. 4 election. Vincent Hallinan, wealthy San Francisco lawyer and a cousin of Prime Minister Eamon de Valera of the Republic of Ireland, is running for president. His running mate is Mrs. Charlotte Bass, California Negro publisher.

The radical parties were originally formed to back social and economic reforms but the social legislation of Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal and later President Truman's Fair Deal has pulled the rug from under them. Now they chiefly play up the issues of civil liberties, rights for minorities and foreign policy.

Largest of the older radical parties is the Socialist party for which Darlington Hooper, former Pennsylvania legislator, is standard-bearer. Norman Thomas, perennial candidate from the election this year for the first time in more than 30 years, polled 132,000 votes in 1948.

Thomas stepped down with the remark that present prosperity and two decades of reform have eased pressures on the people to go socialist.

Most third parties are backing some serious, although hopeless, cause. The Socialist Labor party, C. Holdridge's American Vegetarian party which describes Gog as "firmly pacifist and opposed to slaughter of 'any living thing.' There is also evangelist Stuart Hamblen's Prohibition party which urges suppression of "the alcohol beverage traffic" as the top political issue.

Other groups on the political fringe: strike front, the average American's ability to indulge in a belly laugh in the midst of a serious campaign. One of these is Henry Krawjewski's Poor Man's party.

Krawjewski, a tavern owner and pig farmer in New Jersey's pork capital of Secaucus, has conducted some of his campaigning by standing round of drinks in New York bars. His campaign buttons are inscribed "For President, Krawjewski I like."

FORM CHESS CLUB

CAPE SOUND (CP)—About 30 experts and beginners have formed of their own chess club and novices at the art will be instructed by more experienced players. A schedule of games for all members has been drawn up.

Presbytery Calls For Opposition To Sunday Sport

KINGSTON (CP)—The Kingston Presbytery of the United Church of Canada yesterday recorded strong opposition to commercialized Sunday sport at its fall meeting here. The Presbytery also criticized raising money for church and charities by lotteries and other games of chance.

Several speakers said the church should impress its members that the sport lines involved saying admission at the gate to watch a sporting event. A resolution was approved urging congregations to keep Sunday free from unbecoming a "holiday day."

Another resolution said the Presbytery "expresses its strong opposition to the use of gambling methods by some service clubs for the raising of funds."

The resolution continued: "We call upon all ministers to study the question of gambling and attempt to enlighten and educate our people as to the evils and detrimental effects of gambling that our people may know why the church is opposed to it."

HOMES SCARCE

RED DEER, Alta. (CP)—Mayor Paul Crawford reports that although building permits worth $1,500,000 have been issued this year Alberta's fifth city is experiencing one of its worst housing shortages.

BUSY THIEVES

WINNIPEG (CP)— While the congregation was at morning service, thieves broke into the vestry of a local church and escaped with about $50 from the purses left lying around.

PERFECT WIFE

MONTREAL (CP)—Mrs. Larry Wilson won the title "Perfect Wife" in a contest sponsored by the Notre Dame de Grace Business Men's Association. Among assets listed by her husband was the fact she is polite—even to her husband.

Not Much Time to Think in Air Fighting Over Korea Says Canadian

By JACK GOLDING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NORTH LUFFENHAM, England (CP)—Just back from Korea, one of Canada's top airmen says that if the Russians regard that war theatre as a school "they must be sending a lot of teachers too."

He is Group Capt. R. B. Hale of Hamilton, commanding officer of Canada's No. 1 fighter wing in Britain. In Korea he flew 25 combat missions in 25 flying days with the United States Army Air Force. Before he left the Americans asked him to lead their formation into a few scraps.

The handsome leader of 1,900 Canadian airmen and their families in Rutland county speaks cagily and with very humor about jet warfare in the Yalu River area.

Still Second Job

"When a Russian MIG and a Sabre jet come whistling head-on over the Yalu River, don't forget their combined speed is at least 1,200 miles an hour—and you don't have time to think twice," he said. "There's no good traffic there. Speeds and altitudes are terrific."

The 36-year-old Canadian is full of praise for the Americans who, he said, "really have that air show taped."

Hale side-slipped when asked whether he had any "kills."

"Pretty difficult to tell," he said. "You've really got to follow them to the ground and often that isn't too healthy—especially if they're on your tail."

While declining to talk about flak at high altitudes, Hale said the Communists have trained ground troops to hold their rifles upright and so create a solid wall of small arms fire. "Our boys should learn that one," he said.

CENTENARY

Centenary — Mr. and Mrs. Bernard May and Wesley returned home on Thursday last after a motor trip to Lloyd, Saskatchewan.

Mrs. Floyd Hartlett was a recent caller of her daughter, Mrs. Gordon Hartlett.

Recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Garrison were Mr. and Mrs. Armor Reid, of Rochesville, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Fiskle and Mrs. Frank Fiskle, of Marsh Hill, and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Purvis of Odessa.

Mrs. Orval May returned home on Friday last from the Belleville General Hospital, where she had been a patient for several days.

Combat Veteran

Veteran of 22 combat missions in Korea — as an R.C.A.F. exchange pilot with the United States Army Air Force — Group-Capt. R. B. Hale, 36, of Hamilton, Ont., is commanding officer of Canada's No. 1 Fighter Wing in Britain, at North Luffenham. Speeds and altitudes in Korea's Yalu River district air fighting "are terrific," he said, with jets screaming towards each other at 600 plus miles an hour. — (CP Photo.)

Editor of Roman Catholic Paper At Peace Parley

The 43-year-old newspaper man is Gerard Filion who directs Le Devoir, Montreal daily which guides nationalist opinion and promotes Roman Catholic social doctrine in Quebec province.

Mr. Filion is the first newspaper man without Communist attachment to enter Communist-run China in many months.

André Laurendeau, assistant editor of Le Devoir, said yesterday Mr. Filion accepted an invitation to the Asian peace conference a condition he would be considered a reporter unconnitted to any movement or group.

Mr. Laurendeau said Mr. Filion set out Sept. 11 on the spur of the moment.

On a European trip in 1939, Mr. Filion contented himself with note-taking and published his observations only on his return to Montreal. Mr. Laurendeau said he thought the same plan would apply this time.

Says Canadians Set Example In Germany

BONN, Germany (Reuters) — A Social Democratic member of the West German Parliament said today that the Canadian 27th Infantry Brigade "set a shining example by leaving their families at home" and not requisitioning German houses for living accommodations.

Heinrich Hoecker told the Bundestag (lower house) that the other western Allies "were recklessly egotistic" in taking over German houses for family use and added that they live too luxuriously.

"West Germans are terribly disappointed because instead of behaving like allies they use too much space for their homes," Hoecker declared.

He called for a new Allied-West German agreement which would place the Allies under German jurisdiction in all matters concerning the requisitioning of homes.

TREES POSE PROBLEM

BRANTFORD (CP)—Trees are a big problem here, Leonard Joyce, parks board superintendent, said they threatened to become a major expense unless a proper system was put into effect. He estimated that 500 trees were removed in one year at an average cost of $100 to $150 each.

NOW IN BELLEVILLE SENSATIONAL NEW QUICK-MIX JEWEL

Revolutionary new baking development gives higher, lighter cakes without creaming

FINE RESULTS WITH EITHER QUICK-MIX NO CREAMING METHOD OR FAVOURITE RECIPES

Still at same popular price

Now, the "extras" of expensive shortenings are combined in a popular-priced shortening. New Jewel is now quick-mixing with super shortening power—plus the smoothness and blandness of costlier shortenings. It is reported new Jewel bakes a higher, lighter, finer-textured cake in both quick-mix recipes and regular-creaming recipes. New success is reported in pies and cookies too.

Martha Logan, Home Economist for Swift, explained that new Jewel can be quick-mixed in just one bowl, without the hard work of regular creaming. This is illustrated in the "Challenge" recipe.

Jewel Challenge Cake

Quick Mix—No Creaming Method

Yield: Two 9-inch layers or three 8-inch layers

Preparation: Preheat oven and set at 375°F. Line bottoms of cake pans with two circles of waxed paper. Have all ingredients at room temperature. Sift flour before measuring.

Group I

½ cup new Jewel
2½ cups sifted cake flour
1½ cups sugar

Group II

1 teaspoon salt
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Group III

4 teaspoons baking powder

2 eggs

Method: Place new Jewel in bowl. Sift together flour, sugar, baking powder, and salt into bowl. Add ½ cup milk and vanilla. Beat 2 minutes on medium speed of electric mixer, or by hand, using 150 strokes per minute. Keep batter scraped from sides and bottom of bowl. Add Group II. Beat for 2 minutes more. Scrape bowl and beaters. Pour batter into cake pans. Bake in 375°F. oven for 25 minutes. Suggested frosting: Jewel Cream Frosting.

"MAKE THIS TEST YOURSELF!" says Martha Logan

"IN OUR lab kitchens, we tested new Jewel against every other shortening—under every condition, and in every kind of cake recipe, including mock angel and devil's food! The results are thrilling! Every time, new Jewel bakes a higher, lighter, richer cake with finer texture and superb good looks—as you can see for yourself in your own kitchen . . ."

"If you don't agree, I'll pay the cost!"

"Don't just take our word for it . . . get new Jewel today and bake your favourite cake, or using the wonderful quick-mix method, make this delicious Challenge Cake. If you DON'T agree the result is as fine a cake as you've ever baked in your life, please send me the new Jewel carton top before November 30th, 1952, and I will refund the cost of all ingredients used in my Challenge Cake. And you can save 5¢ on one pound of new Jewel with the handy coupon below."

POINT ANNE

Canada Cement Co. Gives Turkey Banquet

Point Anne —The annual banquet for the 25th-year-men and over employees of the Canada Cement Company, and their wives, was held recently in the Canada Cement club house, with a large attendance.

The tables were nicely decorated with flowers. After a very dainty plate of turkey and other food varieties was served by the hostess, Mrs. Buchanan and her assistants, a minute's silence in memory of a club member, Mr. Frank Gaynor, was observed. There are 69 members in the club now.

Presentations of engraved gold watches with names and 25 years, were made to Leo Rohif, Deley Cummings, and Andrew Neusiel, by Mr. J. W. Breen, president of the Canada Cement Company, of Montreal.

(After a few remarks to the men for their faithful service to the company and their fellow workers for 25 years, each recipient thanked them, in turn, for their watch.

Mr. J. H. Legate, superintendent of plant 3, and chairman for the evening, spoke briefly for the welfare of each employee and his appreciation for their co-operation and service to the company while being an employee. Other speeches were given by Mr. D. Forgie, assistant superintendent of plant 3, and Mr. W. O. Bernet, vice-president and sales manager of Canada Cement Company, Montreal, Mr. F. Moynes, district sales manager, and by Mr. V. Hamilton, general superintendent, Montreal.

After the addresses each of the ladies were presented with a gift which they expressed thanks.

Mr. Legate extended on behalf of the employees and himself, a hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Buchanan and her assistants for the grand supper served to them and to all who assisted in any way to make the evening the success it was.

After a social time spent together renewing friendship with old friends and neighbors, they departed feeling well pleased and grateful both for the lovely turkey supper and for being able to all be together again, hoping to meet in the next year.

RAWDON

Rawdon — Bethel United Church, on Rawdon circuit, is celebrating its 75th anniversary on Sunday, October 5th. Rev. A. E. Mackenzie, principal of Albert College, Belleville, will give the morning message, and Rev. K.J. Crawford, Marmora, will speak in the evening. Mrs. Walter Warren, festival guild member in 1901 and Miss Beverly Bush, Belleville, will be the soloists.

Homers, Joe Black Give Dodgers 4-2 Nod Over Yankees In Series Opener

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

SOFTBALLERS CELEBRATE!

Tonight the Belleville District Softball Association holds its annual get-together when the boys sit around the festive board, guzzle chicken, turkey, roast beef, or whatever the banquet feeds offer, accept their trophies, other awards and general pats-on-the-back and shoot the post mortem breeze generally.

The BDSA has every reason to toss out its collective tonsor at this season's end, for the banquet tonight in principle rings down the curtain on the season's activities. There may be another game between the junior Glen Roys and the CNR Diesels, the result of last night's tilt not being known at this writing.

Be that as it may, The BDSA while it is tossing out the silverware and habitual kudos to the champion teams and individual stars who merit certain pieces of pewterware, should not forget to give itself a huge crash on its own back for a job exceptionally well done.

The league has come a long way during the past three years, with the season just past paving the way to even bigger and better achievements.

For a loop that has been affiliated for two years only since the gradual decline of the game here a few years ago, the BDSA has every reason to be proud of its 1952 accomplishments. Not only in the intermediate field but in its minor activities as well.

Not only are the efforts of the BDSA gradually bringing back the status of softball to the once proud position it held in the city, but it has pioneered the game among the younger fry to a remarkable extent, thanks to the assistance of people like the Belleville Fire Department and other individuals who have worked ceaselessly and without complaint just to give the kids a chance to play the game. And proof of their fine efforts is seen in the fact that for the first time in the history of the city a pewees football squad is battling for a provincial championship. Fire Chief Gerald Vance and his merry men of West Moira Street should be singularly proud of the fact.

Two teams in the provincial finals with the possibility of two championships and two others in the semi-finals, with four Eastern Ontario championships won is a fine achievement for a league that has been affiliated with the Ontario Amateur Softball Association for the brief period of two years.

Glen Roy juniors have reached the Southern Ontario Junior "A" finals meeting the Windsor Local 195 here Saturday in a possible doubleheader for the championship. The Glen Roy pewees have reached the Ontario finals and are one game up on the Toronto finalists, Parkdale Lions.

The intermediate "A" representatives, CNR Diesels, played heads-up softball in their classification playdowns eliminating Whitby after Kingston defaulted and losing out to the powerful Toronto Avons in the semi-finals round. Northern Electric copped the Eastern Ontario honors after winning the intermediate "AA" right to enter the playdowns and were ousted by a Toronto team.

President Don Lee, secretary Cy Barriage, and members of the executive have every right to be proud of the job done this season. Although the season schedule was perhaps a bit heavy with sometimes two and three games nightly, the league provided entertainment for thousands of softball fans. Next year should be even better than this hugely successful season just over.

And a pat on the back in the CNR Recreation Association whose outstanding efforts resulted in the opening and use of their fine park off Station Street. The field was used extensively, especially by the Diesels and it provided a fine spot with its good diamond and well laid-out playing areas. They tell us the boys are erecting a fence around the park, a "fence what is a fence" and when this part of the project is finished the railroaders will have one of the best playgrounds and softball parks in the district. More power to 'em.

Rookie Fashions Six-Hitter As Robinson, Snider, Reese Blast Four-Baggers for Win

BROOKLYN, Oct. 2 — Brooklyn's Bombers put the Bronx Bombers to shame Wednesday when Duke Snider, Jackie Robinson, and Pee-wee Reese blasted homers and big rookie Joe Black pitched six-hit ball for a throbbing 4 to 2 victory over the Yankees in the opening game of the World Series.

The Dodgers, getting off in front in the series for the first time in four meetings with the Yankees, put on the home run show before 34,861 whoop-it-up fans, the largest crowd ever to see a series game at Ebbets Field.

The game, which had rocked along for six innings as a pulsating pitchers' duel between Black and Yankee ace Allie Reynolds, suddenly was blown wide open by sluggin Snider. His towering blast with two out in the sixth, sailing high over the scoreboard and onto Bedford Ave., tied the story.

Black, the magnificent Negro rookie who won 15 games and lost but four during the regular season, had the upper hand all the way, despite the fact that he was a reliever thrust into the breach as the opening game starter in a gamble.

The strategy worked perfectly. Big Joe simply "black-jacked" the Yankee hitters and was aided by flawless defensive support as the Dodgers showed the Yankees that this time they might be a different story all the way.

The game was here tied at 1-1 on the basis of earlier homers by Robinson and Gil MacDougald when the "Atomic Bums" suddenly exploded against Reynolds.

With two out in the sixth, Reese lined a single to right. Reynolds then threw the first pitch to Snider into the dirt. Duke yelled for Pee-wee to leg it for second and he made it despite a good recovery and throw by catcher Yogi Berra. But, as it turned out, it didn't matter whether Reese was on first or second.

Snider waited for the pitch he wished and when Reynolds whistled a fast ball down the middle Dynamo Duke blasted away. The ball sailed high over the left field screen and the Dodgers led 3-1. The Yanks began to come apart at the seams.

McDougald bobbled a grounder by Robinson at third and Jackie was safe. Then Reynolds made a faulty pickoff attempt for a second error, and Robbie whizzed to second. Roy Campanella grounded out to end that threat but Black still faced his biggest test.

The Yankees had no quit in them and Big Joe knew it. In the seventh after Irv Noren walked, McDougald was nailed on a high-speed double play started by Billy Cox at third. Came the eighth and Gene Woodling went in as the leadoff batter, pinch hitting for Reynolds. He crashed a triple into the far corner, and scored on the fly by Hank Bauer.

But that was all for the Yankees. The next five men went down in order.

In the meantime Reese, the oldest Dodger in point of service and the only man remaining who played in the 1941 series against the Yankees, accounted for the final run when he hammered a homer into the left field stands in the eighth.

That gave the "Little Colonel" a special distinction. It was his second series homer. No other Brooklyn player ever hit more than one.

Jackie got up after dropping to the ground to avoid the pitch. He brushed off the dirt and whacked a 3 and 2 pitch into the left field stands near the foul line.

McDougald, the big wheel in last year's series for the Yankees as a rookie, proved also to be a solid sophomore when he evened score at 1-1 in the fifth inning. Andy Pafko, in left, leaped up but the ball was just above his fin, and into the seats. McDougald, still featured his "school-girl" batting stance that makes him look as if he should be a pop-up pip squeak, apparently puzzled by what he hadn't seen anybody like that before.

But he wasn't baffled for long. He bore down then and struck out the next batter, Irv Noren, on the side. He struck out six altogether.

Phil Rizzuto and Mickey Mantle put Black into one of his few jams in the fourth when the Yankee shortstop singled and switch-hitting Mantle legged out a bunt for a hit. Berra, a batting bust all day, then forced Mantle as Rizzuto went to third.

Mantle took out shortstop Reese like a fullback to prevent the double play and Peewee spent most of the rest of the day limping. But he still looked pretty good roving around the bases in the eighth. With Rizzuto on third and only one out, Joe Collins lined to Carl Furillo in right and the Yankees found out about his tommy-gun arm.

Furillo lined a throw to the plate rushing Rizzuto back to third. Had Pafi gone in, it would have been suicide — or homicide. For there was Campanella with the ball poised for the "kill."

There's the baseball axiom that it is fatal to walk the first Yankee batter in any inning. But that also went by the boards for bear-down Black in the fifth. After he walked McDougald, he suddenly was in a pack of trouble when Billy Martin singled to left. But Pafko made a fine throw to third to nail the sliding Gil, Martin went in second on the throw to third, and held up as Reynolds grounded out. Again it looked like trouble when Hank Bauer arched a short fly to left, but Pafko made a diving and sliding catch to put out the fire.

That was about the story for Brooklyn's proudest hour in many a long year. Putting the lie to the experts who insisted the Dodgers once again would be no match for the mighty Yankees, they at least proved to be the top guys for one day.

And for the real fans—the second chair critics, delicatessen clerks, and subway conductors who stood in long lines to buy world series tickets—the real Dodger plan for the "man in the street" —it was a rewarding occasion.

Three Yearlings Sold by Queen

The three Royal horses brought less than £1,000 ($2,800).

Sniders' Homer 'Revenge Wallop', Joe Black 'Ready to Pitch' Anytime

BROOKLYN, — Duke Snider's game-winning home run was a "revenge" wallop and Joe Black, big Brooklyn pitching right-hander who tamed the mighty Yankees in the first game of the World Series was ready to go again today "if necessary."

"And I may use him, too, in the late innings if it's a close ball game," said the Dodgers' bounce manager, Charlie Dressen, in the pandemonium of Brooklyn's celebrating dressing room.

"Joe has told me he wants to work. If he feels okay today I may call on him."

Snider, husky centrefielder, whose giant poke in the sixth inning broke open the ball game in Brooklyn's favor, and for his 4 sliding fast ball thrown by pitcher Allie Reynolds.

"I got a big chance out of it too", he added. "It's the first game of the World Series in 1949, Reynolds struck me out three times. I swore I'd get even, and I did today."

The most relaxed undressed athlete in the Brooklyn quarters seemed to be Black, the 220-pounder whose tireless relief pitching carried the Dodgers to the National League flag.

But he was far from relaxed, he'd Joe, insisted.

"It wasn't easy. Don't ever let anybody tell you that," he said.

"Nervous? No, I'm never! I'm always nervous out there. My stomach was full of butterflies."

Black said he felt he had pitched better games this year than against the world champions.

"I'd been faster, I know," he said. "But that curve ball was coming in there pretty well and I had control. I couldn't get my fast ball up against the left handers, I don't know why."

The 28-year-old pitcher said he wasn't very tired and if his arm isn't stiff today he'll be ready to work again.

Before today, he worked in 58 games for the Dodgers, but had started only twice.

"I hope I don't have to use Black today and I hope I don't have to start him again in the series," said Dressen.

"It's Carl Erskine today, then Preacher Roe. Lou knew we were well migh win three in a row and then we wouldn't have to use Black again."

Dressen said today's victory gave him double satisfaction because it was a double blow at his critics.

"First I was second guessed for that magazine article of mine in which I said we wouldn't blow it again. Then I second-guessed for starting Black yesterday. The boys had to swallow both."

Monte Irvin outfield star of New York Giants, visited the dressing room to congratulate Jackie Robinson on his second-inning home run—his first in a World Series—and Ralph Kiner, Pittsburgh's home-run king, also was around shaking hands with the entire Dodger team.

Albert Seniors Win Over Tweed By 21-1 Score

Albert College Senior gridders continued their winning ways yesterday, when they visited Tweed and took the homesters by a score of 21 to 1. Faulkner, Brown and Black were outstanding for the College, while Larkin and Hunter played well for the losers.

The first quarter saw Tweed H.S. holding the much heavier Albert squad pennied in their own end of the field. No yards penalties, when the ball rolled back down hill materially assisted the Tweed team. Finally near the end of the quarter, Lesage made a nice pass to Woodcock, and then Hunter kicked for a single point for Tweed. As the second quarter opened, Albert got the advantage of the wind and the roll of the field and Faulkner made two nice runs, Harris plunged for some nice gains, and Black also added 13 yards to take the ball into Tweed territory. Larry Burk, quarterbacking went over for a touchdown for Albert, which Black converted.

When Tweed received the ball, Albert's line held and they were forced to kick, the tackling of Archie Brown for Albert was exceptional, time and time again he ran in and nailed the ball carrier for losses. Albert got the ball and on three successive passes, Black to Faulkner, Black to Scott, and Faulkner to Hummel Albert marched down the field, but they were halted on the one yard line by a holding penalty, and a penalty for taking too much time in the middle. Tweed took over and Larkin hit the line but only picked up 1 yard, Lesage was trapped for a two yard loss, and when Hunter kicked, the ball when straight up and down, and Archie Brown, Albert's end gathered it up behind the line for a touchdown, which was not converted Albert 11—Tweed 1.

Starting the second half Burk kicked off to Hunter who ran it back 20 yards, Lesage's pass was knocked down by Carter, when Hunter kicked to Faulkner of Albert, he passed it out to Dave Scott who ran the ball to centre field. On a fast breaking extension run, Burke to Faulkner to Hill the ball was carried to the Tweed 8 yard line, from where Murray Black went over for a touchdown, which Slack converted.

Play ranged ever through the last quarter, with Lesage and Larkin doing most of the ball carrying for Tweed. Mal Slack quarterbacking for Albert knifed through the line for some nice gains, with Gilchrist and Springer also doing credit in the running.

Of the last few minutes of the game, Lesage attempted a forward to centre field, which Faulkner of Albert intercepted, to go all the way for Albert's fourth touchdown; Carter attempted to convert by a plunge, but was stopped. Final score—Albert College 21—Tweed H.S. 1.

Timbermen, Yorks Rained Out, Play Tonight

PETERBOROUGH — Peterborough Timbermen and Toronto West Yorks failed in a bid to declare a winner in their OLA. senior final here last night, when heavy rain forced abandonment of the game at half time.

The Yorkers were leading 3-7 when referees Piper Bain and Lou Vipond called a halt during the half-time Interval. Some 4,000 fans watched the teams play through intermittent showers in the first quarter but rushed for shelter when a heavy downpour swept the field during the second period. Though the teams finished out the first half under slippery conditions, the footing proved too dangerous to warrant a continuation after the interval.

The teams are deadlocked 3-3 in the best-of-seven series, the winners of which will meet Vancouver Combines in the Canadian senior lacrosse championship set which starts at Maple Leaf Gardens Sunday afternoon.

The Petes and Yorkers will try again tonight here to wind up the series. If weather conditions interfere again, the game will be played indoors here Friday night at the Peterborough arena.

Raschi, Erskine Mound Choices

Brooklyn, N.Y. — Manager Casey Stengel today named Vic Raschi to pitch the second game of the World Series for the Yankees and Manager Charlie Dressen countered by naming Carl Erskine as the Dodgers' starter.

Raschi, a 215-pound right hander, won 18 games and lost six for the Yankees this year. He has won three games and lost two in World Series competition.

Erskine, a medium-sized right-hander who is considered the best change-up pitcher in the major leagues, won 14 and lost six this year. His only victory was a no-hitter against the Chicago Cubs.

NHL Moguls Refuse Recall Approval; Laprade Remains Ranger Property

NEW YORK — The National Hockey League yesterday repudiated its recently completed package deal with the American League and at the same time decided that Edgar Laprade should remain the property of the New York Rangers.

The action meant that each league will run its own house, including appointment of game officials.

Meeting in the midst of World Series excitement, the major league governors endorsed the action of their president, Clarence Campbell, in his recent-efforts to get together with the minor league clubs on the question of player recalls, but at the same time realized the proposed agreement was not workable at this time.

In other words, the National League decided to go its own way and let individual clubs attempt to work out deals with their affiliates in the AHL. Whether this is the first step in a gigantic bluff may be made clear when the American League meets in Buffalo tomorrow.

Under the present regulations, American League clubs are permitted to send players to the major league only when injury has reduced the parent club below a minimum of one goalie, four defencemen and nine forwards. The recalled player would remain only as long as the injured player was sidelined.

Storm clouds may be looming on the minor league horizon if individual clubs violate regulations and make deals with the majors. A $10,000 fine is the penalty the AHL will impose for violation.

President Campbell said his actions were endorsed by the league governors, 5-1, with Toronto's Conn Smythe in opposition. Smythe left for Toronto immediately after the meeting closed and was not available for comment.

As for Laprade, Campbell's action in asking for waivers was upheld and that league by-law was kept on the books, but the player in dispute goes back to New York.

Under league regulations, waivers must be called when a player goes on the voluntary retired list. Two clubs, Chicago and Toronto, claimed Laprade. It appeared, however, that there had been considerable confusion in the New York front office, as the two clubs offered to withdraw their claims.

"COOL CONTROL"

HINTS ON TABLE TENNIS

1 Control is essential for good results in this game. Ball must be returned every time. Careless shots will be missed or returns will not be effective. Concentrate keeping your eye on the ball.

2 Footwork must be right. Keep on your toes, changing position of body to meet every return. Always "choke" your racket by keeping grip as close to hitting blade as is possible. This gives control and leverage.

3 Keep the ball low; Avoid lifting the hitting blade or hitting under ball. Follow-through on every shot lower ball controlled. Learn to position in centre of table rather than end—do not edge over to side.

Yes, it's control that counts in table tennis as in every sport —control which brings the extraordinary quality that sets one performer above the other. In the ability to approach things coolly, to control every nerve and every muscle lies the answer to better results.

Clair Selects Ed Sorgel As Eighth Import

TORONTO— Ed Soergel gained the nod over Neil Schmidt for the defensive half job open on Argonauts as Frank Clair declared the eight imports who will wear the Double Blue from here to the end of the season.

The Toronto coach left his choice until within a few hours of the deadline, for declaring the 14 Americans who will be carried and said he finally went with Soergel because the youngster could also play quarterback as well as defensive halfback.

"I had to have some insurance in case Wirkowski gets clobbered and this boy fits the bill," the coach said. Clair had words of praise for Schmidt, who came here from Gren Bay Packers' camp. "Neil did a good job for us against Montreal . . . He tackled well. . . but a second quarterback is what I needed and that's why Soergel got the job. . . "

The other Americs who have cinched jobs are Wirkowski, Al Bruno, Zeke O'Connor, Ulysses Curtis, Billy Bass, Red Stringer and Jack Carpenter.

Clair expects that his team will run head on into the "hottest team in the country" when they tangle with Ottawa Rough Riders in the capital on Saturday. "We've been two six times in a row and they're hungry for a win. They've won only two games."

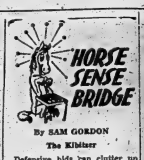
With George Arnett out of this game with a shoulder injury, Clair will switch his big Bob Marshall to an offensive tackle job. It's likely Rod Smylie will be rested, too, although the wing star reported his groin injury much improved.

Ulysses Curtis was pressed out cigars yesterday. His wife presented him with an eight-pound baby girl, Sylvia Ouida. The players took up a collection and netted $70 to buy Mrs. Curtis a gift.

Uncle Sam May Take Mantle From Big Series

MIAMI, Okla. —An army draft physical may nail New York Yankee outfielder Mickey Mantle out of the World Series if games continue until Sunday, Oct. 5. The 22-year-old Oklahoma County Oklahoman, Mickey, has been ordered to appear in Oklahoma City Oct. 6 for his third army physical.



Fred Marsh, chairman of the Ottawa County draft board, said today the Oct. 6 date still stands.

"We have no power to grant any extension of time," Marsh said, "regardless of the World Series. Mickey is just another registrant to us."

Marsh said any extension would have to come from higher draft officials.

Mantle was declared 4-F in two previous examinations because of a bone infection (osteomyelitis) in his left leg. Marsh explained Mantle is being called up under an army policy to reexamine 4-Fs. He said three other Ottawa County men with osteomyelitis are listed for the Oct. 6 examination.

Defensive bids can clutter up the traffic for a responder. At such a time there may be a choice of two or more replies. In doubt you can still be guided by T-A-N-Y: takeout, safe, unsurpr.

Your partner in south opens with a bid of one heart and the opponent in west sticks in a double. This is a double for takeout; asking his partner to make some bid if not interfered with.

♥ K J 10 6 4
♦ K Q J 7
♣ None.

If west had not doubled you would simply bid one spade.

Having a biddable diamond suit and plenty of tricks for it, you would say two diamonds as the first choice in T-A-N.

Being a takeout it's a new suit it is a signal that would force partner to bid again. You have no worry about not yet showing your bee—coitful support in both suits.

Or, if you were that kind of a player, you might ignore T-A-N and make a jump assist to three hearts immediately. This would be a signal to partner that will keep the bidding going to game.

But the double has given you another option. You now have a choice—a choice which will assure your pair of a game at a very low contract if the players all play your redoubled.

Also, the double by west warns you that opponents may take a chance to exchange information. So, you may want to jump to four hearts for interference with their lines of communication.

You may never be sure which of these four choices will turn out best in every case. But if you are ever in doubt, merely fall back on T-A-N and you will be less wrong than anybody else.

Thus, if you are not sure what to do here, take the action that partner may misunderstand. Meeting bid is the diamond department. Then hope you have a partner who agrees.

Self-Styled Genius Happier in Prison

BODMIN, Cornwall, England (Reuters)—James Henry Stone, 24-year-old artist and self-styled genius, honestly told the judge yesterday that jail is the only place where he can really paint and write.

"I feel I am really wanted in prison and can do something for society even though it is only to paint pictures. In prison I can go to evening classes and the governor gives me the materials with which to paint," he said.

The judge sentenced Stone, who pleaded guilty to robbing a priest's home, to two years in prison.

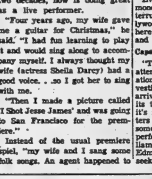
Gift of Guitar at Christmas Started New Career for Preston Foster

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Preston Foster is carving out a new career in middle age, "all because my wife gave me a guitar for Christmas."

Foster, who has been playing heroes and heavies in movies for two decades, now is doing great things on television. Tonight he's the singing starring Julian Noa in the Ramrod Bonzie showings.

catch our act and offered to book us around the country."



Lucrative Lark

It all started as a lark, but has turned into a highly profitable enterprise for the Fosters. They have just returned from playing such dates as the Wisconsin State Fair and the Portland, Ore., auto show.

Even though he now makes more money as a singer, Foster will interrupt his tours to return to Hollywood for movie roles. He's back here to play a bad man in "Law and Order."

Capsule Review

"The Turning Point" is another attempt to cash in on the revelations of the Kefauver crime investigating committee. This one arrives a little late, so some of its timeliness has worn thin. But it's still a pretty cops-and-corruption picture, and it's aided by some lively action and believable performers. The latter include William Holden, Alexis Smith and Edmond O'Brien as the crime-seekers.

Cinerama Film Gives Lifelike Scenic Effects

By MARK BARON

NEW YORK (AP)—Perhaps the experience will recall the first time you swooped down in a fair grounds roller coaster. Or when, on a first ascension, the pilot went into a side slip.

Those first sensations, combined with the scenic effects of a motion picture production, are the essentials of Cinerama, a three-dimensional film process which made its formal bow to Broadway audiences last night.

The cinerama film, as seen now, is something bordering on a travelogue. But its first showing points the way towards possible technical changes in the entertainment world.

This first film is entitled "This is Cinerama" because it is. In fact, the introduction of a new motion picture process. It is not yet a film with a plot around what suggestions the audience may give to what they see on the screen. The Grand Canyon of the Colorado River in Arizona, the Cypress Gardens of Florida, the triumphal scene of "Aida" in La Scala grand opera in Milan are the scenes for this new full-dimensional sight picture at the Broadway Theatre.

Big Screen Needed

The cinerama film requires a cylindrical screen about six times the normal size of the usual movie screen. The curved screen is 62 feet across the top curve and 26 feet high.

Although the screen is concave, the light reflections bounce off and disappear behind the screen so that it appears to be a flat, solid picture to the audience.

The sound tracks on the cinerama film were recorded separately during the filming at seven widely-separated positions for perfect stereophonation.

If the audience sees a motor boat or an airplane darting across the widespread screen, they first hear the engines coming from offstage as if they were actually where the camera is focussed on the horizon.

Cinerama pictures will require some changes in the physical setup of stages where this new film technique can be shown. At the moment it can be shown only in New York and London theatres whose stages have been changed to accommodate the enlarged film screen required.

Bitter Reprieve

By Drexel Drake

The stone mansion which Cliff-stow's older residents still identified as the home of old Hezekiah Pace showed no marks of its added six years. Memories of the tragedy had grown mildly under the weight of the greater tragedy of the war's casualty lists. Inside the house Albert Brant, lawyer, a little more hoist, still performed without reckoning the passing of time. Mrs. Bowder observed her unaltered schedule. Stella Nelson had gone to a war job; but Brant had installed a granddaughter to maintain household routine.

Marcus Sterling had come back in February, 1946, to discard sergeant's chevrons for one of the business suits Brant had cared for reverently. The clothes hung on him loosely. Their owner followed in the once solidly proportioned body to match the gauntness of the copper-colored face that had once been so healthily rounded. The eyes had forgotten how to smile . . . they had taken on a frightening glare.

At Harbor Trust Company, there had been a touching day when Sterling returned to his desk. There were masses of flowers. Officers and workers abandoned duties to gather around him. From director to Miss Wilson, just a touch more splinter-ish for her six years, one and all fled to him . . . told him how splendid he looked. Sterling accepted it with a silence they mistook for emotion. He didn't tell them he had come home to die . . . in months . . . perhaps in weeks.

There had been Guadacanal . . . two Jima . . . Okinawa. Command officers had sworn at him for his recklessness. Men about him had been inspired to unimaginable deeds by his intense courage. While others nerved "he's" at his unflappable poise he spared few return to arouse and fatalities. Sterling counted each day a new opportunity to die.

But Fate bullets had never found him, nor shrapnel, nor bomb splinters that sometimes decimated his unit. The war dealt with him differently. The jungle taken on a frightening glare. The germ of a slower, more torturous death. He could have remained in a government hospital to die. Army doctors told him the truth frankly. But Marcus Sterling had come home to die.

Sterling had been home about two months when he met Richard Trapgood. He had driven his car, idle, his garage and . . . was rolling from the driveway to the front porch. Trapgood called to him and when he turned a car was stopping at the curb. Trapgood hopped out of the car and came up to him.

"Glad to see you, Sterling." Trapgood said. He was holding out a hand. "Haven't been home long, have you?"

"Since February," Sterling said. He grinned ineffectually when they shook hands.

Time had dealt kindly with Trapgood. He was smoothly groomed, as he was only the faintest hint of his just-past-40 waistline.

"We were in it a long time . . . over four years," Trapgood said.

"Didn't really seem that long" Sterling said. "Business still bringing you out to Clifston?"

Trapgood laughed. "I'm one of your neighbors, Sterling. Two things happened to me while you were away. I parted company with the district attorney's office and went into private practice at the end of '43. Six months after that I married an old friend of yours . . . Janet Weirhaven."

"Janet! That's fine." Sterling was a little late in extending his hand. "That's really fine," Sterling added that absently. "Then you're living in . . . out here in Clifston."

"Janet's house, yes. We've got to have you over some evening."

"Thanks heaps, Trapgood."

Janet Trapgood . . . Sterling recalled that name over to himself as he let himself into the house. That didn't seem to fit . . . seemed incongruous . . . it was all so blurry. Janet and Trapgood . . . time had played tricks on him, was laughing at him.

May was almost half . . . spent when Isabel Wilson, timid, frightened, was ushered into the office of Lloyd Christopher Talent of Police Headquarters.

"I am Marcus Sterling's secretary." Miss Wilson said. "Mr. Sterling asked me to see you personally, and to ask you please to receive his message personally, and not . . . well, not as . . ."

"Not as a police officer!' is that it?"

"Yes, thank you, Lieutenant. Mr. Sterling wondered if . . . you would come to see him. He's very anxious about it."

"Mr. Sterling doesn't want to come to see me here?"

"He couldn't Lieutenant," Miss Wilson's voice quivered and she dabbed quickly at her eyes. "he is dying. He's sinking rapidly. I believe he's trying to keep alive until you see him. Today he has had only brief rational periods. He seems to be fighting against a delirium."

"I'm sorry. I should have told you. It's in a hospital. You will go to see him, won't you, Lieut. Talent?"

When Miss Wilson had gone Talent went to a cabinet drawer and took out a fibre filing envelope. He went hurriedly through its contents. He was refreshing his memory. Nothing had been added, to his personal file of the unsolved Sterling case since 1940. Six years! Six years almost to the day, Talent reflected, glancing from a memorandum to his desk calendar. Sterling, dying, was asking for him to ease a charge that he had never shaken off the belief that Sterling could tell him something.

Ivanhoe — Something unique by way of entertainment was given in Ivanhoe town hall on Friday evening when Mr. and Mrs. William Warren, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Warren, of Kingston, presented a puppet show to a capacity audience.

Rev. Boyd Beckel was chairman for the following program — Sound of community singing with Mrs. Reg Haggerty at the piano, led by the chairman. Other numbers given were — a solo by Mrs. R. Shaw, reading "Buying a Hat" by Miss M. Wright and "Talkin Pet" by Mr. Reg Haggerty.

Well merited praise is due Mrs. William Warren, the former Vera Wright, of Harold, who made the eight puppets, their colorful costumes and cleverly manipulated the wires. The stage, lighting and sound effects were pleasing.

Atomic Blast in Australia Ushers Britain Into Circle Of Atom Weapons Powers

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)—Britain's first atomic explosion today zipped a mushroom cloud of radioactive dust into the sky.

A British newspaper said it gave Prime Minister Churchill the "trump" he needs to reopen exchange of atomic secrets with the United States.

The blast blazed briefly like a rising sun over the barren Monte Bello Islands 65 miles off Australia's northwest coast. A ragged cloud soared swiftly to 10,000 feet, spread out until it was a mile wide by the second hour, and stayed there for days.

A screened handful of newspaper men watched the explosion at 8 a.m. (5:30 a.m. EST Thursday) that made Britain the third power known to have a working atomic weapon. They watched the historic detonation from a hilltop vantage point at Rough Range, 45 miles distant due south of the centre of the target area.

No Quizzing

No United States observers were among those present. Britain barred newspaper men from visiting the Commonwealth as part of a 10-point security program started when the U.S. banned the exchange of atomic-research information after the war.

The weapon was the 37th of its type ever exploded. The U.S. began climbing with the test blast in 1945 that preceded the two U.S. wartime atomic bombs dropped on Japan, has exploded 33. Three atomic explosions have been detonated in Russia since the war.

The bomb itself appeared somewhat different from those exploded by U.S. tests. The shape of the cloud, instead of the familiar mushroom formation, was a ragged thunderhead that lasped a mile in 5 minutes and then rose more slowly to 25,000 feet. It then dissipated its belly to a one-mile width and at the top hung a gigantic U-shaped formation.

A heavy air shock struck the rough range observation point 41½ minutes after the flash, accompanied by a thunderous crack and prolonged rumble. There was no ground shock.

The explosion seemed to bear out reports that the bomb was primarily a tactical weapon rather than a super-bomb. One possible explanation is that a reduced initiator of the cloud was suggested by reports that British experts have worked out new techniques for triggering explosions. Other reports say British scientists have reduced the size of the fissionable material used to make the blast come off.

Use Tower

"The weapon appeared to have been set off from a tower on Hermite Island, southernmost of the Monte Bellos. Engineers had erected a "largest city" on the islands designed to test the effect of an explosion on buildings, shelters and underground communications.

The $3,500 square-mile area around the site has been a restricted zone since last May. Ships patrolling the waters had ordered the safety before the blast.

Acetylene Torch Used To Free Two Guards

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rioters were subdued by water and tear gas yesterday after three hours of mob rule in the south wing of crowded Oakalla prison.

The biggest jail riot in British Columbia's history came to a soggy finish when armed prison officers sliced through a barricaded door with the acetylene torch to free two guards seized as hostages.

A few hours later Warden Hugh Christie announced that "immediate and decisive" disciplinary action—including use of the paddle—had been taken against prisoners actively involved in the pillage.

Slept on Floor

Some prisoners spent the night sleeping on the damp floors of cells where they had smashed beds and windows and uprooted plumbing fixtures.

That was what Warden Christie meant when he said there would be the punishment was meted out by the prisoners themselves. They must live in the disorder until repairs can be carried out.

No one was injured. But damage ranged into the thousands of dollars.

Eighty-five of some 800 prisoners at the provincial jail were brought before a "warden's court" after order was restored.

Not fully identified, they were found to be actively involved in the riot. Each was fined or penalized a one-man-to-a-cell program.

Those who started the riot couldn't have been more futile with the disorder put down by prisoners who had given up their concessions.

The 24-hour-old warden said he spoke to the rioters twice during the night through a loudspeaker on the telephone and once through a window— but refused to bargain with them.

"The minute I started to make any concessions I would be under the charge of the prison," he said.

"Actually I have some sympathy with the prisoners, but unfortunately I have no method of attempting to gain their ends. It was a futile riot that probably set back the prisoners' cause a long time. We have been working for several months for better their conditions and that was largely part of the reason for the riot."

Guards Unharmed

One of the two guards held by the prisoners, Bob Burns of Burnaby, B.C., said he was treated although several "punks" hurled threats at them.

"The chief guard in the south wing, said:

"I was returning the prisoners to their cells after their recreation period. I was alone when suddenly all hell broke loose.

"We had about half of the prisoners back in their cells when a group of them rushed down and overpowered the guard in charge.

"They piled beds, mattresses and everything available against the door.

"Then the whole mob went berserk. They broke everything in sight in every window in the place. Then they went after the toilet bowls and the wash basins, and finally ripped the bunks apart and smashed them."

Six inches of water covered the cell floors after fire hoses were trained through the windows. Tear gas bombs fired by Burns said being rescued was a lot tougher than being captured.

Pravda Outspoken on Stalin's Theory—Only Wonderful—That Is

LONDON (Reuters)—Pravda, official organ of Russia's Communist party, today hailed Marshal Stalin's 50-page article on economics published yesterday as a "scientific work of enormous importance of the utmost international significance."

In an editorial, quoted here by the official Tass news agency, the daily newspaper claimed the article, published in the theoretical Bolshevik, was "a great contribution to the theory of Marxism-Leninism, and a scientific work of enormous theoretical and practical significance."

"Comrade Stalin has treated from all sides the fundamental question of political economy of socialism and for the first time in Marxist literature he analyzed the character of its economic laws, formulated the basic economic law of Socialism and defined the principal conditions of gradual passage from Socialism to Communism."

Dodgers Take 2-1 Lead Over New York Yankees in Fifth Frame of Third Series Game

By JOE REICHLER

YANKEE STADIUM, New York (AP) — It was southpaws Preacher Roe (11-3) for Brooklyn and Ed Lopat (16-5) for New York as the Dodgers and Yankees moved to the Yankee Stadium for their third game of the World Series today. Each team has won one.

Both pitchers, who count on soft stuff and a maximum of control, are 34. Each has had a good rest. Roe hasn't pitched since April 16. Lopat hasn't worked since Sept. 26.

Neither has ever lost a World Series game. The Brooklyn ace has pitched only one game in the classic, a beautiful 1-0 victory over Vic Raschi and the Yankees in 1949. Lopat, who won his last five games this season after having shoulder miseries, is 3-0 in series games. He defeated the Dodgers but needed help in 1949, and twice beat the Giants in 1951.

E.-ch manager, Chuck Dressen of the Dodgers and Casey Stengel of the Yankees, revamped his batting order to meet the southpaw situation. Carl Furillo was moved up from eighth to the lead-off spot in the Dodger lineup and Duke Snider and Billy Cox were dropped to sixth and eighth places in the order.

Pee Wee Reese, batting in the lead-off spot for the Yankees, Joe Collins moved up to second and Hank Bauer dropped to sixth.

A capacity crowd of close to 70,000 was on hand in the cool and partly cloudy weather. The temperature was in the 60s.

Father of Suchan Collapses While Court Witness

TORONTO (CP)—Joseph Leso, father of convicted murderer Steve Suchan, collapsed in the coroner's jury while under cross-examination by Crown Counsel Arthur Klein.

Leso and his wife, Elizabeth, are jointly charged with harboring Edwin Alonzo Boyd and William Russell Jackson after their first escape from the Don Jail last fall November. Jackson and Boyd were convicted this week of bank robbery.

Yesterday's session ended abruptly when a prison officer was marked the close of the Crown's case in the trial. A native of Czechoslovakia with a limited knowledge of English, Leso was being questioned through the statement that he did not know the two men were escaped prisoners when they first arrived at his Toronto home.

Leso swayed back then righted himself, his eyes staring and his body rigid. Assisted from the witness box, Leso collapsed again. Held Few Hours

Earlier in the day, Lou Herman, counsel for Leso, drew admission from two Toronto detectives that Leso had been arrested at 3:30 a.m. Tuesday and held for four hours before being cautioned and then charged.

Marion Davies' Gay Party Costs $35,000

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Marion Davies tossed the gayest Hollywood party of the year on the Coast early today — so gay that even crying Johnny Ray, the guest of honor, spent most of the night laughing.

The Cadillacs were stacked up bumper to bumper for a mile getting to and from the estate. Three bands furnished dance music. Miss Davies' guests included Bing Crosby, Capt. Horace Brown, received the Congressional Medal of Honor after more than $35,000, according to his estimate made by one of Miss Davies' guests. Ray bounced Ray's opening tomorrow night at Ciro's nightclub.

JAPANESE VOTE THROWS OUT ALL REDS IN HOUSE

First Asian Setback As 35 Seats Lost

Japan's Communist party, which won 35 House seats in the 1949 election, failed to place a single one of 107 candidates in Wednesday's balloting.

Only two Communists remain in the Japanese Parliament. Both are in the virtually-powerless Senate.

Japanese commentators predicted that Japan will follow an even stronger policy of cooperation with the west, particularly with the U.S.

Victory for West

The severe drubbing which the Japanese gave the Communists at the polls amounted to a victory for the west. It was a smashing cold-war victory for the west.

The Red defeat reflected Japanese revulsion for the Red campaign of violence in May which erupted in a high point in May Day riots. It mirrored, too, Japanese disgust with Russia's reluctance to hand back or even discuss the thousands of Nipponese war prisoners missing behind the iron curtain.

Premier Yoshida's 1950 agreement with Communist China on a peace treaty with Nationalist China at Japan was a blow to hopes that the economy could be built up on a friendly footing with the Communists. The Red refusal last year to sign a U.S.-sponsored peace treaty with Japan heightened suspicions.

The renewed Sino-Soviet agreement last month permitting Japanese trade to remain in Port Arthur, just across the Yellow Sea from Japan, was the final veto of Japan's application for entry into the United Nations further crushed Japan's hopes for amicable relations with her Red Asian neighbors.

Fishery Experts View Underwater Mysteries of Lake

OTTAWA (CP)—In an experiment never before tried in North America, Canadian fisheries experts are to reveal the underwater mysteries of an Alberta lake from a diving chamber and by a specially-fitted motor launch.

Their equipment: A newly-developed underwater television camera.

The Resources Department said yesterday scientists of its wildlife services are to use the camera to survey for underwater fisheries investigation in Lake Minnewanka in Banff National Park.

The camera, encased in a watertight steel container, is somewhat like what it sees on a "scope" on the boat deck and has been successfully used to depths of 100 feet.

Developed under the direction of Fisheries Research Board scientific research council after three years of intensive research, the camera will be first tested in Lake Ontario last year.

Research scientists said it could be used to salvage sunken or underwater operations as well as for fisheries research.

The investigations are being carried out from a 30-foot converted R.C.A.F. motor launch. The camera, its casing mounted with a bracket for easy portability to illuminate the gloom of the lake bottom, is connected to a "scope" or viewer on the boat deck by a thick electrical cable. It sends back the visual impulses through this cable.

Two Convicted Car Thieves Escape From Whitby Jail

Make Getaway by Theft Of Caretaker's Auto

WHITBY (CP) — Two convicted car thieves cut their way through the roof of a century-old section of the Ontario county jail early today and escaped — by stealing the courthouse caretaker's car.

Gordon Albert Reid, 17, of Toronto, given a year March 6 for car theft and two years Sept.13 for manslaughter, and Nicholas Marchuk, 36, of Brantford, sentenced yesterday to two years in penitentiary for car theft, fled as a shot was fired at them. They had been awaiting transfer to other jails.

The getaway car was described in a police broadcast as a blue 1941-model coach, license number 46241, owned by Allan Lavis.

Reid was convicted of manslaughter in the traffic death of Mrs. Carl Skertt of Oshawa. He received a reformatory term.

Describes Escapees

Reid is described as five feet six inches tall, 150 pounds, with dark hair and wearing blue denims. Marchuk, five feet eight, bald, 180 pounds.

Officials said the men escaped through a hole in the slate roof of the west cell block and used the 30-foot drop to the basement floor of the jail, entered the courthouse and took the caretaker's car.

Reid's sister, Mrs. Ethel Brown of Toronto, said she was present when the police of the district detachment of the O.P.P. broke the news.

Dr. Horace Bascom, sheriff, told a reporter this morning:

"Those men should have been out of here before this. We have been trying to get rid of them."

It was reported both prisoners had previous records.

American Funds In Canada Reach All-Time High

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's official reserves of United States dollars rose to an all-time high in September.

The reserves used as a cushion to block any sharp fluctuations in the exchange value of the Canadian dollar, had climbed to swell the total through the first nine months of 1952.

On Sept. 30 they were more than $200,000,000 greater than the $1,610,000,000 of the corresponding date a year ago, Mr. Abbott revealed.

The peak of $1,858,000,000 set June 30 was followed by a slight drop of less than $500,000,000 at the end of 1951 when Canada was forced to tighten restrictions on import curbs to rebuild her reserves.

Now the big movement of capital from the United States and other countries for investment in the rapid development of the country's monthly surpluses in foreign trade has swelled Canada's dwindling huge supplies of U.S. funds.

The reserves, expressed in terms of U.S. dollars, had climbed to $1,828,000,000 on July 31 and to $1,843,000,000 on July 31 and continued the upward stride to $1,848,000,000 on Aug. 31.

BODY RECOVERED

GODERICH (CP)—The body of Rimmer Bakker, 40, of Auburn, was recovered from Goderich harbor yesterday. Bakker and Harvey Johnston of Toronto were washed into the harbor last Thursday while working on a foghorn house.

Score Identified Fellow-Members Communist Party

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A score of Hollywood radio employees have been identified as fellow-members of a Communist party cell six years ago.

The identifications were made yesterday by two friendly witnesses before a House of Representatives un-American activities committee investigating suspected subversive influences among doctors, lawyers, and film, radio and television employees.

The first witness, Owen Vinson, 40, of Santa Monica, said he was a radio actor, writer, singer, director and producer from 1931 to 1947.

Vinson named an Abe Burrows but did not identify him as the well-known comedian. Abe Burrows the comedian, two years ago was subpoenaed before the committee for a Washington hearing but was not called upon to testify.

Close Session

The hearing was enlivened by the forcible ejection of lawyer William Fitelson, who objected to cross-examine Vinson. Esterman, chairman of a group of lawyers and doctors summoned before the committee, asked permission to cross-examine Vinson. Esterman was told to make his motion in writing. When Esterman again attempted to obtain permission orally he was ordered ejected.

Yesterday's friendly witnesses was Paul Marion, 37, who said he was a Hollywood movie, radio and TV actor for 11 years. Marion named substantially the same persons as Vinson had listed as fellow-Communists between 1945 and 1946.

Defiant witnesses yesterday before the committee were Communists and two optimistics. They all declined to answer questions concerning existence of a Communist party professional cell.

Frightening Persons to Death Is Possibility Doctors State

CHICAGO (AP)—Two physicians expressed belief today that some persons could be literally frightened to death.

They also explained how the same stresses of fear or terror might bring about the slower so-called "voodoo" or "bad" deaths among some superstitious natives.

Writing in the journal of the American Medical Association, Drs. W. Proctor Harvey of Washington and Samuel A. Levine of Boston told how sudden emotional upset started a series of abnormal heart beats in a healthy patient undergoing an electrocardiograph test.

These abnormal heart beats were not the ordinary heart "skipping" or palpitation that sometimes occur in normal hearts, but a prolonged and highly-irregular pattern that the doctors said could lead to ventricular fibrillation and death.

In ventricular fibrillation groups of heart muscle beat independently and without rhythm and the heart cannot pump blood.

OIL BURNERS GIVE FIREMEN BUNS, NO DAMAGE REPORTED

Troublesome oil burners gave city firemen two runs during the past 24 hours, one during the night and the other early this morning.

Last night firemen were called to Wes Turner's roadside stand on the Trent highway, while this morning they were called out on the Foxboro road. No damage was caused in either case, it was reported.

SUSPENDED SENTENCES GIVEN TWO YOUTHS BY MAGISTRATE

Suspended sentences for two years with payment of court costs of $52.50 each was the penalty handed down today by Magistrate T. V. Willis against two local youths convicted of car theft. The two youths, Craig McClelland, 18, Rockwell Street, and Lloyd Foster, 16, St. Paul Street, pleaded guilty Tuesday and were remanded for sentence.

The two boys pleaded guilty to the theft of department of agriculture car from the Collegiate grounds a week ago. The car was found abandoned on College St., while articles taken from the car, including a movie projector and screen, were found in a farmer's barn in Thurlow township.

TEMPERATURES HIGHER, RAINFALL GREATER THAN YEARS AGO

Temperatures were higher and rainfall was greater during the past month than for the average month of September, according to statistics kept at the local water purification plant on the Trent Road.

During the past month the thermometer scored a high of 85 degrees, as compared to a high of 82 degrees for September 1931, while rainfall for the month was 3.16 inches as compared with 3.10 inches a year ago. The official low temperature for last month was 36 degrees compared with 39 degrees a year ago. The mean temperature was 62 degrees while the mean temperature for September over a period of years was 60 degrees and the average rainfall 3.78 inches.

DOLL DID NOT CRY AFTER GETTING NEEDLE

The health department had one extra patient at the regular Saturday afternoon baby health clinics they hadn't expected.

Susan Jennings, 18-year-old showed up at the clinic to receive her inoculation. In her arms she carried a little rubber doll. Susan took her needle, coupled with a few tears, but, before she would leave the room she insisted that the doll receive the same punishment.

The attending nurse solemnly picked up dolling and with a serious face, applied the antiseptic to the doll's arm and then the needle.

Two School Boys Suffer Injury

Riding bicycles on their way to school, two local school boys suffered injury this morning in accidents which are said to have been to Belleville General Hospital today and were both seriously injured.

David Cox, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Cox, 75 Pine, was riding north on Charles when near Bridge Street he lost his thought to have slipped from the pedal and the bike swerved into a passing car driven by Lloyd Rowal, Pine Street. The lad suffered a cut under his chief and other head injuries and will stay in hospital a day or so for observation.

In Bayview, John Chapman, 17, of Bleiks Street, was riding his bicycle out of his parents' driveway when he failed to see a car protruding from a parked truck and struck his head on the metal. He suffered cuts about the body and after first aid treatment at the hospital was allowed to go home.

Crippled Children Are Guests Of Shrine at Toronto Circus

It is a lot of hard work. It takes plenty of time, effort and organization. But ask any Shriner about it and he'll tell you "it's worth it."

They leave their offices, factories, farms and other spots wherever they derive a living one day a year. They take time out for the day which means just as much to them as to their youthful charges.

Crippled Children's Day" in the life of a Shriner means a heart-warming experience and a thrill that can only be derived from bringing some semblance of phenomenal happiness to a little child.

That is how it was yesterday when the Belleville Shrine Club took upwards of 80 crippled kiddies of the city and surrounding districts on their annual jaunt to Toronto where the famous Morton Shrine Circus in Maple Leaf Gardens.

One didn't have to query the be-fezzed shriners, nor ask any questions of shining-eyed kiddies as to whether the day was a success.

Tired But Happy

The answer was on their faces. Tired with a happy weariness the cavalcade of three buses that left the Shrine Club on Highland Avenue shortly before ten o'clock yesterday arrived home last night a few minutes before midnight. Some of the little 'Joes and Janes' were asleep, watched over by Shriner guardians. But they smiled as they slept. They probably were dreaming of one of the most glorious days in their lives.

After all 3 solid hours of the act "Big Top" entertainment in the world with so many things to see, that children minds and eyes could not keep track of them, is a great event in the life of a child especially if he is less fortunate from a physical sense than his counterparts.

But there were other thrills besides. Wide-eyed youngsters gazed with something akin to awe at times as the flashing panorama of city and country sights passed them in swiftly moving colorful sequence.

Candy, Apples, Eats

And food-laden Shriners saw to it that little "tummies" were kept full, or nearly full. There were unlimited supplies of all kinds, loads of milk, candies, cookies, big rosy apples and soft drinks. Later came the inevitable "circus" treats with pink lemonade, popcorn, cracker-jack, gaily-garbed dolls and bebribboned canes with the crowning gift of a small paper "fez" and an engraved ribbon souvenir proudly worn and carried by the young guests.

The caravan was a sequence of thrills for the kids from the time they left the Shrine Club until their return. They thrilled at the sight of an official Ontario Provincial Police car driven by Constable Allan Cockburn, who with an associate kept a watchful eye on the cavalcade during the entire trip.

And a volley of "Ohs" and "Ahs" came from the childish throats when on the outskirts of Toronto they were met by a motor cycle escort of the Toronto Police Department and taken straight through to Maple Leaf Gardens without a stop. They thrilled as heavy city traffic paused to give them the right-of-way. They enjoyed the colorful glances of pedestrian traffic on city streets.

Then of course came the big moment. The circus in the gardens. They were given special seats and guardian Shriners saw to it that they wanted for nothing. They thrilled to the three-hour program extravaganza of clowns, trained seals, chimpanzees, lions, elephants and other wild animals arranged especially for the children's entertainment.

Then to the shrilling of police sirens they began the 100-mile trip home, escorted all the way by motorcycle officers of the Toronto Police Department as far as taken to the outskirts of the city where Constable Cockburn and his provincial police car took over the escort duty.

There were no serious casualties". Going along just in case it might be needed was Bush's Ambulance, thanks to the generosity of Noble Jack Bush and members of the St. John Ambulance Brigade. Shriners were posted in each bus keeping a watchful eye on their young proteges for the day.

Came From Picton

The two-bus Belleville and district cavalcade was organized at the Shrine Club here with Shriners bringing in their young charges from various points by automobile. From Picton came a busload of some thirty youngsters accompanied by officers of the Prince Edward County town and district. The Picton bus joined with the Belleville cavalcade at Trenton.

President D. S. Storey of the Shrine Club, Caravan chairman Noble Charles Hall, and the membership of the Shrine Club here, today, expressed their sincere appreciation to public-spirited citizens and residents of the district who co-operated to make the day the huge success it was.

Shriner appreciation goes out to the Ontario Provincial Police, the Toronto Police Department, Bush's Ambulance, the St. John Ambulance Brigade, the Rawson Bus Company, the McGinnis Coach Lines of Picton, the Chequer Taxicab Company fleet which aided so generously with its cars, and many others.

It was a red-letter day not only in the lives of the handicapped kiddies but to the members of the Shrine who derived as much pleasure from giving these children joy out of "their lives" as did their happy, grateful young charges.

Need for Higher Pension Payments Discussed by Belleville Presbytery

Morning and afternoon sessions were held by the Belleville Presbytery of the United Church of Canada in Bridge Street Church last Tuesday. So large was the number of the congregation, lay and clerical in attendance, that the women's association who provided a hot chicken dinner were required to set up overflow tables.

Rev. George Telford, D. D., president of the Bay of Quinte Conference, in his official visit gave an address based on the text, "Fair as the moon, bright as the sun and terrible as an army with banners." Applying this to the church, he rebuked the emphasis placed upon social functions as a draw to the church and urged rather a clear high level approach to evangelism based upon the "change-over" that Christian living makes.

Mrs. Walter F. Elliott of Stirling, a commissioner to the general meeting of the general council in Hamilton was appointed to report for the conference from the Belleville Presbytery.

Voices Complaint

Mrs. Elliott frankly confessed that she was the judgment of a number of the 38 women committees that they were not wanted in the council. She regarded this as most unfortunate since the 38 women were responsible for vast activities throughout all congregations and especially in women's associations and women's missionary societies. She appealed for a thoughtful selection of a commissioner for the council when it was evident that many were of little value.

Steps should be taken to inform the church not only about its misfortunes but also its maintenance work as well. Too many are unaware of the amount of what was done with the money that came out of the red pocket of an envelope.

Minimum Salary

Rev. J. I. MacKay kept the missions advised that the new uniform minimum salary for the general council was $2,700 per year with a free furnished house and a car allowance of $400. All congregations should strive to attain this level.

Many congregations have already exceeded this level, he said in the Presbytery are still not attaining it. He hoped that this will be rectified at the next ensuing annual meeting.

Other report presented to the general council by the secretary of the pensions fund disclosed that including the $350, increases effective in 1931 were; ministers $756; widows $474 and children $108. The basis of benefits remained unchanged from 1929 to 1931 adding $20 per year for each year of service in addition. The latter had paid his personal assessment to the fund. The $200 increase in 1931 changed the basis from $20 to $25 per year of service with personal assessments paid.

More Money Available

The pension fund committee advised that the capital of the pension fund in 1941 was $5,480,-411. In 1951 it was $12,831,833. The annual income had increased from $857,181 in 1941 to $1,694,-941. Notwithstanding these increases which included the increased annual payments by ministers, including from investments in salaries, the above payable benefits were still paid.

The Presbytery adopted the report of the committee which commended the efforts of the general secretary, Rev. R. E. Smith. Mr. Smith was thanked and urged the board of finance to authorize the carrying of possible date increases in harmony with the greatly improved position of the fund.

Following the sumptuous dinner the village band of 8 played film depicting the life of Frederick Stanley, a product of Christian missions in Africa, was shown. This highly rated film, by direction of the Presbyterial, will be shown to scores of congregations in the Bay of Quinte district.

The Presbytery approved an increase of 10 per cent in the missionary budget. This will be allocated through the Presbyterial Treasurer.

Introduces New Plan

Mr. Elmer Davis of Kingston, in introducing a new plan providing for congregational "Every Member" to cover the cost of sending the Christian Herald into each family at one dollar per year, said that since church union, this paper had been sent into a list of loss had not taken place. The Presbytery commended this plan to all congregations.

Mr. Douglas Ross of Sidney and Mr. Fred Saylor of Trenton were admitted as candidates for the ministry after a simple dignified service conducted by Dr. Puttenham.

Reports were presented, dealing with church properties and sessional committees. Mr. Dan Williams of Belleville made an appeal for support of Quin-Mo-Lac Camp and Rev. R. R. Bonsteel of Hawdon for Five Lake United Church school near Parla, Ontario.

The annual "Honorarium" of the secretary was increased to $200. Rev. George Pearson, pastor of Grace Church Trenton, presided as chairman of the Presbytery.

FIRE DESTROYS BARN

BRANTFORD (CP)—Damage of $25,000 was caused by a storm Wednesday night when Gordon Dickson's barn, on the farm north east of Port Dover, was destroyed by fire.

CARDS OF THANKS

Special gratitude goes to Rev. A. Pate, Doctors Emerson and Hart from Mr. Geo. Sugar and nurses. Mrs. Geo. Sugar and family. 01

Y. Locker Rooms Undergo Change

Gilbert E. Scott, chairman of the YMCA property committee, announced today that partial renovation of the locker rooms and showers had been started.

The existing floor surface in the locker rooms is being removed and will be replaced by the proper type of tile flooring. The walls and floors of the shower rooms are to be covered with white ceramic tile.

While there have always been two locker rooms in the past, in the structural sense, there has only been one in a functional sense. The property committee has now partitioned these areas so that there will in effect be two separate locker rooms.

"When the job is completed," said Mr. Scott, "we will be able to accommodate more members at a time. Furthermore it will be possible for our Physical Program Committee to increase the number of activities and the time available for each and ladies' program, without decreasing our program for boys and men."

Lightning Sets Off Dynamite Blast in Road

PICTON — An unexpected explosion of dynamite was a sidelight of Wednesday night's storm, Mrs. Elva Howard here today. Lightning was the cause. Scene of the explosion was at Maberley on highway 7, north of Kingston, and near Perth. There was no loss of life or property damage though the explosion rocked the area.

The McFarland Construction Co. of Picton had drilled 250 holes along the highway and filled them with dynamite, ready for detonating on Thursday. In some manner, the lighting set it off instead.

Tons of rock and earth were blasted over the highway, but traffic was held up just over an hour while four bulldozers went into action.

H. J. McFarland said today that in future such charges must not be wired until immediately before they are to be detonated.

Fortunately there was no traffic on the road at the time of the explosion.

Employment, Payrolls Reach New Peaks

OTTAWA (CP) — Employment and payrolls both reached new peaks in Canada at Aug. 1 this year in the index ratings of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

The bureau yesterday issued advance index figures showing the Aug. 1 employment index at 138.1, up 1.6 per cent from July 1 and 3.1 per cent above Aug. 1, 1951, and the payroll index at 431.5, up from 426.2 at July 1 and 9.5 per cent above the 394.0 figure at Aug. 1 last year.

The index figures are based on the year 1939 equalling the base figure of 100.

The bureau said the increase in the employment index was due in part to settlement of important labor disputes and from unusually marked expansion in road construction and maintenance work in Quebec.

The bureau found that weekly wages and salaries in Canada averaged $53.87 at Aug. 1 compared with $54.96 at July 1 and $50.16 at Aug. 1 last year.

PRODUCING MORE BEEF

MALTON, England. (Reuters) —Britain is producing more beef than before the war, Agriculture Minister Sir Thomas Dugdale said yesterday. But he warned there might be a slump in the offing. The minister said there was a decline during 1950 and 1951 in the raising of suitable beef cattle on British farms. This will probably results in less beef production in the next year or two.

U.S. Auto Industry to Urge Congress to Act on Seaway

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Blair Moody (Dem.-Mich.) said today leaders in the automotive industry have agreed to join forces in seeking congressional approval for the St. Lawrence seaway.

He said such industry leaders as Ford, General Motors and Chrysler have pledged upward of $100,000 to the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Association to aid in the fight for congressional authorization "of this great project."

Moody, talking to reporters, said he had no doubt Canada would "gladly welcome" American participation in the international development.

The Senate this year refused to approve legislation that would have authorized American participation in the estimated $818,000,000 project.

Canada, since that time, has announced plans to proceed with the waterway development on its own side of the St. Lawrence River.

Moody, expressing confidence that the project can be approved by Congress, said:

"If another year goes by without affirmative action by the American Congress then Canada will have gone its way alone and American shipping and American business will be paying shipping-toll tribute to our neighbors to the north who had the foresight and fortitude to build the seaway alone."

Hopes Shattered For Big Profit On Frozen Meats

OTTAWA (CP)—A drop in U.S. meat prices has shattered hopes of any immediate profit on a big stockpile of frozen New Zealand beef acquired by Canada for sale in the U. S., officials said yesterday.

Canada has decided to stop further sales and keep the beef in American lockers hopeful of a change in U.S. prices.

Officials were commenting on a Wellington dispatch in which J.J. Evans, general manager of the N.Z. Meat Producers' Board, said that production costs and the current New York market indicate that New Zealand will break even on the deal.

Under an arrangement among Canada, New Zealand and the United Kingdom, Canada was to ship some 65,000,000 pounds of surplus fresh beef to the U.K. in return for an equal amount of New Zealand frozen beef which was to be sold in the U.S.

The lower the U. S. price for the New Zealand beef, the higher Canada's over-all loss will be. Experts have estimated the over-all loss may reach $15,000,000.

Scientists Work On Two Major Engine Problems

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian scientists are working to 'solve one of the major engineering problems of the jet age—the excessive formation of carbon which some fuels cause in jet engines.

National Research Council spokesmen said yesterday its mechanical engineers have developed a new type small-scale burner to test the carbon-forming properties of certain fuels.

Carbonization does to a jet engine what it does to an automobile engine—chokes it up in time so that it has to be cleaned of carbon blockage.

The scientists also seek to improve existing methods of storing aviation fuels and to find ways to reduce the noise created when jet engines are being given high-speed tests in laboratories.

Weddings

ADAMSON—PECHETTE

A lovely early autumn wedding was solemnized on Wednesday, September 24th, at 9:00 a.m. in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, by the Rev. J. J. Buckley, when Carol Ann Pechette, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Prechette, became the bride of William Joseph Adamson, of Dartmouth, Nova Scotia, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Adamson, of Falconbridge, Ontario. White chrysanthemums and ferns decorated the altar for the occasion.

The wedding music was provided by Miss Mary Fluney, church organist, who accompanied the soloist, Mrs. H. Gaffney, who sang "Ave Maria" and during the ceremony, "O This Day, O Beautiful Morning" and as the register was being signed "At Thy Feet Is Kneeling".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her bridal gown of white nylon net and Chantilly lace and satin, fashioned with fitted strapless bodice having a lace jacket with Peter Pan collar and long, close-fitting sleeves ending in lily points over the wrists. The ballerina length skirt fell in graceful folds. She wore a coronet of matching Chantilly lace and fingertip veil of tulle illusion, and carried a white prayer book created with red rosette roses, white stephanotis and white satin streamers. A tripp strand of pearls completed her ensemble.

Miss Mary High, of Belleville, attended the bride as maid of honour. She wore a pink net model with satin, fashioned on lines similar to that of the bride, having a lace jacket with short, puff sleeves. Miss Ruby Bulman was bridesmaid wearing a lavender gown similar to that of the maid of honour. Both were matching lace coronets and carried nosegays of Bettertime roses, pom mums, blending heart and gladioli floriettes.

Mr. Edward Adamson, of Falconbridge, Ontario, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, while Messrs. Charles (Duke) Doran, of Belleville, cousin of the bridegroom, and Floyd Scott, of Picton, Ontario, uncle of the bride, were ushers.

The wedding breakfast was held at Golden Acre Inn, Kingston Rd., for the immediate family, followed by a reception at the bride's home, which was tastefully decorated with asters, gladioli and dahlias, where the bride's mother, gowned in Parma violet crepe of street-length, with grey accessories, and corsage of white pom mums, received the guests, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a navy blue and white lace gown with navy accessories and corsage of white pom mums, also in the receiving line was the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Scott, of Picton.

The bride's table was lovely with its white damask cloth, centred by the bridegroom's model cake topped with tiny pink rosebuds and rosette and white pom mums. A fluff of pale pink tulle surrounded the base, flanked by tall, ivory tapers in crystal holders.

For travelling to Sudbury and other northern points, the bride donned a brown and white check suit with brown accessories and corsage of red rosette roses. Mr. and Mrs. Adamson will reside in Halifax, Nova Scotia.

Prior to her marriage the bride was the honored guest at a miscellaneous shower given by the Toll Staff of the Bell Telephone Company, of this city.

Nonsinkable Swim Suit Undergoes Tests in Battle Against Polio

LONDON (CP)—An unsinkable swim suit is the latest device undergoing experimental tests in the battle against poliomyelitis.

Sponsored by the British Infantile Paralysis Fellowship, public demonstrations have been given in London, with polio sufferers undergoing the tests in the water.

Dennis Kellett, 32, disabled in both legs by the disease, was the first patient to participate in the public demonstration. Although non-swimmer and weighing 200 pounds, he was kept afloat while he went through a series of exercises. Buoyancy was provided by a kapok lining, weighing about two ounces, stitched to the suit.

Officials of the Fellowship believe the suit will help those disabled by infantile paralysis and other diseases to benefit from water treatment.

Readers' Friday Column

By Mary Moore

DECISION:

Will you kindly tell a newlywed just how to prepare meat of all kinds for cooking. Some folks say just wipe the meat before you cook it; others say first scald it in boiling hot water, to close the pores, so then in cold water, before it is baked or fried or boiled. I am at a loss which is right and oh looking forward to your answer.—Newlywed Girl.

ANSWER:

It is only on rare occasions that you would meat before preparing it. If I told you how to prepare meat for all kinds I would have to write a book or two—so we'll start modestly. How would it be if I told you how to roast beef, make a beef stew, and broil pork chops today? These are common meats that are popular and not too costly. Next week I'll go on to other roasted meats and stews and meats to be broiled—so watch for a second installment.

ROAST BEEF

Standing Rib Roast—Place fat side up on rack in open pan in pre-heated oven at 325 deg. Fahr. Do not add water and do not cover or baste. Allow 25 minutes per pound of meat for meat done "rare"; 30 minutes per lb. for "medium done"; 35 minutes per lb. for "well done". Please remember it cooks a little after it is taken from oven because of retained internal heat so do not overdo it. We do ours rare so that it is moist when it is sliced cold on the following day.

Meat should be wiped with damp cloth only, then sprinkled liberally on all surfaces with salt, sparsely with pepper and liberally with paprika.

BEEF STEW

One and one-half lbs. flank or stewing beef, 1 small onion, 1-3 cup turnip cut in cubes, 2-3 cup or 1 cup cubed carrots, 3 or 4 potatoes, cut in 1-2-inch slices, 1 1-3 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1-3 cup flour, 1 quart water. Wipe the meat with damp cloth, cut into 1-inch pieces including the fat. Add the salt and pepper to the flour and roll the meat in it. Sear in 2 tablespoons bacon fat or butter or shortening until golden brown on all sides. Add onion during last half of searing time. If any seasoned flour is left, stir it in now, then add the water which may be quite warm. Simmer—do not boil—for 2 2-4 hours. Add turnip, carrot and potatoes (add some peeled, quartered tomatoes if desired) and simmer 1-2 hour longer or until vegetables are tender. You may further thicken the liquid with flour paste when this is ready to be served if desired. If you would like my recipe for dumplings write again—and please give me your name and address. I will not print your name if you do not want me to.

BROILED PORK CHOPS

Have the butcher cut the chops 1 inch thick—they usually cut them thinner than this—that is why they dry out. Wipe chops with cold damp cloth, and gash fat edges to prevent curling. Place on greased broiler rack. Have broiler burner very hot. Insert rack 2 inches from flame or element. Broil at high heat until one side is seared and flecked with brown, then turn over and do second side the same. Reduce heat a little or, if electric, lower rack down one slide in oven. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and broil 15 minutes in all, turning about 3 times in all. For variety, after last turning, place thin slice of orange or apple in each chop and let it broil about 4 or 5 minutes. Delicious.

QUESTION:

I am writing for two purposes —one to say how much I enjoy your pleasant chatty column—you are quite wonderful—your bairns are lucky and tell them I said so . . . in our native land of Scotland at Christmas, Easter and weddings, christenings we had what was called "Currant Loaf"—a real spicy bread with all kinds of fruit, chopped peels, spices, it was rich, moist, and when sliced and buttered nothing was nicer with a good cup of tea. (Do you have the recipe?) I am a real knockout at breadbaking but my pies leave much to be desired—my pastry would be good for corner stones to mansions my man says. Wishing you and your family the best.—Long may you-LUH Reek'.—W. F.

ANSWER:

I know that is a tribute—but after dozens of enquiries don't know exactly what it means. Someone please enlighten me so I won't be so ignorant. See tomorrow for my stab at the Currant Loaf. Will someone send in their version of the Currant Loaf in case my guess is wrong? Please.

Apple Pie With A Difference

When planning desserts in the home, you don't have wrong if you take the hint of the familiar restaurant order, "I'll have apple pie please." Here are some suggestions from the home economists of the consumer Section of the Department of Agriculture in Ottawa for making that "apple pie with a difference."

Instead of serving cheese with pie at the table, why not include it right in the crust? Line the pie-plate with pastry, then fill with apples, sugar, cinnamon or nutmeg as for an apple pie. Roll a half cup of grated cheese into the pastry for the upper crust and cover the apples with this cheese crust. Bake in a hot oven of 425°F. for 15 minutes, then reduce the heat to 350°F., and bake for 30 to 35 minutes or until apples are tender. Instead of making a cheese crust, the pie could be baked without an upper crust for a change and grated cheese sprinkled over the top of the cooked pie. This pie should be returned to the oven just long enough to melt the cheese.

Deep Dish Pie

A deep dish apple pie is always a winner. To make it, slice and arrange six or eight medium apples in a greased casserole. Dot with butter and add a cup of maple syrup. Cover with pastry which has been pricked to allow steam to escape and bake in a hot oven of 400°F. for 25 minutes or until the apples are tender.

If you have a pie shell already baked, try a Fairy Apple Pie. To make it, fold two stiffly beaten egg whites into sweetened apple sauce made from about six medium apples. Pour into the baked pie shell and bake at 350°F. for 15 minutes.

DAMSON PLUM JAM

Damson pluma, purplish-black in color and tart in flavor, are excellent for making jams and jellies. Here is a recipe for jam made with Damson plums.

Wash 4 cups of pluma. Place in an uncovered preserving kettle and add 3 cups of water. Bring to the boil and precook for about 15 minutes. Add 7 cups sugar, again bring to the boil and boil, uncovered, to the jam stage, 5 to 8 minutes. Damson plum jam thickens considerably after cooking so care should be taken not to cook the jam to too thick a consistency. During cooking, remove as many pits as possible as they rise to the surface. Pour jam into hot sterilized jars and seal. Yield: 7¼ cups.

GRAPE DESSERTS

Mouth-watering desserts can be prepared with grapes. Grapes are an excellent buy and are in plentiful supply, so be sure to make the most of them while they are in season. Here is a simple recipe from the home economists of the Consumer Section, Department of Agriculture in Ottawa for a grape mixture that can be used to make either a pie, whip or roly-poly.

GRAPE MIXTURE

5 cups (1 quart) grapes (preferably blue)
½ cup sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
Dash of salt

Wash grapes and separate skin and pulp. Heat pulp to boiling point and boil gently 3 minutes, rub through a sieve to remove seeds. Combine pulp and skins and cook together 5 minutes longer. Mix sugar, cornstarch and salt and blend smooth with some of the grape mixture. Stir into the rest of the grape mixture and cook until thick, stirring frequently.

If a family is very fond of grapes, triple the quantity of grapes, cook and store for several days in the refrigerator. When making a dessert, take a third of the grapes and add the ½ cup sugar, 2 tablespoons cornstarch and dash of salt as above.

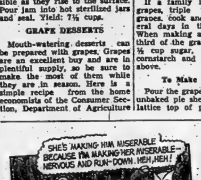
To Make Grape Pie

Pour the grape mixture into an unbaked pie shell. Cover with a lattice top of pastry and bake in a hot oven, 425°F., until pastry is golden brown. Serve cold.

To Make Grape Whip

Chill the grape mixture and add two egg whites. Beat until mixture holds a peak. Pile lightly in individual sherbets and serve with custard sauce, using the egg yolks. Serves 6 to 8.

To Make Grape Roly-Poly



Prepare a slightly sweetened baking powder biscuit dough using 2 cups flour. Roll out one inch thick. Spread with the grape mixture and roll up like a jelly roll. Cut into one-inch slices and bake on a greased baking sheet at 400°F. for about 15 minutes, or leave whole and bake for 30 minutes. Serves six.

ONE COLLEGE SHOP has its salesgirls wearing a dress that nearly every customer craves. It is of black and white woven-cotton with a contrast-striped plastron outlined with black corduroy, used also for the tiny collar and cuffs, and like the cotton, washable, of course. Skirt is full, with unpressed pleats and demurely slim bodice.

A NEW PHASE this fall is the day dress of bright tweed. Flamered tweed is used for a youthful, princess dress with high neckline. Folds simulate a square yoke and then continue to the back to work down into flat back panels.

ARRIVING with its own jacket or stole is the fall dress. With an all-day, step-in dress of red or black woollen, there's a clever cape-stole-jacket of American broadtail with its reverse side done in the dress fabric.

Sunday School Lesson:

When God Was Tempted

By ROY L. SMITH

This week's Sunday School lesson is one of the most interesting, and at the same time one of the most difficult, in connection with all the life of Jesus. It must be remembered that our account of it is He reported the circumstances just as they came from Jesus' lips, to His disciples, for He was alone in the wilderness when the temptation occurred. There was no one else to tell the story. And, as we shall see presently, Jesus used the figurative method — somewhat akin to His popular parables—in setting forth the issues. When we approach the matter from that angle we discover that the temptations are those which have been common to thinking men in all generations. "Temptation of Secularism

The temptation to make the stones into bread is the temptation of secularism—the temptation to make life out of things. It is a common matter today to read advertisements, presented with all the skill of the advertiser's art, advising us to purchase this or that gadget and "be happy." One Bedroom manufacturer, for example, advertised that if his product were laid on the floors the occupants of the house would be sure of a happy home. The cosmetics manufacturers advise us to buy their products in order to "appear to the best advantage," and some television manufacturers urge us to buy their sets in order to be sure of our social standing. Nothing in modern life is more sinister or more insidious than this temptation.

Temptation of Miraculous

The second in the series of temptations in which Jesus was urged to take advantage of miraculous powers—is a very common one. It proceeds upon the assumption that there are shortcuts in life which will provide us with the benefits and privileges of a superior existence. This is the temptation of the preacher who believes in luck of the politician who believes in getting something for nothing, and of the religionist who assumes that character can be developed without effort and that it can be stimulated without the payment of a terrible cost.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for October 5: "Jesus Dedicates His Life," Matthew 3—4.

The whole history of mankind is a record of the slow and painful climb of the race from the lower to the upper levels. This is the process by which we have conquered disease, as it is also the process by which we have established justice and righted wrongs. It will be, also, the process by which the reign of God will be set up among the sons of men.

Temptation of Success

Reduced to its simplest terms the third temptation is the doctrine that success sanctifies the method, if men can make money by evil means, then their success in money making is all the atonement that is necessary for the evil involved. This was the doctrine which fooled the German people who followed Hitler so blindly. Because the Fuehrer was successful in retaking Austria, Poland and Czechoslovakia, he was able to persuade the nation that he was the holy deliverer of the Fatherland. This is the disastrous doctrine which blinds us to the tragedy of gluts, of child labor, and of exploitation. It is also the fatal doctrine which glosses over the sins of the labor leader who outrages justice in behalf of the working man.

He Still Pleads

It is of the utmost importance in this election year, that the average citizen shall recognize these three temptations in their modern disguises. They are as fatal today as they were the day Jesus contended against them during those weeking immediately following His baptism.

RAWDON

Rawdon—The warm summer days of September have coaxed the raspberries into another season of bulging. Last Wednesday Mrs. Percy MacMullen picked tame blue berries in her garden. There were several branches with blooms on the tip ends, then gradually going down to small green, berries, large green berries, a number of berries that had turned red and a few ripe ones. All of these red ones were ripe enough to pick on Friday. However, the heavy frost that followed ended the raspberry crop.

Mount Pleasant United Church on the Rawdon circuit, will hold their 81st anniversary on their regular date, Sunday, November 2nd. The guest minister for both services will be Rev. R. W. T. Middleton, Bayside.

Mrs. Roy Thrasher was hostess last Wednesday for a W.M.S. quilting when two supply quilts were completed. Seven ladies were in attendance and enjoyed the noon luncheon. Mrs. Gordon Linn supply secretary, plans to have another quilting at a later date and she will be in charge of packing the supply bale.

Mr. and Mrs. Sid Williams were recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Tomlinson of Napanee.

The heavy frost on Friday evening damaged vines, flowers, tomatoes, cucumbers and other garden plants. It frms a heavy coating of ice which was in evidence Saturday morning. The lush growth and heavy blooms of autumn flowers made gardens look quite early September and it seemed too bad that the frost came along. However, in Canada's climate people are used to extremes. Monday was a hot summer's day.

W.M.S. Executive Meeting

Mrs. John Holmes and Mrs. Burton Sharpe attended an executive meeting in Belleville and plans were completed for the sectional rally of the W.M.S. which will be held at Mount Pleasant United Church on Wednesday, October 29th. There will be two sessions morning and afternoon, with Miss Dorothy Young, Home organization secretary of Dominion Board, as guest speaker.

The Mount Pleasant ladies are serving the dinner with proceeds to go towards their allocation of $100 for the United Church Training School Fund.

Mr. Lindsay Tanner, Rawdon assessor, is busy delivering the new revised assessment sheets for 1953. In several cases the raise is in the extreme. This will provide the 1954 township council a larger amount of tax money to spend. The many new items created recently, especially the school area and pupil transportation, is costing the tax payer an enormous amount of money. Many folks who own homes in Rawdon, are paying heavy taxes for the privilege of living there. No wonder a lot of people prefer to rent as it costs much less with no repair bills.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Bailey, Stirling, visited Mr. and Mrs. George Weaver on Sunday.

She gave her assistance at Quin-Mo-Lac camp, Moira when it was built, and the new church project at Lake St. Peter in north Hastings.

AHL Schedule Hinges On NHL Action

American Hockey League governors yesterday gave tentative approval to a 68-game schedule for the 1952-53 season.

But they made it known that the schedule hinged on whether the league's no-recall rule or a compromise rejected by the National Hockey League Wednesday would force any A.H.L. teams from the league.

The governors decided to recess the meeting to give teams dependent on national league support a chance to consider whether they could ide teams this season without dig backing of senior league clubs.

Affects Three Teams

Notably the teams affected—and possibly forced from the league by the no-recall rule—are Pittsburgh, Hershey and Indianapolis. All have tieups with N.H.L. clubs.

The business manager of Pittsburgh Hornets hollrated last night however, that Pittsburgh plans to stay in the league.

Jim Balmer told a newspaper man the Hornets intended to honor their recall contract with Toronto of the N.H.L., and allow players to return to the Maple Leafs, even if it meant the Hornets would be fined for violation of the A.H.L. no-recall rule.

Two weeks ago, the A.H.L. decided not to permit any recall of players belonging to N.H.L. clubs during the season except in the event an N.H.L. club was weakened by illness or injury.

The N.H.L. governors rejected this proposed arrangement and the A.H.L. then stood pat on its original decision not to permit recall under any circumstances.

With the no-recall rule in effect, the N.H.L. clubs probably would refuse to send players to A.H.L. affiliates, leaving clubs dependent on N.H.L. support unable to make up full teams.

Red Wings Trim Kansas City 10-5 Trail Series 3-2

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Four innings of no-hit, no-run relief pitching by righthander Jack Crimian last night carried Rochester Red Wings to a 10-5 victory over Kansas City Blues in the fifth game of their Little World Series. Kansas City leads 3-2 in the best-of-seven affair.

The American Association champions committed five errors, but managed to score five times on a home three-hit total, thanks to three mifcues and home run shots by Bill Skowron and starting pitcher Jim Russell.

Kansas City reliefer Rex Jones and his mates fell apart in the fifth, as Rochester scored three unearned runs and went on to take the decision.

Walkerton spotted Avon one run in the second inning when Bob Reith pulled a round-tripper. Pitcher George Zuk tied it up for the Dodgers with a homer in the fourth.

Walkerton wrapped it up in the eighth as singles by Harold Denlinger and Jack Knox and Len Dentinger's homer put the Dodgers in front 4-1.

Frank Mario, veteran centre of the Bears and captain in the last two campaigns, has been sent to Quebec with the right of recall, it was announced.

DETROIT (AP) — Six horses spilled yesterday in one of the worst racing accidents in Hazel Park's history and four jockeys went to hospital.

Fred Redmon and Henry Manfold suffered broken collarbones. Also in hospital with injuries were Evans Anyon and Bobby Lillibridge.

The mass spill occurred in the first race when Gambling Lady crossed her legs going into the far turn and fell against Red Wood. The other horses spilled over them.

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—The University of North Carolina, its football fullback stricken with polio and three other students shed with the disease, cancelled its next two games yesterday. Wiped off the schedule were Saturday's game with Georgia and next week's game against North Carolina State. Fullback Harold Davidson was found Wednesday night to have infantile paralysis.

HAWKS TONIGHT

Coach Sid Abel former Detroit Red Wing star, who has taken over the helm at the National Hockey League Chicago Black Hawks, and will likely see plenty of playing seasons this season, led his rejuvenated squad into town this afternoon after a gruelling exhibition series with the Detroit Red Wings and other squads.

Abel and the Hawks arrived shortly after two o'clock in preparation for their intra-club game in Memorial Arena tonight, appearing not too battered after their pre-season jilts with the Wings.

Abel, of course, hasn't been idle during the strenuous exhibition series, and appears to have at least two front lines ready for National League competition. They will be seen in action tonight on opposing sides. The first line Cal Gardner, one of the "Toronto fugitives," splitting defence Gus and Bill Mosienko while the other sees Gus Bodnar at centre and rookie Pete Conacher and Fred Glover, another promising youngster on the Hawks. The first-mentioned line will see action with the Whites while the "Second will take the Lee wearing a "Blacks" uniform.

Another line that will see action with the "Whites" is that of Sid Finney at centre and Bep Guidolin and Ray Hannigan wings. Facing them for the "Blacks" will be Jimmy McFadden at centre between Doc Couliens and Pete Babando.

Captain Bill Gadsby will team up with Lee Fogolin on the Blacks defence with Al Dewsbury standing by. On the opposing rear guard will be Gus Mortelson, Ed Kryzanowski with Rocky Kaplan in a relief role. Fred Hucul will also see action with the Whites as a defencemen. Jim Hucul will see as a relief sixthwinger for the Blacks.

Of course there will be the well-known Al Rollins (nee Maple Leafs) who will guard the nets for the Whites. Opposing will be Lee Brinkley, starry goalie of the Calgary Black Hawks who has replaced Moe Roberts. Hector Lebrun, starry centre of the junior "B" Hawks here last season did not make it appears, is a dead "cert" to make the "Red" Hamill's Cali junior "A" Hawks this season, will play for the Whites as will Bob Wilson, hard-hitting defenceman, also a former junior Hawk.

Art White, a Galt junior "A" defenceman and John Hanson of the same club will see action with the Blacks. The Chicago[illegible] of "Galters" will arrive in the city early in the week-end to scout their eastern scout of the Chicago club, Bob Wilson and possibly Coach "Red" Hamill.

The Hawks new owner trio of Bill Tobin, Arthur Wirtz and Jim Norris has left no stone unturned to give Chicago fans something to cheer about this season. At least eight new Hawks will line for Chicago and in an effort to give the squad the opportunity to look "down" in the standing for a change.

A squad of forty newcomers, veterans and hopefuls, that reported to the Pembroke, Ont., training camp this year, has been cut to 23, so Belleville fans will see the best of the Hawks in action tonight. Five more will be cut loose before the National Hockey League season opens.

The Hawks, who made a lot of friends here last season when they played in Memorial Arena are assured of a warm welcome, and no doubt a large crowd will be on hand tonight to watch the new edition parade in hockey wares.

SOFTBALL SATURDAY

Along the softball front the Glen Roy Juniors clash with the Windsor Local title squad tomorrow afternoon in what should be a doubleheader to settle the Southern Ontario OASA junior "A" championship. The teams battled in Windsor last Saturday and the Glens had a tough time to get a 7-5 score. However, if they play the calibre of ball of which they are capable they should win both ends of tomorrow afternoon's twin clash and earn the right to meet the Northern Ontario champions for the all-provincial title.

They will have practically everything in their favor. They're playing on their home grounds while the Windsor youngsters will step off a bus after a tiring 357 mile bus-hike and that air conditioner for the Glens is a decided plus-factor. However, to use the old sports cliche, "The game's not over 'till the last man is out" so the Glens had better not take too much for granted. While we're going out on a limb to say the Glens, anything can happen and they'll have to be on their toes to take a couple from this smart little hockey city aggregation. The first game is scheduled to start at 2 p. m.

A GOOD OUTFIT!

The Men's Commercial "B" bowling league, one of the up-and-coming kegler organizations, has plenty of incentive this year. The loop has three trophies sto shoot for, the Labatt Trophy, emblematic of the league championship, and the Bob Bisland and Norm. Gaiseon Trophies. The top team wins the Labatt Trophy while the next five will vie for the Bisland Cup. The remaining six teams in the twelve-squad loop will play for the Gaiseon Trophy. Miniature trophies will be given to members of the winning teams.

The league which is one of the baby bowling organizations of the city, has grown more or less sensationally within the past two years, and is one of the most enthusiastic loops of its kind here.

Send Players To Coast Loop

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens yesterday assigned forward Eddie Mazur and defenceman Stan Long to Lester Patrick's Victoria Cougars of the Western Canada Hockey League.

Both players, property of Canadiens, will be subject to 24-hour recall. They have been working out with Canadiens during the training sessions.

Defenceman Ross Lowe has been turned over to Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League. Under the A.H.L.'s present no-recall rule, he will have to stay there the full season. Lowe requested the Buffalo move, instead of a more distant assignment, to be near his ailing mother in Oshawa.

Vic Raschi Hurls 3-Hitter As Billy Martin Paces Mates With 3-Run Homer in Sixth

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—Anyway, it was a beautiful dream the Dodgers had while it lasted, and the feeling remains strong that they would give the Yankees a fit if Joe Black could pitch every day.

As it is, Manager Chuck Dressen's shocked athletes probably will do well to carry the Series to six games. You do not recover easily from such a belaboring as Mickey Mantle, Billy Martin, Vic Raschi and their mates dealt out in the second game.

The score—7-1—was one-sided enough, but it was more the manner in which the American Leaguers went about the execution, cold and merciless as ever when the big money is on the line. Raschi was humiliating in his mastery through the final six innings.

Overmatched

Down in their hearts, when it was over, the Dodgers must have realized that they were overmatched, that they had not such breath-taking young star on their side as Martin, that they were certain in the end to be betrayed by the inconsistency of their pitching.

The picture could change again today, of course. Preacher Roe, the Arkansas this man, still is capable on occasion of pitching a terrific ball game, and the deep expanses of Yankee Stadium have been an oldtimer who leans heavily upon his outfielders.

But he will need some serious help at the plate, and the Brooklyn batters generally to be much mellowed the last time we saw them. Easy Ed Lopat, the greatest of the slipsy-doodlers, will do nothing calculated to bring them to.

Mostly last night, the talk was about Mantle, it was agreed that Mantle, the young second baseman, acquitted himself well with the three-run homer which broke the game wide open in the Yankees' five-run sixth, but the feeling seemed to be that Martin was the one who broke the Dodgers' backs.

Mantle Stands Out

The word which exactly describes the quality which Mantle exudes like not been coined. The closest one probably is "class," though that leaves something to be desired. It is the same thing Joe DiMaggio, the immortal's predecessor, possessed, and a few others.

Going into the third game, Mantle had hit five for nine. Two of his blows practically knocked off Yankee rallies. One of them, the run which opened the five-run sixth, was a swinging bunt that he beat out on from the time it left his bat.

The lift Mantle would hit .400 if he wished to employ the strategy regularly. He is so fast that there's always a chance of throwing him out. Afield, he now is getting just about as good a start on the ball as DiMaggio ever did, and he is going fully as far as the Clipper did.

Martin is another prime example of how the Yankees always come up with the player they need. DiMaggio left center field, and was Mantle, Gerry Coleman was recalled to fly a fighter plane, and Martin was sitting on the bench, ready to go.

It was Martin who drove Gil McDougald across with what proved to be the winning run in the fifth inning and it was his line-drive home run off Bill Loes, the second Dodger pitcher, which put the game beyond recall in the sixth. His fielding, too, was crisp and incisive.

Erskine in Trouble

It was obvious early in the going that the Dodgers hardly had a Joe Black pitching for them. Carl Erskine was in difficulties continually and though he extricated himself for several innings, it was plain that Old Man Trouble would get him in time. The Yanks got their leadoff batter on base in each of the first six innings.

When the roof finally caved in on the Dodgers in the sixth, their defence went bad, too, under the pressure. Third baseman Billy Cox, Hodges, dropped an easy toss. Erskine Robinson failed to throw to the plate when he could have nailed Mantle for 10 feet. The Yankees seem to do that to the Dodger team and you can't explain it.

Raschi's pitching was superb. He now is one of the three active pitchers who has won four World Series games, the other two being Allie Reynolds, his Yankee teammate, and Lefty Grove, the spoonerized Harry Brecheen, the great St. Louis Cardinal.

Raschi struck out Andy Pafko to close the third inning and from there on, as they say, the Dodgers "never seen which way he went."

Irvin, Smythe 'Rhubarb' Over Ted Kennedy

TORONTO (CP)—A small rhubarb has developed over the National Hockey League All-Star game at Detroit next Sunday with the principal roles going to Toronto Maple Leafs' Conn Smythe and Montreal Canadiens' Dick Irvin. In the middle is Leaf centre Ted Kennedy.

Max Bentley, Leaf centre chosen for the second All-Star team, pulled a groin muscle while skating at his home town of Delisle, Sask. Irvin, coach of the second All-Star team, picked Kennedy as first in the spot and that's how Smythe got into the act.

"They can't keep the captain of our club waiting around to substitute at the last minute," Smythe said last night. "They asked if Kennedy would be available, now that Maxie is out, and I told them Kennedy was unavailable."

The hassle started when Irvin said: "I choose the alternate for the second All-Star team, put the finger on Bentley and chose Billy Reay of Canadiens Kennedy. It will be the first All-Star game Kennedy has missed since the annual affair started in 1947.

District Softball League Banquet Featured by Presentations, Awards

The Belleville District Softball League wound up its season last night in a blaze of banquet glory.

The "boys" got together in the Moose Hall, Victoria Avenue, received prizes, saw trophies presented to champions, winced under heavy pats on the back and listened to George H. 'Soup' Campbell, Ontario OASA past president as he told the virtues of softball and tell them what a good job they were doing.

It was a good party. The speech was short and to the point. The presentations were one of the highlights of the affair and worthy champions received their just dues.

Harry Rosen, member of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association and convener for this district, was master of ceremonies and carried the affair along in a breezy style.

President Don Lee welcomed the boys and special guests who included Warden Dick Allan of Kingston Penitentiary and Stan Scrutton, manager of the Kingston "Frontenac" Guards team. Warden Allan paid fine tribute to the Belleville association president for his efforts in organizing and carrying through to a successful conclusion a baseball tournament which was held in the penitentiary during the past season.

The Bill Oil Trophy emblematic of the "A" section championship was reclaimed by "open" skein the L. N.R. Diesels and the Glen Roy Juniors have to complete the championship series.

The Pelzer Trophy, awarded annually to the batting champion of the "A" section, was presented to Barney McColl of the Wooler team by Jack McNab, while the Conger-Lehigh Trophy seasonal award to the batting champion of the "AA" section was presented in absentia to Ken Vickery.

A special feature of the awards was that given by Fire Chief Gerald Vance to George Fordyce, a member of the Fire Department for his splendid efforts in minor softball circles during the season. The chief presented Fordyce with a handsome lighter, truly a well-deserved gift.

The rest of the evening was devoted to brief addresses by President Lee, Alderman Claude Tice, radio and press representatives, Warden Allan and others, and social amenities.

Grid Playoffs May Depend On What Happens Over Week-End

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

When the grandstand quarterbacks gather to talk football in the corner drug store, they usually settle the discussion with a big "if." In the west, it is "when."

While to any way of saying that this is the week of reckoning when the question of playoffs in the Big Four and Western Interprovincial Football Unions will be settled, the conservers have got a pattern and it is just a matter of time.

In the Big Four, things are a bit different. It seems that everything depends on the outcome of the big one: cowboy vs. Argonauts.

For instance if Toronto Argonauts win past Ottawa Rough Riders in Ottawa this week-end it will just about clinch a playoff spot for the Boatmen in the Queen City. If the fast Grey Cup champions defeat Toronto Bic, the first time in two seasons the situation would be a little more complicated.

Ale May Be Out

And if runner-up Hamilton Tiger Cats fund the luckless Montreal Alouettes their sixth straight loss at the stadium they can just about count coach Doug Walker's boys out of it when the two-team post-season race starts.

There's another "if." If the Alouettes should beat Ottawa they are overdue and smack the Tiger-Cats on Labor Day and yellow pants and Riders hand Argonauts their first loss of the season the standings will be all to the good.

Consider the situation in the west.

The Edmonton Flying Fleet Boomers have clinched a place in the playoffs and now they're looking for a second-place end-of-the-season No. 1 spot that will allow them to sit back and watch the second- and third-place clubs clobber each other in the semi-finals. That's the Boomers' cool table lover for the bill.

They hold a four-point lead over Edmonton Eskimos and the way they are going they should make it or lengthen it before the schedule winds up Oct. 18. At the other end of the standing are Saskatchewan Roughriders, the 1951 Grey Cup finalists who have won nine of their 11 games to date.

The Roughriders, six points behind third-place Calgary Stampeders, have only a game and a player or two they should be pinpointing five games.

Heavy Schedule

Its another doubleheader week-end for the Stampeders as they go to Calgary and Edmonton tomorrow and Monday. Blue Bombers meet the Stampeders and Eskimos in that order and Regina plays first at Edmonton and then at Calgary.

Stampeder fans are given hope with reports that Calgary Bright Negro quarter who has been a ball of fire most of the season, was running fast and hit drill Wednesday. The former Drake University star's counted by coach Jim Lear to give the Stamps a lift, was operated on for appendicitis only 14 days ago.

"It isn't known if he'll be ready this week-end but the word is out he is believed to be ready if Lear asks too, worried.

The senior intercollegiate Union officially opens tomorrow with the defending champion Toronto Rhoes playing at home against McGill Redmen, Western's Mustangs meet Queen's Golden Gaels at Kingston.

In the O.R.F.U. it is the league-leading Parrots Imperials, minus nine regulars with injuries, at Windsor Americans and at Stratford Beddelas playing Balmy Beach at Toronto Sunday.

Timbermen Win Lacrosse Title, Trim Yorks 12-8

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Peterborough Timbermen last night won the Eastern Canada Senior Lacrosse Title, defeating Toronto West 12-8 to take the best-of-seven series 4 to 3.

Peterborough now advances into the Mann Cup finals against Vancouver Combines, western champions. The best-of-seven title series starts Sunday in Toronto.

West, York led until the final period when they were outscored 5-0. Peterborough then roared from behind after a 7-7 deadlock by the Toronto team. When Jim McIlroy went off the scoring the Timbermen counted twice.

The score was tied 2-2 at the end of the first quarter. Toronto led 4-3 at the half and 8-5 going into the final period.

The top Timber men warriors were Bob Thorpe with four goals and two with two goals. Singles went to Curly Mason, Roger Smith, Don Howes, Ed Gallant, Harry Wipper, Doctch, Vitarelli, Lou Nickle and Bobby O'Neil.

Stu Scott and Don McPhail, each with two, led Toronto's goal-getters. Others were Bill Smith, Jerry Kapasky and Nick Ferri notched one apiece.

Baseball Club Charged With Running Lottery

OTTAWA (CP) — Magistrate Glenn Strike yesterday committed the Ottawa Athletics Baseball Club, Inc., for trial in a higher court on a charge of operating a lottery.

The charge was laid against the A's for a stunt Aug. 15. Myrna Lumsden, 18, holder of a winning ticket in a draw, was allowed to keep all the nickels she could carry from a pile at the pitcher's mound.

Detective Sergeant Borden Conley testified he watched Miss Lumsden carry off the 75-pound load of nickels after her ticket number was announced. Miss Lumsden said she counted up $384.25 in nickels.

Chicago Black Hawk Stars See Action Here Tonight

Coach Abel, right, looks over ex-Leafs, Morison, Rollins, Hannigan and Gardner.

Pre-season puck pursuers look to the "new-look" Chicago Black Hawks to rise above their perennial NHL cellar spot. General Manager Bill Tobin was impressed by smooth performances of Boston's Ed Kryzowski and Peter Conacher, as well as the four-Toronto fugitives, Gus Mortson, Cal Gardner, Al Rollins and Ray Hannigan, plus newly-acquired playing-coach Sid Abel. Another combination high on the Tobin totem pole is the Gus Bodnar, Fred Glover and Pete Conacher trio, which has impressed onlookers. They will be seen here tonight.

World Series Dressing Room Chat

By TED SMITS

BROOKLYN (AP)—"I just told him to be a good boy and get 'em out and I'd get him a raise."

That, said Yankee Skipper Casey Stengel with a mischievous grin, is what he told Vic Raschi when the big hurler got in a jam in the second inning yesterday.

The Brooklyns had the bases all on walks—when Stengel walked to the mound to talk with the veteran hurler.

Raschi was dripping sweat when he reached the locker.

"Sure was hot out there," he said. "What was the matter at the start when you were in trouble?" he was asked.

"Me in trouble? All I did was walk three men in one inning, but none of them scored. It's when they score that you're in trouble."

Raschi's 7-1 victory over the Dodgers is his second series victory in this ball park. He beat the Dodgers here in 1949, 10-4.

Has The Stuff

"Raschi was wonderful," said Stengel. "He doesn't look like a graceful pitcher but he has the stuff or he wouldn't have the record he has."

Billy Martin, whose three-run homer was the knockout blow of the game, was horribly modest.

"I didn't feel nervous really," he said. "Heck, we played 12 straight series games in a row even before we met Brooklyn."

Martin was referring to the hot American League race in which the Yankees outlasted Cleveland Indians in the stretch with Martin driving in the winning runs of the game that clinched the pennant.

Mantle, Martin May Steal Show

NEW YORK (AP)—This figured to be the old World Series before but Mickey Mantle and Billy Martin, a couple of New York Yankee baby-faced youngsters, are making determined moves toward stealing the show.

Mantle, who'll not be 21 until Oct. 20, has lashed out five hits, including a double, in nine trips to the plate in the two games.

Martin, whose looks belie his 24 years, singled in the first game and yesterday he homered for runs with a single and a three-run homer as the Yankees evened the count at 1-1. The old veteran of the odd baseman is the youngest of the Yankee regulars except for Mickey.

Series Notes

By WILL GRIMSLEY

BROOKLYN (AP)—You don't see their names in headlines any more but there are a couple of Yankees who have 25 World Series' between them.

They are coaches Frank Crosetti and Bill Dickey, who have shared the New York team's two great periods of prosperity.

For Crosetti this is World Series No. 13, seven as a player and six as a coach. For Dickey, an all-time great catcher, it is No. 12, eight of the years as a player and the rest as a manager's aide.

Of all these series, only one was a losing one. That was 1942, when both were players and St. Louis Cardinals spotted the Yanks the first game and then won four straight.

"We don't look for another one like that," said Dickey.

For obvious reasons we're not going to mention the name of the franchise, if not the smartest, Dodger of them all.

Asked what he thought about Pitcher Ed Roebuck's performance, the Dodger replied: "The Yankees struck out."

Billy Loes, who threw the ball which Billy Martin poked out of the park for Brooklyn's defeat in the run stuff inning, had a novel explanation.

"I threw it waist high—I wanted him to hit it," Billy said.

To some it might have looked as if little Phil Rizzuto was unburdening himself of some choice expletives after Brooklyn's Rube Selder whanged into him in the third inning.

"Phil knew it wasn't intentional"

Selder said later. "The only thing I had to me was that I'm getting too old to be stopped on like that."

Rizzuto received three spike wounds in the thigh.

Maple Leafs Based On 8 Veterans, Hope To Be 'Crowd-Pleasing Team'

This is the fourth of a Canadian Press series on pre-season prospects of the N.H.L. clubs.

By FRANCIS MacDOUGALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP)—Fans around the National Hockey League may have to take a second look to recognize Toronto Maple Leafs this season.

Coach Joe Primeau, in his third term with Leafs, has on his training camp roster only eight veterans from the team which finished third in the league race last season and then lost four straight games to Detroit Red Wings in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

Vets and Rookies

Primeau's task is to mould a winning combination from the veterans and a collection of eager second-year and rookies. He thinks he'll wind up with a contending and crowd-pleasing team. He's not guessing when he says first.

A key plank in the wholesale rebuilding is Harry Lumley, veteran goalie obtained from Toronto in a trade three weeks ago that sent goalie Al Rollins, defenceman Gus Mortson and centre Cal Gardner to Chicago.

Primeau, discussing his team's prospects, started with a reference to Lumley. "To begin with, we have a good goalie."

Veterans Jim Thomson and Fern Flaman head the defence. When Leafs open their home season against Chicago Oct. 11 they will be joined by three others chosen from Hugh Bolton and Jim Morrison who saw some N.H.L. action last season, and rookies Leo Boivin, Tim Horton and Frank Sullivan, up from Pittsburgh.

Forwards Switched

The shakeup has extended to every forward line.

The Sloan switch, Primeau emphasized, is experimental. At opening night, he may be back with Kennedy and Smith.

One line in training is headed by blonde Bob Hassard, lanky native of Woodstock, Ont., who Hornets last season. He has Cord Hannigan, brother of Ray, on left wing and Bob Sabourin, up from Toronto St. Michael's college juniors, on right.

Rudy Migay, Bob Solinger and Andy Bathgate, all up from Hornets, form another potent forward combination. Migay and Solinger both had turns with the Leafs last season.

The other veteran is Max Bentley, who stayed on his farm near Delisle, Sask., to clean up the wheat harvest. He was expected to report this week.

Other regular members of the 1950-51 team gone are workhorse Joe Klukay, Ed Sandford, defenceman Bill Juzda and left wing Ray Thompson, both assigned to Edmonton.

Selder said later. "The only thing I had to me was that I'm getting too old to be stopped on like that."

Rizzuto received three spike wounds in the thigh.

Odds Shift To 2-1 'On Yankees'

NEW YORK (AP)—Odds on New York Yankees to win their fourth straight world series shifted to 2 to 1 yesterday following a 7-1 defeat of Brooklyn Dodgers in the second game of the post-season baseball classic.

The Yanks also were quoted at 8½ to 5 to win today's game—the first of three to be played at Yankee Stadium.

Fielder Rivera Given Test By Lie-Detector

CHICAGO (AP) — Fielder Jones Rivera of Chicago White Sox took a private lie-detector test yesterday, and his lawyer said the tests proved the baseball star did not rape a 22-year-old married woman.

Rivera, 31-year-old major league rookie, has been charged with raping Mrs. Janet Gater, wife of a soldier.

Rivera's lawyer, Robert Romano, said a test showed Rivera was telling the truth when he said he did not rape the woman.

Mrs. Gater complained that Rivera raped her in her apartment last Saturday night. The White Sox outfielder told police he was intimate with the young woman but contended that she submitted willingly after inviting him to her apartment.

Rivera is free on $5,000 bail.

CARDS SELL THREE MEN

NEW YORK (AP)—Three St. Louis Cardinals have been sold to American League clubs for the $10,000 waiver price, it was announced yesterday. Pitcher Bob Habenicht and first baseman Ed Mickelson were sold to St. Louis Browns and pitcher Bill Werle to Boston Red Sox.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON

When you quibble with a double you may dribble into trouble. A double is either for takeout or for penalty. Rule leaves you in no doubt as to when it is one and what it is the other.

If partner has already bid, the size of the bid has nothing to do with a double. Any double is then for penalty. Even a double of a bid of one, is for penalty if partner has passed.

If partner has not yet bid, think of the size of the bid that is doubled. It is then for takeout if the bid is one or two or three in a suit; or if the bid is not more than one in no-trump.

If the bid is more than three in a suit or more than one in no-trump the double is for penalty. At such time it matters not if partner was in Timbuctu. The double is for penalty.

In the case of a takeout double, partner is ordered to bid if an opponent bid does not intervene. The weakness of partner's hand is no excuse for passing a takeout double when no bid intervenes.

In that case his first choice is to show any four cards in an unbid major suit. The suit is not expected to be biddable. Nor is it expected to have any big cards therein.

With no such unbid major suit the second choice is an unbid minor suit of four or more cards. And with two unbid majors or minors of this type, first bid the higher rank; or the longest.

South opens with one heart and your west partner doubles for takeout. North passes. With no intervening bid you dare not pass the double with the east hand you show here:

♥ 6 7 3 2
♣ 9 7 6 4

You have no unbid four card major. Your only unbid four card minor is clubs. Bid two clubs in that spot. You may not like it. But a pass would lose much more for your side. And when you see partner's hand it may not be so bad.

AT THE BELLE

Lilting Score In New Astaire Musical Film

Movie-goers will be humming and whistling a-plenty after seeing MGM's "The Belle of New York," starting Saturday at the Belle Theatre, for this new Technicolor tuner, starring Fred Astaire, Vera-Ellen and Marjorie Main (Ma Kettle) has one of the year's most attractive musical scores.

Written by Harry Warren and Johnny Mercer, with one song by Roger Edens, the song reflects the turn-of-the-century era of the picturesque story and offers Astaire and Vera-Ellen a wide variety of original song-and-dance routines, among them one in which they literally dance in the air.

Included in the score are "Evans Be a Dancin' Man," "Who Wants to Kiss the Bridegroom" and "Seeing's Believing," sung by Astaire; "Let a Lilting Love Come In," "Naughty But Nice" and "Thank You Mr. Currier, Thank You Mr. Ives," sung by Vera-Ellen; and "When You Out With the Belle of New York," "Baby Doll" and "Oops" sung and danced by Astaire and Vera-Ellen.

Keenan Wynn, Alice Pearce, Clinton Sundberg and Gale Robbins support the stars in "The Belle of New York."

AT THE McCARTHY — Lovable Charles Chaplin plays a new comedy role in Universal-International's "The Appointment Here Sam My Pal," now playing at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre, also starring Phyllis Calvert, Nigel Stanton and Guy Verney.

Red Colonel Is Condemned For Surrender

CHEJU ISLAND, Korea (AP)—The North Korean colonel who masterminded the bloody Koje Island prisoner-of-war riots last June was sentenced to death by his own government, a United States officer said today.

Capt. Joseph R. Brooks said he got his information from anti-Communist prisoners. They told him the fanatical Col. Lee Hak Koo was sentenced to death by the Red Korean government shortly after he surrendered to U. S. troops. Brooks said Lee, resentful, masterminded the Koje riots in the hope of regaining face at home.

Lee was sentenced to death because he surrendered with many of his troops early in the war—apparently because he misjudged the tactical situation.

Lee has been held under maximum security on Koje since he was dragged out of rebellious compound 76 by Brig.Gen. (now Major General) Francis T. Dodd was held captive.

It was Lee who defied Brig.-Gen. Haydon Boatner's command to empty compound 76 in an orderly fashion last June. Instead, Lee ordered his men to resist with home-made knives and spears when guards moved in to restore control.

In the fighting that followed, 41 Red prisoners were killed.

Bitter Reprieve

By - Drexel Drake

The jurors could not suspect that he was the murderer. He identified himself simply as Mr. Talent. Mr. Sterling's eyelids had naked fear in them.

"He's really too low to talk to anyone, but it can't greatly matter," the nurse said.

Talent sat at the bedside, close. He doubted that he would have known, the emaciated yellowish face on the white pillow. Sterling's eyes stared at him. "Please say to come, Lieutenant," he said.

"Take it easy, Sterling, and if there's something you think you ought to tell me, let me have it to your own way."

Sterling struggled for breath. "Yes, there is," he said. That was a fake. I faked it all of it. I was in a bad spot for money. I needed my wife's insurance to tide me over. So I took it, and made it look like a burglary."

A series of coughs shook Sterling. For a moment he turned his face away. When he turned back, Talent said, "and you left those lights in the library and the front door unlocked?"

Sterling heeded an imminent urge; that. Then his lips moved slowly. "No, I didn't leave those lights. I may have left the door unlocked, unintentionally. But not the lights."

Talent decided to risk a question. "Don't you want to tell me, Sterling, about what happened up in your wife's room? Was it an accident? You didn't mean to hit her so hard, did you?"

"She hurt? I didn't hit her, Lieutenant. she was asleep. I drugged her drink. She was still asleep when I spilled out of the room with the necklace."

"You didn't hit your wife with that candlestick?"

"You see, Lieutenant, that's why I couldn't tell you about the burglary. You never would have believed, would you, that I didn't kill my wife? You would have convicted me for that, wouldn't you? So I had to keep that secret."

"What did you do with the necklace, Sterling?"

"Oh, that . . . I never got it back."

"How about the money?"

"Money?" Sterling's eyelids fluttered. The once firm chin sagged. "I'm sorry, Mr. Talent, for all of it, Lieutenant. My will. Stedman's got it. You'll check with him about it, won't you?" The words had come slowly.

"I mean those $100 bills. What about them?"

"Now you know what I did. I'm glad I've had a chance to tell you . . . I'm on my way out, Lieutenant. You have had ingersol . . . died. The eyelids dropped. Sterling was breathing heavily, a gurgling, choking sound in his throat.

Talent bent down in a desperate effort, his lips almost at one of Sterling's ears.

"Listen boy," he said pleading-ly. "Tell me if you can. Have you any idea who did kill your wife? I believe you, boy. I believe you didn't kill her. Do you know who did?"

Talent waited without moving. Sterling was mumbling thickly. Talent leaned half across the bed. He caught barely coherent phrases: " . . . last thing she said . . . just before she drove away . . . last thing she couldn't have, so, she couldn't have . . . she didn't do that . . . but did she . . . last thing . . . have it out . . . with Miriam' . . . have it out . . . words on the table . . . last words . . . drove away . . . last words . . . have it out . . . but that way . . . did she mean that way . . ."

Talent sighed through his dinner. Later . he sat for an hour holding his newspaper without reading. The type was blotted out by a haggard, suffering face on a pillow . . . lips trying to form words . . .

Twice Talent called the hospital, to be told each time that Sterling was in a coma. It was past 11 o'clock when he called a third time. He was told Marcus Sterling was dead. Mr. Steadman and a Miss Wilson had been at his bedside when he died. Talent tossed in his futile efforts to sleep. Over and over, Sterling's mumbled raving was running through his mind.

At 8.30 Talent got up and dressed. He stopped in his kitchen for a cup of coffee. Before 4.30 Talent was at his desk at Police Headquarters, bent over the contents of the Sterling file.

He found a memorandum in his own handwriting. His eyes ran that he dashed into his memory during his sleepless wrestling with Sterling's ravings and mumblings. It was his notes on what Richard Trapgood had telephoned him that Sunday night after he had been to Sterling's.

Talent studied his bold scrawl: On Thursday night of Miriam Sterling's murder Sterling and Janet Weirhaven had drinks at Edgecliff Country Club. Sterling walked out with her to her car when she started home. That was around 1.30. Miss Weirhaven told this to Dick at the club Sunday night, 5-10-40, three days after the murder.

Talent picked up a small envelope . . . tapped its contents out on his desk . . . a dried, silken-looking thing . . . a curling fan coiling fan coil of lipstick . . . a phonograph . . . a fairly faint fabric prints found on the butt, a slender cartridge . . . and thumb . . .

If they should turn out to be actually the prints of Janet Weirhaven? It was a staggering thought! Then something else hit Chris Talent with even more electrifying force. No longer Janet Weirhaven! For almost two years now she had been Janet Trapgood . . . Dick's wife!

Mr. Bryan Steadman had been waiting an anxious, apprehensive five minutes in his office when Talent arrived. The lawyer, of whom age had begun to exact its toll, had got shaken off the shock of Sterling's death. He had come to his office only in response to Talent's urgent appeal.

"Marcus Sterling sent for me yesterday," Steadman said. "I was with him during his last minutes of consciousness. He was anxious that I check with you about his will. Before he said that, he told me something else."

Steadman paled as he listened to Talent's recital. "Marcus told me that, after all these years?"

"Yes. Had he never told you?"

"Never a word, I can hardly believe it, but it must be true."

"It was a long, barbared truth told by a man who knew he was dying," Talent said. "Is there something about his will I ought to know?"

"I haven't any idea. His signature was witnessed here in my office, but he didn't show me the will, and I didn't ask to see it. That was just before he went into the Marines in 1941, right after Pegrt Harbor."

Steadman went to a steel cabinet. He returned to his desk with a thin envelope. He slit it open. There was a single sheet of legal paper folded, Steadman read it and looked up.

"He left, utterly beyond my comprehension, Lieut.," he said. "Marcus sets aside the sum of $10,000 in trust for the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Miriam.' It's to stand that way for five years. If unclaimed, it goes to charity as a Miriam Page Memorial. Why on earth would he have waited until his death?"

"You can understand that, can't you, Mr. Steadman? He told me yesterday, and I can't honestly disagree, that it the truth of what he did had become known, he probably couldn't have saved himself from conviction for a murder he didn't commit."

"Another odd thing, Lieutenant," Steadman said, his eyes back on the will. "After substantial bequests to charities and friends of his, estate goes to Isabel Wilson, his secretary."

That final bit of information was both a calculating qualm to Talent's eyes.

It was just a little past the noon hour when Talent walked into an office in another midtown building, the girl at a desk told him Richard Trapgood was busy but she placed in his name. Almost immediately the door of the private office was jerked open and Trapgood was framed in the opening.

"Come in, Chris," Trapgood said in a rousing welcome. Inside the private office, when the door had been closed, Trapgood said, "You've never met Janet, although you did hear of her before she became Mrs. Trapgood. I want you to meet her."

Janet was standing at one corner of the broad flat-top desk, casually puffing on a cigaret. "You've heard me speak often, darling of Lieut. Talent," Trapgood said to her, walking to the back of his desk.

Janet, now 38, still managed her perennial 30. She was smoothly tailored, superbly vibrant, her eyes lustrously alive. Talent, regarding the couple, knew they were tremendously devoted to each other.

It was a situation he would not have invited. He was expecting to find it hard enough to talk frankly with Trapgood. His position was now intolerably difficult.

"She's kidnapping me from my work for lunch," Trapgood said. "We're leaving this afternoon for a long weekend at Sulphur Springs."

"And Dick thinks it's disgraceful to begin a weekend on Thursday," Janet said.

"What brings on this surprise visit, Chris?" Trapgood said. "Just happening by?"

Talent jumped abruptly. "Possibly you know that Marcus Sterling died last night," he said.

Trapgood said lightly, "No I hadn't heard."

"He sent for me. He had something to tell me."

Trapgood sobered. "So your lunch was right, Chris! You always said you believed he could tell you something."

It yas Janet's quick, short gasp that arrested attention. Her cigaret, held lightly between thumb and forefinger, dropped to the floor. Swaying, she stepped impulsively on it. . .

"What's wrong, darling?" Trapgood asked. He was around the desk, at her side. "You're pale!"

She leaned against him. "A peculiar faintness," she said weakly. "It's nothing. I'll go into your other room . . . the couch for a minute."

Trapgood opened the door to the adjoining room, helped her through it. "Back in a minute, Chris," he called back.

Talent took a piece of scratch paper from the desk. He scooped up the mashed cigaret, rolled it into the paper, dropped it carefully into a pocket of his coat. He glanced at his watch.

In the outer office, Talent said to the girl, "Please tell Mr. Trapgood I had to run along.

American-Soviet Relations Plunged Into New Crisis

U.S. Ambassador Ousted, Retaliation Is Studied

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is expected to hit back soon at Russia by ousting Ambassador George F. Kennan on grounds that he "plastered" the Soviets by comparing Communist life in Moscow to that in a Nazi prison camp.

State Secretary Dean Acheson and his aides started studying means of retaliation as soon as Moscow's demands for Kennan's recall yesterday plunged troubled American-Soviet relations into a new crisis.

Acheson, after a telephone conference with President Truman, forecast that there probably would be a sharp diplomatic note to the Kremlin shortly. Officials looked for the Kennan case to be left vacant for a long time as an expression of U.S. resentment.

No U.S. Expulsion

The U.S. could expel the new Soviet ambassador, Alexander N. Zarubin, but Acheson told reporters there was "no present indication" of that. The secretary has ruled out any idea of breaking off diplomatic relations.

As far as officials could determine, it was the first time in the history of American ambassador has been ousted on the ground that he was persona non grata, or personally unacceptable.

Should Kennan's post be left vacant indefinitely, some authorities said privately, the effectiveness of the envoy might voluntarily recall Zarubin, with the result that relations between the U.S. and Soviet Moscow could degenerate to a routine charge-d'affaires handled by subordinate officials.

Several congressmen lavished some sort of commendatory action.

"If the Communists don't want us around the ambassador we subject, then I think we should serve clear notice on the Communists that we will have no ambassador at all," Senator Wayne Morse, Oregon Republican, commented.

British Surprised

British officials expressed surprise and concern at Russia's move, and speculated privately in London that it would bring retaliatory U.S. action against Zarubin. The Reds, they said, would be a strengthening of U.S.-Russian relations.

The Soviet Foreign Minister, Andrei Vishinsky, served the demand for Kennan's recall yesterday on the eve of the Russian Communist congress opening tomorrow in Moscow. The demand was based on remarks made by Kennan Sept. 19 in West Germany. He compared the life of Americans in Moscow with the living lot of the prisoners in Nazi Germany after Pearl Harbor.

Kennan, a former member of the State Department policy planning staff, is a man widely credited with being the author of the "peace" containment policy toward Communism, has served as ambassador less than five months.

The Soviet envoy to the U.S. is impossible for him to return to Moscow from Geneva, where he was visiting his 16-year-old daughter for a holiday.

Kennan, reached at Geneva, would not comment on yesterday's developments. He said: "I will be going ahead with plans to visit Frankfurt, Germany, tomorrow night. He said he assumed that his wife and three children, now in Moscow, "will be coming out at there."

RATIONING ENDS

Quebec Plans TV Censorship

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec wants censorship of television programs, but the province's Liberal government plans legislation giving the provincial censor the power to the right to censor CBC productions.

The government's intention was announced yesterday by Premier Duplessis when he disclosed various legislative measures for the first session at the 24th Legislature opening Nov. 12.

Mr. Duplessis told a press conference the government plans to extend the jurisdiction of magistrate's court, bring changes to the Electoral Act to prevent gerrymandering, increase funds for housing and farm aid and enact highway and driving regulations.

He gave no details of the censorship legislation. Such a law, he adopted, would have the CBC submit its programs to the board established to censor motion pictures and obscene literature.

Britain's Most Secret Ship Deals Smuggling Trade Mortal Blow

By NORMAN CRIBBINS

LONDON (Reuters)—Smugglers nosing their small craft into lonely British coves or up lonely creeks in some creek or river have a deadly adversary in the new coast-guard cutter Vigilant, Britain's most secret ship.

So well are the Vigilant's movements covered that only a few officials know where she will be at any given time. With her radar guide and information from special agents, she can keep watch on the many small craft which used to operate round the coast that revenue officers had to depend on home-grown occupations, went into business as smugglers.

At one time there was an almost regular ferry service based on the Continental mainland. For £200 a head "whatever you are carrying." Craft ran to and from the Thames Estuary and in and out of south coast creeks.

Small craft crept in towards the coast at night, put their cargoes into waterproof cases and threw them overboard into shallow water. The packages were then marked by an emergency buoy.

Perhaps a week later, shore parties would set out to recover the cargoes.

But since the Vigilant came into service in 1946, the movements of smugglers' craft have been known before they get anywhere near the coast.

The Vigilant, formerly an Admiralty trawler, hides in lonely creeks, sweeping the channel with her radar eyes and exchanging reports by radio telephone with headquarters in London.

Operating with her are a fleet of revenue launches, coast patrols on foot and about 2,000 men trained in the art of stopping the smuggling of goods into Britain and of arms and currency out of Britain.

COST-OF-LIVING INDEX DOWN 1.1 POINTS IN AUGUST

Rents Soar But Lower Food Prices Assist

OTTAWA (CP)—Rents soared to a new high during August but were outweighed by lower food prices which led the cost-of-living to lower ground.

The cost-of-living index dipped for the second consecutive month by 1.1 points to 186.5—from. 187.6 during the previous month, the Bureau of Statistics reported yesterday. That indicated living costs were back to where they were in the early part of this year.

Lower prices for meats, fresh vegetables and a few other food items pushed down the index which is based on 1935-39 prices as standing 100. Meat prices dropped an average of two cents a pound and potatoes about one cent a pound during August. Oranges, lemons, sugar, woollen goods, cotton sheets and electrical goods also were down.

Food Prices Drop

The food sub-index dropped to 234.2 from 238.0 in July. Its peak was 243.4 in March when new crops, which are surveyed quarterly, climbed a total of 8.5 from 1951, continuing the steady rise of recent years.

The fuel and light sub-index also moved upwards—to 150.3 from 150.1. Clothing and other textiles below the record of 152.5 last February.

Men's woollen apparel and woollen piece goods dropped in price, but footwear, the clothing sub-index down to 207.7 from 208.6, well below the peak of 221.5 last December.

Lower prices for woollen rugs, cotton sheets and electrical goods pushed the homefurnishings subindex down to 185.8 from 186.6. The peak came last December also at 221.5.

Wholesale Picture

A continued weakness in wholesale prices up to Sept. 26 was an indication that further drops are a possibility in the cost-of-living index for September which will be issued early in November.

The Bureau's wholesale price index was down to 276.1 last week from 241.0 on August 29. The farm products index was recorded to 219.9. The farm products index receded to 219.9 from 230.2.

VESSEL SINKS IN FOG

ROTTERDAM (AP) — The Dutch freighter Alkaid was reported today that the Spanish freighter Monte Palo was sunk in a fog-bound collision with the British ship Granford off the west coast of Spain. The Alkaid said 37 crew members of the 3,234-ton Spanish ship were picked up aboard the 7,087-ton Grenford, which was proceeding to Lisbon under its own power.

$154,000 EMBEZZLED

How to End War in Korea Biggest Problem on Agenda Of U.N. General Assembly

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—How to end the war in Korea stands out as the biggest problem among the 65 items on the preliminary agenda of the United Nations General Assembly which opens Oct. 14.

But there are other issues packing plenty of explosive power, including racial strife in South Africa and Morocco, Communist influence from Tunisia and Morocco, the question of atomic control and general disarmament, which have plagued past Assembly sessions, are up for study again although these problems seem hopelessly deadlocked by the cold war. Russia, however, has thrown propaganda bombshells and disarmament into previous Assemblies and could do so again.

Pearson Expected

Canada's External Affairs Minister, L.B. Pearson, is expected to be in the centre of all debates as president of the Assembly. His predecessor, Dr. Carlos Romulo of the Philippines, is not in line for reappointment.

He will be the first Assembly president to bang the gavel in the new General Assembly hall of the U.N. permanent headquarters on the banks of the East River in Manhattan. Until then, U.N. delegates headquarters is made up of three buildings—the Lake Success Secretariat Building which houses the U.N.'s 3,500 staff members, the lowlying conference building and the General Assembly auditorium—all connected with tunnels. It is time for the Assembly opening.

Delegates and advisers from the 60 countries which belong to the U.N. will fill the auditorium floors and the galleries and advisers from the 60 countries which belong to the U.N. will fill the auditorium floors and the galleries and advisers from the 60 countries which belong to the U.N. will fill the auditorium floors room for 800 visitors and 224 newspapers and radio and TV facilities for radio and television coverage of the Assembly.

The Korean war will again be focussed on such figures as the Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, Andrei A. Gromyko, Foreign Minister, State Secretary Dean Acheson of the United States, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden of Britain and Foreign Minister Robert Schuman of France.

Acheson will be on hand at the opening session, but he is expected to make U.S. statements before the U.S. presidential election Nov. 4. But Eden and Schuman will not be coming to the Assembly until after the election, indications that any policy statements they might make would be largely restrued as attempting to influence U.S. elections. Vishinsky also may be delayed but the Communist party congress in Moscow.

Korea Agenda Item

This assembly is certain to discuss the Korean war—the first time in its five years that the body has done so directly. At the last session in December, Russia stirred

TWO RINKS WIN AT COLBORNE

A successful bowling season is fast drawing to a close. On Wednesday afternoon a turkey tournament was held in Colborne and four rinks of ladies took part. In the afternoon of sport, two of them walked turkeys for the Christmas dinner. A heavy downpour of rain restricted to play to two greens as the greens became unplayable. Ken Ashley, William Anderson and Gordon Edwards as skip won the tournament with a four-game high total while Walter Elliott, Gordon Vince and "Dewey" Davison also landed in the prize money with a two-win high.

Other rinks from the local club were Al Black, Fred Harper with Cec Black as skip and John Shaw Wilfred Price with A. E. Wonnacott on the head end. The bowlers had a sensational afternoon of bowling with the hospitality of the home club as added attraction.

AVONDALE GROCERY ENTERED BY NIGHT

The Avondale grocery on the Front Road just west of the city was entered during the night and a small quantity of cash taken, according to provincial police who are investigating the break-in. Entry to the premises was gained by smashing the window in the front door.

Prices Remain Steady on Local Produce Market

Prices remained steady on the local produce market today with only a few items showing any change from last week's quotations.

With the cucumber season about over slicers were quoted at two for 15 cents, with baskets lots at from 60c to $1.00 for gherkins. Tomatoes brought 45c per basket.

Egg prices held at 65c for first with medians at 50c per dozen and pullets at 38c. Broilers and capons sold at 55c per lb with spring birds at 50c and hens at 45c per lb. A few ducks brought 60c lb.

On the outside market potatoes held at $2 per bag with 65c to 75c per basket and 90c peck being asked. Green and red beets were 50c the basket; Spanish onions were 90c; pumpkin ranged from a dime to 35c and Hubbard squash 20c to 25c each. Green peppers were a nickel each.

Top grade McIntosh and Talman Sweet apples were 75c per basket with Snows 35c and St. Lawrence 75c per basket. Gallon jugs of cider brought 40c.

Bliss Damson plums were 50c with prune plums 50c and peaches 75c to 90c per basket.

Shelled walnut was quoted at $15 per cord.

Heavy Frost Nearly Puts End To Growing Season

Frost settling over the Bay of Quinte district on Friday night put an end to the growing season as far as garden produce is concerned with vines of all description being wilted.

A week ago a heavy white frost visited the area whitening corn and cucumber vines but Friday night practically all remaining vines were stripped. This was true even at the bay's edge where a large expanse of corn failed to prevent frost. The mercury dropped to 29.7 degrees on the bay and went considerably lower inland.

Market gardeners said the frost nipped all cucumbers and tomatoes were also damaged by the frost.

Plenty of Ducks On First Day Say Hunters

Shotguns roared over a wide front early today as hunters ushered in the duck-hunting season.

From the "crack o' dawn" to mid-morning, the mirards blazed away at what is reported to be the "best season" in years from a duck numerical standpoint.

As one well-known city hunter puts it "There were plenty of ducks where we were (he refused to mention the spot) and we had little trouble in getting our bag."

The ducks, he added, were fat and appeared to be well-fed.

A south wind and a cloudy sky, following last night's below freezing temperature, proved an ideal atmospheric background for the opening festivities.

District, Local Airmen in Flight To French Base

Out of the 164 R.C.A.F. personnel, either left for France or there now are included six local and district men. The men will go together in the form part of the R.C.A.F.'s No. 2 Fighter Wing at Grostenquin, in France.

According to an Air Force release, the majority of the airmen will serve at the European base, busy setting up facilities for the arrival of the 12 squadrons of Sabrons now en route from Canada in Operation "Sky Hook". This operation is said to be the Air Force's largest jet flight ever to cross the Atlantic.

The men from this district are, F/O. Ray Longmuir, of Havelock; A.C. E. D. Tack, from Napanee; F/S. D. D. Prentiss from Marmora; Cpl. G. M. Runchey, Trenton; A.C. K. L. Goodman, Belleville and W/O. I. F. D. Lumsden of Gilmour.

Albert Juniors Defeat OSD In Grid Game

Albert College Junior "B" team stayed right with its senior counterpart to defeat OSD by 20-7 in the Albert vs. OSD. in a rugby game on the college campus, the final game of the season.

The Albert squad were a much better and experienced aggregation and the light O.S.D. line could not cope with the plunging of 220 pound Bruce Vaughan who quarterbacked the winners. Vaughan got a total of three touchdowns, one on a fake forward pass, while Bob Fleck, Albert's snap picked up a loose ball behind the line's line for a fourth one, and Bob McCuaig, Albert's "moose" from Heron Bay added the final one.

The best play of for O.S.D. and perhaps the outstanding one on the field was Dave Elliott, quarterback of the O.S.D. squad, he made nice gains everytime he carried the ball, and tackled all the Albert ball carriers effectively no matter what their size.

Courtice and McAllister did some nice running for Albert while Allan Gutteridge and Wainman tackled and blocked well. During the course of the game, Pete Miller, Albert halfback sustained a gashed chin while making a tackle which required four stitches to close. He will be out of the game for a couple of weeks.

NOTICE

Owing to the death of Mr. Wm. M. Leslie, Leslie's Shoe Store will be closed until Friday, October 10.

William Malcolm Leslie

William M. Leslie Was Prominent In Business and Church Life of City

Stricken at the dinner table just after finishing lunch, Mr. William Malcolm Leslie, well-known local business man, died suddenly at his home 35 Hillcrest Ave., early Friday afternoon.

Although he had not been in good health during the past few years, he was still active and had visited his Front Street store only a few days ago. He died of a heart attack.

Born in the sixth concession of Thurlow 73 years ago, he was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Leslie. He had been in the shoe business in this city for more than half a century and had a wide acquaintance, both in the city and in the rural areas outside of Belleville. He celebrated his 50th anniversary in business three years ago.

Mr. Leslie was a kindly man and had a good word and a smile for everyone. Possessed of many fine traits of character he held the confidence of all with whom he did business and through his friendly qualities and affable manner he attracted and held many friendships. His death will be a feeling of loss to the community.

Grew up on Farm

Youngest of eight children, Mr. Leslie spent his early life on his parents' farm. He took a business course at the Ontario Business College and after a few months of barbering started with the Vermilyea Shoe Store as junior salesman at two dollars a week. That was in 1895.

Purchased Business

Twenty years later, after thoroughly learning the retail and the wholesale shoe business, he purchased the shoe repair and retail business of John McKeown. This was the beginning of the present Leslie Shoe Store of which Mr. Leslie was the head.

A member of the Masonic Order, he belonged to The Belleville Lodge No. 123 A.F. and A.M., in which organization he had been active for over 30 years.

Mr. Leslie was active in church work and in work of the community. As a boy he was a regular attendant of Sunday School, and until the church union, attended St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. After union he attended at John Street United Church and when that edifice burned, he transferred to Bridge Street Church, where for many years he acted as elder and was also on the Board of Trustees.

Always Ready to Help

But his interest was not confined to his regular church, but was always anxious to help any other Christian organization. He maintained an interest in Gilead, his native church in Thurlow township, and also did much work for the Sunday School in the village where he and his parents lived for many years.

He is survived by his wife, the former Bertha Donaldson: two sons, Bryson and Donald, both of this city, and a daughter, Mrs. Noble (Margaret) Trousdale, of Sydenham, and six grandchildren.

One brother, John Leslie, of La Riverie, Manitoba, also survives.

Neighbors, Merchants Assist In Bee to Rebuild Home Recently Damaged by Fire

There may be something wrong with the world, and with some of the people in it, but they're not all "off stride."

Ask Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Miller, North Park Street, whose home was badly damaged by fire a few days ago.

Neighborly spirit and sympathy for a fellow man flared into action today, up around North Park Street.

Friends of the family from the country joined with immediate neighbors and early today the sound of hammer and saw was heard as a rebuilding operation went into effect.

Some eighteen men, under the supervision of carpenter William McGeehan, Will Judge and Frank Walker, were early upon the scene and went swiftly into construction action at the family home.

Lumber was donated by the Hurst Lumber Company while Coulter Grocery contributed nails and hardware. The Arthur Sills and Son Company donated roofing while Bell Telewell Supply Company giving glass. The Finkle Electric will assist in wiring while the job is expected ready.

Mrs. Jack Buchanan, head of the Red Cross Homemakers organization of which Mrs. Miller is a valued member, with Mrs. Ralph Smith, Mrs. Bert Hagerman, Mrs. Ross Bush and Mrs. Ted Bush, are also members, is co-ordinating the activities of the aid of their fellow members. Mrs. Buchanan said, did "marvellous" job.

Mrs. Miller and family expressed their grateful appreciation today to the many people who willingly contributed their time, labor and material.

A pot dinner was served to the "laborers" by members of the Women's Association of Tabernacle United Church under the supervision of Mrs. Mac Burgess.

Two Arrested On Theft Charges

Roy Landry, 21, of Bancroft, and Ernest Wheeler, 19, of Napanee, have been arrested and charged with entering the City Cleaners earlier this week and stealing a quantity of men's and women's clothing. Landry was arrested by city police at the C.N.R. station while Wheeler was apprehended in Napanee and returned to Belleville.

Police said that when the break-in was first discovered only women's clothing was reported stolen but a further check revealed a man's station wagon coat, several pairs of trousers and a gabardine coat had been taken.

Wheeler, one of the arrested men, is now on suspended sentence for entering a local hardware store and a service station here and also one in the Toronto district.

Belleville in The Year 1860

The following information was obtained from the directory of the County of Hastings, first volume, printed in the year 1860 by Mackenzie Bowell and deals with the town of Belleville and the County of Hastings. The material was selected and prepared for publication by Mr. J. V. C. Trunik, former postmaster of this city. This is the third of a series of articles dealing with the early history of Belleville.

Few counties in the province can boast of having as good roads as this. From Belleville there are excellent gravel and macadamized roads leading to different points, and by a wise provision of the municipal authority, with sanction of the people, these roads have all been made free, and thus we have removed from the limits of the county a great hindrance to its prosperity — toll gates. We have now nearly 70 miles of first class roads, centring in Belleville, the chief market place of the county.

Proposed Railways

In addition to the Grand Trunk Railway which passes from one to two miles from the shore of the Bay through the township of Tyendinaga, Thurlow and Sidney, having four stations within the county, a project has been started for the construction of a railway from Belleville to Marmora. Two routes have been surveyed, one running through Huntingdon township. The distance by this route would be 33½ miles. The other route surveyed, is designated the "Moira Valley Route." The distance to Marmora by this route would be 45¾ miles. It would be impossible to estimate the benefits Belleville and the county would derive from the building of this road. The mineral wealth of the interior which now lies hidden in the earth, would find a market through this channel of communication. That this road will be constructed is a question which will not be disputed.

Iron, Ore, Marble

This brings us to refer, more particularly, to the immense deposits of iron ore, and the other valuable minerals, which abound in this county. In the townships of Marmora and Madoc there are valuable minerals, the supplies of which are inexhaustible. Both at Marmora and Madoc the mines have been worked but the expense of carrying the iron ore to market over the common road is so great as to render its manufacture unprofitable. When our railway shall have been built, these mines will, under better management, yield us their rich treasures and be a constant source of prosperity. There can be no speculation as to the richness of the iron ore here found. Specimens of the ore, and the iron in pig and bar, were sent to the World's Exhibition in London and it was declared to be the finest known in the world for the purpose of machinery, and as such obtained the prize. In the manufacture of superior iron and steel, it has been pronounced as being of the purest and richest description.

All that is required is facility for trasport of the raw material, for the establishing of blast furnaces in Belleville which manufacture, if encouraged by a small protective duty, would become a source of industrial wealth and afford employment to hundreds of operatives. The county is not 'only rich in iron ore, but extensive marble beds, white, black and variegated, and equal to any in America, and other mineralogic stone, as well as lead ore are found in abundance in various parts of the county.

Geology of the County

To the geologist the County of Hastings presents a wide field in which to pursue his pleasing, and interesting study, as it abounds in fossil, and other formations for a description of which we are indebted to Mr. Chapman, professor of geology in the University of Toronto, as follows:

"The rock formation in the County of Hastings comprises in ascending order (1) The Laurentian series of Canadian geologists; (2) some of the lower Silurian rock; the Drift Formation, and (4) certain recent deposits of local occurrence.

1 — The Laurentian formation: The rocks of this division constitute the most ancient deposits hitherto recognized on the continent of North America. They extend from Labrador along the northern shore of the St. Lawrence to within a short distance of Quebec, from whence they continue inland and across the Ottawa at the Lac des Chats.

West of this point their outcrop sub-divides into two branches, one of which passes to the south and crossing the St. Lawrence at the Thousand Islands and forming the wild district of the Adirondack Mountains in the State of New York.

The other branch sweeps broadly towards the north-west, and its southern edge runs through the south limits of the townships of Elzevir, Madoc and Marmora in Hastings County and confirming its course, strikes Lake Huron at Matchedash Bay.

The Laurentian rocks also form the greater portion of the northern shore of Lake Superior and cover an enormous area throughout the northern part of the province. In popular language they are often, though incorrectly, called gneiss. True granite never occurs in beds or strata, but always in irregular and apparently otherwise masses, or in veins, whereas our Laurentian rocks are always stratified. They are looked upon as altered sedimentary deposits and belong chiefly to the rocks known as micaceous and hornblendic (or syenitic) gneiss; Micaceous, the commoon, consists of quartz, feldspar, and mica, and has usually a red or grey color but is sometimes almost black. Hornblendic or syenite is composed of quartz, feldspar, and hornblendic and possess in general a well-marked green color, or is otherwise red and green, or red and black.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED M. WILSON

THE BUDDER

Probably slow motion photography has done more than anything else to show that buds have power, muscular control over their tails: they can raise, lower, or spread; tilt them to one side, make them convex or concave. By gently opening or closing the feathers they are capable of altering their course upwards or downwards. In order to glide downwards, the tail is furled and raised, to hover, it is expanded and depressed. It is a rudder. Many photographs have been taken of tiny gannets that nest on Bonaventure Island for the express purpose of demonstrating exactly how they manipulate their tails.

See the way a large hawk tilts its fan-shaped tail as it mounts in circles. Watch it flying overhead, for in that position we have a perfect silhouette. Then, it is by their tails that flying hawks are most easily identified.

All young birds whose tails have not yet grown to a normal length differ in adults with tail feathers missing because of the moult are at a decided disadvantage. They do not attempt flights of any great distance. Nevertheless, most ducks have very short tails and yet appear to get on well. Notice, however, that their manner of flight is quite different from that of the long tailed birds. They take a very direct route. A short tail is a handicap in making quick turns.

Then there is the other extreme. Several birds that breed in Canada possess tails of considerable length, as those of brown thrashers and cuckoos. These are not comparable with tails of certain species that never enter Canada, but one native Canadian bird about 32 inches long has a tail measuring 13 inches.

This is the long-tailed jaeger, a relative of the gulls. For grace and control the long tail is hardly be beaten. It is capable of sailing soaring and sudden, swift flight; unlike most species, it can hover. The diet of this jaeger is unusual for a gull-like bird. It prefers those little rodents called lemmings to anything else, but also eats fish, and occasionally small birds. Like a swallow, it captures many insects in mid-air, and in autumn, when they are finished, eats the crowberry. Unfortunately it is seldom seen by anybody, because its breeding grounds are only in the Arctic, it migrates over the ocean (rarely coming anywhere near the coast), and winters in the Southern Hemisphere. Scientists are not yet absolutely certain of either the migration route or the southern holiday resort, knowing only that the goal is somewhere in the Antarctic.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

I Need The Every Hour

I need Thee every hour,
Most gracious Lord;
No tender voice like Thine
Can peace afford.

I need Thee every hour,
Stay Thou near by;
Temptations lose their power
When Thou art nigh.

I need Thee every hour,
In joy or pain;
Come quickly and abide,
Or life is vain.

I need Thee every hour,
Teach me Thy will;
And Thy rich promises
In me fulfill.

I need Thee every hour,
Most Holy One;
O make me Thine indeed,
Thou blessed Son.

I need Thee every hour,
I need Thee, O I need Thee;
Every hour I need Thee;
O bless me now, my Savior,
I come to Thee.

When the Rev. Robert Lowry, Baptist minister and composer, was serving one of his first pastorates in Brooklyn, N. Y., he discovered that one of his parishioners, Mrs. Annie Sherwood Hawks, had unusual poetic ability. He helped her with her writings and encouraged her to use her talents for the church.

Years later, in a distant city where he was preaching and teaching, Mr. Lowry was delighted one day to receive in manuscript form from Mrs. Hawks the verses of "I Need Thee Every Hour." She had sent them in the hope that her former minister would set them to music. Of course, he did so and when the poem and tune were introduced to the public they became universally popular.

The new hymn was sung for the first time at a national Sunday School convention held in Cincinnati, Ohio in 1872. Not long afterward it was published and given general circulation. Two years later, it was echoing through evangelistic services on two continents and it is as popular today as ever.

IRIS FOR FALL PLANTING

Iris have been garden favorites for many centuries and more than 100 varieties have been classified.

Above illustrated is Dutch Iris. These grow from 20" to 48" high, and are most effective planted in a mass or in the border. They make lovely groups by the garden pool. Avoid lime in the soil and plant about 4" deep.

Iris present few difficulties for the amateur gardener and are easily grown in full sun or part shade.

IMPOVERISHED POLITICIANS?

Canadian salaries and wages are always somewhat lower than the American but an Ottawa correspondent points out that it isn't the steelworkers or the miners who have the biggest kick coming — it's the politician.

Our parliamentarians became aware of this through the Nixon affair in the U.S. presidential campaign when the emoluments of office in Washington became generally known. Now some M.P.'s and senators in Ottawa are wondering how they have ever made ends meet.

The American senator or representative gets $15,000 a year which is taxable. Our members draw $4,000-per-session indemnity plus a $2,000-per-year expense allowance. The allowance is tax free, the indemnity is not. Therefore, that $6,000 a year all of which is taxable. Members of Congress get a travelling allowance of 20 cents a mile while our federal politicians ride free on the railways but must pay if they fly. If their homes are more than 400 miles from the capital they get $15 a day for travelling expenses.

Congressmen get a $12,500 life insurance policy fully paid. Nothing of the kind is available here. Pension arrangements, however, are about the same for both Canadians and Americans.

It is in respect to general expenses however that those in Washington have the say in the hiring, the firing or the salaries. Every congressman is provided with offices in Washington and is entitled to free office space in government buildings in their home constituencies. Our M.P.'s get one room in the Parliament Buildings which is usually shared with a colleague.'.

Haircuts are free in Washington but they are paid for in Ottawa, although at a lower price than outside. Congressmen get free mail franking, unlimited stationery allowances and up to $450 for telegrams. In Ottawa the M.P. gets a free local telephone service but must pay for all long distance calls and telegrams, including many that come "collect." Postage franking privileges are about the same.

No doubt we will hear all of these facts being recited in the House of Commons when questions of Parliament are taken up in session. They will no doubt move to increase their own salaries with a good deal less self-conscious argument than would have been the case had the Nixon incident never developed.

CHANGING POPULATION

Ottawa reveals that to September this year over 30,000 have come to Canada from the British Isles. This is heartening news to those who lose no opportunity to engage in the long-standing controversy over the balance of British stock in the Canadian population.

It is a fact, however, that in the 10-year census period between 1941 and 1951 immigration had little appreciable effect on the over-all picture of racial groups but there is a steady decline in the proportion of Canadians of British origin.

For the first time in our history the proportion of British stock fell under 50 per cent in 1941 and the trend continued. Of those tracing their ancestry to the British Isles still form the largest racial group. The 1951 census figures show that out of our 14,009,429 people, 6,709,385 are of British origin. The other major groups are: French, 4,319,167; German, 1,049,000; Ukrainian, 473,000; Scandinavian, 283,000; Dutch, 264,000; Polish, 219,000.

A noteworthy population shift is seen in the presence of nearly a million French-Canadians now in Ontario. There are about the same number of British in Quebec.

Toronto is probably regarded as the most British of our largest cities, but it isn't in population. Vancouver with 70.9 per cent of British stock is the leader, with Calgary and Toronto and Hamilton all around 68 per cent.

The census figures show other interesting proportions of ethnic groups. Ottawa's French-Canadian stock is 28 per cent of its total and Windsor's is 18.3 per cent. In Edmonton the Ukrainian population is the second largest group with 13.7 per cent of that city. Winnipeg is the most cosmopolitan centre with slightly more than 50 per cent of British stock, and its second group Ukrainian with 13.7 per cent. Hamilton has nearly 10,000 Italians and although only 4.4 per cent of its population they are the second largest group. In Quebec City only 5.6 per cent of the population is of British stock.

The picture is one which shows that Canada's face is changing; not dramatically, but steadily.

THE PRECIOUS HERITAGE

We have that our fathers died for;
Put all British isms aside for;
Suffered countless hardships . . . grievous
One great, priceless gift to leave us.

Now that gift which we inherit
With devotion we should cherish
Strive to prove that we treasure
And to pass it on preserve

It is one thing we should live for;
Time and strength and . . . courage give for
And in every way . . . endeavour
To make sure of it forever.

While we live we should remember
That the ballot next November
And the poll doors open wide
All of us, our fathers died for.

Baby Elephant and Polar Bear Can't Guess's Guests at Rotary

(By Samuel Campbell in the Kingston Macaulay)

It was noon and the lobby of the Royal York Hotel was abuzz and hummed with activity. Suddenly the buzz tempo of the spacious room slowed as sad as a funeral as a man crossing the lobby with a baby elephant and a polar bear in tow.

This Dr. J. A. Campbell, veterinarian and curator of Toronto's Riverdale Zoo, and he was doing what he had done on several earlier occasions, taking some animals to his Rotary Club as a special feature of the meeting.

Born in Madras India, and educated in veterinary science in England and Canada, Dr. Campbell, now 71, has been a Toronto Rotarian for 36 years. His "guests" at club meetings, in addition to the elephant and bear, have included a moose and a camel as live exhibits for his talks about animals.

A favorite subject of his—one which he has appeared strongly for several decades—is humane surgery for animals. When he became curator of the Toronto Zoo more than 20 years ago, he issued this edict: "Not to be a zoo personnel: No animal in the human, should be permitted to suffer pain through medical or surgical treatment. Perseverance, not anesthetic was to be given.

Behind this attitude of Dr. Campbell's is a life-long fight for animals since his boyhood. But there is also an experience he had when he was a boy. He was a 10-year-old lion in a U.S. zoo. The animal had a painful, ingrown toenail and young Dr. Campbell was called in to treat it. Examination showed a deep abscess had formed and that surgery was necessary.

"It took four husky men to pin the animal down", Dr. Campbell recalls as he explains how he had to cut the nail down to the top of the cage to place a noose through the bars over the lion's head. The lion was terrified with long rods to manoeuvre the noose over its head. The animal instantly sensed trouble, became enraged, and began roaring. All this clawing, of course, further injured his sore foot.

"Finally he was roped, dragged to the front of the cage, and tied to the bars. With the affected leg drawn through the bars by another rope, I removed the nail and treated the wound with antiseptics. It took two hours to do the job, and forever after, that lion had a profound dislike for zoo attendants—and especially me."

It was then that Dr. Campbell began pioneering for the use of anesthetics in animal surgery. Today chloroform and morphine are commonly used, and much of the technique practised in animal operations throughout North American zoos and circuses is that originated by this Toronto veterinarian.

"To make possible the use of anesthetics a special cage was needed to hold the animal to be anesthetized. So, Dr. Campbell designed one. It's called a "squeeze cage". Eight feet long and four feet wide and high, it is a heavy, iron-barred wooden box. The animal to be operated on is coaxed into the den with a chunk of food. Then, while the doctor and one assistant can handle it safely. What Dr. Campbell explained that when the den has been covered with tarpaulin to confine the fumes, chloroform is sprinkled on the floor close to the animal. It takes four to six minutes for the anesthetic to make a lion drowsy. First his head wobbles, then the great shaggy body slumps to the floor. A chain-like substance cotton wool is then tied to a rod and held close to the animal's nostrils. It soon loses consciousness completely. When that happens, Dr. Campbell opens the door, draws the affected paw out, and performs the operation quickly.

"The most gratifying feature of it all," says Dr. Campbell, "is that the animal does not recognize the fact that surgery has been performed. It has no resentment. I have operated on lions, tigers, and members of the cat family, from lions to lynx, and not one has associated the operation with me afterward."

Dr. Campbell, too, anesthetized at the Toronto zoo when their baby elephant developed an ear ailment than from flying away from their outside confinement. It's Dr. Campbell's painless-surgery rule applied to swans, cranes, ducks and geese.

Less Than Chivalrous

(Windsor Star)

There are "manner" men, and from time to time we read of candidates for the title. There are "family" men, and other unchivalrous" men. A fellow named McCoy is Sault, Mich., Executive High in both these latter categories.

Once he kicked a stepladder out from under his wife while she was standing on the rungs, when she was hobbling around on crutches, he kicked them from under her.

Knocking a ladder out from under anyone is not a nice trick, an especially treacherous act when the victim is a helpless child and woman like it less. They find it's like being on stilts; and while still walking, get little satisfactory form of youthful recreation. They do not go on about serious work.

The person who kicks a ladder, even a relatively short step ladder, feels himself on the mercy of gravitational forces. The ladder has no sense of humor at all. Anything that disrupts its precarious relationship between human things and earth is apt to seem mischievous, and it may be malicious.

Therefore was malicious in a manifly opportunistic way when he knocked down his wife's ladder, and just plain mean when he kicked away her stepladder.

Hot Dog 100 Years Old

(Christian Science Monitor)

It gives us pleasure to pay tribute to a distinguished citizen of Frankfurt town in humble circumstances 100 years ago.

The German butcher who fashioned the delectable fellow with the strange resemblance to his favorite dachshund could hardly have realized that his prosperous would cross the ocean, become a naturalized American, make a bowling commercial success, and be known as Nero Wolfe and Archie Goodwin.

Such, however, is the illustrious history of the frankfurter or hot dog (Hyde Parke, 1938).

Such, however, is the illustrious history of the frankfurter or hot dog (Hyde Parke, 1938).

It suggests the tremendous strides mingled with its lineage of pure Frankfurter sausage. Today, in the country of its adoption, it is so popular that it is the last meal of many Americans in one year were laid end to end. They would encircle the globe 22 times.

It such globe-circling popularities be denounced as a threat of cultural imperialism, we would remind our readers that behind the caviar curtain that these modern reductions from empires admit with purely pacific purposes. They are mustered only to be relished. They are not more than to be taken in.

Personal Health Talks

Diagnosis or Treatment, Will be Answered by Dr. Brady in a Column, Self-Addressed Envelope is Enclosed, Be Brief. Pertaining to Personal Health and Hygiene, Not to Disease, Signed Letters, Not More Than One Page, or 100 Words Long.

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

PSEUDO-SCIENTIFIC MEDICINE

The dog days this summer brought one clipping of a newspaper column, and a midwestern paper about a stray terrier that allegedly bit "nine or more" persons in a small community. It was a veterinary as a "rabies suspect." The dog died and "tests made in a diagnostic laboratory showed the animal had rabies."

Now this sounds as scientific as all get-out if you are a credulous character, as a credulous character you may feel complacent and smug, for a lot of doctors, perhaps the majority of doctors, are just as credulous about "rabies" as you are.

But contentious characters, such as the quack who conducts this column, just can't take it that blindly. We are impressed by the Collarbian laboratory setting, nor even by the microscope, nor by the stethoscope or stethoscope on the neck of the laboratory "scientist." We dare to ask what test shows an animal has rabies. More than that, we ask what test shows a human being has rabies.

For the test is a test. I recognize that every physician's opinion or belief about this is as good or as sound as my own. At the same time I try, and with due fear of contradiction, that no one has developed a scientific test identifying rabies either in man . . . the question of rabies in animals should be left to the veterinary profession exclusively.

When the "laboratory" worker "pronounced" the late stray terrier "rabid", he was merely expressed a personal opinion of the laboratory worker. He had selected or damage cells in the specimen of brain tissue submitted to the microscope. Equally or better qualified microscopists might be of the opinion that the cells thus examined have no such significance. It is a matter in one way or the other that the cells in question are known as Negri bodies. I'm stating the gist of the matter, and I challenge contradiction if anybody feels qualified to contradict the statement.

This arbitrary practice of pronouncing dogs or other animals rabid on the basis of the laboratory worker's opinion that the specimen of brain tissue contains Negri bodies may have been good enough in the nineteenth century. It should be laid away in the museum alongside the early twentieth century practice of cauterizing dogbites—a crude, dangerous kind of medicine still advocated by health departments, hospitals, and doctors that resent progress. They remind me of the confidence of a midwife a mother who burnt dodging around behind me while I was taking care of the newly born infant. "Doctor, Doctor," she pleaded, "be sure and leave me lots of cord." So of course I left at least a millimeter, under my inimitable dressing which, I gave explicit instructions, was not to be disturbed under any circumstances.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Tea and Coffee

Is there as much caffeine in a cup of tea as in a cup of coffee? Mrs. P. C.

Answer—There is twice as much in a cup of coffee as in a cup of tea. Cocoa, kola nuts, caffeine, tea and coffee are beneficent beverages for adults used in moderation. Children under 18 should not take these beverages regardless of habit or advice of their own physician. A lot of people have been poisoned with the "toxic" effects of these beverages.

The Acid System Idea

Please tell me what to eat or what not to eat, for I have much acid in the system...(Mrs. S. L. E.)

Answer—In what phony doctor book did you get this idea? It took much acid in the system. It doesn't happen, except in the morbid imagination of a misinformed prospect. One must think of the "toxic" effects as dealt with in the following answer.

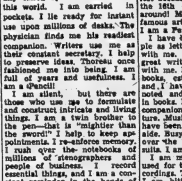
Ant-Acid Diets

The ant-acid diets you suggest for Peptic Stomach have proved a Godsend to two members of our family...(S. S. H.)

Answer—For the pamphlet Yankee Stomach send stamped, addressed envelope. Ant-acids are chlorhydria, heartburn, acid eructations, nausea, water-brash, uneasiness or fullness after eating, belching, gas, general crankiness—that's Yankee stomach.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS



I AM—

I am one of the most universally used public servants in all this world. I am carried in pockets. I lie ready for instant use upon desks and tables. Every physician finds me his readiest companion. Writers use me as their faithful secretary. I am used to preserve ideas. Thoreau once fashioned me into being. I am the friend of business, professional men, and a student.

I am silent, but there are those who use me to formulate their thoughts and to speak their things. I am a twin brother to the pen—that is "mightier than sword". I am the friend of appointments. I re-enforce memory. I rank over the textbooks of millions of stenographers and typists. I am the friend of second essential things, and I am a constant reminder in the hands of the busy man of the "to do".

The carpenter would be lost without me. The artist and designer have me ever ready as their equipment. Geniuses have had me at their beck and call in the writing of history, poetry, fiction, and in the making of inventions.

I am carried by a servant. I am used for both good and bad records. The good predominates. I am bitten, hacked with dull knives, and am thrown away in disgust by the one who uses me, but I have no complaint for a new one of my kind takes my place. Competitors try to take my place, but, like the river, I have kept rolling along in my magnificence. I am a mere pencil. But oh, how important

By GREGORY CLARK

In the greater part of Canada, this week sees the climax of the autumn coloration of the forest and fields. The reason for mentioning fields is that in our pre-European days the great patches of the trees, we are likely to forget that a considerable part of the glory of October should be credited to a family of flowers known as the composites, or the daisy family, which includes the asters. Scientists have classified these to 200 species of which they are the second largest group. In Quebec City only 5.6 per cent of the population is of British stock.

Wherever a panorama of scarlet maples and golden birches fills the eye, you will find the lower margin of the picture marvellously framed in blues, lavenders and golds by the asters. All the asters' ditches are filled with them, in the corners of fields are great patches of them, a little ragged, a trifle faded perhaps but their color adding tremendously to the autumn splendor, color at little tenderer because the asters are so often pastel.

At a little distance, the wild asters appear to be perhaps a little scruffy and uninteresting. But to take one of the stems in hand, with anything from twenty to a hundred blooms on it, and to look closely at the blossoms, especially with a pocket magnifying glass, is to move into a most unexpected field of beauty. These plants are called compositae because each one is, in fact, two types of florets, the flat, strap-like florets that appear to be the petals of the aster, but in reality are each florets in themselves. And in the middle is the yellow disk of complementary disk florets, a dense pad of little flowers in themselves.

Aster names are not only on close scrutiny, or with a little magnifying glass, can you get the full impression of why the early makers of our language called them asters.

No Kilt For Philip

(Brockville Recorder & Times)

The late King George VI tradidtionally wore the kilt when in Scotland; he looked well in the kilt and apparently felt comfortable in it. And that was just fine for everybody, particularly the Scots. The kilt, however, has no appeal for our late King's son-in-law, the Duke of Edinburgh, who refuses point-blank to wear the kilt in Scotland or elsewhere.

Story has it that this refusal led to a battle with his wife, the Queen, who was most put out that the Duke should depart from his tradition of the kilt. Full marks to the Duke, say we. A man has the right to chose his own dress, even though his wife be a Queen.

What can we hope to get from the Communion Service—also called Sacrament, Lord's Supper, or the Eucharist?

Theologians in different branches of the Christian Church have different ideas and in their interpretation of the meaning of this Sacrament; but all unite in believing that in the Sacrament we get Christ Himself. His Person becomes one with our lives; His spirit touches our spirit. As we bow in the quiet of the communion we bring our sins and weaknesses to God and ask Him to forgive us for what we cannot do for ourselves. We feel His mercy coming down upon us, the very light of Heaven being shed abroad in our hearts. And then comes the voice: "This is My body...This is My blood...Take, eat, drink this and drink ye all of it; do show forth My death till I come.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper is one of God's great channels by which, if we have faith, He will pour into our lives forgiveness, comfort, enlightenment, courage, and renewed faith. The matter of first importance is not what we think about the Sacrament—although that is important—but what the Sacrament does to us and for us. Or, to put it differently, what do we let it do to us and for us. It does for us what we allow it to accomplish.

A Symbol of Security

as pictured by little Monique Lavallee

7 years old, Monique is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lavallee, Town of Mount Royal, Que. This sketch is her own version of what security means.

"Security" can mean many things to many people. Adults think in terms of a good job, a home of their own, the material comforts of life . . . a child sees it as something direct, simple dan close to home. In the imagination of this youngster, for example, security meant the sturdy, well-loved dog—always ready to defend his youthful friend and playmate against all comers . . . Canada Savings Bonds, too, can be a symbol of lasting security and protection for you . . . ready to build the kind of future you plan for.

Get the Savings Bond habit!

The average return per year gradually improves the longer the bond is held, until it reaches 3.44% at maturity. SISTERS ALL

By Jean Love Galloway

Some homes and a number of restaurants and theatres have convex mirrors with the American eagle prominently set in the top of the circular gilt frame. Did you know it is possible to tell the age of the mirror by the number of gold knobs which appear around the edge of the frame?

These particular mirrors were made to contain as many knobs as there were States in the Union at the time the mirror was made. An old mirror would carry only about eight knobs, whereas a more modern one might have several times that number. Next time you see one of these mirrors, note the number of gold knobs on the frame.

School Art

Many old paintings were framed with the name plate of the artist on them. This plate does not necessarily mean that the painting is authentic. Anybody can put a plate on a picture frame or sign a canvas.

Some of the world's greatest artists never signed their paintings. Their art could be told by its style and its quality. No name was needed. The trained eye could tell whether a painting was actually done by the master or not.

The masters used to take pupils to help with finances. Many of the old paintings which have the master's name on the plate, are really "school" paintings. The pupils would copy a scene from their teacher. As in school art classes today, the teacher would come along once in a while and help the pupils by making a few strokes of the brush here and there.

In this way, many paintings resemble the work of the great artist when they are totally the work of his pupils or followers. They are called "school" paintings and many of them are of excellent quality. But their value is low, compared with the real thing.

Paintings with the name of Constable or Gainsborough on them may be "school" pieces. Only a skilled art expert can tell the difference between a school painting and the genuine work of the artist himself.

Easy Sauces

If you are cooking cauliflower these days, try pouring a tin of mushroom soup over it, instead of making a cream sauce. You can also use a tin of celery or cream of chicken soup, etc.

Using soup in this way saves time and adds a new flavor to the vegetable. All three sauces are delicious, too, when whipped into scalloped potatoes and baked in the oven.

ADVICE to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

There may be a reason for her lack of boyfriends

Dear Miss Fairfax:

At 20 years of age I have a wide variety of girl friends and get along very well with them; but in my entire life there have been only two fellows I have really cared about and I've lost both. For some reason, they both seem to have thought of me as being cold, and I started giving this impression, but I just never seem to know how to act. I honestly don't know what makes them think this of me.

The fellow that I stopped seeing most recently told me that I was all wrapped up in myself and I was very hurt because I am neither selfish nor conceited. I've always had the idea that a girl should be placed on a pedestal, but I think perhaps I might be overdoing it, and would like to correct it before I do a good job of ruining my own life.—W. F.

Dear W. F.:

Where did you get the idea a girl should be placed on a pedestal? The only person I can agree is female and you think she female and it automatically entitles to reverence or something? Why?

You'd better get rid of any such conviction as quickly as you can, because nothing could be more ridiculous. Both women and men belong to the human race, and that's all there is to it. If you've been looking at it any other way, you can understand why you've been giving the boys a feeling that, being a girl, you are quite superior to them, and want to keep at a more formal romance. I suggest that you get down from your self-erected pedestal and start making yourself into a congenial and interesting young person whose company everybody will enjoy.

I rather suspect that your attitude may stem from shyness and self-consciousness more than anything else, and perhaps you just don't know how to go about being good friends with the boys. How about sending me a stamped self-addressed envelope for my suggestions on how to be popular. You may find some of them a little out of the usual, but then there are a lot of others that I think will help you.

Type love can survive a period of waiting

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been going out steady for the last seven months with a girl who will graduate from school in June. At this time we hope to get engaged. I have already graduated, am in the Naval Reserves now, and will be 19 when she graduates and she is just 17.

Sometimes I tell her that we should wait before being officially engaged until I finish my first two years in the navy and see if we still feel the same about each other by that time. I have no plans for the future in mind except to stay in the navy and together and then go on active duty. Please tell us what to do.—A. A.

Dear A.A.:

I think you would be well advised to do as you have suggested, and wait until you have finished your two years term in the navy before becoming engaged. Seven months is not a long enough time for a boy and girl to go together before making such a serious commitment, especially when both of you are pretty young for it anyhow.

Those who are truly in love can afford to wait awhile. If their love cannot survive a period of wise waiting, then they never were really in love at all. Only long-time acquaintance can make two people certain of the true nature of their feeling for each other.

Food for Thought

Readers' Saturday Column

By Mary Moore

From Mrs. W. W. P. asking for Rich Currant Loaf. I hope this resembles what she is seeking.

RICH CURRANT LOAF

One cup milk, 1 cup cold water, 1 fresh yeast cake or 1 package granular yeast, 2 teaspoons salt, 1-4 cup sugar, 1-2 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-4 teaspoon cloves (a optional; 1-2 to 1 teaspoon grated nutmeg, 1 teaspoon lemon grated rind, 3 tablespoons soft shortening, 5 1-2 cups sifted bread flour, 1-2 cup each washed and dried raisins and currants, 1-2 cup finely cut candied peel—this may be mixed or citron only, 1-4 cup drained sliced maraschino or glace cherries (add more cherries if desired—such as 1-4 cup each red and green). Scald the milk. Add cold water. Test temperature by dropping on wrist—if you cannot feel it, when drop touches inside of wrist it is lukewarm. Add crumbled yeast or 1 dehydrated granular yeast is used add 1 tbsp. 1 teaspoon sugar. Stir until dissolved, and let stand in warm place 30 minutes. Add salt, sugar and spices and grated rind. Sift the flour, then measure into large mixing bowl. Prepare fruits and nuts if used. One-third cup each walnuts and blanched almonds may be added if desired. Add fruits and nuts to sifted flour. Make a well in centre of flour mixture. Add shortening to the yeast mixture. Quickly and well pour into well in flour. Stir until all flour is dampened. Remove spoon and knead with one hand in bowl using swinging rotary motion. Dough, at first sticky, until dough becomes smooth. Knead on greased, not floured, board for 8 minutes. Then let rise in greased bowl, covered, for 2 hours in warm room. Punch down on greased board, shape into 2 loaves, and place in greased loaf pans. Cover and let rise in warm room at least 1-1-2 hours. Bake at 425 for 15 minutes and at 400 deg. Fahr. for 35 minutes longer. About 1 hour before baking time is up loaf may be glazed with mixture of 2 tablespoons each sugar and milk.

QUESTION:

Could I have sweet mustard pickle and bread and butter pickle recipes, please?—Mrs. Helen S.

ANSWER:

I have mailed the pickle recipes to you.

OATMEAL DROP COOKIES

One-half cup soft shortening or half shortening and half butter, 1 1-4 cups sugar, 2 eggs, 6 tablespoons molasses or corn syrup, 1 3-4 cups sifted flour, 1 teaspoon each salt, soda, cinnamon, 2 cups rolled oats, 1-2 cup cut-up nuts, 1 cup washed and dried raisins or 1-2 cup raisins and 1-2 cup cocoanut. Cream shortening and cream sugar into it. Beat in the eggs and molasses or syrup. Sift together the flour, soda, salt and cinnamon and stir into first mixture. Stir in remaining ingredients. Drop from teaspoon onto buttered cookie sheet, placing them 2 inches apart. Bake 8 or 10 minutes at 400 deg. Fahr.

QUESTION:

...your column's new to me as I have been in this section for only 1 1-2 years... earlier this year one of your fans wrote for recipes to vary the meals for her stomach ulcers. A diet for stomach ulcers. . . I want to mention a cookbook for stomach ailment patients—it was written by a Chinese doctor whose name I can't remember. The publisher's index could locate the name. "Good Food for Bad Stomachs" has splendid recipes and advice and is by Dr. Sara Jordan and Sheila Hibben, published by Doubleday and cost 3.50.

. . . during the years I was in a bachelor apartment I developed quite a technique in baking cakes in pressure cooker. . . I am enclosing clipping. . . outlining technique step by step. . . I found cakes mixes now available that right size the four or six quart presto cooker.

How long is it advisable to leave 4 or 5 lb. roast at room temperature to warm it up? Do you have a recipe for coffee cake with a mocha and fruit topping. Thanks for your column that is different.—Mary McD.

ANSWER:

Thank you for all of your help. I used the clipping for a column on baking cakes in pressure cookers. Meat requires 3 hours to warm to room temperature after being removed from refrigerator. See "Rich Currant Loaf above. (I have mailed you copy of those containing Coffee Cake which appeared earlier this week.

GOOD MANNERS

By CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Mrs. Beeckman advises that bride and groom should always have wedding cake

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My second wedding is to be soon. Is it necessary for me to have a wedding cake at the reception?

Not "necessary" to have a wedding cake at your reception. But I think every bride should have a wedding cake . . . so that she and her Prince Charming will have this festive ceremony always to remember. The bride cuts the first slice of this gala cake. . . the bridegroom's right hand over her right hand . . . and this first slice they joyously share together. It's a happy promise that they will always share!

What are the responsibilities of godparents?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I have been asked to be godmother for the baby child of a dear friend of mine. Does the godmother purchase the christening attire? . . Or would it be proper for a godmother to buy a gift suitable for an infant and let the parents provide the christening dress? Tell me, please, are godparents expected to remember their god child on any special occasions, such as birthdays, Christmas, graduation, and so forth? Or is this remembering optional?

One hears so many differing points of view about this!

2. I never knew my own godparents, as they passed away when I was very young. So I am not familiar with the "basic principles" of godparenthood-responsibilities of being a godparent, other than sponsorship at Baptism.—Godmother.

/ 1. It is the responsibility of the parents of the child to provide the christening dress and accessories. The godmother is not "supposed" to buy this dress, nor should she be "expected" to buy it, nor does she usually buy it. She may, if she wishes, give the christening dress, if she wants to make it a personal gift, or she chooses to give one of these appropriate christening presents: a silver cup and saucer, a bowl, a silver food set; a small silver plate, one or a pair of cups, a plain gold or silver or a delicate piece of ornamental linen or lasting apparel, for example, a dainty white dress. Or sometimes a godparent gives a bond, or starts a savings bank account in the child's name, according to the financial future occasions, such as birthdays, Christmas, graduations, and so forth. This remembering is certainly not a "must" . . . like all other parental duties, it depends entirely on the inclination and circumstances of the donor.

2. At the christening, the godparents stand as sponsors for the child, and in the service make, in proper responses and promises according to the ritual prescribed. It is usually the godmother who holds the child during the christening, and who gives the child's name to the minister. The "basic principle" of being a godparent is a moral and spiritual responsibility. We take interest in the child's life, in his religious training, in his education and career, if ever advice or help is needed, a godparent would give this according to his or her ability.

BABY-SITTER SENTENCED

VANCOUVER (CP)—A baby-sitter who let her charges watch her take narcotics was sentenced yesterday to two years in prison. Shirley Taylor, 18, was convicted of contributing to juvenile delinquency. Irvine Anderson, her 18-year-old boy friend, was given a similar sentence on the same charge.

The Experts Say— Cheese Gives More Flavor To Many Dishes

By KAY REX

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Food surpluses aren't healthy when there's no place for them to go. Housewives can help with the cheese surplus.

J. D. Hunt of the Ontario Cheese Producers Association told a meeting in Stratford recently that he couldn't "paint any rosy picture of the future," not with the present surplus of cheese.

The Stratford group was told that Quebec-made cheese is coming into the Ontario market at a lower price than the home product.

There are all kinds of good cheese dishes, and here's one—cheese souffle.

Use two tablespoons butter; three tablespoons flour; one-half cup scalded milk; one-half teaspoon salt; few grains cayenne; one-half cup grated bit cheese; yolks of three eggs; whites of three eggs.

Melt butter, add flour, mix well and add gradually scalded milk. Then add salt, cayenne and cheese. Add egg yolks which have been well beaten and cool mixture. Fold in egg whites beaten stiff. Pour into buttered baking-dish and bake 20 minutes in slow oven, about 300 degrees fahrenheit. Serve immediately.

Consumer Comments

High and low ovens were discussed at the annual meeting of the Canadian Association of Consumers at Toronto. Delegates learned that a survey among United States housewives disclosed that women over 40, who have had more experience with the high oven favor it. On the other hand women under 40 like the low-type oven.

Mrs. Christine White of Winnipeg said she wished manufacturers would produce more good utility sloves—and ones minus the fancy gadgets.

Mrs. Jean Butterfield of Toronto, head of the association's consumer research committee, suggested to the group that manufacturers of rubber rings be requested to stamp the date of manufacture on each package. She recalled a C.A.C. investigation of the complaint that "rubber rings for sealers are often too thin."

Factors Affecting Rubber

Manufacturers had been asked for their views. They said that humidity is known to affect rubber and it is impossible to control this factor although it was considered negligible in the case of a rubber ring.

"As to the shelf-life of the rubber ring, it should be renewed each year," said Mrs. Butterfield. Rubber cuddles, especially at high temperatures, and changes in time rubber results, resulting in hardness. If the housewife uses rings which have remained in the retail store or in her own cupboard for too long a time the rings might seem to be too thin."

CAMPBELLFORD

Well Known Residents Celebrate Their 53rd Wedding Anniversary

CAMPBELLFORD — Mr. and Mrs. William Heptonstall, residents of Campbellford for the past 50 years, celebrated their 53rd wedding anniversary on the week-end.

The couple came to Campbellford from Oxbridge, England, to work in the Tweed Valley cotton mills in 1923. Mrs. Heptonstall was the former Harriet Adams. They were married by Rev. Davis of Paris Church in Batley, England, in 1899.

Their two children, Elizabeth, (Mrs. Jack Williams,) of Campbellford, and James, of Ottawa, were both born in England, and the couple moved to Campbellford after they had been married about 13 years.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Heptonstall are the same age, 77, or birthday is on July 27, and this is the 29th, so that the couple usually celebrate their birthdays together.

Many messages of congratulation were received through the week, and a quiet celebration was held at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Jack Williams, in Campbellford.

2ND THURLOW

Friends, Neighbors Make Presentations

2nd THURLOW — Several friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Goddard met at their new home on Herchimer Avenue, on Wednesday afternoon of last week, and presented Mrs. Goddard with a black purse and Mr. Goddard a chrome smoker stand.

On behalf of the community, Mrs. Douglas Aitkins read an appropriate address and Mrs. D. Whalen and Mrs. F. Mitchell made the presentations. Although taken by surprise, Mr. and Mrs. Goddard made suitable replies thanking all for the lovely gifts and extended an invitation to come and see them whenever possible.

Mrs. M. Mitchell favored with several instrumental selections. Refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

Bevan Challenge Defeated, Labor Party Turns Attack On Churchill Administration

By FRASER WILSON

MORECAMBE, England (Reuters) British Socialists today ended a week of internal conflict and left Anti-Bevanite Prime Minister Churchill's Conservatives on the last day of their party conference.

For four days Labor party delegates have wrangled over left-wing rebel Aneurin Bevan and his demand that the rearmament program be cut. The Conservative government, which threw Labor out of power a year ago, has scarcely been mentioned.

One of Bevan's lieutenants, Ian Mikardo, today told the 1,300 delegates: "We might as well spend a couple of minutes having a go at our opponents instead of having a go at one another."

Bevan and Mikardo and four other Bevan supporters were elected to the party executive this week, displacing two right-wingers, Herbert Morrison and Hugh Dalton. And yesterday the Bevan group drew more than 2,000,000 of the party's 6,000,000 proxy votes for its arms-cut policy.

Attack Conservatives

The delegates, anxious to get home and assess the effects of the Bevan row in their own towns, today quickly agreed on resolutions attacking the conservatives.

They protested in a n a l m o s t unanimous vote against legislation to stop education services. They condemned Churchill's housing program and told the Labor executive to study proposals for public ownership of the building industry.

Equal pay for equal work done was the subject of another lengthy and another unanimous resolution. The delegates protested against Churchill's each a plank in their next election platform.

The leaders were beaten on a resolution from the agricultural workers urging legislation to stop a system under which many farm laborers are forced to live in houses provided by the farmers. Many Socialists claim these houses are in bad condition and that the farm leaders opposed being tied down to a definite timetable for legislation.

Anti-White Sect Is Suspected In Kenya Murders

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters) — Police last night found Mrs. Margaret Wright, 38, stabbed to death on the porch of her home — the second white woman to be murdered since a violent crime wave hit the Nairobi area early last month.

Mrs. Wright, wife of a personal officer in the posts and telegraphs department, was attacked by her farmhouse cook in suburban Nairobi. She had multiple injuries.

Mrs. Marie Chapman, 35, wife of an engineer and mother of two children, was murdered with five dagger wounds Sept. 25 in the bedroom of her home near the Nairobi national game park.

Sir Evelyn Baring, new governor of Kenya, has been invited to begin a tour of African areas including the Kenya highlands, where raiders believed to be members of the anti-white terror group Mau Mau killed a large number of cattle on European farmlands last week-end.

Accused Says Two Abducted By Unknowns

HAMILTON (CP) — Henry Lee, 37, yesterday testified in his own defence on a murder charge and described how two men abducted him and Mrs. Mary Rosenblatt took them on a 24-hour trip and finally shot her and wounded him.

Lee is charged with the murder of Mrs. Rosenblatt, found dead in a car early June 3. Lee was found later in the car with wounds in the chest.

Lee denied there was any suicide pact between him and Mrs. Rosenblatt. He demonstrated in court how a .32 calibre rifle is held when shots are fired.

Lee said he had been intimately acquainted with Mrs. Rosenblatt after they met two years ago.

Saturday, May 31, he said, he and Mary were at his house when two strange men entered. They were in a rough mood. They made me tie her ankles and wrists and we were taken separately to my bedroom."

The men then took them in Lee's car for a ride through Brantford, Kitchener, London and Chatham, testing until May 3. When they got out of the car into another, he said, he managed to elude them, but while they were driving home about midnight Monday, the other car pulled alongside.

Lee continued: "My gun, a .25 calibre rifle was lying on the floor under the front seat. I got out of the car, and as I got out, Mary put the rifle on the seat. I made a grab for it the same time as one of the two men. We wrestled for it, and the gun went off. Mary screamed and then I knew this was it. There were more shots and I fell clings in my cheek."

2 HURT AS RACERS CRASH

Paul Rutherford and Donald Henderson of Burford and Jerry Forster of Brantford were taken to hospital. Their injuries are not believed serious. The two drivers, Clark Hood of Brantford and John Reck of Kitchener, were not injured.

Eisenhower Comes Out for Election Of Sen. McCarthy

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower came out formally yesterday for the re-election of Senator Joseph R. McCarthy but said—in the presence of the Wisconsin Senator—that he does not agree with McCarthy's methods.

Eisenhower made the statement at his first whistle-stop appearance in Mr. McCarthy's home state.

McCarthy has been the centre of sharp controversy ever since he first charged, more than two years ago, that Communists had wormed their way into the federal government, and in some cases, he said, reached high office. The Senator's opponents accused him of "character assassination."

Standing on the back platform of his campaign train yesterday, Eisenhower first urged his audience to vote for all the Republican candidates in Wisconsin—which would include McCarthy, who was the Republican nomination last month. Then Eisenhower said:

"It is, of course, well known to you and to many others that there have been differences of opinion, sometimes on important matters, between me and the other people in the Republican party. Indeed, it would be a miracle if there were not.

"The differences between me and Senator McCarthy are well known to others. But what is more important is that they are well known to him and to me, and we have discussed them.

"I want to make one thing very clear. The purposes that he and I have of ridding this government of the incompetents, the disloyal, and above all the subversive and the disloyal, are one and the same. Our differences, therefore, have nothing to do with the end result we are seeking.

"The differences apply to method."

Assessment Appeals by Parkwood Heights Home Owners Dismissed

Assessment appeals from the court of revision entered by 60 home owners in the Parkwood Heights district have been all dismissed by His Honor Judge G. F. Smith of Napanee who heard the appeals last January. Judgment in the appeals case was handed down by Judge Smith this week.

In giving reasons for his judgment, Judge Smith said in his opinion the appellants had not satisfied him in establishing what would be a proper assessment, nor had there been any evidence to show how much the values of the respective properties should be increased or decreased.

One of the main points in the appeals was whether or not the one-and-one-half storey residences in the Parkwood Heights area were more valuable than were the bungalows. The city assessing department claimed the bungalows had greater value.

This question was first argued in court in 1949 when eight residents in the new housing area appealed their assessments with Judge Wilfred A. Lane of Picton granting the appeals. The city appealed Judge Lane's judgment and the Municipal Board confirmed Judge Lane's decision.

Then in 1951 properties in the Parkwood Heights area were "equalized" by the local assessing department under J. J. Combe, assessment commissioner. The "equalized" assessments were then appealed by 60 residents before the court of revision which upheld the assessments.

In giving judgment in the appeals case Judge Smith said that he believed Mr. Coombe and Leighton Thompson, local assessor, were competent men for assessing and felt there had been nothing given to discredit their evidence. He could not find any evidence of the appellants that would enable him to decide what values would be used in lieu of the present assessed values.

Dodgers Trounce Yankees 5-3 To Take Game Lead In World Series

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

HAWKS AHOY!

"I'm just hoping."

That is the phrase used by Chicago Black Hawks newly appointed coach Sid Abel, former Detroit Red Wing star when interviewed by this correspondent last night in Memorial Arena.

Meanwhile his rejuvenated Hawks flashing a lot of ex Toronto Maple Leaf power were going through a stiff practice session out there before a disappointing crowd of some 1,200 hockey-hungry fans.

Sid is a serious-minded young man, with years of experience behind him. Playing experience that is being tossed into the coaching pot alongside such world-famous men as Dick Irvin, Joe Primeau and the like is something that is bound to have some effect on a rookie coach.

But Sid is not the least bit perturbed. His worries are getting that big Black Hawk team going places and with the material at hand he thinks he can do just that.

And he's going to use some of that ability that thrust him into the topmost ranks of National Hockey League stardom whenever he sees fit. Sid's playing days are by no means over in the forthcoming National Hockey League season.

Sid leaned over the rail as he watched his Blacks and Whites go through their paces. Incidentally the "Blacks" paced by Gill Bodnar, Gus Ceviano and Jimmy McFadden trimmed the "Whites" by a 10-2 score in the intra-club tilt that was nothing more than a hard practice session although the Hawks flashed their best ability at times, since the ax is tottering over the heads of a few.

"There is what I like," said Abel as he watched the junior aggregation in action. He with that of the veterans. "These youngsters look very good and don't be surprised to see some of them up with the big team in the very near future."

Abel followed the play of young Hector Lalande, former Belleville Hawk junior "B" star, who with buddy Bob Wilson worked out last night. Incidentally Wilson scored a goal as an assist from Pete Babando while the wily young Lalande grabbed himself an assist.

Junior "A" players, Sleaver, White and Les Brinkley who played in the White sets appeared to be in good condition and fitted in nicely with the Black Hawk veterans. However, in this correct opinion the best player on the ice was Al Rollins, elongated Hawks goalie who will guard the Hawks next this season. Talking with Al in the dressing room between periods, we learned the youngster who nearly pushed "Fabulous-Pat" Broda into the discard is quite happy with his new surroundings. He appears to be a serious young man who feels that his new team will go places other than the cellar this year. If optimism and spirit has anything to do with it, it appears to this department that men Gus Sonyka did not get the better of the deal in the Lumley-four-player trade.

The Hawks appeared to be a well-conditioned team and came through that gruelling series with the Detroit Red Wings scarred but not scared. Tragedy struck the camp two days ago when Ed Kryzanowski, who is expected to carry some of the brunt of defence work, was informed his father had been drowned. That is the reason for his non-appearance on the ice last night.

However, to get back to Sid Abel. The newly appointed coach is not making any rash predictions. As was said before, "I'm just hoping." And by that he means he intends if it is at all possible to lift the Hawks, who have been in the National League cellar spot so long they should be offered janitor's jobs, out of the dank dark dungeon into the sunlight of a higher berth and possibly the playoffs.

But Abel with his National League experience behind him knows what he is up against. He knows what material he has to work with and his problem at the moment is sifting it into some sort of operational shape that will produce the best results. Besides he has a new "front office" behind him and that could help.

However Sid the Serious, who will be the National League's only playing coach, nodded his head with some sort of satisfaction as he leaned over the boards. "The boys have plenty of the old spirit," he said, "and that is going to help a lot. The new 'labor' from Toronto is going good and in Al Rollins we think we have the nucleus of a sturdy defence."

The game while only a workout for the Hawks gave the fans their first view of hockey this season and to a lot of them it was the first time a National Hockey League team parade their wares. There was a definite lack of body checking which was to be expected. In fact the only nasty thing we saw, was that handed out by young Bob Wilson who stopped one of the veterans dead in his tracks. It seems too bad that the powers-that-be can't see their way clear to bring two National League teams here to inaugurate the season. We realize that the cost would be plenty but we feel the added box office reaction might offset that. At least it would be a competitive hockey match and not a workout.

UP, THE GLENS! (Likewise Dodgers) *

This afternoon at two o'clock the Glen Ray juniors face the big test when they meet the Windsor UAW Local 195 team of ye-yunkers in the second and perhaps final game of their best-of-three Southern Ontario Junior "A" finals. The winner meets North Bay next Saturday.

The odds are with the Glens since the border city youngsters have a long hard bus safari to make and due to business and other reasons the team could not leave Windsor until one o'clock this morning.

But don't imagine for a moment that the Windsor team is a pushover. Any team that gets to a final playoffs even in checkers has to be good. This department feels the visitors are not quite as good as the Toronto Prince of Wales club, but at the same time it should be remembered that anything can happen in a ball game. If you don't believe that, ask Casey Stengel.

Slug Ed Lopat from Mound As Preacher Roe Goes Route; Joe Black Will Hurl Today

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—It appears to be unsafe to write the Dodgers out of this World Series. Charlie Dressen's gang has bounce.

Going into today's fourth game at Yankee Stadium holding a 2-1 lead and with their magnificent rookie, Joe Black, ready to give it another whirl, the National Leaguers were back in the driver's seat, fully recovered from the trouncing the Yankees gave them in the second game.

Serious doubts were expressed that the Dodgers would heal in time to get back into the playoff. They answered that one in full as they slugged easy Ed Lopat from the hill in yesterday's 5-3 comeback. Again their lowery jo be a great ball club in every respect, and Joe "Old Reliable" Hatten turn to look a good deal less than terrific.

Preacher Reese showed the throng of more than 66,000 why the National League considers him to be as brilliant a shortstop as there is in the leagues. The tall lanker, Elwin (Preacher) Roe, showed them pitching class in the pinches which the Yanks still remember.

Magnificent Gamble

In throwing Black back at Casey Stengel's crew, instead of saving him for relief duty, Dressen is the way as he had originally planned, Dressen again proved he has the heart of a born gambler.

But he made a smart, shrewd gamble. Should the big Negro beat Allie Reynolds again and make it 3-1 in victories the Dodgers would become overwhelming favorites to win their first world championship.

Stengel has no choice but to hand the ball to Reynolds, his only 20-game winner and hope that the Chief has a better game in his system than he had in losing the opener. Reynolds in his best form is a hard man to beat. Casey would have held him back another day and probably have used Johnny Sain today if Lopat had won, but he can't afford to monkey around with second-line pitchers at this stage.

In fact, the Yankees know now that they have a good ball team out there against them, and it would be just that surprising if some of their customary confidence was missing after yesterday's depressing experience. It is not often that the Yankees get licked on a passed ball. Usually they count on such things happening to the other club.

Berra Injured

Not only did the low pitch which got through Yogi Berra let in the two deciding runs in the top of the ninth, but it bunged Yogi up to where he is certain to be much less than his usually effective self for the balance of the Series. Indeed, he is able to play at all.

For some reason known only to himself, New York hackney always catches with the index finger of his left hand sticking out of the glove. That was the digit which got split on the play, and he was wearing a bandage on it last night. He said it was "hurting terrible."

There was considerable argument whether Yogi should have been charged with a passed ball. Many observers, including this one, thought that Berra and Ford Garrison, who had just relieved Lopat, cut across a catcher's path, but the official scorers saw it otherwise.

Whichever it was, Berra appeared to be a fellow playing blind man's buff as he searched the premises for the pellet while Reese and Jackie Robinson came tearing across the plate. Of course, Andy Pafko followed up with a single to right field which would have scored them anyhow, but no one will ever know whether he would have made it. But if he had, wild goings-on had not unsettled Gorman.

Reese played a tremendous game.

Vancouver, Petes Meet In Lacrosse Final

TORONTO (CP) — Last year's finalists for the Mann Cup, Vancouver Pilseners and Peterborough Timbermen, met again this year with the first game of the best-of-seven series for the Canadian Lacrosse Championship set for Sunday in Maple Leaf Gardens.

The Timbermen, defending champions, won the eastern Canada title Friday night by defeating Toronto West Yorks 16-8 in the seventh game.

Vancouver, who operated under the name of Combines last year when their series with Peterborough went to seven games, won the British Columbia championships by eliminating Vancouver Indians in the sixth game of the series.

The west coast team is scheduled to arrive here today so the team can get a full day's rest before the series opens. Seventeen players and four officials are making the trip by air.

The Pilseners have earned a reputation as a hard-hitting aggregation and Manager Jon Dale said they think they have a much better chance against the Petes than they had last year.

Peterborough is minus four key members of last year's championship team. Bill Sherratt has left to train with Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League and Jerry Fitzgerald is playing with Hamilton Tigers of the Ontario Football League. Two other standbys, Nick Magee and Emmett Creighton, have retired.

He sparked the Dodger offence with three hits, one of them a perfect bunt which set up his team's first run in the third. He changed the entire mood of the contest in the fourth when he went far to his left to grab Phil Rizzuto's grounder and toss to Robinson for a forecout at second. If that one had gone through, Joe Collins would have scored at least two runs and the Yankees might have been on his way to the showers.

Roe, we thought, gave his finest performance in the next inning, when, after two were out, Gene Woodling and Berra clouted successive singles. That brought up dangerous Hank Bauer, and Roe's first three pitches to him were balls. It was a situation in which the veteran pitcher had only a 2-1 lead at the time. His next seven pitches were strikes and Bauer fouled four of them off before he finally bounced out to second.

Lopat's failure to puzzle the National Leaguers only served to prove once again that they are up to southpaws. They murdered them all season, and now they feel certain that Stengel will not show them another to Roe, Reese and Robinson, in particular, were able to hit Lopat's zet stuff with amazing precision to whatever point they picked out.

Red Wings Trim Kansas City 8-4 To Even Series

ROCHESTER, N.Y. — (AP) — Righthander Jack Crimian's brilliant relief pitching for the second straight night helped Rochester Red Wings to an 8-4 victory over Kansas City Blues here last night to tie the Little World Series at three games apiece. Temperatures in the 30s kept the crowd down to only 3,093.

Crimian, who hurled four innings of no-hit, no-run relief Thursday night as the Wings beat the Blues, came on in the eighth with a 5-4 lead, nobody out and a runner on second base.

Crimian retired the side in order and then repeated in the ninth.

Is Berra Guilty of Big Blunder Or Did Tom Gorman Cross Him Up?

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Is Yogi Berra guilty of one of the most colossal blunders in World Series history?

Or was the squat catcher crossed by bespectacled Tom Gorman, the freshman pitcher of New York Yankees?

Who deserved the rap for the "rock" that cost the Yankees yesterday's World Series game?

The issue was still up in the air today as veteran sports writers, players and baseball officials discussed the controversial play that resulted in Brooklyn's victory.

Berra, New York's slugging All-Star catcher, denied the unfavorable group of World Series "goats" when he failed to chase a passed ball in the ninth inning while two Dodgers dashed home. Those tallies proved to be the winning ones.

"I Lost It"

Why didn't Berra make an effort to retrieve the ball after it got away from him until it was too late?

"I lost the ball," the catcher mumbled in the silent clubhouse after the game. "I didn't know where it went. I just didn't see it."

Berra accepted the full blame for letting Gorman's pitch get away from him after Pee-wee Reese and Jackie Robinson had pulled off a double steal.

Manager Casey Stengel of the Yankees doubted, however, that Gorman threw what Berra had called for.

"I think maybe that guy (Gorman) crossed him (Berra) up," said Stengel. "He (Berra) called for a fast ball. Maybe he (Gorman) threw him a curve."

But Berra defended his young pitching mate.

Player in Bad Shape

"I called for a fast ball and got it," he declared. "It was my fault that it got away. I knew what was coming."

Berra displayed the index finger of his left hand which was struck by the pitch. Berra always catches with the left forefinger outside the glove. It was bleeding profusely. The tip of the finger was split and the nail was torn.

"The pitch hit the tip of the mitt and smashed the finger," Berra said. "There was some short-term pain for a moment I was stunned. . . ."

Gorman, a glum young man, told just about the same story after he finally got around to talking with the waiting reporters.

"He (Berra) asked for a fast ball and that's what I threw," he said. "At least that's what I intended to throw."

Detroit Wings Meet 'Field' In All-star Game

DETROIT (AP) — It's virtually a case of Detroit Red Wings versus the field in the sixth annual National Hockey League All-Star game at Olympia Stadium tomorrow night.

The "dream game" of hockey will be played in Detroit for the second time. The games stand as a charity contest, the bulk of the receipts being turned over to the N.H.L. Players' Association.

Selection of the players is on the same basis as established last year. The first team is chosen by a coaches' committee and then voted on by players from the league's four United States cities. The second team is picked by players from Montreal and Toronto.

The Red Wings also dominate the first team. In addition to the four Red Wings named to the league coach Dennis Irvin added four more Detroit players by his line-up. That means the Red Wings will have eight of the 27 players dressed for the first team. In addition Irvin will coach the team, with Jack Adams of Detroit acting as trainer.

Are Black Bass Cyclic?

By John Alden Knight

(noted sportsman, author and creator of Solunar Tables)

The more I fish and read of fishing and observe fish and fishermen, the more am I convinced that we have more to find out about fish than we have been able to learn.

It wasn't so very long ago that it was agreed that black bass went into hibernation during the winter months. I'm speaking now of northern black bass, those living north of the Mason-Dixon Line.

Now we know that this is not entirely true. To be sure, some bass do hibernate, particularly the smaller ones. They have been found inside logs, in the crevices among the rocks, buried in the mud, during the winter, with ambition almost completely suspended.

However, too much evidence has come in of late for us to believe that all northern bass hibernate. The large, adult bass are more apt to spend their winters swimming about in deep water.

More or less recently another phenomenon has forced itself upon me too strongly to be ignored. For many years I have watched it work itself out in two or three of my favorite bass rivers, the Delaware and the north branch of the Susquehanna.

Hags Base

What first brought the matter to my attention was a tremendous bass which was caught in the Delaware near the village of Mast Hope. This fish was a small-mouth bass, taken by a woman and a twelve-year-old boy while trolling with a heavy handline.

Unfortunately it was not weighed, but its estimated weight was between twelve and fourteen pounds. Its most supplied the diversion of the families, a total of eleven people.

Some of the old timers around Mast Hope identified the fish as an "Oregon Bass." It was lighter in color than the usual Delaware bass, being a yellowish green. The older fishermen were not particularly impressed by its size, stating that larger Oregon bass had been taken from that pool in past years.

The belief is that these Oregon bass came up into the river every seven years. A good many of these so-called basters are taken, during a single season. Then they disappear and no more comparable whoppers are caught during the six seasons immediately following.

Who am I to say that there is no such species as an "Oregon bass"? All I can say is that a seven-year migration does not account for the fish stock still in the middle of the Delaware or Delaware? (At least, the waters of the lower Delaware were heavily polluted when that fish was taken.) All I know is what those old boys said about the fish and that it actually was caught.

Cycles in Schools

But I do know this. Every once in a while, or just about the same seven-year cycle, the headwaters of the Delaware, above the junction of the East and West Branches do hold a disproportionate number of yearling bass.

These fish seem to cruise in schools and move from pool to pool. They are big bass, larger than those waters usually hold, and they have given me fishing that I will never forget.

During the fortunate season we hook them with fly-rod tackle. Some of them we land — four pounds and upward — some come unhooked and are lost, and some, which feel like log boats, swim away with our terminal tackle.

The following season they simply are not there and we go back to catching one and two-pound bass. As I say, this invasion of big bass seems to follow the seven-year cycle of the "Oregon bass."

In the North Branch of the Susquehanna my information is somewhat more accurate. When we catch a big bass from that river we have instituted the scheme of making a tracing of the fish and labeling the tracing with date, weight, where caught, etc.—These tracings are then placed in file.

Reference to them shows that our good catches were made in that river in 1942, 1949 and 1944.

During those years there were plenty of large fish in the North Branch. Three-pounders were actually common and four-pounders not unusual. I know of two bass taken in 1943, one of seven pounds something and the other slightly over nine pounds.

In 1945 the big boys were not so numerous. They were not being caught, or, if they were, were simply not big enough to be worth saving.

In Poor Condition

In 1946 I took my last large bass from that river. This fellow was nearly two feet long, but he was in miserable condition. He weighed two and three-quarter pounds. Had he been in normal condition for North Branch bass he very well could have topped the five-pound mark.

For the next four seasons the average bass which came to our lures from those waters was in the one-pound class. Now and then we had a two-pounder which weighed around the three-pound mark but these were the outstanding exceptions.

Now, I am happy to report, the average is higher and the fish we bring home are around the two-pound to two-and-one-half-pound marks. It looks as though we would have good fishing again within a reasonably short time.

In matters of this sort there are, of course, always exceptions. Few things in nature will give the observer a hard and fast rule.

Thus, we must deal in averages. From 1943 I have seen our big bass supply shows every indication of being cyclic and the cycle appears to tie in with the rumored seven-year cycle of the "Oregon bass."

HAMILTON (CP)—Hamilton Panthers rallied in the last half of their Ontario Rugby Football Union intermediate game here last night to defeat Kitchener Greenshirts 11-10.

Panthers were on the defensive during the early part of the game and began their winning plays near the end of the third quarter. Ed Farr completed a forward to Mel Fugay from the visitors' 33-yard line for the major. Steve Pochiuk went over for the second touchdown from four yards out after the visitors had plunged for two successive first downs from the Kitchener 34. Fugay kicked the convert.

World Series Dressing Room Chat

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP) —The lean soon-hunter from Ash Flat, Ark., ate high on the hog yesterday.

"But I'm sure glad I didn't have to face Vic Wertz here any other time round," Elwin Priscilla Roe said in the Brooklyn dressing room, gently massaging the whip like left arm which, for the second time in a World Series had tamed the mighty Yankees.

"The time it went on six hits and three of those hits were a home run, double and single off the bat of the Yanks' squat catcher, Yogi Berra.

Better by Way

Roe said he hadn't the stuff he showed in 1949 when he beat the Yankees 1-0 in Ebbets Field in the second game of that series.

"I might do anything with my curve, so I had to use my slider more," my curve would break six inches one time, six feet another. But my slider was working okay. I didn't do more than anything else."

A Wee bit wavy, also the creature of exploding flash bulbs and fast-scribbling pencils the Dodgers' restless little manager, Charley Dressen, paid tribute to Roe's pitching and Brooklyn's daring base running.

"Roe was better than usual but was good in the tight spots," said Dressen. "Base running won for us today."

What proved to be the two eventful innings came in the two of the eight after successive singles by Pee Wee Reese and Jackie Robinson.

Reese and Robinson pulled a double steal in the third and second, respectively, then scored when Berra let one of Tom Gorman's pitches get away from him.

Manse signalled me from second that he wanted to make the move," Reese said, "I signalled him to go ahead. Reese made the break with me," Robinson said.

That time they'd forever be remembered by Yankee pitcher and the game for us," said Dressen.

Roe first fanned the batch with two out, when Phil Rizzuto hit a short fly that skirted the centre of the infield. Reese made a spectacular shoestring stab at the ball, which was labelled a hit, and tossed to second for the forceout, ending the inning.

By Ted Smits

NEW YORK (AP) — Yogi Berra took the blame on himself yesterday in the tense, gloomy Yankee dressing room for the pitch that sailed over his head in the fifth inning and allowed two potent Dodger runs to score in the third World Series game.

"I did it myself, it's my fault," said Berra.

Manager Casey Stengel had suggested that pitcher Tom Gorman might have thrown a pitch Berra was not expecting, but the stocky Yankee catcher refused to pass the buck.

The pitch hit the forefinger of Berra's left hand and scooted off towards the Dodger dugout. It was first ruled a wild pitch and then was called a passed ball.

Finger Hurt

Pee Wee Reese and Jackie Robinson, who had just pulled a double steal to start the fatal third and second, scored while Berra, confused by the pain, stook stock still. The mishap took away any chance Berra might have had in hitting his third Series home run as he see-amply hist in the eighth.

It was a tough day for the Yankee slugger. In the eighth he dropped Duke Snider's high foul back of the plate.

"They outplayed us," Stengel said "In the long run they played the best game. They won it themselves."

Yanks Puzzled

The Yankees were not only depressed. Their own heroics, from pitcher Roe didn't look like the greatest thing ever on the mound, but he was in command.

"What did he have?" Mickey Mantle was asked.

"Dunno," said the young Yankee slugger who went hitless after clubbing five safeties in the first two games. "Dunno, but he sure must have had something."

Fred Astaire Proves He Can Dance on Air

The most exciting pair of legs in Hollywood don't belong to a Lana Turner or Betty Grable. They're the property of a gentleman named Fred Astaire.

Astaire's legs have danced where others haven't even walked. Fifteen years ago, they were insured for a million dollars. Today they're tripled in value. Perhaps this reason their owner is dancing on air in his latest achievement in his latest Technicolor musical, MGM's "The Belle of New York," starting today at the Belle Theatre.

To film audiences, Astaire's dance on air will seem incredible. To the dancing star, it's just another milestone in his magical career. When his friend Noel Coward, recently stated: "Fred Astaire is the synthesis of music and movement; his dancing plays on the emotions of all who watch it," Astaire's answer was: "Bunkum. I just put my feet in the air and move them around."

These same legs have also danced the Carioca with Ginger Rogers—the Samba with Rita Hayworth—the Swing Trot with Judy Garland—the waltz with Vera-Ellen. She's the girl who follows Astaire as his partner in "Three Little Words" with a repeat performance in the current "Belle of New York." They share not one but half a dozen dance numbers. A vote of confidence treasured by any girl who has ever danced with Mr. Astaire.

Marjorie Main (Ma Kettle) shares stellar honors with Fred Astaire and Vera-Ellen in "The Belle of New York."

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes, and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

If SUNDAY, OCT. 5, 1952.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Signals, anxiety, quibbling, over-sensitiveness mean ones to watch out for this week, starting today. But you can overcome such through self-control.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Nervous action, keeping going even when it is time for rest, are special don'ts. Quiet down, without moping.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Your cheery disposition is most needed when you often don't feel like displaying it. That is when it is important, so get it out front. Don't neglect church, of course.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—You may have to "save the day," as the expression goes. You can do it! Indeed, you of this Sign are gifted at practical nurses. Somebodies in the true sense. In general smiles will "save the day."

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—Brightness, affability and generosity are outstanding Leo traits when you are living up to your finest—which we hope is now. Those traits are winners.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Where there's a will there's a way" is fine, but don't let this helpful saying be misconstrued into careless or being opinionated. Consider others' opinions, too.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—When tirde after a full week, relax—if only for a few minutes—at a time. But don't neglect important (even though little) obligations. Pray.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Be busy, if necessary, but not in a rushed state, which is harmful both to health and to that which you are trying to do. Remember church services.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Review thoughtfully the afternoon's activities. Then go about them in orderly fashion. Careful system can save much time, effort.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Usually when the going is hardest or the hour latest, then can you of this birth period accomplish what surprises others and often yourself. But don't go at too fast a pace.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—You are a quiet, efficient person when most needed. But you do not always express yourself as you should, leaving unsaid good things. Pray; seek God's guidance.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Let out some of that inner fun and wholesome laughter, know that others often need and thrive on the little bits of fun or friendliness we too often withhold. Spiritual duties first.

YOU BORN TODAY: Mentally and physically active, thinly being normal. Your Sign Libra is notable for even balance, sound judgment, especially when it is vital to others' well-being. Don't spend too many hours at pleasure, then work too harm or long. Pray, have confidence in God's gifts. Birthdate of: Chester Alan Arthur, 21st Pres; Jonathan Edwards, noted theologian.

60,000 Fires, Mostly Caused By Carelessness, Took 493 Lives, Heavy Property Loss

Written for The Canadian Press
By C.A. THOMPSON
Dominion Fire Commissioner

OTTAWA (CP) — Some 60,000 fires, most of them caused by carelessness, took 493 lives in Canada last year and caused property loss of $104,000,000.

All this could have been prevented if Canadians understood that the main causes of fires are their carelessness and their lack of knowledge of simple fire prevention.

Fire Prevention Week, this year from Oct. 5 to Oct. 11, was designed to advise, teach and inspire Canadians to take their responsibility in respect to fire seriously and to use the knowledge they have gained to the reduction of this dreaded scourge.

Call For Inspection

A thorough inspection should be made of homes, factories, stores, institutions, assembly buildings and transportation facilities for improperly designed, constructed and installed heating and electrical appliances. Protection should be provided in cases where they are close to combustible materials.

This particularly concerns chimneys, flues, stoves, furnaces, boilers, pipes, oil burners, electric light and power appliances and devices. It applies to handling of hot ashes, coals, open fires, smoking, matches, lights—other than electric—and rubbish.

Home Losses High

Responsible citizens know that fire prevention and the protection of natural resources are essential to our living and the prosperity of our people and our country.

It is in our homes that 75 per cent of the lives and 25 per cent of the loss occur. It is here that we must discharge our responsibility by taking action to correct the deficiency that tends to destroy our property.

In 1951, fire attacked 45,000 homes and caused damages of $18,958,702; 6,300 stores with a loss of $2,442,100; 1,800 factories with a loss of $17,042,315; 2,500 farms with a loss of $5,549,354; and 800 institutional and assembly buildings with a loss of $5,252,516.

An analysis of the 1951 fires show that many Canadian structures contain weaknesses which help the spread of fire — ineffective fire walls, poor or no cut-off of vertical and horizontal openings, insufficient water supplies, insufficient fire fighting equipment and manpower in fire departments and insufficient fire protection and prevention training.

If you have fire problems, discuss them with your fire chief. He'll give you the kind of advice you need.

Major Candidates, Top Supporters All Campaigning

WASHINGTON (AP) — For possibly the first time in the 1952 presidential campaign all major candidates and their top supporters campaigned simultaneously today. Stevenson, Eisenhower, Taft, Kefauver and McCarthy in the forefront, Nixon and Sparkman in the border states of the south and President Truman in the far west.

Governor Adlai Stevenson, Democratic presidential candidate, invaded Senator Robert A. Taft's home state of Ohio, armed with a prepared address attacking what he called the new Republican isolationism which he said could lead to "national tragedy."

Slogan Technique

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, his Republican opponent, moved through Wisconsin, sharing the spotlight with Senator Joseph R. McCarthy, controversial Wisconsin Republican. The general was expected to continue using his shoe-gun technique — criticizing Democrats for everything from Korea to corruption.

President Truman, whistle-stopping through Oregon and California, hammered away at accusations calling him a captive of the "Republican isolationist" when election might endanger the United States.

Taft was saying about the same thing—but about Stevenson. "Mr. Republican" said Stevenson's election would endanger the country because he would pursue what Taft termed its "greatest threat" to continue — a threat he said was created by "stupidity and pro-Communist sympathies in the State Department."

Shifty Campaign

Senator Richard Nixon, Republican vice-presidential nominee, shifted his campaign into Maryland and Delaware, saying things look bright for a Republican victory in Democratic strongholds.

Senator John Sparkman, the Democratic vice-presidential candidate, scheduled two speeches in Chattanooga, Tenn. Ending a tour through upstate New York yesterday, he told a political dinner at Amsterdam that Eisenhower doesn't understand the country's economic problems; that all he knows is what Taft has told him.

Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, raced out by Stevenson for the nomination, was on the campaign trail for the first time for his victorious rival. He said in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, last night that Eisenhower had run off with the Democratic farm plank, but he didn't blame him — "the poor man needed it."

Given 20 Years

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP)—Francois Peter Dennis Thursday was sentenced to 20 years in prison for killing a man in a fight in which a motorboat was the deadly weapon.

In sentencing Dennis for manslaughter, Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson said the case was "as little short of murder as any in my experience."

Dennis, 39, was originally charged with murder in the slaying of William Austin, 30, but an all-white jury convicted him on the reduced charge.

Austin's widow and son testified that after a quarrel Aug. 2 Dennis rammed Austin with his craft on Stuart Lake, then tossed Austin into the water and ran over him.

FIVE-YEAR VIGIL ENDS

BOSTON (AP)—A hopeful wife of more than five years ended yesterday for Isaac Abbott. His son, Ralph, 39, died in a Veterans Hospital. The younger Abbott had been unconscious since his car struck a tree Feb. 17, 1947. The 91-year-old father visited his bedside daily, never giving up hope that his son might open his eyes and recognize him.

Norway Declares Intention to Keep Three Ships

OSLO (AP)— Norway declared Fri. she intends keeping three ships that Britain and the United States announced would be returned to eastern Germany.

They are among 33 former German merchant vessels totaling 60,000 tons taken over by the Allies after the war and set aside for disposal as reparations.

A Foreign Ministry statement said the three ships were built during the German occupation of Norway under German military orders and were paid for out of funds drawn by the occupation authorities from the Bank of Norway.

Britain and the U.S. announced yesterday that the 33 ships, including tankers, cargo vessels, whale catcher and ferries, would be returned to the West German government. Their ultimate disposal will be decided upon by the Bonn regime.

Bitter Reprieve

By Drexel Drake

"Same thing, Lieut," the man said. "The only thing the lady changed was her brand of cigarette. But it's still a match.

"When the men had gone, Talent studied the two fingerprint photos, made six years apart. He had been hoping but without conviction, for a different report. But there was no need now for Harry Bindle's call until Monday. He'd let Dick enjoy his long weekend.

Saturday morning's newspapers carried the story of the filling of Marcus Sterling's will. It was given prominence because of huge reward offered for Miriam Sterling's murderer. That justified complete review of the six-year-old tragedy.

After lunch Walter Cavé deposited himself angularly in a cushioned chair beside Lieutenant Talent's desk.

"I've got to do a Sunday story on this Sterling business, Lieut," Cave said. "One of your great unsolved murders, wasn't it? I mean you were in charge. Think this dough can stir up anything?"

Talent leaned forward, looked at the reporter seriously. Something occurred to him . . . something trying. "If you're willing to pass up the question and answer routine, I'll give you something. If you'll use it on my terms," Talent said.

"Five or six days after Mrs. Sterling's murder, we picked up a body under the Willemsburg Bridge on the waterfront. The body was identified as that of Joe Steppo, a young Chicago gangster. That got about five lines to your paper."

"And it ties up . . ."

"Wait. Now suppose you just happened to stumble onto some gossip that at the time the police had a theory that possibly there was a connection between the murder of Mrs. Sterling and the murder of Joe Steppo, and you came in here today and asked how about it, and all you could write was that Talent neither confirmed nor denied it."

"I see. The old dodge way of saying it's the McCoy. Say, that's hot, Lieut!"

Lily Francie, with a figure that showed neglect and a face that accentuated over-attention, impressed Talent as a woman of possibly 30 who looked 40 but was striving valiantly to appear 25.

"Do I get myself in trouble by coming to see you?" she asked.

Talent grinned amiably. "If you weren't in trouble before you came in here, you won't get into trouble while you're here," he said. "I was told you asked to see me especially?"

"Well, your name was in the story."

"What story, Lily?"

"Yesterday. The one about a hundred grand reward in the Sterling murder a few years back."

"Oh. You can tell me something about the murder of Mrs. Sterling?"

"Never heard of the dame and don't know who killed her."

"But the reward interests you, is that it?"

"Well, I could sure use some dough. Wait, Lieutenant, let me show you something." Lily Francie opened her bag, flashed out a frayed envelope. From that she extracted a crisp bill and tossed it on the desk in front of Talent.

"What's wrong with that century?" she asked.

Talent held the bill, studied it. The woman was given no reason to suspect the intense interest it had aroused when Talent said severely, "It seems to be a perfectly good $100 bill. What makes you think something's wrong with it?"

"I was told not to spend it."

"Who told you that?"

"My boy friend. That was after he gave it to me. He phoned and told me to burn it. Well, I didn't do that. I just kept it."

"How long?"

"Since 1949."

Talent's glance wandered from the woman's face back to the bill in his hand. After six years, one of Marcus Sterling's 100 bills had found its way to his desk.

Talent took out his wallet, counted out ten 10's. He handed them to Lily Francie. "Here's $100 you won't have to be afraid to spend," he said. "I'm buying the bill from you."

"Thanks."

"And now Lily, tell me why you came in here with this bill."

"Well, my boy friend was mentioned in the story."

Lieutenant Talent experienced the second startling but pleasant shock from Lily Francie's visit.

"So Joe Steppo was your boy friend, was he?" Talent said.

"You got it. We come from Chicago together a few days before somebody rubbed him out."

"And you know about his rubbing out?"

"I only know who he was working for. A man named Bindle. It was a one-day job. Joe met a friend of his that steered him to Bindle. Me and Joe had a room on 11th Street, in a dump. Joe was out in the morning and came back at noon. He said he had a job for that afternoon to pick up some easy dough. He had a pocketful of centuries. He peeled off that one and gave it to me. Told me to have a good time for myself. He called me up after five o'clock and told me to get rid of that bill, to burn it, that it was hot and would get me in trouble. I never saw Joe again. He didn't get back that night. A couple days later I saw in a paper somebody dumped him cold over on the waterfront. That's all of it, Lieutenant."

"Ever see Bindle?"

"No."

"Know anything about him?"

"Not a thing but what I told you."

"Who was the friend that took Joe to Bindle?"

"Joe didn't tell me his name—just a pal he knew in Chicago." Lily became defensive. "You don't blame me, do you Lieutenant, if I thought maybe I could cash in on a piece of that hundred grand?"

"No, I don't blame you, Lily. Let me know where I can reach you, and don't talk to anyone else about this."

"Sure, sure I won't, Lieutenant. Let me write you my address on a piece of paper."

From the meager information provided by Lily Francie, a search for the whereabouts of Harry Bindle could have been more arduous. But, aided by a knowledge of the nature of Joe Steppo's final employment, Lieutenant Talent's men, although they had only Bindle's surname to guide them, made rapid progress. One of them phoned in an address to Talent a little after 3 o'clock, with the added information that Bindle was in the office. Fifteen minutes later, Talent, accompanied by Detective Gus Risley, joined two Headquarters men in the entrance way of a vacant store in upper Forbes, just off Eighth Avenue. Across the street, occupying half of the ground floor of a squalid three-storey building, was the office of a clothes cleaning establishment.

"That shop is just a front," one of the headquarters men said to Talent. "Bindle's layout is behind it. The shop does a little business, of course, through the front door, but Bindle's customers use the gangway from this street, or come in from the back from the next street."

Talent placed his men. He gave Ripley's orders to follow him in 10 minutes if he didn't return. Then he went into the office of the drab clothes cleaning shop.

A girl sat behind a counter. She looked up when Talent shut the door behind him. He walked toward the passage between the counter and the side wall.

"Where you going?" the girl asked.

"Back to see Mr. Bindle," Talent said, without interrupting his nonchalant progress.

He was past her before she could frame a protest. Far back, there were three short buzzing sounds. So the girl in the shop was a lookout, Talent reflected. The hallway widened into a room that seemed to be, little more than storage space for clothes racks and packing cases. It had one dim light, just enough to outline a heavy-panelled door at a rear corner. Before Talent reached the door, it opened, and a thick, coarse-featured man stepped through it. He scowled at Talent.

"Who you looking for back here?" he demanded.

"Harry," Talent said mildly. "I need his help on something."

Talent flipped back a lapel of his coat. The brief flash of authority caused the man to alter his obvious intention of closing the heavy door behind him. "Okay. Come along, but don't generally use this door."

Inside the room beyond the door, the man stepped aside as Talent followed and said "A cop to see you, boss."

Harry Bindle looked up from a massive walnut desk. Before he could make up his mind what to say, Talent said, "Just a word or two is private, Harry. I'm Lieutenant Talent from Headquarters. I think you can help me."

"Sure, any time, sit down," Bindle said grudgingly. He made no move to get out of the chair behind his desk. His orders to the other man were unspoken . . . merely a jerk of the head. The man closed the door, then disappeared through a side door. Bindle forced a smile. "What can I do for you, Lieut?"

"Trying to find out something about a girl named Lily Francie," Talent said.

Bindle relaxed. He jerked open a drawer of his desk and took out a box of cigars, offered them to Talent, selected one himself.

"The name don't bit. Am I supposed to know her?" While saying that Bindle's stubby thumb and forefinger were rolling the cigar head into a tight wad. He dropped it into his desk ashtray and, his fat chin resting on his desk, he peered blankly across at Talent from beneath the drooping brim of a soft hat tilted to meet his right eyebrow and rest on his right ear.

Talent tossed the $100 bill he had bought from Lily Francie on the desk. "We found that on her. She said she got it from you."

There was complete absence of implied accusation in Talent's statement. Bindle looked at the bill without reaching for it.

FIVE DROWN AT MORAN LAKE NEAR NORTH BAY

Underwater Camera

In an experiment never before tried in North America, Canadian fisheries experts are viewing the underwater mysteries of a lake near Banff, Alta., by means of a newly-developed underwater television camera. The camera, developed by the National Research Council, enables scientists to see into the depths of the lake without risk involved in using divers. It is fitted with spotlights to illuminate the lake bottom and has various lenses to view a wide field or take a close-up look. The camera is encased in a water-tight compartment. — (CP Photo).

'Battle of The Hills' Means Fighting at Close Quarters With Rifles and Bayonets

REGUL (AP)—In the cold, impassive language of the communiques, "enemy troops attacked two hill positions on the central front and were repulsed by Eighth Army counter-attacks."

That, in the official language, is the "Battle of the Hills," the kind of war it has been for weeks and for many a month to week. But it really isn't that way at all. Here is what that battle means:

It means shooting in bunkers while the Reds unleash a hell of artillery and mortar fire in volumes hitherto unheard of on the Communist side.

It means watching through the gun slits as the enemy emerges from the mist of the valley below, or comes into the glare of the flares if it is night.

At Close Quarters

It means firing with machine-guns and rifles until you can fire no more. And then it is grenades, bayonets and fists at close quarters against these strange Orientals who laugh or scream in combat.

It means enemy dead in windrows, and your own wounded borne bumping in agony back down the trail.

That is just a glimpse of what it is like in what has come to be known as the "Battle of the Hills." You know the names, Bunker Hill, Old Baldy, Big Nori, T-Bone Ridge, Capitol Hill, Finger Ridge.

What is behind this savage, killing effort of the Communists to take the hills? Why do the Reds keep flinging rounds of artillery in a single day—ammunition that must be brought up laboriously by human pack and cart?

No Offensive Soon

Behind the front, you get a variety of answers. But one thing Allied officers agree on. They see no yet on the Communist side a massing anywhere for an offensive. There are no signs of that.

Most officers mark down the vicious "Battle of the Hills" of September as "heavy harrassing," the killing kind.

Gen. Mark Clark, United Nations Far East Commander, says the relentless Communist assaults do not seem "related to any change in policy" by the Reds. It may, he says, there is "always a fight" for high positions.

The staff at Eighth Army headquarters show that the battleline has not changed materially since armistice negotiators negotiated a provisional cease-fire line almost a year ago. Changes in the last 11 months have been minor, perhaps no greater than a ball mile at any point.

In the last four weeks, Hills have changed hands as many as six times. Most of them now are in Allied control.

Actions Minor

By any measure of recent wars, the actions on these hills have been relatively small. Communist assaults in September never exceeded a battalion—some 750 men.

Allied officers say that the fighting qualities of the Communists, notably Chinese Reds, are better than a year ago.

Eighth Army officers with access to intelligence say that the morale of North Korean troops has dropped a bit but that the morale of the Chinese troops is good.

As the battle roars on, Allied officers are more concerned with Communist capabilities than intentions.

One enemy capability that has surprised the Allied command is the Communist ability and willingness to unleash these concentrations of artillery and mortar barrages, thus expending precious ammunition stores.

"An Eighth Army officer said there was no question that the Reds have having trouble bringing supplies up to the front.

"But," he said, "you can support an army without a highway system. The Reds have proved they can do it with donkey carts and by loading ammunition on a man's back. They have manpower to spare and they work the hell out of them."

PARISH HALL DAMAGED

COBOURG (CP)—Fire in the parish hall adjoining St. Peter's Anglican Church yesterday damaged part of a gymnasium gallery, ruined a piano and a large quantity of Boy Scout equipment. The fire was under way during the morning services, unknown to the congregation. Flames shooting through the roof were noticed by a passer-by.

Fate To Be Unknown for Weeks In Struggle Against Mt. Everest

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Six Swiss mountain climbers tolled up the bleak slopes of unconquered Mount Everest today for a final assault on the 29,002-foot mountain's summit, 5½ miles high. No man has ever climbed the world's highest peak and returned to tell about it.

It was the second attempt this year for the Swiss party. One of the six, Raymond Lambert, climbed to within 900 feet of the 29,141 high peak on May 28 before storms drove him back. A husky alpine mountain guide, Lambert last all his toes and several fingers

TWENTY SEAMEN OF U.K. FISHING TRAWLER DROWN

Vessel Founders In Fog Off Greenland

HULL, England (AP) — Twenty seamen of the British fishing trawler Norman drowned when their 420-ton vessel foundered in a dense fog off the lonely Greenland coast of Greenland, it was reported here today.

Only one survivor, 19-year-old Norman Spencer, was picked out of the icy sea by a Norwegian ship, Poseidon. Another fishing trawler picked up 12 bodies. Six bodies.

The crew, all of whom came from Hull, abandoned ship Saturday.

Two Women, Three Children Drown in Car

L'ISLET, Que. (CP) — Two women and three children were drowned Saturday when their car automobile was backed over the side of a pier in the River St. Lawrence south shore town and dropped into 15 feet of water.

The dead were identified as Mrs. Henri Coulter, her three children —each girl aged six and a three year-old son—all of Quebec, and Mrs. Georges Cloutier, 38, of L'Islet, about 45 miles from Quebec.

Georges Cloutier said the five victims were sitting in the automobile with the engine idling. The headlights were shining on his brother and other fishermen when the chauffeur turned them to advance along the long concrete pier.

He said his wife, apparently unfamiliar with his brother's car, shifted into reverse gear and the automobile shot out of control, driving over the side.

Let Be Hanged On December 30

HAMILTON (CP)—Harry Lee, 27 was sentenced to be hanged Dec. 30 in Hamilton (CP)—Harry Lee, 27 was sentenced to be hanged Dec. 30 in Hamilton Saturday. The sentence day when found guilty of the murder of Mrs. Mary Rosenblatt, mother of two. Mrs. Rosenblatt was found shot June 2 near Sheffield.

The jury deliberated more than two hours before bringing in the verdict.

"But," he said, "you can support an army without a highway system. The Reds have proved they can do it with donkey carts and by loading ammunition on a man's back. They have manpower to spare and they work the hell out of them."

The trial lasted nearly a week. The murder was discovered when Mrs. Rosenblatt's daughter met her She had been shot twice in the chest. Lee also was wounded in the chest. A .22-calibre rifle, the murder weapon, was found in the bush near the body.

A love note written by Mrs. Rosenblatt was found in Lee's pocket. It read: "I wanted to go with Harry tonight but this will be and I am as much to blame as he is. We're both crazy in love with each other. Love, Mary Rosenblatt."

Testifying in his own defence, Lee said Mrs. Rosenblatt could have been abducted by two men, taken to the bush and killing 24 hours and then when he struggled with them he was shot.

Duke Snider Homers to Break Tie at End of Sixth Frame In Sixth Game of Series

FLASH—YANKS LEAD 2-1 IN SEVENTH

EBBETS FIELD, Brooklyn (AP) Brooklyn's indomitable Dodgers today faced their opportunity to bring the world championship to the national League for the first time in six years as they clashed with New York's Yankees in the sixth game of the World-Series.

The Dodgers, winners of three of the five games played, needed only one more victory to hand the Yankees their first world series defeat since 1942. Since then the Bronx Bombers have won five fall classics.

Billy Loes, 23-year-old right-hander (15-9) was Manager Charlie Dressen's choice to oppose New York's Vic Raschi (16-8). Loes' only series experience came in the second game in relief of Carl Erskine. He hurled two innings and got socked for a three-run homer by Billy Martin.

Raschi won the second game when he topped Erskine with a three-hitter. The veteran right hander is starting today with only three days' rest.

Dressen revamped his line-up again, starting Gene Shuba in his left field batting in fifth place, in place of Andy Pafko. Duke Carmichaels was dropped to sixth.

DODGERS: Cox dropped a looping Texas Leaguer behind first baseman Mize to start the Brooklyn first inning. Robinson popped a high one to Rizzuto in left-centre. DODGERS: Snider hammered a towering home run over the right field screen on Raschi's first pitch to put the Dodgers in front, 1-0. It was his third homer, and the 11th of the series for the 5-game record set by the Yankees and Giants in 1936. The seven-game record is 12. Robinson went out on a high fly to Woodling in left. Shuba walked on four pitches. Hodges struck back to the mound and was tossed out by Raschi. No runs, one hit, no errors, none left.

Bandits Wearing Masks Rob Tavern Of $1,500 Cash

TORONTO (CP) — Two armed men wearing empty money bags as masks, robbed a tavern of $1,500 in cash here today.

Mrs. Ruth Straum, cashier at the Town Tavern in downtown Toronto, was checking her cash drawer when the two, who reportedly had a knife and a gun, burst in. Mrs. Straum said she became hysterical when she became hysterical, but got a look at them. "I don't want a murder on our hands," she said.

They took the cash she was checking and fled.

Man Carrying Time Bomb Is Arrested

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — A man carrying a time bomb was arrested yesterday in the Israel Foreign Office. Witnesses said he was nabbed as he was trying to set the mechanism to explode six minutes later.

They said he was a 29-year-old Lithuanian-born former leader in European branches of Irgun Zvai Leumi, the anti-British Jewish underground during the days it also fought in the underground against the Nazis in Europe and came to Israel in 1948.

Investigators speculated that the bombing attempt was connected with the reparations agreement between Israel and West Germany and Israel. At the time of the signing, Foreign Minister Mosher Sharett was attending a conference on the reparations question in a nearby room.

CANADA'S FIRST U.S. AMBASSADOR DIES AT PENETANG

Leighton G. McCarthy Suffers Heart Attack

PENETANGUISHENE, Ont. (CP)—Hon. Leighton Goldie McCarthy, 82, Canada's first Ambassador to the United States and a leading business man and lawyer for more than half a century, died suddenly Saturday.

He collapsed after listening to a World Series broadcast at his summer home Longaissa, at this Georgian Bay resort.

In Ottawa, Prime Minister St. Laurent said Mr. McCarthy, as Canada's first Ambassador, represented the greater part of the Second World War, "crowned a lifetime of public service to our country."

As Canadian minister in Washington from 1941 to 1943 and for the next two years as ambassador, Mr. McCarthy was noted as a shrewd observer of the American scene. He was a close friend of the late President Roosevelt and was a trustee of Roosevelt's Warm Springs Foundation, a doctors' centre for polio victims.

Mr. McCarthy was president of the Canada Life Assurance Company from 1928 to 1936 and then was appointed chairman of the board. He held that office until 1946, but continued as a member of the board.

In recognition of his work over a period of 35 years with the Canada Life, he was awarded the Society's highest honor as honorary counsellor in 1949.

Mr. McCarthy was born in Walkerton, Ont. and educated in Barrie. He was called to the Bar of Ontario in 1887 and moved to Toronto, the later year, to become member of the law firm of McCarthy and McCarthy.

When only 29 he was elected Liberal Member of Parliament for Simcoe North in 1896, succeeding his uncle, D'Alton McCarthy. He was re-elected in 1900 and 1904 and retired in 1908. Three years later he ran for election in his old constituency, but was defeated in the general Liberal sweep.

Following the outbreak of the Second World War, he volunteered his services to the government and in 1941 he was given the diplomatic post at Washington. He spent his remaining years in Toronto.

He is survived by his wife, the former Muriel Drummond, in 1949. Surviving are four daughters and one son.

TRAFFIC TOLL HEAVY

DETROIT (CP) — A Monroe county collision which took three lives yesterday pushed Michigan's weekend traffic toll to seven. TO APPEAL FOR BLOOD

TORONTO (CP) — A national blood appeal will be put into effect during the week of Oct. 24 by the Canadian Red Cross Society in order to aid wounded U.N. soldiers in Korea.

Less Self-Wounding in Korea Believed Due to Rotation Plan

WASHINGTON" (AP) — "In the Korean war, as in all others, some soldiers deliberately injure themselves to get out of battle or out of the army.

"In the U.S. army believes, although it can't prove it, that the number will be small. Even relatively small—even cases established definitely as self-inflicted wounding.

However, army officers point out that the Korean rotation plan improves an actual case of self-inflicted wounds.

Old timers of the army say they have noticed that most cases are among men who have not yet seen much action. The soldier who goes into battle for the first time often finds that he and most of the men in his unit are scared stiff. Each has passed his most desperate anxiety.

Veterans of the Second World War, say, in connection with this point, that there was a comparative few cases of self-inflicted wounds just before the Normandy invasion because some soldiers thought the highly touted Nazi Storm troopers would mow them down. No rats deserted ship shortly after that.

There is a difference in the Korean war which may explain the apparent low incidence of self-inflicted wounds, officers said. In the old World War there was no rotation system. The rotation system in Korea, under which the average man can figure he will start home after anywhere from 11 to about 16 months, makes a difference in the attitude of the soldier, officers said.

He has a known, definite time when he can go home. He can stick with his job and he doesn't need to convince himself with a bullet to get out.

Doctors And Wives Victims On Sunday Visit To Camp

Boat Powered by Big Motor Upsets in Lake

NORTH BAY (CP) — Five people were drowned — two of them doctors — when a boat upset Sunday afternoon on Moran Lake, part of the Kipawa Lake chain about 50 miles northeast of North Bay.

Word of the tragedy reached North Bay this morning.

The victims were all from Ville Marie, Que. They were identified, as Jean Savoie, a veterinary surgeon, and his wife; Dr. Emil Gelinas, a dentist; Mr. Louis Godard and Mrs. G. Norin, 24. Five children were orphaned by the tragedy.

They were in a party of eight persons who motored from Ville Marie to the lake Sunday afternoon and brought two boats.

The five who were drowned started up in the lake in the larger of the two boats, powered by a 25-horsepower motor.

In the second boat, a 16-foot skiff with three horsepower motor were Dr. Godbout, Dr. Morin and a Mr. Bruneau.

The three in the small boat reached the camp of a doctor friend, where they left shortly to visit and waited for the others.

When the boat failed to put in appearance, the three set out to investigate. They sailed down the long, narrow lake they found the larger boat upset.

Clothes of the waters and shoreline showed no signs of survivors. Dragging operations have been started but none of the bodies have been found.

The party's plan was to spend the day at the camp and return to Ville Marie Sunday night.

Charity Fund Memorial For Late King George

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Churchill told the country Saturday night that the memory of King George VI will be kept alive with a statue in London and also a charitable foundation.

In a broadcast likening it to national memorial fund, the Prime Minister asked Britons "to give as much or little as your circumstances allow to a noble cause in memory of a kind, good man."

The King died last February after long illness at the age of 56. He had reigned 15 years.

The first task, said Churchill, is to raise a statue "to carry to the living generation and to those who come after us a physical presentment of the king."

"The sculptor is yet to be chosen and site selected, he said.

Churchill said it was certain the King himself would have wished that a greater part of the money collected would be spent in charitable causes which he cherished.

"We therefore intend that, apart from the money set aside for the statue, what you feel able to offer should be devoted to the commemorant foundation called after King George VI, for the charitable, mental and physical needs of both the young and the old," he said.

He asked his listeners to send "their offerings to the Lord Mayor of London, Australia House, Strand, W.C."

Fire Destroys Barn On J. E. Cassidy Farm

TWEED — Fire broke out in a small barn on the farm of J. E. Cassidy, (clerk of the township of Hungerford), about 11 a.m. Sunday and despite the fact Cassidy and some of the older children were attending church services in Tweed.

The Cassidy farm is situated a few miles south of Tweed on No. 2 R. 4. The strong wind which was blowing at the time, blew sparks from the burning house and a large barn also nearby.

Cause of the fire is unknown but it is supposed the small children were playing with matches. Not too much insurance. A few small pigs were lost in the fire. Machinery has not been stored yet in the barn for the winter.

Neighbors gathered and a number of people from Tweed rushed to the scene but they were helpless to save the building.

With this week, Sunday until Saturday, Oct. 11th, being observed nationally as Fire Prevention Week, Fire Chief Gerald Vance today urged Belleville residents to exercise additional care in the prevention of fire.

During the week, the fire chief states, all homes and places of business should receive a thorough checking of fire hazards and any conditions likely to cause fire removed. The fact that a household has never had a fire in his home is no indication that his house is immune, the chief warned.

All theatres, hotels, hospitals and other institutions, including the local public buildings, stores and factories, will be inspected by the local fire department during Fire Prevention week and fire drills will be held in all schools. Special instruction on fire prevention will be given by teachers.

Jumping from the cab of his highway transport as with brakes failed, Gordon Ashley, 22, Ingleward the railway crossing, Russell Street, at 53 Bridge-son Ave., Toronto, escaped injury Saturday night when his machine was struck by the locomotive of a C.P.R. freight at the Cemetery Crossing in Trenton.

Farrell was eastbound and as he attempted to bring his transport to a stop to wait for the approaching train he found the brakes useless. He opened the door and jumped from the cab seconds before the westbound freight struck the transport, tore it around and dragged it for the tracks.

Ashley was driving to Belleville from Napanee when the accident occurred. He was alone in the car.

U.S.A.F. Reveals Development Of Space Suit

WASHINGTON.(AP)—The United States Air Force revealed Saturday the development of a space suit that has enabled airmen to shoot 40,000 feet above the earth's blood boils and pure oxygen alone is insufficient to keep a man alive.

Officers and men of the unit to be perfected before progress could be made in developing the jet and rocket aircraft of the future.

At altitudes above 50,000 feet the normal breathing of pure oxygen alone will not sustain life and the lungs must be directly supplied.

Killed in Action

Lt.-Cmdr. John L. Quinn, 29-year-old veteran of North Atlantic naval action during the Second World War, has been reported killed in action in Korea. A native of Prince Rupert, B.C., he was killed when the Canadian destroyer Iroquois was hit by a Communist shore battery while on patrol duty off the Korean coast. His widow and four-year-old son live in Halifax. — (CP from National Defence.)

Destroyer Becomes Land-based

When a gale snapped her anchor cable, H.M.S. Wave, a British frigate, was blown onto dry land at St. Ives, Cornwall. When the wind subsided and the tide was in, the ship became water-borne again. Seventy crew members had to be removed by breeches buoy. Here the ship rests forlornly on the rocks awaiting the rising tide. — Central Press Canadian.

Scatter Enemy By Searchlight On Destroyer

ABOARD U.S. DESTROYER WALKER OFF KOREA (AP) — Lookouts on this destroyer spotted North Korean work parties trying to clear debris of a bombwrecked train near Songjin recently.

The Walker fired its five-inch guns. The workmen fled at the first flash. Soon they were back. Again the Walker's guns flashed and the workers scattered.

An officer suggested flashing the searchlight on the beach, five miles away. It worked. Time and again the Reds ran for cover at the quick flick of the 24-inch searchlight beam.

The destroyer's skipper messaged the nearby Canadian destroyer Iroquois:

"Have discovered that searchlight flashes shoreward scatter workmen very effectively. Am conserving ammunition and possibly running them to death. Request services of two Indians and a blanket to furnish smoke to go with searchlight flashes."

Frankford Bowling Loop

Division "B" of the Frankford Bowling League bowled Friday night in Trenton at the Bowl-O-Drome. No changes in standings were registered. Earl Rogers' Merry Maes continued to pace the league, as they took five from Milford Macauley's Aristocrats. Elmer Rogers' Screwballs made it five over Selbourne Sharpe's Careless Kids.

Screwballs	8	7	16
Careless	4	11	9

FRANKFORD — Frankford bowling League Division "A" drew some lighter than usual, as number of changes in standing resulted from Friday night's competition at the Bowling Rose. Lloyd Hanna's Robbers held onto first place in the standing, but dropped five points to Gib Gilmore's Jets, who moved into second. Hubby Hoffman's Racketeers climbed into a second-place tie with Preston Chase's Jets, as these two teams took five and seven points from Hugh Hammond's Outlaws, and Bob Arbuckle's Hopefulate respectively. The Jets and Racketeers were in the cellar two weeks ago, but have climbed from "rags to riches." Jack Farley's "Jack's Jokers" took five points from Earl Austin's "Curley's Crew" to wind up the evening's activities. Standings:

Team	W.	L.	High	Pts.
Robbers	10	5	3	23

Over 100 Friends, Neighbors Honor Young Couple

FRANKFORD — Well over 100 friends and neighbors of the ninth of Murray, and surrounding district, gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John B. McColl, Friday evening, to honor the newlyweds, Doug and Alice McColl, with a miscellaneous shower.

Royce Hannah acted as chairman for the evening's program, which opened with a sing-song. Royce welcomed everyone, and expressed the best wishes of all to the bride and groom.

Mrs. John Wickens gave a reading and Gail Margetson favored with an instrumental, and the pupils of the school brought musical selections. Connie Helwegen and Sandra Wickens gave a fine vocal duet. Sandra McColl followed with a solo, and Mrs. Frank Rose gave a reading. Mrs. Margetson brought a musical number, and Connie Helwegen, a solo, followed by Frank Terry, Ernest Wallace and Gene Johns, who completed the program with a number of vocal trio songs.

All gathered then in the large parlor and sang together, "Blest Be The Tie That Binds." A short presentation address was given, and the bride and groom were called upon to open the gifts. Both thanked their many friends for the kindness shown them. All joined together then in the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

Bountiful refreshments were served, following which an enjoyable evening of dancing, cards and visiting filled out a delightful program.

Marier Billy Dafoe underwent an appendicitis-operation in Trenton Memorial Hospital Thursday night. Reports are that he is progressing quite favorably.

Glad to hear that Mr. Clifford Sine is better after a bad spell this week.

A number of Frankford folk have inquired about obtaining tickets for the Community Concert in Trenton, Thursday, October 30. All are sorry to report that only members of the Concert Association who have season tickets can see the concert, unless one of the members should be unable to attend, and would lend his or her membership card to someone else. Memberships must be obtained several months in advance in order to assure the Concert Association of sufficient funds to obtain a high class of talent.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Powell attended the fowl supper in Johnstown on Wednesday night.

Sir K. Murdoch Dies in Sleep In Australia

MELBOURNE (Reuters)—Sir Keith Arthur Murdoch, Australia's greatest newspaper magnate, died in his sleep at his home in Frankston, near Melbourne, Saturday night. He was 66 and had been in poor health for two years.

He began his career as a junior reporter on the Melbourne Age and made his name as a war correspondent with the Australian and New Zealand forces in the First World War.

In London, after the war, he was appointed editor and manager of the United Cable service and came into contact with Lord Northcliffe, the newspaper magnate who controlled The Times and Daily Mail, of whose newspaper policy he modelled much of his late life and interests. Murdoch returned to Australia in 1921 and became editor of the Melbourne Herald, beginning an association that led him through the managing directorship to the Chairman of directors of the Herald and Weekly Times Limited, the largest single newspaper interest in Australia.

He was also made a trustee of Reuters, Limited.

He became chairman of the Australian Associated Press' news agency and chairman of the Australian Newsprint Mills Limited, which he founded in 1938. He was knighted in 1933 for his services to journalism in Australia.

WILLIAM M. LESLIE

The death of William Malcolm Leslie brings to a close a career noted for its success in business and devotion to the principles of a Christian life. Despite a physical handicap which he suffered in his youth, Will Leslie was the happiest of men. His genuine and friendly interest in people won him an unusually wide circle of friends. They found that acquaintance with him was a stimulating experience to be repeated whenever opportunity offered.

As long as he enjoyed good health, Mr. Leslie made it a point to maintain close personal contact with his store's clientele. He was able to greet everyone by name along with friendly inquiry about health and family. He impressed people with the fact that they were to consider his store their headquarters while down town or in the city. Above all he strived to give satisfaction to all who patronized his store. It was on this solid foundation that he succeeded so well in business.

The church also was one of Mr. Leslie's main interests in life. He was a generous supporter of church activities and in spite of his busy life he was not in attendance. The teachings of the church and his own lively sense of morality complemented one another in the personality of this fine man. He lived the Christian life and all who came in contact with him felt that here was a man whose friendship would not be found wanting in time of trouble.

The city has gained much through having Will Leslie in its midst. In turn we know he loved the place he knew as home and which gave him the business opportunities and the home and family which really formed the centre of his life. A loving husband and father and friend is gone. He will be long remembered.

FRIENDS IN NEED

In this sadly uneasy and troubled world it seems that there is hardly room in the news from day to day for those things which reflect the kindly and homely virtues of decent people. But these instincts are at work even though it is only occasionally that we are permitted glimpses of them.

There was, for instance, that story in Saturday's paper about the spontaneous action of neighbors coming to the aid of a family on North Park Street whose home had been recently badly damaged by fire. "An old-fashioned building bee was organized by neighbors and friends. Merchants were moved by this generous impulse to donate lumber and materials and workmen were ready as ever in such emergencies to see that the men were fed. In the end, a family tragedy had become a memorable experience in which all who shared had been enriched by their giving. Here was such instance come to the attention of this office a short time ago although it involved only the thoughtful kindliness of one woman. Here is her letter to this newspaper:

"Today I received the $5.00 won in the (Ontario Intelligencer's) Star Contest. Perhaps you would like to know what has been done with it.

"I know a woman whose husband is dying of cancer. He is confined to bed and cannot read and cannot talk much.

"One son is just out of school and two are still in school. They are all poor.

"By experience I know how quickly money slips away when there is illness, so I am sending it on to her with the hope that it may make their way a little easier.

"In their name I thank you for this help."

It is in such simple acts of selfless generosity and consideration for unfortunate neighbors that the essential decency of Christian people is eternally demonstrated.

A FEATHER IN YOUR HAT

This year's Red Feather Campaign is being launched in municipalities across the country where many welfare services have had the good sense to get together.

In recent years, the growing number of requests for funds for charity have brought a freezing up of the purse hearts of many individuals and corporations. If a person paid heed to all the demands, there would be nothing left for his own table. One Canadian company was asked for 1,411 separate charitable donations in one year.

The Community Chest is the logical way to reduce the number of calls on the pocketbook. And by combining the drives for funds, the cost of the campaign is spread, and more of every donation-dollar goes to help the needy.

When any Red Feather asks for your personal or company support, remember that it is money well and efficiently spent to help your community. All of us are the community, and the more we do for ourselves to provide needed social services, the less governments will be asked to do for us. — (Financial Post.)

THE VOTING BOOTH

I sing that little house of tin
With doorways labeled "out" and "in,"
For who, within it once has stepped
Knows there is freedom's shrine kept.

So plain, so cheap to build, so bare,
Yet freedom's candles gilden there.

And every canvas-shielded stall
Holds freedom's privilege for all.

Wherever men the polls may place
That site with freedom's flag they grace
And all who enter share inside
A right by tyranny denied.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

October 6th, 1932.

On Monday evening, Oct. 3rd, thirty members of the C. O. D. staff gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Train and presented them with a beautiful set of aluminum ware. The evening was most enjoyably passed.

Mr. Charles Gordinear of Bonarlaw was severely bitten on the right hand when he attempted to pull a groundhog from a hole by the tail.

Mr. Henry Millbrett, 76-year-old resident of the Moira Lake district, caught this week in Moira River a pike, which weighed 30 pounds and measured 46 inches in length. It was the largest fish caught in the lake this season.

The Chief Clerk, Old Cooper dam in the Moira river is being considered closed.

Four hundred barrels of apples were shipped from Belleville this week to Montreal on the Glen Allen.

Mrs. Arthur Wallace of Chatham is visiting her sister, Mrs. Thomas Smith in Canning.

30 YEARS AGO

October 6th, 1922

A movement will be launched here shortly having as its object the securing of the Victorian Order of Nurses in this city. On Sunday next the matter will be referred to in the churches and also on Monday evening at a meeting in the city hall. Dr. MacEachern of Ottawa will be present and will speak on the work of the order.

Inspector of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police, John Phillips of Montreal, an old Belleville boy, was in town yesterday.

Mrs. Jeffery E. L. Mason of this city is visiting relatives in Smiths Falls.

Love Me, Love My—

(Hamilton Spectator)

There now can be added to that multitude of events and objects, animate and inanimate, which are capable of causing quiet anger as between husband and wives, three dead fish, a high-strung dog, an under-nourished Arabian stallion and a western motel-brass band (TV style).

In Torquay, England, a man was explaining to a magistrate why his her dog should not be destroyed as a dangerous animal, and she laid the blame for the newt's predicament on her husband. The latter, she said, got terrible storms. He was in the habit of shouting and waving the walking stick. That over-excited the dog.

Her solution: "If my husband were put away, the dog would be just like other dogs."

Quite possibly, that such a course would set a somewhat dangerous precedent, the magistrate ordered the dog, not the canswinging husband, destroyed.

In Los Angeles, a divorce last month, a young Cleveland woman testified that during a visit to the Arabian stallion in which her husband played the role of the jealous husband, who scrap $75 $ weak, refused her money for a veterinarian when the horse became under-nourished. Suit charges gross neglect and extreme cruelty, but the court granted the divorce on grounds of gross neglect only — it found that the horse had been extremely cruel to the horse, not to the wife.

Three fish they caught on their vacation last year at the bottom of a quarrel which culminated in the wife of a Chicago man seeking separate maintenance. She testified she was married one of the fish for entertainment purposes, and for their families. The husband switched the plans and had the fish mounted, each keeping all three fish, an ill-timed piece of generosity which aroused the wife's fallen angler.

The stagnms were blazing merrily on a television screen in the Los Angeles home, reports the spokesman of the owner who told his son to switch it off. When that he made 15-year-old Jimmy do so, father abruptly ended the session with a .22 rifle bullet shot the hero.

Irked by either such unseemly goings-on in a western, the destruction of the TV set or by the fact that the dad wanted to watch it, the wife sued for and was granted a divorce.

Many indeed are the pitfalls around which one must tread so very gingerly in marriage.

Question Of Values

(Windsor Star)

Most people will take a dim view of the request that has been asked for the arrest of his wife and the man whom she has run away with. Whether such an action will be discovered they had stolen $18 he had hidden under the rug. Trust he became annoyed.

It is obvious, this indicates the man thought more of the $18 than he did of his wife. Well, what is the $18 when it is a wife who hits the trail with another man? Less than money, as well as herself, out of his life.

ANARCHISTS

(Winnipeg Tribune)

Naturally, the anarchist who believed in abolishing all government was regarded with suspicion. He finished by going out on the anti talk that his was an economy move.

We Could Eat it All

(Financial Post)

Since the beginning of the year the Federal Government has bought up 46 million pounds of beef, and has sold only 17 million pounds. In the same period, through its complicated three-cornered deal with New Zealand, the United Kingdom and the United States, it has taken delivery of 23 million pounds of New Zealand beef in the United States and has sold but three million pounds.

In short, here we are with 100 million pounds of meat in storage with current sales lagging far behind current purchases, and the big fall run of cattle and hogs just getting under way. Losses in storage so far are conservatively estimated at $25 millions and it is certain they will be far heavier than this before the whole story is told.

The whole thing is a mess anyway. It is another instance of the political attempt to maintain artificially high prices for the products of one favored group, the agricultural bloc in the community; to establish a so-called "stabilized" market which never is to do.

Actually, if our markets were permitted to function normally, our fantastic meat surplus problem would be readily solved. Our population, by eating only a little more than a pound more pay person per month, could consume everything we have to-day so if the price were lower.

But the tinkers go on tinkering, and at the taxpayer's expense. This great deal is a classic — in nonsense.

Guardian's Face Lifted

(Montreal Gazette)

It is always a shock when something changes, after having been the same day after day. Even when the change is really an improvement, the charm of old association is broken.

One would scarcely have thought that the Manchester Guardian — the guardian indeed of many of the cherished old values of life — would be in line with the march of change. The other day subscribers to the Guardian must have opened their paper with a shock. Unless they had learned of the approaching alteration, they might have thought they had bought the wrong paper.

For down through the generations the Manchester Guardian (Manchester Times) has devoted its front page to little, paid advertisements of what is now known as "classified." However dramatic the news might be, the front page was always the same. It was at first introduced to situations vacant, to offers of service, to rents or "in memoriam" tributes to deceased worthies.

It must be that many readers on any given day might really be interested in only these things. But the irresistible fascination would draw their eyes to the orderly printed columns. Only after they had satisfied their curiosity about the latest human details of page one, could they turn to what the world was doing, and what the rest of world over to the crush and noise of the day. There will have no gentle introduction. Perhaps, the Manchester Guardian's front page will be given over to the crush and noise of the day, but there will have no gentle introduction. Perhaps, the Manchester Guardian's front page will give readers of the world who have looked back in old files of the paper, will find himself irresistibly attracted to these outdated little advertisements, perhaps even more than to the great events of recordbreaking history.

Perhaps the instinct to read these trifling items is so strong that the change happens to the world, people will still be interested in the rents, rooms to rent, and dear relatives deceased.

Better To Shave

(Montreal Star)

A group of young Englishmen whose ancestors have landed them on the Greenland icecap report themselves undecided as to whether they have grown or should grow beards. One acquaintance of ours who once spent a winter in an Edmonton igloo reports the clean shave as preferable.

In spite of the difficulties involved in daily shaving, in cold climates, there is much to be faced rather than suffer the inconvenience of icicles on the beard. Any attempt at speech causes the icicles to jangle so loudly that social conversation is rendered impossible. The Edmonton natives, having used to this, have worked out a code of icicle signals which prevent much of the inconvenience, it is difficult, to learn, as guy winter visitor to Edmonton knows. The newcomer is better off shaved.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A young woman who is a New Canadian and has been coming in twice a week to do the housework has just advised her part-time employer that she is giving notice to leave to work for her. She has got a job in an office.

"I'm sorry to see you go, Ethel," "you will be pleased to learn I am able to increase your wages."

The employer of course was not really pleased. She was practically grief-stricken, because it is growing harder all the time to get anything to help with domestic work. There is little doubt that the girl had improved her condition. She may find herself less well off financially. In an office job she will get more money than the $5 to $10 a day she was able to take in the big city as a domestic worker by the day. She will have to provide her own dresses and meals and the other necessities of an office girl's life than she need to spend in the homelier vocation. But she stands a far better chance of meeting and marrying a likely young man in her new status than she did in the former.

But what irks our neighbor, the housewife, is the assumption of betterment.

"I have been a housewife for years," she says, bitterly. "My chief function in life, a domestic work, keeping house, cleaning, scrubbing, preparing meals, doing every day of my life the things this girl was asked to do. She improved herself by getting up early, dressing and going into an office."

"The shabby part of it is that if we suffered a set-back in our family fortunes, and I had to quit being a housewife and go and get a job in an office, people would not say that I was improving myself. They would feel sorry for me, and feel I had gone down a peg.

"How do you figure all this out?"

The best way to figure it out is to take a thousand men at a succession of about seven daughters, ninety pounds of eggs, and all very food of housework.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL I. DOUGLASS

"Authorities"

On June 1, 1813, as the warship Chesapeake was being raked by enemy fire, Lieutenant William Cox took the famous Commodore Lawrence's place on the ship") Lawrence below deck to the medical officer.

For military, desiring a scapegoat for defeat, accused Cox of abandoning his post of duty during an engagement, stripped him of his commission, and dishonorably charged him. President Truman, 139 years later, signed a bill which restored his commission to Lieutenant Cox dead now, of course, for generations. Although it did the injured officer no good, it vindicated a valiant man in the eyes of his descendants.

We all remember what happened to General Billy Mitchell who fought for the creation of the military use of air power. Right at the close of World War I the famous flier was sent to the War Department a sketch of what would be the air army tank.

A military "authority" wrote across the sketch, "The man is mad," and filed it away. Beware of the so-called "authorities." Many people who speak as if they have at last discovered the truth which all in the past have sought in vain to discover are usually the laughing stock of succeeding generations. We have many of them today in government, in academic circles, in scientific societies, and in industry. Many are deluded with their findings with a grain of salt.

The whole thing is a mess anyway. It is another instance of the political attempt to maintain artificially high prices for the products of one favored group, the agricultural bloc in the community; to establish a so-called "stabilized" market which never is to do.

Actually, if our markets were permitted to function normally, our fantastic meat surplus problem would be readily solved. Our population, by eating only a little more than a pound more pay person per month, could consume everything we have to-day so if the price were lower.

Guardian's Face Lifted

(Montreal Gazette)

It is always a shock when something changes, after having been the same day after day. Even when the change is really an improvement, the charm of old association is broken.

One would scarcely have thought that the Manchester Guardian — the guardian indeed of many of the cherished old values of life — would be in line with the march of change. The other day subscribers to the Guardian must have opened their paper with a shock. Unless they had learned of the approaching alteration, they might have thought they had bought the wrong paper.

For down through the generations the Manchester Guardian (Manchester Times) has devoted its front page to little, paid advertisements of what is now known as "classified." However dramatic the news might be, the front page was always the same. It was at first introduced to situations vacant, to offers of service, to rents or "in memoriam" tributes to deceased worthies.

It must be that many readers on any given day might really be interested in only these things. But the irresistible fascination would draw their eyes to the orderly printed columns. Only after they had satisfied their curiosity about the latest human details of page one, could they turn to what the world was doing, and what the rest of world over to the crush and noise of the day. There will have no gentle introduction. Perhaps, the Manchester Guardian's front page will be given over to the crush and noise of the day, but there will have no gentle introduction. Perhaps, the Manchester Guardian's front page will give readers of the world who have looked back in old files of the paper, will find himself irresistibly attracted to these outdated little advertisements, perhaps even more than to the great events of record-breaking history.

Perhaps the instinct to read these trifling items is so strong that the change happens to the world, people will still be interested in the rents, rooms to rent, and dear relatives deceased.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LIVE AND LET LIVE

All movements for the preservation of animals and birds get my endorsement. I like them in every way. I always palaver to see any of them housed or put into cages. I could not kill any of them, "not even the squirrel that has been digging up my bulbs."

I am always glad when the hunting season is over, and out-of-doors people can go about their lives without being butchered "for sport". The fourth first Monday of October is the day of plenty of room still left for them to live in, without fear of being shot. So wanton has been the desire to kill that many a time I have felt that man is now become extinct.

I am readily understand why it is that so many animals and birds have come to have such a language of their own that tells them to look out for the hunter. I have seen the fright upon a man, except among the more sophisticated ones, that will show light upon the back of a horse, or cow, and in the house. Man, too, look upon as their enemy—and rightly can they think so.

The late A. Edward Newton, a noted lover and collector, once read Mary Webb's great novel "Gone to Earth", which girls get for their work in its death through the cruelty of a man. After he had read that book he stated that never again could he enter into for hunting with a hound.

Lover of dogs as I am, I cannot consent to having one in my city home. I resent, almost as much as the dog does, his being pulled about on a chain. I like to see him in yards, when he should be free to enjoy himself in the shrubbery, and a home in the country I couldn't live there without a dog. Dogs don't get a square deal in a crowded city.

Wonderful are the things that we can learn about birds and animals, if we treat them kindly and let them live their lives in their native state. Children should learn to be kind to all animals and birds. Many of them can become friends.

Cathedral Town Mourns as Female Elephant Dies

CANTERBUY, England (AP)—Salt, a five-tone female elephant which lay ill for a week in a field near here, died yesterday, and the old cathedral town is mourning.

For at least 40 years, old-timers say, Salt was a beloved character in a little circus which moves about southern England.

The manner of her death was a somber sort of a circus, with a lot of spectators standing around, and some children weeping. The big London newspapers kept a death watch, and there were even medical bulletins to describe Salt's declining moments.

The show came to town a week ago, and while the tents were being set up Salt wandered around a bit. She bogged down in a mud puddle at the edge of a lake. She couldn't get out and when, several hours later, a crane raised her, she couldn't stand.

Business taken up was discussion on devoting a portion or all of the Thanksgiving offering to the church, a motion that Mrs. Ross Bateman be the delegate to the October meeting; that the new study book be ordered and subscriptions to the Mission Band leader.

Mrs. Bateman was in charge of the devotional period, the theme "Our Living Witness". Rev. Fredrick Gallagher, associate secretary of the Board of Overseas Missions, Toronto recommended a number of letters of thanks from the Ostberns family, and from daughters of the late Mrs. Stickney for flowers and cards of sympathy at the time of their mother's death, and for kindness shown during her long illness. Mrs. Gallagher expressed thanks for cards sent to her while she was ill. A letter was also read regarding the fall rally to be held at Holloway on the 30th of October, at 8:15 p.m. Mrs. Robertson was appointed as delegate to attend the Presbytery Institute of Spencer's Mission Band.

An interesting letter from Miss Hockings, the missionary for special prayer, was read by Mrs. Bateman, in answer to one she had sent on behalf of the missionary auxiliary to some her of the society's prayers on her behalf and interest in her work, which was formerly in Trenton.

Mrs. Everett Stratton, treasurer, reported $113.8 cash in hand and $60 on hand. Mrs. O. Stratton offered to be responsible for quilt blocks made and donated by Mrs. Alfred Little.

Following the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by Mrs. Elliott and her assistants,

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

After short, tragic marriage, should wife return gifts sent by husband's relatives?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I was married last May, and shortly afterward that the marriage was a terrible mistake. During the months alone, we have actually been together only about two weeks (a few days at a time), due to the fact that my husband was in the service. But next February he will be discharged, will probably be home Saturday or Sunday, and at that time I plan to start divorce proceedings. My problem is: in the circumstances I have described, is it necessary to return all of the gifts sent by his family and friends? Is it necessary to return shower gifts also?

We received approximately $700 in money and checks from his family . . . but my husband, who is a dreadful spendthrift, spent every penny of this on amusements. Furthermore, previous to our marriage, my husband borrowed $300 from me, which he hasn't repaid. I supplied the money for his gifts to his attendants as well as flowers and gifts to my attendants; and I paid for his wedding ring myself. So now is it necessary for me to return his family and friends the money which they spent so cheerfully and which I had nothing to do with?—K. H.

It is not a 'must' that a wedding present, of any kind, should be returned to the giver. In the wedding took place. (When wedding presents and shower presents are given, and the engagement is broken, then those presents should be returned, because the occasion for which they were sent does not take place, and is not to take place.)

However, I hope you're too fine a woman to take this ill-is-not-a-must-to-return wedding present to be an excuse to keep wedding presents that obviously should be returned to their givers. For example, if some member of your husband's family gave you a family heirloom . . . this obviously should be returned, with a note of deep appreciation for the generous thought and honor given you. Or if other relatives or friends gave some presents that your heart tells you should be returned, you should be fine and big-hearted enough to make this decent gesture.

Although I find it most difficult to understand how a relative or friend of such "a dreadful spendthrift" as you say your husband is, could give money under the wedding present . . . I should think their preview of his unreliable habits would have made this choice impossible . . . still if there is any money left, and you are aware that there is a relative or two who identified with the giver of the money-gift, these gifts should, in your way of thinking, be returned. Indeed, if in any cases you know, or even suspect, that you find out, any relatives or friends of your husband feel bitter or resentful about your having the gifts you sent to you, you should make a definite point of returning these presents. In your tragic days you must have learned that a gift without the good intention of the giver is not worth keeping . . . not to a right-thinking person.

Keep Your Neckline Lovely

Does your neck present a pretty picture? It should be attractive from all angles. Don't let wisps of hair spoil the back line.

By HELEN FOLLETT

THE ideal neck shows graceful sweeps from collar bones and chin, from shoulders to ears, from the nape down to the upper portion of the back. The texture of the skin should be smooth and fine, coloring clear though it is likely to be somewhat darker than the face because it seldom gets the cosmetic care that is lavished on the sacred complexion. The resulting hairline should be trim, no wisps among the curlicues.

A neck that is too fat adds years to a woman's appearance so, if you are inclined to gain weight, be a calorie counter. Shortchange yourself on sweets, fats and starches.

Nightly Anointing

The throat and the under portion of the chin can be kept in a youthful condition by careful anointing every night with a massage cream. Young women in the twenties start this protective treatment, but they will be free from fiddle strings or necklace lines that can come on in the thirties. Time is no help in this matter of good looks. Defects can only grow almost overnight. Then there are regrets and remorse. Beautifying is a lifelong business. It allows no holidays.

If there are signs that the tissues are sofiening, use a cream lavishly, but stay do some simple exercises to strengthen and tighten the underlying muscles.

Clasp your hands together at the napelise, then turn the head from side to side with a hard muscle pull.

Put your clenched fist under the chin. Slowly press the chin down as far as it will go, resisting the movement stiffly by an upward thrust of the fist. Now push the chin up and back until the head rest between the shoulders. Repeat ten or fifteen times. This exercise is recommended to prevent the ravages of birthdays.

MANY new and different features mark this dress that should be a happy choice for any college girl or her business counterpart. The textured, striped woollen is in a brown and black mixture accented by detachable pique cuffs at the elbow sleeves. The turtle neckline tops a yoke that uses the stripes in a V effect. The skirt is bouffant and the waist is nipped by a belt that closes with a brass medallion buckle.

Fashion Flashes

IT'S NICE, after all the crisp fabrics, to see the soft silks and filmy fabrics coming in for dress wear. Silk chiffon is used for a full-length evening gown that shades from yellow through olive green to deep topaz, with a standing fold of the green across the bustline. To the side back, pelon-aise draping is worked into a bustle shell for a net train that repeats all the colors of the chiffon, and is held at the top by silk roses.

THE STAR of a recent fur show wasn't a magnificent mink. It was a slender, yet somehow bulky, guardsman's coat of black Persian scaskin. Moderate fullness is held by a half belt in back. There are three double-breasted rows of buttons below the notched collar and pointed revers, and at the hips are slanting pockets.

GAINING GROUND is the turban, offered in various ways, with much manipulation of fabric. Something new is a fez turban. We saw one in stretched and fitted black velvet, cut high in front and deep at sides and back, where there is a rounded fold of the fabric in a soft diagonal drape.

One Elegant Cookie and More Meat Cookery for G.I.

By Mary Moore

My head is above water, but only just. I'm still a bit behind in mail and will have to answer at least one letter at bottom of each column for the next few days.

But I am going to say my piece first for I have one of those ritzy cookie recipes that some of you ambitious hostesses are always looking for—to impress your just-as-ambitious guests.

PRINCE'S PECAN PUFFS

Is the elegant name and they live up to it.

Three egg whites, 1 1-2 cups light brown sugar, 3 tablespoons flour 3-4 lb. shelled pecans. Whip egg whites dry and stiff, fold and whip in the sugar, then add gradually the flour and nuts, folding. Drop from wet teaspoon into the unlined baking sheet. Preheat oven to 325 deg. Fahr. and bake five minutes to ten minutes, depending on size of cookies. Remove when dry and lightly browned.

Last week I gave you roast beef, beef stew and broiled pork chops.

This week we'll roast a fresh ham or pork shoulder first.

ROAST FRESH HAM

OR PORK SHOULDER

(For G. L.)

These times and temperatures are for when the meat is taken directly from the refrigerator.

Wash meat with damp cloth, wipe off the meat. Sprinkle all of the surfaces of the meat generously with salt, then less generously with pepper and paprika. Place meat, fat side up, in open pan with rack on bottom. Do not add water, and do not cover and do not baste meat. Set temperature at 325 deg. Fahr. and leave at this temperature throughout roasting period. A fresh leg of pork requires about 30 minutes per pound, but total time would be about three hours, since it is not very large, then increase time to 3 1-2 hours. While pork roasties are good when added to the sauce around the roast during last 1-2 hours of roasting time, Potatoes must be turned over at least once.

STUFFED PORK TENDERLOIN

Two medium pork tenderloins may be wiped with damp cloth, and slit with sharp knife so that each may be spread open to about 3-4 inch thickness. Allow one long fat slit, make 2 more slits on each side of it. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Spread one tenderloin with dressing: 1 well-packed cup bread crumbs to be mixed with 1-4 teaspoon salt, shake of pepper and 2 tablespoons butter in which you have sauteed (fried) 2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley, 1 teaspoon grated onion (only if desired, 1-2 teaspoon crumbled sage—add them just enough to soak with butter and heat through. Cover stuffing with other split tenderloin. Tie securely with clean, white string. Place on baking pan with rack and 1 little dripper under. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 50 minutes, but do not dry this out. Baste twice with mixture of 1-2 cup bouillon cube and 1 tablespoon butter or good drippings. This is delicious served with plain or parsley buttered new red currant jelly. Whole pepper squashes and potatoes, split, may be baked at the same time.

BREADED LAMB CHOPS

(Definitely a company dish)

Eight lamb chops, 2 tablespoons butter or good drippings, 6 tablespoons flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup milk, 1-2 cup ground ham or 1-4 cup ham sandwich spread. Make a white sauce by melting the butter or drippings, adding the flour to blend, then the milk until thick. Add salt and ham. Chill. Trim excess fat from chops and, broil or pan broil until barely cooked through. Season with salt and pepper and cool. Spread both sides of each cooled chop with the sauce. Chill again. Then dip in sifted crumbs, then in beaten egg to which you have added 2 tablespoons water, and in crumbs again. Brown in deep fat at 375 deg. Fahr. and serve at once. For special occasions cover ends of lamb chop bone with paper frills and garnish platter with parsley and tomato wedges. This is good accompanied by little molds of mint jelly or mint sauce.

Women's Activities

TRINITY W.M.S.

Madoc—Trinity W.M.S. held its October meeting at the home of Mrs. Fred Fleming on Wednesday afternoon with an attendance of 30.

In the absence of the president Miss Holmes, Mrs. Carman took charge and opened the meeting by reading a poem bearing on the harvest home season and Thanksgiving.

General business followed with reports from the treasurer and Community Friendship Leader, Mrs. F. Fleming. Mrs. A. Empey reported on Stewardship and closed with a prayer for the missionary, Miss Edward stationed in Newfoundland.

Mrs. Will McCoy was appointed delegate to the missionary tea to be held at Cooper in October. A nominating committee of Mrs. Carman, Miss A. Keene and Mrs. Archie Adams was appointed to bring in a slate of officers for the new year at the November meeting. A quilting and box lunch supper to be held in the church was discussed with Mrs. Carman announcing later.

Mrs. A. Adams had charge of the worship service with the theme, "Come and Worship," using the service as printed in the Missionary Monthly. Mrs. Fleming read the Bible story and short readings by Mrs. Adams on "Worship," "Means of Grace" by Mrs. E. Burnside, "God is Everywhere" by Mrs. Whylock and a solo "Such Lovely Things" by Mrs. Adams, concluded the worship period.

Mrs. Carman took charge of the program and brought, "Thoughts on Thanksgiving" by her listeners, reminding of the many ways residents of Canada made give thanks on this Thanksgiving day. Mrs. D. Carmen gave a fine talk, illustrated by an apple, first two chapters of the Study Book, "Africa Trails and Angels," by David H. Gallagher. A duet "Have Thine Own Way" and Miss Keene. Mrs. F. Defoe gave her impressions from the school of leaders held at Whitby Ladies' College, choosing for her subject, Mrs. Watts, Stewardship Secretary of the Dominion Board, who spoke on the morning devotions and gave a talk each morning on the book, "Background of the Christian World Vision."

Mrs. Carman brought back many suggestions and left to her listeners much food for thought. The song "Thanks to Thee" was sung, and a reading "The Clockmakers Counsel," by Mrs. Bert Devolin concluded an interesting program.

With the dedication of the offering by Mrs. F. H. Nayler and prayer, the meeting was closed, a pleasant social hour followed.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

For more beautiful hair

Old-timers, remembering when bobbed hair first set the world on its ear, also remember the dire predictions that were made at that time. The Joy-killers proclaimed that woman's hair would change materially in texture, that it would be coarser, stiffer, dryer and less lustrous. As for the permanent wave? Only the brave ones subjected their heads to the hard boiled treatment. Now twenty-five years later, beautician report that hair generally is healthier than in the past, mainly because short, locks are kept cleaner than were flowing ones during the period of the prehistoric pigtail.

They regret the fact that the beauty-seeking contingent does not pay more attention to scalp care. The healthy scalp will produce a strong, healthy growth. It is from the blood streams of the scalp that the tender shafts secure food and drink. If circulation is sluggish, the scalp will suffer. To keep blood streams moving, a few extra minutes at bedtime is recommended. Brush first, treating a strand at a time. Then, with the finger tips and thumbs, give your scalp a vigorous friction.

Only the brave dared to try the permanent wave.

One of the laws of nature is to create a desire in respect of any bestowed quality of beauty. We all know a woman who got from one wave set to another without a single moment spent on hair grooming. They fear that the brush will weaken the permanent, which just doesn't happen to be so. Even the weakest permanent will survive it. As for the wave set, a little tender care in the way of brushing will make the undulations more natural. Here is a good idea to arrange poodle curls with small brushes especially designed for the purpose.

The general interest seems to be in the haircut rather than in the quality and health of the material that composes it. No matter how smart the coiffure may be, it does not fill the good-looking eye unless the shafts are shining clean, have life and lustre. The dingy appearance, seen so often, may be the result of a careless shampoo that has left soap deposits on the shafts, or just plain neglect. Seems pretty senseless, considering how little time and money are spent on making the hair attractive.

Middle-age women should give extra attention to their tresses. Time is an enemy, often gets one by the hair, causing it to thin at the temples, to molt more than it should, to show silver threads prematurely.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A HUSBAND WHO EXTRACTS SLAVE LABOR FROM HIS WIFE

At 23, Mrs. M. A. P. has been married not quite four years and already has three children. Her husband, who is three years older than herself, is a farmer, and he apparently expects his young wife to be mother, maid-of-all-work, cook, farm hand and everything else he happens to think of at the moment. In payment for slaving away at all these jobs every day, from early morning to late at night she receives constant abuse in the form of harsh words, black looks and repeated berating for being "no good."

"My husband is nice to me when we are with other people, but when we are alone he is forever running me down," she writes. "He has a terrible temper, and, no matter what I try to do to help him, he swears at me and tells me I am no good. We live on a farm, and he expects me to take care of the children and do my housework and all the farm chores besides, except the milking, which I refuse to do. He has no use for music and says that I can never have a good time going to dances, and as even consequence my children.

"This is no kind of home to bring children up in, but I am at a loss what to do. My husband is good to the kids, but seems never to have time with them or with me. He will not even take me out to see me at any time.

"Once I told him I would leave him, but he just laughed at me and said I couldn't get along without him. I am not afraid to work on a farm. Do you think I should leave him and go to where and prove to him that I can make something of myself without him?"

It is rather easy to see that this wife has more than one reason for her unhappiness.

Brutally Domineering

In the first place, it must have meant a big adjustment for a town girl to settle down to farm life, and it is entirely possible that she never has been, and never can be happy in that kind of life. It would be hard enough to have to make such a difficult adjustment all by herself, without the help of a husband who understands not how difficult it must be. But to have the added cross of being married to a man who is obviously not the sort to try and understand anyone, and who is brutally domineering besides, is a pretty heavy burden for a 23-year-old to carry. Small wonder that she should be in a state of nerves.

In addition to all his other faults, this man seems to be a hypocrite. While abusing his wife unendurably in secret, he takes pains to behave well toward her when there is anyone around, so that he will be thought a good scout and can keep the fact that he is actually a miserable wretch from becoming public knowledge. How low can a man sink anyway. I would have more respect for him if he were at least consistent in his attitude, and mean and abusive to his wife whether there was anyone around or not.

No one can possibly blame this girl for thinking her best plan might be to walk out on him. But because "such a radical step should not be taken until everything else has been tried, I would suggest she consider either one, or perhaps both, of the following ideas.

Talk to Family Service

First, she might take her problem to some nearby family service organization where she could tell all the details of her married life and get help that might possibly result in a solution. If Mrs. M. A. P. would like to know the name and location of such an organization, I will be glad to send it to her if she will write again, enclosing a self-addressed stamped envelope.

The other suggestion is that she assert herself and take a firm stand on some of the most important things that are upsetting her.

Naturally, it won't help if she brings about more than her usual sore quarrels between herself and her husband. But if, when he makes wholly unreasonable demands or on her time and energy, she could tell him quietly and pleasantly, but firmly, that she cannot do so much, and if, when he makes mean and slighting remarks, or swears at her, she could simply leave the room, perhaps in a few times their attitude of dignity on her part might have some effect. If it does not, then it may be time for that more decisive step.

Frontier Life in Beaverlodge

A description of life in a mining camp in the Athabaska Territories has been received recently by a Belleville resident, Mrs. Robert Hall, wife of Rev. Bob Hall who, for a year, was minister at John Street Church; on Victoria Ave. Spent a few days at camp and wrote her impressions for the newspaper, above.

Following is Mrs. Hall's enthusiastic letter she was able to make the trip with her husband in August, and later quoted as it appeared in the Saskatoon paper.

"I had such an interesting trip with Bob in August. We motored to Edmonton where we left the car and flew nearly 500 miles north to Uranium City—north of Lake Athabaska. Last spring Bob had been invited to fly in and conduct services for the Elder radio mine people in Beaver Lodge. It is a Crown Corporation and one can only go in by invitation. Needless to say, I was thrilled when Dr. Gillanders, the general manager, asked me to go in with Bob on his second trip. I wrote up an account for our local paper (Saskatoon Star-Phoenix) and am sending a clipping to you in case you might be interested.

"Bob will go in again in December when he will be flown to the company's second uranium mine, 1,000 miles north of Edmonton at Port Radium on Great Bear Lake, in the Arctic Circle. There is no resident minister at either camp and they seem so glad to have him take communion for the men. They are terribly isolated and the wives must be very lonely. I have such admiration for them.

"Guess what! There's corn today. Real corn on the cob!" That is headline news in Uranium City. As I had been wedged between a crate of corn and a sack of carrots during the three hour flight north from Edmonton the announcement held little surprise for me. They were just corn and carrots, not manna from Heaven. In the same way the three pots of pink geraniums nodding from the top of a crated refrigerator were a welcome spot of color in an otherwise drab cargo. I did not then recognize them as a symbol of fertility in a land of rock and sand. One has only to visit Beaverlodge in northern Saskatchewan to revise one's scale of values. I shall never again underestimate the importance of geraniums and corn on the cob.

To most readers of the press the name Uranium City is linked with mining news. They should know that the "city" is still little more than a tract of scrub-covered bushland and that Beaverlodge, five miles distant, is the true focus of activity for the Canadian government's Eldorado mining and refining operation. Here on the shores of Beaverlodge Lake, 12 miles north of Lake Athabaska, construction gangs are rushing through an ambitious building program. Modern trees up. Bulldozers and power shovels are converting a wilderness of spruce and pine and poplar into a modern township. A school, a 24-bed hospital and some 30 homes for mine executives and technical staff are under construction. In fact many of the houses are now occupied, in defiance of orders from Ottawa who went in on the plane with us remarked "Those ugly buildings mean that in Beaverlodge is her home so it must be attractive."

Set in the heart of Saskatchewan's rugged region of muskeg by hundreds of miles of swamp and forest, it is little wonder that the women concentrate all their time and talents on homemaking.

Both bungalows and two-storey houses are built of clapboard and painted in pastel shades of blue, green or yellow. They are supplied with every modern convenience from oil furnaces to tiled bathrooms and fluorescent lighted kitchens. To one with preconceived ideas of school pioneer life it is a distinct shock to fly over 200 miles of primeval wilderness and end up in a beautiful panelled living-room, carpeted in soft grey broadloom and furnished in the modern manner. The fact that the combination radio and record-player in the corner is only good for the latter function and can seldom be used to transit items of interest from the outside world is just one of those lesser inconveniences seldom mentioned. Persistent static effects cut both soap operas and news broadcasts with fine impartiality. Telephones never jangle the nerves with their strident summons and transportation to and from, the mines varies from trucks to jeeps.

Avid gardeners confine their efforts to potted plants or window-boxes as the local sand and silica provides sterile ground for outdoor gardening. Some day it is hoped to import enough top soil for grass but at present the barren stretches of sand between the houses are dotted with small active figures in sweaters and bluejeans tunnelling like moles, unhabbited by fear of trampling on the garden.

* * *

The only "store" is the camp commissary which also combines the functions of bank and post office. Here both miners and housewives can replenish their supply of tooth paste, silk stockings, work socks and woollen shirts. Here too is a magazine exchange providing reading material for a variety of tastes. Children's clothing as well as most adult garments must be purchased by mail order or, better still, procured during those rare intervals when one "goes out" for medical or dental treatment or for a couple of weeks with her sister.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking and reeding and I was looking all around the living room in a hurry, and pop said, For Peet sake relax, you've got me all fidgy and worried around me.

Well limmidiate, pop, I must of laid my glasses down some wheres in here, and the fellows are waiting for me to go with them to the Saturday afternoon Kid Kartoon and Komedy Show at the Little Grand, I said, and pop said, Well while you're hunin your glazz way, I'd better tell you about Hilbern Yon's wedding day.

Which he started to do, saying, Hilbern Yon was another chap who wouldn't relax. He kept taking Sally Ann Howe to marry him, in his tense way, but his stuttering made her so nervvius that she only accepted him after he had saved her life 3 times, once from drowning, once from fire, and once from smoke. Well, as they stood before the altar and the minister asked him if he took Sally for his wedded wife, Hilbern Yon was so tied up inside that he couldn't remember the words "I do." He knew he had to say something, and he knew it was some very common expression, but after a long pause he blerted out, "April showers make May flowers!" Then he took a look at the minister's shocked expression and stammered, "Shave and a haircut, shampoo," and just then a bolt of lightning sewed the situation by setting fire to the church, and Hilbern Yon saved Sally's life again, making the 2nd time from fire, but she broke the engagement and Hilbern Yon is still an unwed bachelor. So for Peet sake learn to take it easy if you ever expect to reconsolate a girl, pop said.

With just then I found the 3 dimes in my back pocklt, partly from relaxing and partly from luck.

U.S. Announces Launching of Guided Missile Warships

Say Mossadegh 'Misunderstood' Concession

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—A source close to Iran's government suggested last night that Premier Mohammed Mossadegh may seek further negotiations on the latest Anglo-American notes on the oil crisis, even though the western replies ignored Iran's recent "last-ditch" demands and stood on the west's last offer.

The communications from Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden of Britain and State Secretary Dean Acheson of the United States, delivered yesterday, said Mossadegh had "misunderstood" the meaning of the Aug. 30 joint proposals from Prime Minister Churchill and President Truman.

But though they ignored Iran's last demands for back royalties, the new notes did spell out western acceptance of four concessions Mossadegh had demanded for more than a year.

This, it was felt, might induce the Premier not to carry out his threat to withdraw his diplomatic representatives from London if Britain does not accept his conditions for settling the 18-month-old dispute that followed nationalization of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company's properties in Iran.

In London, sources said first reports from Britain's charge d'affaires in Tehran indicated Mossadegh's reaction was not favorable.

Emphasize 4 Points

The new Anglo-American notes emphasized the previous Truman-Churchill offer included these points — although they were not spelled out then:

Britain recognizes the nationalization of Iran's oil industry; Britain recognizes Iran's right to manage her oil industry herself; Britain does not seek monopoly on buying Iranian oil, and Britain does not seek to revive Anglo-Iranian's 1933 oil concession.

The Iran informant suggested Mossadegh may retain all these points as an Iranian victory and then ask for continued negotiations on claims for compensation made by both sides.

Some other Iranian sources obviously were disappointed, even disgusted, at the omission from the British and American notes of any reference to Iran's claim for immediate payment of £49,000,000 in disputed royalties. Since Mossadegh has demanded this sum so vigorously, he may refuse further negotiations until it is paid.

Price-Support Plan for Cattle Soon to Function

OTTAWA (CP)—The Agriculture Department will begin widening its cattle price-support program today by starting to purchase a restricted amount of surplus beef carcasses weighing 600 pounds and over, officials disclosed last night.

The government's price will be 23 cents a pound, basis good steers at Toronto, with varying prices at other centres across the country. The offer at first will cover roughly about 500,000 pounds, officials said.

Previously, under the new support program announced Sept. 2, government purchases were limited temporarily to 700-pound carcasses and over, in an effort to discourage a possible beef glut on the Canadian market.

It takes a herd of cattle weighing 1,200 pounds or more on the hoof to make a 700-pound carcass. These are extreme heavyweight cattle which normally are shipped to the United States market, now closed to Canada as a result of foot-and-mouth disease which hit Saskatchewan last November.

The government fixed the floor on these heavyweights at 25 cents a pound, basis good steers at Toronto, the same price that prevailed all through the summer. This floor will be continued until Nov. 15 when it will drop to the 23-cent-a-pound level.

Dodgers Need One More Victory To Clinch First World Series; Lead 3-2

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

THEY "DOOD IT"

The Glen Roy juniors came through handsomely on Saturday to win the Southern Ontario OASA junior "A" title, and they did it in a convincing manner. There was something definite about both victories since 12-8 and 8-4 scores leave no doubts as to "brains" winning the games. We were a little disappointed in the "hard-loser" attitude of the Windsor club since they proved such grand sportsmen when they defeated the Glens 7-1 in Windsor a week ago. And we reiterate the Glens should have won that game but for some lousy base-running.

However Saturday's title isn't no doubt as to which was the better team. The Glens came through with some faultless clutch-hitting and with sparkling work afield. In this corner's opinion the kudos or something should be given to Lyle Wannamaker who very definitely Coach Bill Spafford's whispered prophesy to us on that Windsor affair, that "the kid was due" Brother, Wanny made no mistake with the hickory on Saturday.

Bobby Hunter should be presented with some sort of a medal, too, since he almost enjoyed an iron-man's role with his fine seven-hit chore in the first frame and went in in a relief role in the second to stifle the Windsor hit-hungry bats.

The Glens got back their batting eyes, so sadly missing in the Windsor a week ago and pounded the border city hurlers for a grand total of 25 hits in the two games. Cal Pearson, ace right-hander of the Windsor squad who was saved for the "big" title tilt, please prove of no puzzle to the run-hungry Glens.

Red Carson went behind the plate in the second game and his decision on one or two occasions drew the ire of the Windsor coach, Jim Mousseau. In fact Mousseau insisted on Carson throwing his OASA umpire over one stage of the game.

However, the Glens proved themselves the better team of the two and are worthy southern Ontario champions. Next week they go to North Bay where they meet the Algonquin juniors believed to be a North Bay team, for the all-Ontario championship. The squads host the Sarnia and Windsor winners and will remain over for the second tilt on Monday. The quality of the northerners is unknown down thisaway but you can bet they will be tough nuts to crack if they're good enough to vote the northern title. It should be the "thrillingest" series yet.

But the Glens are good too. They disposed of Brockville and Oshawa, got a big break when they downed the Orenda Prince of Wales club, but were the class for their decisive victories over the Windsor crew. If they win the all-Ontario title, there should be some sort recognition since this "all-home brew" squad will be the first to bring a softball title here in some time.

"A GLORIOUS VICTORY"

The gals along the banks of the Gowanus kicked up their heels with glee. The glazes in Flatbush taverns, bistros, night clubs and homes shook themselves off tables and bars as the boys and gals of Brooklyn whooped it up far into the night following the thrilling eleven innings 6-5 victory of their beloved Dodgers over "Dem Dam Yankees." 'Twas a gala night in old Brooklyn and if any chance the "Bums" come through today with that series-winning tilt, it'l Ole N'Yrkwk will resound to celebration such as Gotham has never experienced. For 'd' boys' love "dem Bums" and Carl "Oiskin" and company will be presented with gold keys to the city hall. This is the day for the Dodgers—or is it?

Varsity, Mustangs Win Opening Games In Intercollegiate Football Union

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Senior Intercollegiate Football Union, Canada's most colorful gridiron circuit, opened its 24-game 1952 schedule Saturday with last year's two topteams registering victories.

The University of Toronto Blues, 1951 champions, salvaged an unimpressive 8-3 win from a fighting McGill Redmen aggregation at Varsity Stadium while last season's runnerup University of Western Ontario Mustangs humiliated Queen's Golden Gaels 33-1 in the Tricolor town Richardson Stadium at Kingston.

Varsity fans, exhibiting little of the power that carried them through an unbeaten 1951 season, were lucky to gain their 8-3 win from McGill. The Redmen drove to the Varsity one-yard line in the final seconds of play and it was only a terrific goal-line stand by the Blues that enabled them to walk off victors.

Fumbles Play Part

In Kingston, greasy fingers played a big part in the Tricolor downfall. Queen's pushed the Mustangs back into Western territory time after time, but lost their golden opportunities by fumbling on crucial plays. In all, the Gaels miscued 10 times and were able to recover only three while the Mustangs fumbled four and recovered two.

The running, passing and kicking of 21-year-old Geoff Crain, McGill's starry quarterback, highlighted the tension-packed game in Toronto. His performance was supported only by Steve Onuchuck who scored Varsity's lone touchdown.

Protected by a hard-charging line, Crain not only completed five passes for 65 yards, but ran for the majority of the team's 14 first downs and booted McGill's only three points. Oneschuck skittered 34 yards for Varsity's only major while Bill Bewley converted and Al Haig booted two singles to complete the Blues scoring.

Tricolor Loses Fight

Queen's put on a valiant show in the first half at Kingston, but successive fumbles appeared to break the team's spirit. Each club rolled for 11 first downs in the opening 30 minutes, but Western made 11 17 45 19 in the second half.

Ray Truant led the Western scoring parade with a touchdown, a field goal and three converts for 11 of the 33 points. Jim Carrol booted a single while Don Prowse, Bob McIlurdo, Bill Smith and Gino Fracas romped over for the four other Mustang majors, Fracas converting his own five-pointer.

Jack Sisson kicked to the deadline early in the second quarter for the lone Queen's point.

Queen's will play in Montreal against McGill next Saturday while Varsity moves into London for a game with Western.

Reynolds Blanked Them 2-0 On Saturday But Carl 'Oiskin' Came Back With 6-5 Victory

By GAYLE TALBOT

BROOKLYN (AP)—The official World Series program says "on page 25, speaking of Duke Snider: "If he gets hot, he can break this Series wide open." They can write that again.

The Duke became torrid yesterday, along with a pair of his outfielding mates, Carl Furillo and Andy Pafko, and if the Series isn't broken, it's at least severely bent.

Brooklyn Dodgers need only one more victory as they face New York Yankees in Ebbets Field today, and they are moving with great momentum after yesterday's 6-5, 11-inning v'.tory.

Billy Loes is Manager Charlie Dressen's nominee to try to win it up. The Dodgers chances of winning depend almost entirely upon whether big Vic Raschi is in something near the brilliant form he was last Thursday, when he gave them a rare hiding.

Top-Flight Job

But the job they did yesterday on a couple of second-line bomber throwers, Ewell Blackwell and Johnny Sain, was a beaut. Snider won it with his three timely blasts—home run, double and single—and Furillo and Pafko did a fine game. Carl Erskine with two as magnificent relief pitching as you'll see any World Series

Yankees didn't permit another Yank hit Sunday after Old Jawn Mize unloaded his three-run homer to put the Yankees ahead 5-4 in the fifth. In fact, he retired the last 19 Yank batters in succession.

Some thought that Pafko made the greater catch when he leaped over the fence to snag the last out of Gene Woodling's long belt in the second inning. Others thought Furillo's robbery of Mize for the second out in the 11th was the prize.

It would be easy to overlook Erskine's remarkable performance. The fact is Dressen says the Yankees made five hits, but you should have seen them. Two were by Mickey Mantle to lead off the fourth, was a real blast. The next three, which put the Yanks back in business in the fifth, were mangy singles which just trickled into the Brooklyn infield. The only one worthy of the name was Mize's homer. It was well and truly swatted.

Sain Was Safe

Sain's bopper past the mound to lead off the 10th was a difficult ball to handle, and Jackie Robinson had to be an exceptional second baseman to make a play on it at all. Gil Hodges also had to be a fine first baseman to stretch out and take Jackie's off-balance throw. Without much doubt, Sain was across the bag when the ball arrived. Umpire Art Passarella apparently was "blacked out" on the play. When, after some hesitation, he called Sain out, his ears were badly singed by Coach Bill Dickey and other Yankees.

The American Leaguers were arguing loud and long last night that the play was a turning point. They eventually convinced themselves that, but for the bad call, they would have scored in the inning and won the contest. But it was a little difficult to go along with them because the next three Yankee batters—counting Mantle, who opened the 11th—were loud outs.

Reynolds Won Saturday

Allie Reynolds and the ageless Mize teamed up Saturday to lead the Yankees to a 2-0 victory over the Dodgers in the fourth game of the Series.

Reynolds, facing rookie Joe Black for the second time in the Series, limited the Dodgers to four hits—two by Peewee Reese and one each by Pafko and Furillo. He struck out 10 men, getting Robinson three times, and walked only two.

Mize starting at first base in place of Joe Collins, broke the scorelessness of the contest with a home run off Black in the fourth inning, which proved to be enough to win.

Black gave up three hits before he was taken out for a pinch hitter in the eighth.

Johnny Rutherford, a native of Belleville, Ont., who grew up in Detroit, was not given a chance at bat—a triple by Mantle.

Series Notes

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP)—Outstanding star of the 1952 World Series?

It's a close contest between the Yankees' big slugger, Johnny Mize, and the Dodgers' Duke Snider, who wore the horns of the Series in 1940.

Mize, 39-year-old National League refugee who is beginning to play for only summers in Florida, has poled three prodigious home runs in successive games to tie a record and is hitting a lusty .444 in nine plate appearances.

Snider has hit two home runs, personally won two ball games for Brooklyn and hoes a Dodger spraying all the way. His homer won the first game, 4-2 and his double in the 11th won yesterday's game, 6-5, after his homer had given Brooklyn a 5-4 lead later lost.

"This has given me the greatest thrill of my life," says Duke, a disappointment in Brooklyn's losing series with the Yankees three years ago when his Series batting average was .143. This time it is .318.

This could easily be the home-run-hitingest World Series of them all. Ten homers have been struck. The record for a six-game series is 11, hit by the Yankees and Giants in 1936. In a seven-game set, it's 12, set by Pittsburgh and Washington in 1925.

Numerologists must have had a field day at the expense of Carl Erskine, who won yesterday's game for Brooklyn on his fifth wedding anniversary on Oct. 5 in the fifth game of the series, giving up five hits. Carrying it further, Carl, whose two boys are aged 2 and 3 for a total of five years, gave up five runs in the Yankee's last-inning before finally prevailing 6-5.

Rookie Billy Martin continues to be touched by the Series spell. He pegged George Shuba's grounder in the first inning to nip Brooklyn's first run. Later the veteran Ewell Blackwell filled the bases. Martin called time and went over to tell Blackwell to keep a stiff upper lip.

Red Wings Win Little World Baseball Series

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (CP)—With right-hander Jack Crimlan starring in a relief role for the third successive game, Rochester Red Wings won the Little World Series Saturday : 'ht by defeating Kansas City Blues 6-4 in the decisive game of their best-of-seven series.

The victory for the International League champions capped a great comeback in the series. At one point they trailed the American Association representatives 3-1 in games.

Crimlan appeared in a relief role three nights in succession as the Red Wings fought back from the brink of elimination.

In the deciding game he took over in the sixth from Jackie Collum after Kansas City had scored four runs to give them two runs of the Red Wings. He put out the fire and gave up only two hits the rest of the game.

The series players' pool, drawn from the first four games, amounted to $46,641. The Red Wings took shares of $1,224 for each player compared with $730 e-man for the losers.

Umpire Passerella Made Mistake, If The-Press Camera Does Not Lie

NEW YORK (AP)—A picture sequence of yesterday's World Series game appeared to show that American League umpire Art Passarella made a wrong call—and Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick admitted it.

Passarella called New York Yankee pitcher Johnny Sain out at first base in the 10th inning. The pictures, taken by Associated Press photographer Carl Rowan, show Sain's foot on the bag and the ball not yet in first baseman Gil Hodges' mitt.

"According to this picture, it looks as if Passarella called a wrong play," Frick said.

"If he did, that's only human. I assure you it's not the first wrong call ever made by an umpire. If it was that What's all the shooting about? Players make mistakes, too. So do officials. So does the Commissioner. A player makes an error, another for:'.' to cover a base, a pitcher makes a wild pitch; a catcher lets a ball get away from him. Very little is said.

"But once an umpire makes a wrong call, he is crucified. Why? An umpire is only human. He can make mistakes too. And I'm interested in is whether he was in the right position to make the call. The picture shows he was."

Passarella said he didn't blame editors for showing the picture.

"It's a good one," he said. "But pictures don't always tell the true story. I was on top of the play and called it as I saw it. In my judgment, the run:.', whoever he was, was out. That's the way I called it, and I'll stick to it."

Sain was leading off the 10th when the disputed play occurred. If he had been called safe, it would have put a runner on' first with none out.

Glen Roys Win Southern Ontario Junior 'A' Softball Championship

Defeat Windsor Local 195's In Both Ends Doubleheader; Meet Algonquins for Title

By JACK BRETT

Glen Roy copped the Southern Ontario Junior "A" championship by defeating Windsor Local 195 on both ends of a double header played at the Alemite Field Saturday afternoon to the tune of 12-2 and 5-4. This victory gives the Glens the right to meet Algonquin Juniors next week. They will be played in North Bay next week-end for the all - Ontario championship series.

Both teams got a home run in the first game, Cec. Walford leading with two out in the bottom of the third giving the Glens a 2-0 lead straight over the centre field fence; tie up the score, 2-2, in the Windsor half of the fourth when Riggs hit a long high one to left field for Windsor and four hits to give the Windsor team their final tally of the game.

Bobbie Hunter hurled for the Glens in the first game to go the route. The speedy right hander threw the opposition nine hits for six runs, walked four and struck out six. For the Auto Workers, Chuck Jones was the victim as Riggs in the sixth. Between the two hurlers, they gave up 10 hits for 12 runs, strolled nine and struck out five.

Windsor Opens Scoring

In the first tilt, Windsor drew first blood. Riggs opened the scoring aboard on a walk as he knocked out a long fly to centre field for three bases. Lucier's single drove Riggs home with the first run at the close of the first half. The Glens turned the tide of the battle in their half when Bechtel singled and tallied on the third baseman's error. Walford also scored Carr aboard on a walk. Hunt singled with the third run and a fielder's error crossed the plate on a passed ball to give the Glens a 4-2 lead by 5-3 at the finish of one complete frame.

Two fielder's choices in the fourth frame scored two runs for Glen Roy. Ouellette got a high ball out to centre field and the centre fielder fumbled the pick-up as the runner pushed first. Carr knocked out a fly score. The right fielder bobbled Thursday's high fly and the runner went on to tally and put the Glens ahead 6-4 at the end of the fourth.

It was really the sixth frame where the game was decided. Chudyk walked the first two batsmen. Hunt struck out the third batter and a fielder's error scored the second batsman on the first. Bechtel aboard second on a single and a passed ball scored as Pete Green singled. Bechtel scored on a second on a passed ball, to third as the next two batters walked and each tallied home for the fifth run. Wannamaker, on pinch-hit, filled the bases as was walked, crossed the plate on a fielder's choice to give the Glens a healthy 12-4 lead.

Lucier, pulled from third on a fielder's choice, gave Windsor in the seventh and Veres' home run made it 12-6 going into the first game. In the course of the game Glen Roy committed one error and Windsor committed five.

Walk Three In Row

In the second game, the lineups were much the same with the exception of Bob Hunter replacing Riggs on the mound for Windsor and Nolan was moved to right field as Bobby Green went to the mound for Belleville.

Both teams scored one run in the second frame, DeGray for the Glens, made second on a single and a fielder's error and crossed the plate as Bob Green's three runs were strolled. Rickout tallied for Windsor, aboard third on a single and two passed balls. McCallum's single drove in the runner.

Hull and Nolan gave the Glens ahead as they scored off two walks, a single and a fielder's choice to make it 3-2 at the end of the third.

The Glens scored their fourth across home plate in the fourth. Carr singled, went to third on Barclay's single and scored on the fielder's error. Barclay aboard third scored on a passed ball and Hull, after striding to first, tallied as Bob Green drove him in on a single to make it 6-2 at the end of the fourth inning.

Windsor threatened in the fifth. Veres double drove in Lucier aboard on a walk and Veres was driven in as McCallum tripled to put the visitors in the running again.

Win It in Eighth

However, the Glens sewed up the game in the eighth inning as they added two more runs to the score and held Windsor scoreless from the fifth. Bob Green in second on an error, scored as Carr singled. Barclay walked, gained second as Hull singled and scored as Bechtel singled to end the scoring for both teams and give the Glens the Southern Ontario championship.

In the second contest, Pierson went the route for Glen Roy to give Belleville, 15 hits for eight runs, nine six and strike out four. Green led the mound

Timbermen Take First Game From Vancouver

TORONTO (CP) — A year ago, Peterborough Timbermen needed seven games to win the Canadian Senior Lacrosse Championship and the Mann Cup.

On the basis of the first game of this year's final, the defending champions seem a good bet to wind up the best-of-seven series in six games.

Peterborough swamped Vancouver Combines in the same club they defeated on the west coast last year — 9-1 in the opening game here yesterday and had an edge in every department.

The Timbermen team arrived from the west only two days previous and were obviously tired by the trip. They'll have to improve greatly to match the smooth-working eastern champions.

Peterborough led 2-0 at the end of the opening quarter, and added 5-1 advantage at the conclusion of the second. They whipped in three goals during the third frame and added another in the fourth.

The players praised the Timbermen's payoff attacks. Harry Wipper and Lou Rickol, both defencemen, and Ray Hamilton got two goals apiece.

Loss Goal

Jim Swanson, a good-checking defenceman with a hard shot, fired the only drive that eluded Vancouver Moon Wootton in the Peterborough net.

Jack Green, the Vancouver goalie and one of the best senior B netminders, was busy throughout most of the contest. Time and again the fleet-footed eastern club swept in and gave him little chance to use his goals.

The series will resume here tomorrow night with the third game scheduled for Friday night. All games will be played in Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens, where 4,222 fans sat in on the opener.

'One Count' Wins Racing Classic

Riders Trim Argos In Upset, Ticats Down Larks; Pegs Win

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

One of these days a wage is likely to ask if Saskatchewan Roughriders and Montreal Alouettes are still in the Canadian football league.

They've been acting like cellar-dwellers almost since the Western Interprovincial and Big Four Football Unions started operating this season.

The Roughies lost 26-0 to the Eskimos at Edmonton Saturday and the Als were crushed 36-0 by the mighty Hamilton Tiger-Cats at Montreal Monday in games that had the fans almost yawning. It was Saskatchewan's fourth straight setback and the Als' sixth.

Two Top Contests

All the thrills, spills and goofy goings-on were included in the only other Big Four games at Calgary and Ottawa where 29,000 football happy fans — 11,000 at Ottawa and 12,000 at the western stadium—watched the choice fills of the crowded weeken.

The Rough Riders spilled Argonauts 24-8 in a 1953 play-off preview from-behind battle that accomplished two things. It made Argonauts' first loss of the season and was the first victory in the last 10 Toronto-Ottawa clashes for the 1951 Dominion Champions.

The Toronto boys coupled with Tiger-Cats' triumph, left the two clubs knotted at the top of the standing with nine points each. The two points gained by the Rough Riders put them within striking distance of a playoff berth with six.

This week-end Western Canada double-header concludes tonight with Winnipeg meeting the Eskimos at Edmonton and the Roughriders at Calgary. Top billing goes to the Bomber-Eskimo battle and it is likely to be a pitching duel between Jacobs and flinging Franky Filchock.

Ottawa Rally

Ottawa's victory over Argonauts wasn't too surprising but the way they picked themselves off the Lansdowne Park field isn't the fans home talking to themselves. The spectators were looking for the nearest exits when Argonauts rolled up a 16-0 lead in the first 16 minutes.

The fans found their lungs when Riders banged over for 12 points in the last 1.40 ver and tacked on two converted touchdowns and a field goal to take a third-quar 25-16 lead. Argonauts fought back, went over for another touchd and were only one yard from pay dirt with a minute of the game left when Doug Smylie fumbled and Riders pounced on the loose ball. That was The Argonaut hex was broken at a time when the rough riders were desperate for points.

In the Ontario Rugby Football Union, Hamilton Tiger-Cats whipped the winless Windsor Rockets 36-0 and Toronto Balmy Beach edged out Brantford Redskins 17-12.

World Series Dressing Room Chat

By TED SMITS

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Yankees, their backs against the wall in the 1953 World Series, gave grudgi-z praise to the Dodgers yesterday and said Brooklyn's protest against two first-base decisions.

Johnny Mize, whose third home run of the Series put the Yankees ahead 5-4, found no joy in his feat.

"Johnny Sain was safe at first in the 10th," he grunted. "Why, Gil Hodges was lying off the bag. But they called him out. If the call had been right, Sain would have scored. have been a different ball game."

"And in the eighth!" Jerry Coleman always red, turned redder. "I slid safely across the bag with my foot and touched the ball. Gil Hodges was out. But they called an error on Phil Rizzuto. Sure, I should had reach back for the bag. I didn't, because I didn't need to."

"They" was Art Passarella, American League umpire at first base

Had No Effect

Casey Stengel neither call vitally affected the course of the game, unless it can be presumed that, if Sain were safe at first, the Yankee pitcher might have gone on to do something. Then again, he got in the eighth when Hodges was ruled safe at first, and Carl Erskine, Dodger pitcher, protested vainly.

Mize's amazing hitting in this series—three home runs and a double so far—prompted the inquiry whether he would change his mind about retiring and go on playing at least until he has made his 2,000th hit in regular season play. He now has 1,985.

"Damon," he said. "Depends on what the front office thinks. Depends on what Casey thinks."

As for Manager Casey Stengel, he allowed how "that fella pitched better ball in the last half of the

Wallace Wins Over Tisdale

DETROIT (AP)—Gordon Wallace of Brantford, Ont., won an eight-round decision over Billy Tisdale of Detroit in the main feature at Motor City Arena Saturday night.

Wallace weighed 158½, Tisdale 159½.

Wallace won by a wide margin. He had Tisdale down for a three count in the first and staggered him in the sixth.

In a four-round preliminary bout, Frank Degasie, 164, Niagara Falls, Ont., decisioned Red Trudeau, 165½, Lansing, Mich.

NOHA Decides Against Union

SCHUMACHER (CP)—The 34th annual meeting of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association decided Saturday against direct affiliation with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. The executive said affiliation at this time would be premature.

One of the main advantages of direct affiliation would be a $3,000 grant which would be spent on developing hockey. It would also mean two votes at C.A.H.A. meetings and expenses for N.O.H.A. officials to meetings of the Canadian body.

The N.O.H.A. now is affiliated with the Ontario Hockey Association which has representation on Northern Ontario at C.A.H.A. meetings.

C.C. Brown of Timmins was elected president.

BOXOS TOPS FRO GOLFERS

CHICAGO (AP)—With only one official event remaining, the Miami Open, on the Professional Golfers Association 1953 tournament tour, Lloyd Mangrum has clinched the year's money-winning title with $17,032. Jim Ferrier-Dutroff is assured the runner-up spot with $30,844.

Rocket Richard Fires Tying Goal In All-Star Game

DETROIT (AP) — Maurice (Rocket) Richard fired a final-period goal tonight that helped to give the second all-star team a 1-1 tie with the first team in the sixth national hockey league all-star game tonight before 10,680 fans.

Left wing Marty Pavelich of Detroit Red wings pushed the first team ahead at 9:37 of the second period while Goalie Jim Henry of Boston was sprawled helpless on the ice.

Richard, Montreal scoring ace, got his goal just as easily at 1:36 of the third period. Fly Baller of New York fired a close-in shot and goalie Terry Sawchuk moved out to make a successful stop. But he was slow in getting back in front of the net and Richard scored.

Henry was in the net for the second minutes and the last 30 minutes. The last of 21 shots at Henry got by.

Sawchuk had to go all the way because of injury to his relievement, Chuck Rayner of New York. Sawchuk had 19 saves, McNeil 10, Bill Gadsby of New York and Dave Creighton got the assists for Pavelich's goal. Buller assisted Richard.

Boxer Dies After Knockout

Taylor was knocked out by Charlie Joseph of New Orleans in the sixth round of a scheduled 10-round bout.

Hospital attendants said Taylor was in the operating room six hours following the fight.

Cup and Saucer Won by Taylor

TORONTO (CP) — Canadians, owned and bred by E.P. Taylor of Toronto, won the King's Cup and Saucer International at 10 lengths at Long Branch race track Saturday. The victory was worth $13,410 to the Taylor stable.

The filly was so far in front of the field of 14 that the real race was for second. Bonsaud, owned by Charlie Krupp, second out Addison Stable's Avella. Vince Sheridan's Bracerest was fourth.

Canadiana paid $2.80, $2.80 and $2.20. Bonsaud paid $8 and $3.80. Avella paid $2.80.

Kid Gavilan Wins Decisively Over Graham

Gavilan last night took at least 11 of the 15 rounds, and left no doubt about the decision this time. There are still many who say Graham should have had the decision in their New York title bout Aug. 29, 1951.

Gavilan this time was the master of the situation nearly all the way. But the Cuban was so cautious not to let the spectators get carried away from him that it was not much of a spectacle, as a fight.

Graham himself commented that Gavilan threw him off by not leading.

As for his own showing, Graham said:

"I wasn't nearly as sharp, nor did I have the power I've had in the past."

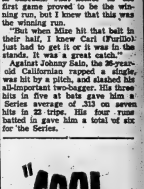
This was a masterpiece of understatement. At times Graham looked like a novice as he fought wildly, on a few occasions coming so closer than two feet to Gavilan.

The 15-round battle, fought in Havana's Sports Palace last Saturday night encounter had been washed out by rain.

Sports department officials estimated the crowd at 35,000 to 40,000, but a check-up with stadium officials showed official attendance of only 12,824. The one-day delay and threatening weather Sunday was blamed.

Snider Gets 'Thrill of Life'

NEW YORK (AP)—"It's the law of averages catching up. I sure hope it catches up some more Monday."



Publisher Duke Snider, hitting hero of Brooklyn Dodgers' 6-5, 11-inning World Series win over New York Yankees yesterday, made the remark and then excused himself to pose for photographers who were asking "for one more."

When the photographers finally released him, the handsome centre-fielder admitted that his game-winning hit was my greatest thrill in baseball. That homer in the first game proved to be the winning run, but I knew that this was the winning run.

"I knew when I hit that ball in their half, I knew Carl (Furillo) just had to get it or it was in the stands. It was a great catch."

Against Johnny Sain, the 26-year-old Californian rapped a single, was hit by a pitch, and slashed his 4-for-4 batting average. His three hits in five at bats gave him a Series average of .313 on seven hits in 22 trips. His four runs batted in gave him a total of six for the Series.

"COOL CONTROL" THROWING A FORWARD PASS

1 Grip ball with fingers across laces, thumb underneath. Extend hand as wide as possible. Proper grip gives feeling and "touch" to ball. Be sure ball is gripped firmly but throwing hand. Throw is overruled for greatest accuracy.

2 Avoid sidearm pseudo baseball throw you see daily. Ball is thrown from elbow and behind shoulder, inside the ear. Right foot should point and behind body's weight left arm and hand stretches in direction of throw. Weight shifts to left foot as ball is thrown.

3 Release ball at top of motion in front of head to prevent deception. A good pass is rainbowed high. For safe short flanker and end downfield and lowest is best. Ball is released, finger motion on Yellow-Brand helps add distance to throw.

Yes, it's control that counts in football as in every sport — control which brings that extraordinary quality that sets one performer above the other. In the ability to approach flings exactly, to control every move and movement, lies the answer to better results.

This is one of a series designed to increase the pleasure of sports fans in clubs who participate in sports.

The Kibitzer

Ziva Tyne has an opening bid for every hand. It is "Oh, dear." But an experienced player is not permitted to get away with such words. He must start with a number and a denomination.

There was this pair of partnership hands:

SOUTH	NORTH
♠ K 3	♠ 10 5 4
♥ A J 9 4 2	♥ A Q 6
♦ A K 10	♦ 6 4 2
♣ 6 4 2	♣ 9 7 6 5
None	3 2

With the south hand you may think there is a choice of first bids. Nor would you be far off. Because it has enough for either an opening of one diamond or four diamonds.

An opening of four in a minor suit shows a long, practically solid suit, at least eight tricks, a sure trick outside of the suit. All or which you can see in the south hand.

An opening 'of one in a suit promises at least five tricks, of which four are high cards, among which are two sure tricks; and a bidable suit. All of which south has with a little more.

There are certain advantages to an opening of four in a minor. It tells partner about the independence of your suit; of so many tricks. It makes opponent interference tough for them.

On the other hand there are many advantages to an opening of one in a suit. Partner gets a cheap chance to show you what he has. The pair can more time for exchange of information.

With an opening of one diamond the bids would go like this:

South	North
1 D	1 S
2 C	3 NT
4 D	5 D

The weaknesses in the north hand are more apparent to one who sees no other hand. At no time does he encourage slam. So a stretch beyond game has cooled off in south.

Leave well enough alone.

Sport in Brief

OTTAWA (CP)—Faced by Dusty Blair, Ottawa Senators of the Quebec Senior Hockey League turned back Chicoutimi Black Hawks of the National Hockey League 4-2 here Saturday night in a bruising exhibition game.

The Senators scored their goals in the final period to come from behind after the Hawks took a two-goal lead in the initial stanza and protected it throughout the second.

Blair scored two of the Ottawa goals, his second with four seconds remaining in the game after Goalie Al Rollins was taken out with the score 3-2. Other Ottawa scorers were veteran Alex Kuntz and Ken Laufman, last season with the Junior Coaglie Biltmores, Memorial Cup champions.

Jimmy Peters and Pete Babando scored for the hawks.

Twelve minor penalties were issued in the hard-hitting affair with eight going to the Hawks. In addition to misconduct penalties went to Chicago's Fred Glover and Al Dewsbury. Glover drew his for fighting with Rollins in the penalty box after the two had been flagged with minors, and Dewsbury drew his for arguing over a minor penalty.

MONTREAL (CP)—Big Four Football Union officials met yesterday to draw playing rules and the college draft system.

They decided to remedy the confused timing arrangement by having the time-keeper carried from the official timer's bench and raised to signal one minute of playing time before the end of the second and fourth quarters. An official on the field will continue to carry a pistol to fire the shot signalling the end of the first half of the game.

The committee discussed the college draft system inaugurated last spring but proposed no changes. The system is not recognized by clubs in the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

BARRIA (CP) — Displaying a wide open running attack, Barrie's Wildcats breezed to a 34-0 intermediate O.H.F.U. victory over East York Blue Devils yesterday before 500 fans. Stan Campbell was the scoring star, counting four touchdowns.

GUELPH (AP)—Cleveland Barons hockey club sold three veteran forwards to Buffalo Bisons Saturday and sent a fourth to its New Haven farm club. Ken Schultz, Ray Cervetto and Ken Davies will report to the Bisons Tuesday. Eddie Bumbacco goes to New Haven on a 24-hour recall option.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Producers in Hollywood who think they are throttled by censorship should listen to a film maker from India.

Visiting here is Mehboob Kahn, a top producer-director in India's huge film industry. He is the maker of "Aan," enjoying its 11th week in London. Kahn is talking a deal for a major company to release it in the United States.

No Kissing

Kahn discussed movie-making in India.

"Ah, yes, we have censorship, too," he said. "But ours is even more strict. We cannot even show a man and woman kissing. Isn't that silly? Indians can see all the kissing they want in American pictures, but it isn't allowed in pictures made in India.

"Nor can we depict gangsters, even though American gangster pictures play Indian theatres."

Star Troubles

Actors are a problem in India, he added.

"We have four or five big male stars and an equal number of female stars. All of them are freelance, and that makes a mess. Some are working in 10 pictures at the same time. They give one producer five days of work, another four days, and so forth. A picture can take a year or more to make because of that."

Kahn said the Indian film industry makes between 200 and 300 pictures a year.

Nick discovers an international counterfeiting ring operating through the casino underworld. Massino, Kay and vendors from the hideous town and is locked up. "Father's Little Dividend"

Spencer Tracy's daughter, Elizabeth Taylor, is safely married, and his worries are over—he thinks. Then Elizabeth and her husband, Don Taylor, announce a baby is on the way. Again the Tracy household is uncooled; and there is rivalry with Taylor's parents about naming the offspring, as well as when Elizabeth, Dot. and the baby will live. The youngsters settle that by announcing they have bought their own home. The baby arrives—a nice, agreeable child until Grandpa Tracy appears, upon which the infand screams lustily. Tracy inherits the baby for a week-end and, taking him for an airing in the park, loses him. The police, who are about to arrest him for negligence, allow him to see the baby, who gives him a toothless grin—and from then on Grandpa Tracy is baby's patsy.

AT THE McCARTHY—Gary Merrill confronts Bette Davis with the gun that killed her husband in this dramatic scene from United Artists' thrilling release, "Another Man's Poison", now playing at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre. "Getting Gertie's Garter" with Dennis O'Keefe and Marie McDonald is the added feature.

AT THE CAPITOL — "I'm not only sure I love you" is the song Nancy Olson and James Arness sing in Milton Douglas Productions-Columbia Pictures' "Death of a Salesman," now playing Kramer production which will be presented by "Curtain at 8:30" Thursday, October 16 for the first and only showing. All seats reserved. Phone 24.

AT THE BELLE

Fred Astaire, Marjorie Main Star in MGM's Inspiriting Romantic Musical, "Belle of New York."

Fred Astaire and Vera – Ellen literally dance "on air" in "The Bell of New York" now showing at the Belle Theatre, and the spirits of everyone viewing this captivating new MGM Technicolor musical will be lifted accordingly. Laid in the nostalgic period of New York's gaslight, horse-drawn streetcar and Currier and Ives era, "The Belle of New York" comes as an enchanting blend of songs and dances, colorful sets and costumes, and a plot bubbling with laughs.

Prominent in the hilarious proceedings of "The Belle of New York" is Marjorie Main, (Ma Kettle) bringing her unfailing humor to the role of Charlie's Cowgirl aunt who puts up a tongue-in front against the inroads of his show-girl friends. Others who add to the comedy hilarity are Keenan Wynn, as the somewhat slow-witted family attorney, the inimitable Alice Pearce, coming from her Broadway success as "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," Clinton Sundberg and Gale Robbins.

With "The Belle of New York," Director Charles Walters adds to the laurels of his previous hits as "Summer Stock" and "Easter Parade," while Arthur Freed presents this new musical as the latest in a hit parade including "An American in Paris," "Show Boat" and "Annie Get Your Gun."

Why We Say—

"TELL DOWN THE RIVER"

Old South

The Mississippi River was also referred to in this expression. As the bulk of business in the Old South was transacted on the river, people in the interior who had to ship their produce down the river often were not really sold in the big cities on the Mississippi. It would be "sold further down the river."

Malenkov Says U.S. and Its 'Bosses' Bent on Domination Of World, War on Soviet Union

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW (AP) — George M. Malenkov opened the 19th all-Soviet Communist party congress last night with a hour-long denunciation of the United States and its "bosses," who he said were bent on world domination and war on the Soviet Union.

Opening the first such party congress in 13 years, the leading member of the Soviet Union's ruling Politburo charged the United States is driving the capitalistic world toward economic breakdown and war, while the Soviet Union seeks only peace and is growing ever stronger and more prosperous.

Joseph Stalin and an audience of 2,000 delegates in the Kremlin's great hall heard Malenkov's gavel-crashing charged the "bosses" of the United States had decided to wreck the peace and prepare a new war," a war on the Soviet Union, the "chief obstacle."

Malenkov's long speech was made public first on a broadcast early today by Tass, the Soviet news agency. (Non-Communist reporters are not attending the congress sessions.) The keynote address, delivered in the past by Stalin himself, practically laid the basis for policies to be approved later by the congress. Malenkov flagrantly regarded as Stalin's exact likely successor.

Also on the agenda of the congress sessions, expected to last a week, are changes in the party rules, a new party plan launched 18 months ago for vast increases in industrial and agricultural production, and major changes in the party's organization, including replacement of the politburo and Organization Bureau (Orgburo) by a presidium.

8th U.S. Policies

Malenkov's bitter charges against the United States were preceded by similar accusations from another politburo member, former Foreign Minister V.M. Molotov, who denounced U.S. "ruling circles" for creating "aggressive war alliances like the North Atlantic bloc directed against peace-loving states of the Soviet Union, the China of the People Republic and countries of the peoples democracies."

"The bosses of the United States," said Molotov, "... have from the experience of two World Wars ... that it was impossible even to dream about world dominion without the use of force."

Malenkov charged the United States with creating bases throughout the world and "remilitarizing West Germany and Japan" for "criminal purposes." These were some of his other charges against the United States:

The U.S. is "refusing to ban atom and germ weapons and reduce conventional armaments." The Soviet Union wants to do so.

Says Wants Peace

The U.S. "refuses to conclude a peace pact." Russia wants one.

The U. S. "knocks together aggressive blocs against peace-loving peoples, while the treaties concluded by the Soviet Union with foreign states are raising more actively at the struggle against revivalist of Japanese or German aggression."

The U. S. "attacked Korea and endeavors to enslave her, while the Soviet Union has nowhere conducted any military operations from the very moment of the end of the Second World War."

The United States is "intensively urging the other capitalist countries policy of 'international co-operation are dictating to all participants in their bloc their goals of war."

Malenkov said the Communist party's chief task in the field of foreign policy is to counter all this by "struggling against the preparation and unleashing of a new war," to intensify the "peace partisan" movement throughout the world, and "to insistently expose all preparations for a new war and all intrigues of the warmongers," he added today.

He outlined these additional policy planks to be followed by the party in foreign policy:

1. Strengthen the defensive might of the Soviet state and "raise our preparedness to administer a crushing rebuff to any aggressors."

2. Strengthen and develop the "indestructible, friendly relations with the Chinese and other people republics."

3. Implement in the future the policy of "international co-operation and development of business relations with all countries."

On the economic front, Malenkov promised "further rises in the output of consumer goods" and "rises our prosperedness to administer."

Stalin himself, practically laid the basis for policies to be approved later by the congress. Malenkov flagrantly regarded as Stalin's exact likely successor.

Also on the agenda of the congress sessions, expected to last a week, are changes in the party rules, a new party plan launched 18 months ago for vast increases in industrial and agricultural production, and major changes in the party's organization, including replacement of the politburo and Organization Bureau (Orgburo) by a presidium.

Strengthening Defense

The Soviet Union, Malenkov said, is "unswervingly carrying out a policy of peaceful co-operation with all countries," but he added that because of the "threats of new aggression from the side of the western warmongers, it is strengthening and will strengthen its defence capabilities."

Malenkov's long speech was made public first on a broadcast early today by Tass, the Soviet news agency. (Non-Communist reporters are not attending the congress sessions.) Italian Communists Adopt Bourgeois Technique

The Communist party of Italy staged an all-out fund-raising campaign for the party organ "l'Unita," Italy's "Voice of Moscow." Activities ranged from sale of pocket-sized pictures of the number one Communist, Palmiro Togliatti, to crowning of "Red Miss." The beauty contest was the highlight of the rally and the Reds' party leaders proved as well that pictures of Togliatti are offered for sale at a "convenient price" but this hawker seems to be having some difficulty with his product. At right is 18-year-old Maria Bellini, who won the beauty contest. She is called "Miss Vie Nuove" after the Communist weekly. — Central Press Canadian.

37 Persons Die Violently During Week-end in E. Canada

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Violent death came to 37 persons in Eastern Canada during the week-end. A survey early today showed there were 21 traffic deaths six drownings and four from other causes.

Highest toll was in Ontario where there were 21 fatalities. Quebec had 13 and Nova Scotia one. One reason for the high figures was the number of multiple deaths — 14 in four accidents.

There were two triple fatalities in Ontario. Mrs. Albert B. Currey, 32, of Gore Bay, wife of Judge A.B. Currey, their granddaughter, Jane Ann Currey, 2, of Sudbury and Ivan W. Cline, 22, of North Bay were killed in a two-car collision near Wawasan, 23 miles south of North Bay.

In Niagara Falls, Norman Herbert, Adam Joseph Holm and Rosario Sanbrick, all of Hamilton, were killed when their car collided with another.

Five in One Car

Biggest single accident of the week-end occurred in L'Islet, Que., where two women and three children drowned when the car they were in was backed over a pier into the St. Lawrence River. Dead are Mrs. Henri Cloutier and her twin girls, 6, and son, 7, all of Quebec, and Mrs. Georges Cloutier 38, of L'Islet.

At a St. Hyacinthe level crossing, 40 miles south of Montreal, a Canadian National Railways train rammed a car killing Andre Farrent, 34, Bernard Jutras, 17, Camille Demanches, 17, all of Drummondville.

In Toronto, Leslie Aurdt, 30, died after being pounded on the face by an unknown attacker as he and a friend were walking home. He was taken home unconscious and later died in his mother's arms. Other Traffic Deaths

Sheldon Kilsby, 4, when the car driven by his mother overturned near Cavan; Miss Bessie MacMurchy, 87, of Toronto, struck by a car while crossing the street; Robert Thomas, 45, of Cobalt, in a two-car collision near Cobalt; C.N. Donnelly of Toronto, in a head-on collision three miles west of Bronte; Earl Wilson, 32, of Delton, when his car struck a concrete bridge-rail a mile south of Iona, near St. Thomas; Warwick Ross Clements, 9, of Chatham, in collision with a car as he was bicycling home; Miss Margaret Eunice Elliott of Hamilton while riding on a motorcycle in Niagara Falls; Russell Siddell, 25, of Chatham, in a two-car crash-nine miles east of his home town; Lawrence Diehl, five months, after being thrown out of his father's auto in a collision in North York; Mrs. Isabella Hall Brennan Bossi, 23, of Scarborough, when his motorcycle collided with a truck; Rifmn. Wilson Chartrand 21, of Ottawa, Man., struck by a car while walking near Camp Ipperwash and Alex Vinson, 27, of Iron Bridge, when his truck overturned eight miles west of Blind River.

Hunter Killed

Aurel Lecoque, 13, was killed while hunting in the bush near Timmins when his 22-calibre rifle accidently discharged. George Wesley Steer, 60, was trampled to death by a bull on his farm near Owen Sound.

Toronto Man Killed

HAMILTON (CP) — A Toronto man was killed and six persons were injured in a head-on collision on Highway 8 between Stoney Creek and Dundas, west of Bronte last night.

C. H. Tomlinson of Toronto, his widow and two children were among the injured. They were brought to hospital here.

Also injured were Mr. and Mrs. Casper Hoffman of Hamilton and their two-year-old daughter, Dale.

The accident is believed to have occurred when an oil drum dropped from a truck in front of a Hamilton-bound car driven by Figiola. The impact threw the car out of control and, skidded across the centre boulevard into the path of the Dofasco car.

Bitter Reprieve

By Drexel Drake

"Why would I give a tart I never saw a $100 bill I never had?" Bindle propounded.

Talent returned the bill. "Well that's that. She could be lying, of course."

"She's lying, and it's no mayben."

Talent was satisfied. There hadn't been a ripple in Bindle's cement features but, for Talent's purposes, Bindle might as well have been a mastiff whose tail suddenly ceased wagging.

Talent made as if to get up.

"Well, I'll be on my way. Sorry I bothered you, Bindle. I'll go out the way I came."

Bindle rose agilely, walked quickly around the desk and strode toward the door. Talent stood up and his hat fell to the floor. He bent to retrieve it and as he straightened indolitively transferred a sheet of paper from Bindle's desk to his side pocket. Bindle had been fingering it when Talent entered.

"No bother, Lieutenant," Bindle said, holding the door open. "Any time."

Outside the little shop, Talent saw Gus Bigley across the street, consulting his watch. When Bigley looked across, Talent waved hello. Eighth ... Avenue. Around the corner, he waited. Bigley joined him in a few minutes.

"Bit pay dirt?" Bigley wasted no know.

"It took a long time to find the man Joe Sleppo was working for, Gus," Talent said.

"Why don't we go in and take him?"

"I think I let Bindle ... with some ideas to work over in his mind, Gus. He'll be easier to cook if I think if we get him coming out."

Isabel Wilson arrived at Police Headquarters a bit breathlessly in response to Lieutenant Talent's invitation. She used only the edge of the large chair beside his desk, and her teeth fretted her trembling lips.

"You've arranged at the bank, Miss Wilson, to have the remainder of the day off?" Talent questioned.

"Are you familiar at all with Mr. Sterling's home in Lorneston?"

"With some of it. I've been out there often doing Mr. Sterling's work, during the last month when he didn't feel able to come in."

"That's fine. After all, it is to be your home, isn't it, a part of the residue of his estate."

"Truly, that's embarrassing to me, Lieutenant. I can't account for Mr. Sterling doing that."

"But he had no other ... no natural heirs. I imagine he was glad to show his appreciation of your long, loyal service. Now, Miss Wilson, at the time his wife was ... when she died ... did Mr. Sterling turn over any special duties to you?"

"I can't recall anything special."

"There was something he mailed you from Edgecliff Country Club that morning, wasn't there?"

"Some file material he had with him, yes," Miss Wilson's fingers tightened their hold on the arms of her chair.

"Do you recall returning that material to him?" Talent asked.

"Yes, I returned it."

"When? In what way?"

Miss Wilson met her lips. "I believe it was about noon on Saturday morning to meet him at the florist to help select flowers for the funeral and he suggested that I bring that material with me."

"Just suggested?"

"Really, Lieutenant, this is difficult for me."

"It has a definite purpose, Miss Wilson, so try to bear up. So you returned the material to Mr. Sterling at the florist's?"

"Yes, I gave it to him. There was no ... comment."

"Thank you. Then what did you do for him?"

"Just a simple errand. He gave me a package to deliver and I was to pick up a roll of newspapers for him."

"To ... whom ... was from whom?"

"I don't ... oh, I delivered the package to Mr. Davenport at the Crowtown Hotel, and he gave me the roll of newspapers."

"What did Mr. Sterling do with the roll of newspapers?"

"He put them in a drawer of his desk. I doubt that he ever looked at them."

"Do you know what was in the package you delivered?"

Miss Wilson's brows gathered. "Certainly not, Lieutenant."

"Certainly not, Lieutenant."

"I don't ... oh, I delivered the package to Mr. Davenport at the Crowtown Hotel, and he gave me the roll of newspapers."

"What did Mr. Sterling do with the roll of newspapers?"

"He put them in a drawer of his desk. I doubt that he ever looked at them."

"Do you know what was in the package you delivered?"

Miss Wilson's brows gathered. "Certainly not, Lieutenant."

"Oh. You made other deliveries to this Mr. Davenport?"

"Yes. I think he became an investment client."

"But you only think that. You don't know what you delivered to him for Mr. Sterling at any time?"

"No, I haven't any idea."

Talent rubbed his chin. "When wait until we know the whole truth. Now get home to Janet, Dick. Have dinner with her, talk about something ... Think about something else. You! may get a call from me tonight. I may ask you to come out ... to bring Janet. Do it my way, won't you, Dick?"

"Okay, Chris. I guess I'm making a fool of myself."

Talent got up walked to the door of his office with Trapgood, gave him a pat of encouragement he himself was trying to feel.

Harry Sindle had not been decided into any false sense of security. When Lieutenant Talent walked out of his office pretending that a casual inquiry had been disposed of with finality, Bindle knew that an era in his career had come to an end. He didn't believe any Lily Francis existed. But Talent had clearly believed he could worry him by flashing that $100 bill. Bindle formed a quick conclusion. He had read of Marcus Sterling's death. The answer was that Sterling had talked to the police before he died.

Bindle knew he would now have to big farewell to New York, as he once had farewell to Chicago. He knew just what he wanted to take with him ... some of it from a drawer at his desk ... some of it from a concealed compartment in the back room. Not a great deal. A flat leather brief case held all of it: some personal records, he couldn't afford to leave behind, some thick bundles of crumpled currency, a long white sealed envelope.

Bindle used the side exit of the back room. He followed a narrow passage alongside the building. At its mouth, he paused just an instant. The sidewalk was clear. The doorways across the street were clear. Bindle stepped out into the gathering shadows of evening. At his third step, a man came up to him, as if from nowhere, from either side.

At his left Gus Bigley said, "The lieutenant wants to see you down at Headquarters, Bindle."

"Got a warrant?" Bindle demanded.

"He only wants to talk to you" Bigley said.

Bindle gestured resignedly. "Okay. If I gotta go to Headquarters, no use for me to be carrying my case with me. I'll leave it in my place." He pivoted as if to start back for the gangway.

"Might as well bring that along with you, Bindle," Bigley said. "Come on. We got a car."

Bindle sat wedged between two Headquarters men in the back while Bigley went to the corner to use a telephone booth. When Bigley had returned and had been sitting at ease of the car a full two minutes without showing any intention of starting the ... Bindle leaned impatiently. "Well, when do we get started?"

"Lieutenant Talent's not in a sleek car rolled by, sounding the briefest honk, old Bigley step on the starter. When they had merged into the heavy stream of northbound traffic on the West Side Express Highway, Bindle, his briefcase cushioned between his knees, edged forward. "This isn't the way to headquarters," he said bitterly.

Talent was out of his own car and crossing the sidewalk, when Ripley brought the larger car to a stop. Dusk was falling, the more noticeable under the heavy screen of trees.

Talent opened the door. Inside, Isabel Wilson was waiting, nervously supervised by ...

"The library is ready, is it?" Talent asked.

"Brent says everything is placed the way it was when ... when Mr. Sterling was alive," Miss Wilson said.

Talent pointed to a room off the hall. "Suppose I meet please until I summon you," he said to Miss Wilson. He went to the telephone, grinned when Richard Trapgood's sardonic "Hello" broke off the first sound of ringing. When he had concluded his brief conversation, Talent asked Brent to turn on the porch light. Then he went into the library. He found the large room as it had lived indelibly in his memory. He crossed to the wide alcove, opened both sashes of the tall window that had figured so prominently in that other siege setting. He moved just slightly the ebony cabaret, so that the gently swaying drapes would not endanger the white figurine clock on it.

At the first flash of the yellow porch light, Detective Ripley slid from under the wheel of his car.

"That's it, boys," Ripley said.

Moon Trip in 1977, Says Rocket Expert

In 1977, says Dr. Wernher von Braun, world's leading rocket expert, a ship like this will land on the moon, and in it will be 50 earth scientists. The ship, following Dr. Braun's recommendations, will be 180 feet long and 110 feet wide, and would be assembled on a floating platform, erected years before and floating in space 1,075 miles above the earth. Fuel for the rocket would be carried in 10 huge tanks sliced off a transport where the pseudos which houses the personnel on the trip. Dr. Braun says that three such space ships would make the trip at once — two to haul men and supplies and the third to carry fuel for the return trip. — Central Press Canadian.

LIBERALS RETAIN TWO MONTREAL DISTRICT SEATS

Federal By-Elections Keenly Contested

MONTREAL (CP) — The Liberals retained two Montreal district federal seats in by-elections yesterday.

They elected Lucien Cardin, lawyer from Ste. Anne de Sorel, in Richelieu-Verchere and Raymond Bourque, mayor of suburban Outremont, in Montreal Outremont-St. Jean to even a selection contests caused by the resignation of Liberal members of the Commons.

Both seats have a consistent record of electing Liberal candidates.

The complete popular vote from Richelieu-Verchere of 113 polls gave Mr. Cardin 13,238 against 6,394 for Alberic Tremblay, Progressive Conservative — a majority of 6,844.

The liberal majority in the 1949 general election was 6,000 while the popular vote this time was down slightly—from 19,233 in 1949 to 17,632.

A five cornered-fight in Montreal Outremont-St. Jean with 39 of 40 polls reported, gave this final result:

Mr. Bourque 6,363; Claude Nolin, Progressive Conservative, 3,221; Jean Therese Casgrain, Quebec C. C. F. leader, 1,127; Raymond Bourque, Independent Liberal, 443; Ben Ash, Independent, 167.

Prime Minister St. Laurent said in a brief statement that he naturally was "very happy" to see Liberal candidates emerge victorious.

Mr. Bourque's majority of 3,142 was down sharply from the Liberal majority of 11,185 in 1949 but the popular vote also showed a big drop — from 21,245 in 1949 to 17,178 this year. Straight drinks was blamed for the light balloting.

The contests brought to 20 the number of by-elections held since the general election. Nineteen have gone to the Liberals, 13 to the Progressive Conservatives and two to Independent Liberals.

Fight for Seats

In the last batch of by-elections —six held May 27 last—the Liberals retained four seats while the Progressive Conservatives retained their two and the formerly Liberal ridings. In all, the Progressive Conservatives have won eight seats since the June election.

Mr. Cardin, the winner in Richelieu-Verchere, is a nephew of late Hon. P. J. A. Cardin, a former Conservative cabinet minister.

The riding became vacant earlier this year when Gerard Coutu who called for a by-election to contest the provincial seat successfully in the July 16 Quebec election.

The contest in Montreal Outremont-St. Jean was necessitated by the resignation of Hon. Edouard Rinfret, Liberal cabinet minister-at-large, to accept an appointment to the Quebec Court of Appeals.

Woodling Puts Yanks in Front With Homer in Fifth, Dodgers Even Count at 2-2 Same Frame

By JOE REICHLER

EBBETS FIELD, Brooklyn (AP) — Brooklyn's Joe Black and New York's Ed Lopat opposed each other as the rookie today as the Dodgers and Yankees met in the seventh game of the World Series with the world championship at stake.

Black, who won the opener and dropped a 3-0 decision to Allie Reynolds in the fourth game, was making his third start of the series. The 25-year-old Negro right-hander has allowed only three runs in 16 innings.

Lopat, veteran southpaw was keyed in the ninth inning in losing the third game to the Dodgers, 5-3. It was making his second start of the series, with three days of rest.

The line-up remained the same except for Brooklyn's George Shuba stepping for Bobby Morgenth in the line-up, with Campanella down batting for fifth place and Gil Hodges sixth.

A crowd of about 36,000 attended the final game. The weather was windy and cool with some sun.

Reese on a first-base coach Jake Pitlot thus prevented Hodges from taking an extra base. Snider struck out on a curve. Woodling made a fine catch of Robinson's fly ball deep in left left-centre. DODGERS: Snider smashed a ground single past Mize into right field. Robinson laid down a beautiful bunt between the second and third base, reaching first safely as Snider was forced at second as Lopat was late fielding the ball. Noren reached second on the infield single. Manager Stengel came out to confer with Lopat. Campanella misjudged Lopat's pitchout bunt, beating out a little roller to Lopat in front of the mound, again came out, and signalled the end of Lopat, calling in Reynolds to pitch.

The first batter to face Reynolds was Gil Hodges, who failed to make a single hit in 18 official times at bat in the series. It was Reynolds' fourth appearance of the series. Hodges fouled to Berardino in medium left. Snider coming in ahead of Woodling's relay to the plate to the move at 1-1. Furillo's solids, who cut off the throw at third base, scrutching a slow change-up. Robinson made several attempts to steal home causing Reynolds to step off the mound repeatedly and the excited crowd to big kick. Fifth Inning

POLICE SEEKING 2 POLES WANTED FOR QUESTIONING

Alleged to Have Slain Garage Owner in Holdup

SOREL, Que. (CP)—Police today sought two alleged murderers, thought to be hiding on one of 32 islands in the St. Lawrence River near this city 40 miles down-river from Montreal.

Maksymilian Ciesla, 21, and Ryszard Ciszowski, 30—who entered Canada from Poland last summer as displaced persons—are said by police to be willing to "risk everything, even murder, to prevent capture and deportation to their home land."

They are wanted for questioning in connection with the shotgun-slaying of Yamaska garage owner Aurelien Houle during a holdup attempt Sept. 19.

Squads of police, armed with submachine guns and wearing bullet-proof vests last night combed several of the islands before night fall called a halt to the search.

Men Are Armed

They were warned the men are armed with rifles, a .45 calibre machine gun and automatic pistols.

Provincial police also rushed to the scene with shotguns and 120 rounds of ammunition each from a store in a nearby summer home.

The two men were arrested in Poland by the Russians, escaped, and jailed for theft shortly after their arrival in Canada. After serving sentences, they were taken to immigration detention barracks in Montreal.

They escaped capture and made their way to Yamaska, working on farms for food and shelter, but never getting a steady job long enough for fear of recapture.

Houle was killed when he tried to prevent his wife's being robbed by two men. He was cut down by a single blast from a sawed-off shotgun.

Dangerous Quary

Police were called to Sorel, where they were joined by four R.C.M.P. officers in a police motor launch. Searchers were suspicious were seen heading towards the islands in a speedy motor boat.

"We're positive the two Poles are hiding on one of the islands," said Jean Beauregard, deputy director of Provincial Police.

"They are two men unprepared, armed to the teeth, and our men are instructed to proceed with utmost caution."

EDMONTON (CP) — Some 1,500 wild horses are reported roaming northern Alberta in four main bands and decimating crops.

Livestock Commissioner W. H. T. Mead reported he is also receiving reports of two more large bands in widely-separated parts of northern Alberta.

Allied Infantry Beats Back 15,000 Screaming Reds

Fighting Brutal Over Large Area of 155-Mile Front

By RYAN CARTER

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—Allied infantry today beat back 15,000 screaming Chinese Reds, charging in human waves, in the biggest coordinated Communist attack in Korea in at least a year.

Fighting was brutal. The Reds threw their men, tanks and artillery into the battle, spread over two-thirds of the 155-mile battlefront.

But the Allies had known for three days of the attack and were ready for the assault.

The U. S. Eighth Army said the massive Red assault has captured seven hill positions. But the Allied defenders stood their ground at most places. The army added many hundreds of Reds were killed.

Allied planes roared over the front today, Friday, after they destroyed two Red tanks and about 30 bunkers.

Fight To Last

One Allied outfit fought and died to the last man in defending a vital hill. The number of Allies killed probably not large, was withheld.

A Communist Allied officer indicated the Reds may have been seeking a weak point where they could throw the tanks could pour through to the south. Had they succeeded, they would have cut off the entire Seoul area.

Wave after wave of fanatical Chinese began hitting the western and central fronts last night. The biggest force, nearly 6,000 men, was straight into an Allied front and was badly mauled.

The South Koreans hit White Horse Mountain and Arrowhead Ridge, two Allied-held hills near Kumsong. The Reds opened their flood-gates of a reservoir in an apparent effort to cut off Allied reinforcements. The Allies knew the attack was imminent when the Yokkok River, which circles both hills, began to rise.

That meant the Reds had opened the floodgates of Pongnae Reservoir. The Allies had prepared for that by fixing rock footbridges crossings and a helicopter supply strip.

When the Chinese attacked they were met with a blistering barrage of fire.

Many Reds Killed

Between 500 and 900 Reds were killed at White Horse alone. Another 250 died at Arrowhead Ridge.

Associated Press correspondent Milo Farneti at the front said the Communists launched the new battle since the early days of the war. One Russian-built T-34 tank was destroyed.

If the Reds had taken them, an Allied front-line officer said, they would have overlooked the town of Chorwon and the road network in the valley.

He said this would let the Reds push south and isolate the Seoul area.

Woman Given Sixty Days To Think it Over

BRAUNFELS, Tex. (AP)—A 60-day jail sentence is breaking up the romance of a 37-year-old housewife and a 16-year old youth who calls Flavor boy.

Mrs. Thelma Henderson, mother of three children, is in jail, serving the two-month sentence for contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

The youth was held by his parents to the state school for boys.

"I don't see where I did anything wrong," the blonde, blue-eyed mother told a reporter. "I guess I overpaid him because he is my mother."

Asked if she loved her husband or the youth, Mrs. Henderson replied:

"Well, I've got to days to think it over."

The sentence was handed down by Judge J. T. Fuchs after they broke a court order not to be photographed in public.

The husband, Horace Henderson, 38, has sued for divorce and custody of the children.

Decision May Be Announced End of Month

TORONTO (CP) — Transport Minister Chevrier said last night the International Joint Commission may announce its decision on the St. Lawrence River power project before the end of the month.

He told the Canadian Association of Real Estate Boards:

"I expect the majority of the submissions received by the commission have favored the project. It is expected, however, that some opposing witnesses will be heard in Washington."

Should the I.J.C. approve the application the next step would be both the Canadian and U.S. governments it would seem that one of the two will have to act before the project can be begun.

Nevertheless, he said, the biggest hurdle will still remain,—one which could take many years to settle. The Ontario Hydro would have,to name an American partner to the project development of the International Rapids section of the St. Lawrence River. Then final agreement is reached with this unnamed partner, the work can proceed.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A career problem has upset the Frank Sinatra-Ava Gardner marriage, but it isn't anything serious, reported last night.

Sinatra said his wife's plan to make a movie in Africa hadn't brought on a disagreement, adding:

"I say can go to Korea if she wants. I never interfere with her career."

He said they had had some disagreements but nothing serious. Sinatra is staying at a night club here.

Three-Man Crew Dies in Crash, Three Injured

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A C-47 United States Air Force plane crashed early today in a wooded area, killing the three-man crew and injuring three servicemen passengers, one of them critically.

The crash occurred about a mile north of the North Philadelphia airport.

An air force spokesman said the plane was en rout from Niagara Falls, N.Y., to Mitchell Field, Long Island. Mitchell Field because of bad weather conditions, "made a pass" at nearby La Guardia Field and "missed his approach."

The pilot then was told to proceed to International Airport, Philadelphia.

Two of the survivors stumbled for a mile through the brush to the farm house of John Mooney, who called police. Police found them in the thick fog for some time before hearing a whistle which led them to the scene.

There they found the third survivor, Airman Second Class Jerry Hall, seriously injured of the trio, with an army which he himself had. He suffered fractures of the skull and right leg.

Vicar Says Sending Floral Tributes To Funeral of Friend Waste of Money

LONDON (CP)—Sending floral tributes to the funeral of a friend or relative is just so much waste of money, the Rev. John Stone, vicar of St. John's Anglican Church, in the London suburb of Seven King's.

"Nobody appreciates more than I do that people should show their respects to the dead," he writes in the October issue of his parish magazine. "But the time to spend money on friends and relatives is not when they are dead."

The Vicar tells of seeing a widow "crying grievously while watching her husband's body being buried in a grave with three strangers because she could not afford an individual grave.

He has given nearly £25 worth of flowers were laid over the grave of Sir Winston S. Stone for him the ground by rain and rot a few days later."

When critics took him to task for his remarks he chose his defence in this way: "People ought to wake up and find courage to break this tyranny of floral tributes to the dead. It becomes even more absurd when we think that a poor person may go without food and essentials lost to find funeral flowers."—

Stage Hypnotist Claims World's Fasting Record

BRIGHTON, England. (Reuters) —Jack Worker, 39, Scotch-born stage hypnotist, claimed the world's fasting record today after he began fasting without food for 72 days, three hours, four minutes.

He could try and stick it out without eating until the end of the week, but he decided to set up the club a record that will last for "some time."

He had beaten by one minute the record set in Hungary in 1912 by a man named Succi. He also claimed $10,000 from three persons who bet that he couldn't do it.

More than 10,000 curiously peeked at him for a shilling each to look at him.

New Antibiotic, Erythromycin, Seems To Hit Germs Resistant to Older Drugs

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP)—More and more germs are just laughing at man's wonder drugs, doctors are finding.

They have become resistant to the antibiotics. It's their counter-attack in the never-ending war with germs.

But there's good news on our side—a new antibiotic, erythromycin, which seems to hit some of the germs resistant to the older drugs.

The picture of new developments on the battle front was reported to the American College of Surgeons by 11 top experts at a medical meeting.

They studied Staphlococcus Aureus germs, the most common cause of boils and pus. The Staph germs cause boils, blood poisoning, bone disease Osteomyelitis and infections in burns and wounds.

The first good weapon against them was the Sulfa drugs. Then came penicillin, the wonder drug. At first, it slaughtered the Staph germs.

But then many strains of Staph germs became resistant to penicillin. Now, 80 per cent of hospital staphs be able to get along despite penicillin.

Or perhaps a few germs were, by mutation, genetically different and could take penicillin, and all the rest would succumb and resist it.

The germs were pushed back and never-ending germ warfare began.

Aureomycin, Terramycin and Chloromycetin. Doctors could use these drugs when germs not helped by Penicillin.

But now there's a serious new worry. Many of the Staph germs that resist Penicillin have become able to laugh at the other antibiotics also.

About half of all the Staph germ strains resist Penicillin, it was reported.

Of these same strains, about two-thirds resist Aureomycin and Terramycin, too. The doctor no longer can give one of them to knock out infection by Staph germs that resist Penicillin.

But the new antibiotic, Erythromycin, seems to kill an overwhelming majority of the Staph germs that laugh off the other antibiotics. The new drug, not yet on the market, is being tested by two large drug manufacturers.

The radio program of the Belleville Municipal Band, aired over CJBQ on Monday evening took the form of a memorial program for the former bandmaster of the organization, R. Reginald Hinchey, who died suddenly on Sunday afternoon. Two numbers composed and arranged by the late Mr. Hinchey were given, the first - "International Patrol" march and the "Blue Danube" by Strauss arranged by the modern march style.

Eugene Lazar was the commentator and he briefly resumed the musical activities of the late bandmaster in this city and in the musical world. It was a fine tribute to one who gave many years of his life to music.

Tobacco Growing Industry Outlined To Kinsmen Club

The place of importance taken in the Canadian economy by the tobacco growing industry in Ontario was outlined to members of the local Kinsmen Club Monday evening by Mr. Quinton Cook, manager, of the local branch of the Royal Bank of Canada.

Speaking to the regular fortnightly dinner meeting of the service club, Mr. Cook noted that the 1953 tobacco crop amounted to 143 million pounds which brought about $63,000,000 to Canadian growers.

Mr. Cook went into the history of tobacco growing in this country noting that it was first grown in Ontario about 400 years ago by the Indians. In 1858 the production of Burley tobacco was commenced on a commercial scale while flue cured tobacco came into being in 1916.

By the early 1930's the future of tobacco growing in Ontario was assured and in 1939 the acreage amounted to 63,000 acres, the crop being valued at $15 millions.

The speaker went into detail on the requirements for successful tobacco growing, pointing out that the proper type of soil was necessary. The soil in Prince Edward District was comparable to that of the Virginias. Each grower had to have his own curing barns for starting tender plants, while line fences of cedar posts made necessary and land meant an investment of thousands of dollars for the grower. The average crop for tobacco growers was 30 acres.

John Lazar Member

Harvesting a crop of tobacco took 34 persons to do the various jobs required in getting the leaves off the stalks and into the curing houses. Later comes the grading, baling and finally the tobacco company warehouses.

In conclusion during his talk, Mr. Cook showed a color moving picture film showing all phases of tobacco growing, curing, grading and ultimate manufacture into cigarettes in the famous Imperial Canadian cigarette plants.

President Stanley Knott presided over the meeting while Bill Bell introduced the speaker with club thanks being expressed by Roy Ridley, Past president. Ben Yarrow reported on the district and national convention which he and President Knott attended recently.

Four new Kinsmen were approved for club membership. They were: S. R. Bakay, accountant with the Diamond Construction Company; William Watson, manager-supervisor for British American Oil Company; E. C. Rapley, representative for the Curtis Publishing Company, and Arthur Bridge, of Bridge Delivery Service.

City and District Pay Tribute To Late Wm. Leslie

City and rural residents paid final tribute to a highly esteemed citizen, neighbor and friend yesterday, when they attended funeral services for the late William Leslie, 74, of Thurlow United Church.

The service was conducted by Rev. Duncan McGrayhill, pastor at Bridge Street Church, assisted by Rev. Hector Semple, of North Bridge former minister here and close friend of Mr. Leslie. Interment was in Gilead Cemetery.

The large attendance at the funeral service in itself paid tribute to Mr. Leslie, who was eulogized by Dr. Semple as being a man of "unquestionable integrity and upright character."

Dr. Semple said he remembered Mr. Leslie first as a businessman on Front Street where he was in the business world that the true worth of a man could be determined. Anyone trading with him had implicit confidence in his word, a feeling that he had traded with an honest man.

In his private life Mr. Leslie had also been a great man, Dr. Semple said, noting there was no stronger test of character than the way a man behaves in his own home.

In church life and as a Christian, the speaker said he set Mr. Leslie apart as a very choice man. He had taken his office as an elder with honor; he was generous to his church and his great trust in God had made him the man he was.

Great Capacity for Friendship

The speaker referred to Mr. Leslie's great capacity for friendship, noting he had been "courteous and co-operative and with a great understanding of the great problems of life".

Mr. McTavish spoke of Mr. Leslie's accomplishments in life and also of his capacity for friendship. Mr. Leslie, he said, "had he heard a disparaging word about his friends."

He termed Mr. Leslie as having been a man with the courage of his own convictions but at all times was willing to listen to the other man's viewpoint. There was nothing mean or small about Mr. Leslie, he said.

During the service Ronald Emery, an employee at Canada Shoe Shops, sang the Lord's Prayer.

Representatives of various shoe firms with which Mr. Leslie had dealt were in attendance at the funeral. Included were Howard Christenson, Dack Shoes; Thomas Bennett, Slater Shoes; M. McQuarrie and Fred Thomas, Dominion Rubber Company; Al Valleley, Perth Shoe Company; Eric Sabiston and Andy McIlree, Canada Shoe Company; Stan Ellis, George Williams Shoe Company; Brian Quinn, Jarman Shoes and Gordon Weber and Don Campbell of L. McBrine Company.

Acting as honorary bearers were Percy Meech, H. E. Wansbrough, Arthur Hill, William H. Finkle, H. W. Ackerman, Frank Bennett, Ralph Hackett, John Shaw, John McIntosh and Elmer Virtue.

Active bearers were Carl Crosby, William Slatherwick, Donald Williams, George Greatrix, Everett Yorke and Harry Thompson.

A Masonic service was held Saturday evening at the Grant Funeral Home. Taking part in the service were Rev. Everett Smith, R. W. Gunsolus, Kenneth Bird, Jerald Anderson, W. D. Embury, Wm. Trousdale, Wm. Youdale, Arthur Hill, Harry Bates and Allan Mapson.

Mrs. J. Campbell's Body Recovered From Trent River

TRENTON, (Special)—Mining from her home where she had previous, when she left home to call a neighbor, the body of Mrs. Ada Ann Campbell, 75, of 122 Front Street, Trenton, was found in the Trent River this morning.

The body was recovered early today by P. C. Gordon Stansburg and Constable Al Ormshaw of the Trenton police in about five feet of water off the west bank of the river and opposite Strong's Planing Mills.

Monday evening about eight o'clock Mrs. Campbell had left the house telling her husband, she was going to visit a neighbor, Mrs. Ella Bell. When she had failed to return home at nine, Mr. Campbell called his son, Ernest Campbell in Belleville, and a search was instituted with police and firemen and a few neighbors assisting. This morning the body was spotted in the water.

An investigation is being conducted under the direction of Coroner Dr. E. A. McQuade.

Mrs. Campbell was the former John Ada Bull and was born in the Stirling district, but had lived in Trenton for many years.

Surviving besides her husband, John Campbell, are five sons, Arnold, of Belleville; Gerald, and Reginald, of Toronto; Douglas of Edmonton and Bernard, of Drummondville, Quebec.

Property City Sold for $500 Proposed as High School Site At Purchase Price of $20,000

City council took no action yesterday on a request from the Bay of Quinte High School Area Board asking approval of the purchase of 12 acres on West College Street as a site for the proposed new area high school.

The action in question is immediately to the west of the King Edward Public Memorial Park and purchase price $20,000. No action will be taken in the matter until solicitors have investigated all legal aspects concerning the particular title, municipalities and a concrete proposal is brought to council.

The letter from the school board was considerable discussion on the part of councillors before it was decided to await further developments.

Alderman Duffy said it would appear from the letter of the board's letter that city council had already approved the site and proposed new school. He did not remember council having done so and said he would like the matter clarified.

West Annexation

Also he asked what guarantee the Area Board had that council go through after the initial expenditure for land and architects' fees.

Alderman Argue noted that the city had sold the property in question some years ago for $500, "years ago when inflation, you but not 40 times," he said.

Alderman Hyde as chairman of finance said he did not like spending $20,000 for a school site, but he can't get around it. He said the costs of the new school building would exceed the cost suggested $375,000 figure. The site in question was the site watched by the school board.

The letter from the school board was considered by the other municipalities concerned would pay their share of the cost of the site.

Mayor Haig observed that although the city was only a participating municipality, the new school would be built in the city and therefore it would be called upon to issue the debentures. He noted that a solicitor had been retained to check all the legal aspects.

10 Acres Needed

To a question by Alderman Argue as to why this particular site was wanted, Alderman Country-man pointed out that a site of at least 10 acres was needed and also it had to be close to the city because the city so as services could be provided.

Alderman Temple thought it might be a good idea if the ratepayers were given the opportunity of expressing their opinion through the ballot box. The council does not give the necessary approval in the matter would go to the ratepayers, and I think it would be a good idea," he said.

This started a discussion as to the city's share in the cost of the proposed new school. Mayor Haig pointed out that grants were so adjusted that the city would not be called upon to pay any more than the average that would the other participating municipalities.

"The figures were all included in the brief supplied by the High School Board," he said.

The Mayor went on to say that the city had now built additional high school accommodation was required and that an addition to the present high school would not be considered by the Department of Education.

Alterations to Engineering Dept. Will be Carried Out At Contract Price of $5,454

City council yesterday awarded the contract for alterations to the city engineering department offices, Front Street, to Ault and Bell at a contract price of $5,454. This was the lowest of three tenders received.

According to plans the remaining portion of the old Y.M.C.A. auditorium will be used to provide additional office space and facilities. When renovations are completed the city assessing department will be located in the building.

Although tenders were called for a new stoker for the city hall furnace, council decided to defer action the present stoker until it is decided whether the present stoker is required. The city comptroller was authorized to have the stoker repaired.

Under inquiries Alderman Countryman asked if the municipal procedure recommended by a special committee last year was to be followed this year. Among the recommendations was one that it be left to send cards to each voter advising the polling booth which the voter should attend.

Alderman Clarke wanted to know who young maples set out in the city not been pruned.

To Interview Societies

On the suggestion of Alderman Argue several women's organizations will be asked to co-operate with the prospect of their using the Memorial Centre as their headquarters.

Council ratified a finance committee recommendation to purchase an addressing machine for assessment rolls, and notices for roll and tax bills, and other work of the finance department. The choice is $7,000.

Alderman Hyde said he considered the machine was indispensable if work of the city hall offices was to be kept up. Savings were also behind because of lack of help. The machine would pay for itself by making additional office staff unnecessary, he said.

Mayor Haig said the need for the machine had been developing for some time and that the manual method of getting out certain forms was becoming slow.

"In my opinion the machine is just as essential to the city hall as a bulldozer is to the public works department," he said.

Seven Different Store Groups Want Saturday Night Closing

Following a decision arrived at two weeks ago favoring keeping stores open Friday evening in addition to Saturday night, seven different store groups in Belleville have petitioned city council for a change in their by-law governing store closing hours.

Store groups petitioning council for the by-law change are Women's wear, Men's wear, Shoe Stores, Variety Stores, Electrical Appliance Stores, Department and Dry Good Stores and Hardware Stores.

James T. Davis as secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce presented the petitions of the various store groups to council noting that store owners concerned had hoped they would be able to commence Friday night store openings on October 1.

Councillors pointed out the would be necessary to have the petitioning would have to be checked and the by-law prepared and advertised for one full week before passing by council.

The petitions were referred to the city clerk for checking and the by-laws to be prepared ready for passing at the next regular meeting of council.

Gerald B. Hyde New President Of Bowling Club

Gerald B. "Jerry" Hyde was the unanimous choice of the members of the Lawn Bowling Club for president of the club for the coming year when the annual meeting was held at the clubhouse on Monday evening.

Despite the inclement weather there was a fair turnout of the members and lengthy discussion in his words, "twice around" was held over several important matters pertaining to the welfare of the club. Associated with Mr. Hyde will be the following executive: R. J. Wray, immediate past president, Roy Grant, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. McBride, Treasurer, Gordon Edwards and an executive body of Harry Noble, Mrs. Ethel Bonter, Mrs. Vince, W. B. Vandervoort, L. B. McBride, Mrs. Bob Gallinger, Mrs. Graham, Howard Hanton and Harold Parker. The executive met before the close of the meeting, and unanimously elected Jerry Hyde as chairman of the Corbin Cup committee. At a future meeting the executive will elect the various chairmen of the standing committees for the year.

Free to be Raised

On a recommendation from the outgoing executive respecting fees for next year, it was decided after a lengthy debate to increase the bowling fees next year. The present status fee set forth will pay $10 a year, a second member $15 and all juniors $20 yearly. The increase was entirely due to increased cost of maintenance and that the fees collected do not adequately cover the upkeep of the club, in fact this year the club had a deficit of over $200 in the operation of bowling club and had it not been for the receipts of the Corbin competition that the donation from the women's section, the club would not have been out of the red at the end of the year. It was also decided that all dues must be paid by June 30th of the bowling season. The treasurer's and secretary's books were audited and the Corbin committee came in for high praise, by the members.

Semi Increase Shown

It was shown that the tournament committee had an increase increase in revenue over the previous years but the jitneys were down considerably and every effort will be made next year to bring these enjoyable games back to a higher standard. Turnout for the club games was better than a year ago but many of the Saturdays were rained out and at other time there were many bowlers away to outside tournaments. At the annual presentations were made to the missing trebles and double rinks of the club games. Bert Ashley, Orlo Smith and A. R. Wonnacott were presented with gifts as retiring president as were Ernie Jones and Wilfred Price for winning the doubles. All were thanked for appreciation of the cups and would prize them highly for their intrinsic value but for the good fellowship they represented.

It was decided to purchase a number of receptacles for the disposal of cigarette butts and matches and in this way it is hoped the grounds will be kept cleaner and old the greenskeeper in his work. Twelve new seats will be purchased to give a full quota for all the greens. Garn Dobbs, who is retiring as greens chairman last year was unable to carry on full duties owing to a serious illness and L. E. McLean stepped into the breach and did a wonderful job. "Mr. McLean gave of his valuable time," said Mr. Dobbs, "my job and I think you all know how good that job has been done. Our greens are in excellent condition for the winter and I expected they will be the best ever next year." The women were especially thanked for their contribution to the welfare of the club.

Everyone Thanked

Ray Grant, in closing out his term of office thanked every member of the club for the cooperation he was extended to him and the executive for the wonderful work they accomplished. The president stated he was sorry the season was over for although there is many a problems to face, the year on a whole was a great success. Jerry Hyde, the incoming president, thanked the members for the honors bestowed upon him and the club, in fact this year the club had a deficit of over $200 in the operation of bowling club and had it not been for the receipts of the Corbin competition that the donation from the women's section, the club would not have been out of the red at the end of the year. It was also decided that all dues must be paid by June 30th of the bowling season. Mayor Says Fair Board Authorized To Order Steel

The current steel shortage may prevent an early start in the construction of the new grandstand planned for the Belleville fair grounds.

The Tatham Company of this city were awarded the contract for the construction of the new stand and are prepared to commence immediately. But delay in obtaining the reinforcing steel may delay the project.

Yesterday at council a letter from the Tatham Company was read pointing out that under the terms of their contract the owner was to furnish the reinforcing steel and was also to clear the site of the present stand. To date the steel was not on the site, nor had the old stand been removed.

It was pointed out that delay in commencing the work would mean running into winter conditions with a possible increase in construction costs.

In reference to the letter Mayor A. J. Haig stated that the local fair board had authorized the general contractor to order the required steel.

Lewis May Switch To Democrats In Election

CINCINNATI (AP)—John L. Lewis, fresh from victory in his periodic wars with the coal industry, today appeared close to switching allegiance from the Republican to the Democratic parties.

Lewis, 72-year-old president of the United Mine Workers, an avowed Republican, has labelled Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Republican nominee, as a leader of the "especially privileged group of corporate exploiters."

Lewis keynotes his quadrennial convention today and it seemed likely, in view of his expressed opposition to Eisenhower, he will either endorse Governor Adlai Stevenson of Illinois, or declare a neutral position in the U. S. presidential election campaign.

Both the A. F. L. and C. I. O. have come out for Stevenson.

King Dissolves Greek Assembly, Calls Election

ATHENS (AP) — King Paul today ordered the Greek Parliament dissolved and called a general election in an effort to get a majority government that might aid the country's grave economic situation.

The King's decision ended weeks of unsuccessful efforts to get Field Marshal Alexander Papagos, whose right-wing Greek Rally party is the largest in Parliament to join Premier Nicholas Polaitzis and deputy Premier Sophocles Venizelos in a national government.

The coalition of Polaitzis' left-of-centre Progressive party and Venizelos' middle - of - the - road Liberals had only half the seats —129— in the outgoing Parliament. Its dependence on independent votes forced it to treat cautiously despite the mounting economic crisis.

Papagos, whose party's 114 seats were short of a Parliamentary majority, declared that a new election be called.

Bottom Falls Out of Quota Claims by Red

WASHINGTON (AP) — The bottom appears to have fallen out of a Communist manager's claim that his Russian barrel shop overfilled its production quota.

The publication Soviet Moldavia, a copy of which has reached the State Department, recalled that the manager of the consumers' goods shop of the Brichansk timber recently claimed all its quotas were filled up to 150 per cent.

Now said Soviet Moldavia, members of the collective farm Noveya Zhizn — New Life — Report this "unparalleled lie to Stalin."

"Last fall we bought five sleighs which were made by that shop. Everyone of them was no good. Then our Kolkhoz bought eight oak barrels. On the way to the Kolkhoz, the bottoms fell out of three barrels. The other barrels are leaking."

TWO MORE AIRMEN WILL GO TO FRANCE

A further release received from Ottawa headquarters indicates two more district men are being sent overseas for service at Cora Tresquin, France, to join No. 4 Fighter Wing. The men, part of 214 air force personnel, will leave for Europe around the middle of this month.

Sgt. C. G. Coe of Trenton and Flight Sergeant W. B. Jenkins from Picton will join other local men already in France when they sail from Montreal the middle of October.

Complaints Must Be Made to Board Says Official

Complaints have been reaching city officials of infractions of rental regulations, according to Mayor A. M. Haig.

At city council yesterday Mayor Haig said he had received a letter from a local householder complaining of the rental regulation infractions and noted that complaints had undoubtedly also been heard by councillors. He said he had forwarded the anonymous letter to Mr. J. E. Shortt, rentals officer for this district.

Replying to the mayor by letter Mr. Shortt noted the proper procedure for any persons making complaints regarding infractions of rental regulations, as well as applications for the fixation of rent or increase of rent should be made directly to the rentals office at 294 Front street. This is the rentals office for the area comprised of Hastings, Prince Edward and Lennox-Addington counties.

"Unless an application or a complaint is filed with us, we have no means of knowing what is taking place and are not in position to give any help or correct any condition," wrote Mr. Shortt. He said that his office at all times tried to render the best possible service to both landlord and tenant.

Govt. Will Face First Test Late In November

VICTORIA (CP) — British Columbia's new Social Credit government under Premier W. A. C. Bennett will face its first test late in November.

Premier Bennett yesterday announced by-elections will be held Nov. 24, "if necessary", in the ridings of Similkameen and Columbia. Nomination day will be Nov. 12.

The two seats were opened last week to allow Finance Minister Einar Gundersen and Attorney-General R. A. Bonner to seek a seat in the Legislature. They were appointed after the June 13 provincial election.

Political observers see the by-elections as a double gamble for Premier Bennett and his Social Credit regime.

A minority government, Social Credit has 19 seats in the 48-member Legislature. The C.C.F. forms the Opposition with 18.

Premier Bennett hopes other parties will allow his two candidates to be elected by acclamation.

"I still think we won't be opposed," he said.

But this view was not shared by spokesmen for the other parties.

C.C.F. leader Harold Winch termed Mr. Bennett's proposal for uncontested elections "fantastic."

He said in a speech last week that the C.C.F. would contest all seats both in by-elections and provincial general elections.

Spokesmen for the Liberal and Progressive Conservative parties have also announced their intention to place candidates in the by-elections.

In the June 12 general election the Liberals elected six members, the Progressive Conservative four and Labor one.

The Social Credit government took office in August. The Minister of Finance and the Attorney-General were chosen from outside government ranks because none of the elected members had the qualifications for the two important posts.

Flying Saucer Photo Is Shot of Jupiter

GOTEBORG, Sweden (AP) — On a night walk in the small town of Munkedal near here, a young Swedish fisherman saw what he thought was a "flying saucer" moving up and down in the sky. Happening to have his camera along, he took a picture.

The Swedish defence staff studied the photo and conferred with leading astronomers. They concluded that the fisherman had taken an excellent shot of the planet Jupiter.

Control of Lake Levels Subject Of Rotarian Talk

J. B. Laidlaw, a former Toronto Alderman and member of the Toronto Board of Trade, suggested the only means of control of the Lake Ontario water level would come about by joint participation of both Canada and the United States in forming a committee to consider this problem.

Mr. Laidlaw, speaking at the weekly luncheon of the Rotary Club in the Hotel Quinte, Monday, told Rotarian Lake Ontario's present level stands at 246.53 feet, this is the greatest height reached from the Lake in more than a century.

"Untold damage," he said, "has been caused to Toronto's Island over the past years as the lake continues to rise a little more each season. "When it was realized, in Toronto, that considerable damage was being done," Mr. Laidlaw said, "the Ontario government appointed a committee to consider the like-level situation. This committee advised the whole attention to erosion and the erection of breakwaters instead of devoting time to finding a method of alleviating the situation. Breakwaters," he said "are only a temporary means of relief."

"There has always been damage from erosion," the speaker said, "because of the size of the lake and the fact its shores are exposed to the full force of storms."

Rainfall has a great exerting influence upon the level of the lake. According to Mr. Laidlaw the average rainfall over Lake Ontario is 30 inches per year. "This," he said, "includes the water which flows into the lake after falling from the heavens and all this amounts to a lot of water."

Mr. Laidlaw feels that if the present land conservation program does not undergo further developments, the situation is sure to become worse. The great lakes are shared by both Canada and the United States with the exception of Lake Michigan which is owned outright by the Americans. The speaker urged a common study of the problem by both countries.

Damage by inundation from a period of April 1951 to April 1952, according to figures supplied the speaker by Ottawa, ran to $11,325,000 in the United States. Water damage amounted to $46,718,000 for the same period bringing the total amount of damage in dollars and cents for one year to $61,000,000.

"All inquiries into the water level have been promoted by the Marine Industry and Power companies," Mr. Laidlaw said, "and both these industries are interested in keeping the level of the lake high. There is no organization I know of," he said, "interested in keeping the lake level controlled."

"If you are interested in the subject or controlling high water" the speaker told Rotarians, "I urge you to form a lake control association and make application to the International Joint Committee."

Mr. Laidlaw was welcomed by Jamieson Bone and thanked by Ernie Gurnett.

Plowing Matches Open at Carp With Local Flavor

CARP, Oct. 1(CP)—The International Plowing Match starts today with a full flavor at the 200-year city on the outskirts of this Ottawa Valley town.

It is Local Counties Day, with preliminary matches setting the stage for the International competition which begins tomorrow. Youngsters hold the spotlight in matches for Junior Farmers and there is also an event for teams from high schools across Ontario.

Many of the young plowmen have travelled long distances to be here. There is the tough job of breaking new ground on the 300 acres marked out for plowing during the next four days.

Farmers from the more eastern-most counties of Ontario and from sections of western Quebec also have their horses groomed and tractors shined for participation in nine events.

International Matches

But the big plowing attractions get under way tomorrow when top Canadian plowmen meet representatives of the United States and Great Britain in three days of stiff competition.

The international matches start after Premier Frost of Ontario officially opens the International.

Probably the biggest crowd-drawer is Mayor Allan Lamport of Stratford and Mrs. H. McKenzie, reeve of Beaverton.

More than 14,000 are expected to attend the four-day event, sponsored by the Ontario Plowmen's Association. Many farmers will be able to see hundreds of displays of farm implements from horse

"My son has chosen banking"

When a bank manager retired last year, he wrote his General Manager to tell why he was proud his son also had chosen a banking career:

"I shall always recall my banking days with pleasure and I cannot think of any other occupation that gives one a greater opportunity to meet people and form lasting friendships. I have been privileged to serve the bank in three provinces . . . That my son has chosen banking is also a great satisfaction to me. He is most anxious to make good on his own account."

Any young man on the lookout for an interesting and worthwhile career—for opportunities to grow and get ahead—should take a look at banking. Have a talk with the bank manager in your neighborhood branch. It may well prove an important turning point in your life.

Weddings

WILLIAMS—COYLE

Colborne United Church, Colborne, Ont., beautifully decorated with baskets of white gladioli and white baby mums was the scene of the wedding on Saturday afternoon at four o'clock when the Rev. M. Eldred Rowe united in marriage, Elnor Jane, daughter of Mrs. Coyle of Colborne and the late Mr. E. O. Coyle, to Grant Alexander Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Williams of Hamilton.

Traditional wedding music was played by Mr. Clifford Welch, church organist, and Mr. Ronald Elmy, of Belleville, soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. Ralph Dodds, of Billings, Montana, wore a graceful gown of rich ivory satin fashioned in period style with appliques of Belgian lace on the bodice and the long sleeves made of lace and extending into a cathedral train. Her cap headdress was of Belgian lace and she wore fingertip length. She carried a cascade bouquet of Briarcliff Rose, stephanotis and ivy leaves.

Bridal attendants were Miss Ralph Dodds, sister of the bride; Mrs. Robt. Mason, Miss Betty Jane Gill, and Miss Dennis McGill. The first two were gowns of burgundy and the latter two of velvet respectively, with matching jackets over strapless bodices and navy tuft skirts.

Similarly costumed, the junior bridesmaid, was in deep wine, while the flower girl's dress was in burgundy. Their headdresses were trimmed with feathered flowers and they carried nosegays of pink roses and navy fall flowers shaded from wine to pink.

The groomsman was Mr. Alan Hoffman, and the ushers were, Messrs. Clarke Williams and Ian McKeon.

The reception followed in the church hall. For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Coyle was gowned in tone shade chiffon over brown taffeta with a jacket and accessories of the same and a corsage of Talisman roses and ivy leaves. The bridegroom's mother wore silver grey nylon lace over peach taffeta with inserts of pleated nylon. Her accessories were brown and her flowers peach roses with ivy leaves.

After their wedding trip to Williamsburg, the bride and bridegroom will live at 106 Flatt Avenue, Hamilton.

For going away the bride wore an autumn rust suit with white crepe hat and blouse and black accessories. Her corsage was a baby green orchid.

WILSON—BROWN

Rev. Albert Smith officiated at the ceremony in the Standard Church parsonage, Belleville, on Wednesday, October 1st, when Estelle Norma Brown, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Brown, became the bride of William Henry Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wilson, of Peacham, British Columbia.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a grey suit with white accessories and a corsage of white baby flowers.

Mrs. William A. White, Batawa, sister of the bride, was her only attendant. She wore a grey suit with black accessories and a corsage of pink baby flowers.

Mr. William White acted as best man.

Following the ceremony, a luncheon was served at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride's mother received the guests, wearing navy crepe and a corsage of pink gladioli.

The happy bridegroom left for a three weeks' honeymoon to visit the bridegroom's parents in British Columbia. They will travel through the northern country and, on their return Mrs. Wilson will remain in Belleville, while Mr. Wilson will entrain for army service in Germany.

McCOY—LEAVEY.

Before a background of colorful fall flowers, a pretty wedding was solemnized on Saturday, October 4th, at 2:00 p.m. in King Street United Church, Trenton, by the reverend C. J. Madely, when Dolores Marie Leavey, graduate nurse of Belleville General Hospital, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Leavey, Trenton, became the bride of Gordon Adams McCoy, Madoc, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl McCoy.

Miss Anne Nickle, soloist, sang before the ceremony "I Walk Beside You", and during the signing of the register, "Because". Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her bridal gown of nylon net and lace over slipper satin with traditional white tulle veil. She carried a bouquet of white roses.

Mrs. George Astz, of Smiths Falls, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, attractively attired in green taffeta with floral headdress and carrying a bouquet of yellow roses.

Miss Lois McGreer, of Belleville, was bridesmaid, wearing mauve taffeta with matching floral headdress. She carried a bouquet of peach colored roses, while little Bonnie Adams, niece of the bride, was flower girl; demure in her lime green taffeta with floral headdress and carrying a basket of pink roses.

Robert McCoy, of Madoc, twin brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, and Messrs. Stewart Elliott, of Madoc, and Leroy Murphy of Belleville, acted as ushers.

The reception was held at the Quinte View Hotel, Trenton, where the bride's mother, gowned in a becoming dress suit with black navy blue hat; matching accessories, and corsage of Talisman roses, received the guests, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a brown two-piece dress with brown hat, matching accessories, and corsage of bronze mums.

For the wedding trip to Atlantic points the bride wore a suit in brown velvet with matching hat, brown accessories, and corsage of Talisman roses. Mr. and Mrs. McCoy will reside in Marmora.

Unfenced Lawns, Lack of Smoke Attract Teacher

REGINA (CP)—Regina's gally-landed houses, unfenced lawns and lack of smoke are some of the things that attract Miss Jean Preston of Newcastle-on-Tyne, England.

Miss Preston, teaching art at a Regina technical school as an exchange teacher for a year, came to Canada because the war interfered by the modern school of Canadian painting. Primarily a portrait painter, she expects to do landscapes while over here.

Asked what subjects she has chosen, Miss Preston said: "Well, everyone points out the trees, and they are paintable. But I find most attractive the gally-painted houses in Regina and your lawns that reach down to the street without fences. At home, all our houses have a floor."

Smoke-Free

Among other impressions, she said "Regina is marvellously free from smoke, in contrast to the Tyneside which comprises the English industrial centre."

She also likes the geometrical arrangement of Regina's streets, finding the streets "very artistic in all directions."

Miss Newton said her fascination with Canadian art is chiefly with Canadians' bold use of strong color.

"In England painting is more subdued in color," she said. "Canadian artists get an interesting interpretation of landscape and a beautiful patterned effect with their use of color. They are bold."

Fall and Winter Hats Will Be Dominated by Harkening Back To Past Say London Designers

By MURIEL FINCH

LONDON (Reuters)—Hats this fall and winter, as far as London designers are concerned, will be dominated by a harkening back to the past.

Crowns raised almost horizontally, sometimes to be rounded off in a manner reminiscent of the old-time Topper.

Ribbons making circles around outstanding crowns serve to emphasize the Chignon effect. One sophisticated white poodle panelled hat was trimmed with a single black velvet ribbon passed around the "chignon" and a very wide mesh eye-brow length veil just across the forehead.

A black velvet bibi tag in the same collection had a drape at the back which could be loosened out to do duty as a smart shoulder cape on cold days.

Elizabethan Note

The season's Elizabethan note was struck by a black velvet bonnet trimmed with jet which obviously had its origin in the days of "God Queen Bess."

Another version of this type of bonnet, designed for cocktail and evening wear, was topped by an ostrich feather.

Feathers are used liberally to trim hats destined for day and evening wear. At least one model, in sunset red velvet, suggests its crown and—Cockscomb.

With Egypt so much in the news, it is perhaps only natural that milliners should turn to that country for inspiration. One hat, in dusky pink, is inspired by the Sphinx: a turban takes its name from Cleopatra. Favorite colors for the soft peach bloom felts which make a majority of the winter models, are Desert Sand and Nile Blue.

Pixiedew Green is a new shade for shoes introduced by Hayne, the Queen's shoemaker, in Regal suede and calf to tone with the dark greens so popular with London's top dressmakers this season.

New Materials

The influence of the dressmakers is seen in the materials used for the latest shoes as well as in the colors used. Smart black velvet bound with gold kid, a new green patent leather, grosgrain, satin and nylon mesh are all used by Hayne for the latest asymetrical evening sandals.

While most of the day models have closed toes, the tendency for evening shoes is towards more comfortable open toes—and wide open ones at that. Many models show four and even five toes.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

She's in high school, he's divorced — what can she do about him?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Do you think it is advisable to go with a boy who has been married and divorced? I met him two months ago and we have had some lovely times together. He is seeing me for dates, and I wonder if I should continue. I am in my senior high school and he has graduated. He is four years older than I am. I have never met such a nice boy before. He is so much as I like him, but I'm afraid to tell my mother, because she doesn't understand me. What do you suggest I should do, and should I tell my mother?—L. C.

Dear L. C.:

I certainly possibly give you any definite advice about this without knowing much more about the boy. I do not have said in that he has been married and divorced, and that you think he is very nice are not like him also that he seems to like you and wants to take you. None of this gives me the slightest hint as to what kind of boy he really is. When children is tender drain off stock and bring to boiling in an-other pot. Serve ready

Food For Thought

Chicken In The Pot on Tuesday

By Mary Moore

Dorcas A. asked me, when I had time, "to write some recipes for boiling chicken—chicken with dumplings, etc."

What a perfect excuse to buy a boiling fowl and have dumplings with it, and to invite someone to dinner. Which is exactly what I did and four of us demolished the whole.

(As I type this it is just noon and I'm so hungry it takes all of my will power to stick at this tyrant of a typewriter. Wish I had four or three chicken legs to gnaw on right now.)

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

In this society, as in her country, the code of good behavior is the basis of the goodness of manners.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I was born and educated in a foreign country, and I would like your opinion as to how the "men-ners" that my mother-in-law brags he has would be regarded in this country. To me his manners are a disgrace, both of which he talks about very much, are below all standards.

My daughter married this fellow 2 years and a half ago, although he had never mentioned a word to me that they intended to marry. To secure the draft, he got an "essential job" with the government in another state, and on their way up to this job they got married in one of the small villages they were passing through. Was that "good manners" that he didn't say a word to me about their planning to marry? Then he quit that job, took another, in which he has landed here in this house that my daughter had spent for me and her brothers. Now he has the idea that it belongs to him, playing the big boss. His manners I mean, and insist he has no manners. What is your point of view about how his manners would be raised in this country? —An Unhappy Mother.

Certainly you must know that it is not the place of birth, the place of residence or any amount of education, that makes a person's manners either "good" or "bad". It is the character of the individual. By any standard of decent behavior, this 'fellow' your daughter married appears to be lacking in instinctive decency, lacking in loyalty, lacking in dignity. When he brags about his "manners", and his "education", he's talking drivel (and of course he knows it), a cover-up for his lack of conduct, which is, apparently, to take all he can get and give as little as he can.

However, I find myself seriously wondering about your own daughter's "standard" of behavior. She, unlike her husband, had the advantage of birth, education and still she, apparently, also was out loyal and faithful enough to you, her mother, to tell you of their plans to be married. Surely, surely, it was your self-assurance for her to be travelling alone with this "fellow" on what was apparently quite a "honeymoon" for new job. . . and surely she should have had the instinctive decency to confide in you before she "got married in one of the little villages they were passing through."

It is true in this country where you now live, as I am sure it is true in the country in which you were born and educated, that these fundamental qualities of decent behavior. . . loyalty, integrity, dignity, self-respect and respect for others . . . are the basis of the goodness of manners.

Important Figuring

By VERA WINSTON

HERE is a dress designed with an eye to the figure of more generous proportions and it is handsome, slimming and eye-arresting. Done in fibre black or brown silk crepe, it manages an uncluttered look but is not lacking in fine detail. Shaped tucks parade down either side to minimize the waist which is self-belted. Other details are a tiny draped collarline neckline and a funnel pocket which has a jeweled pin tucked in it.

SCULPTORS ANNOYED

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Argentine sculptors are angry because an Italian was picked to design a multi-million dollar monument to the late Eva Peron. The Argentine syndicate of plastic artists yesterday asked President Peron to set aside the appointment of Leon Tommasi. The artists said the Italian's selection had caused "surprise and regrettable anxiety."

BEAUTY

FACIAL EXERCISES

Have you good eating habits?

It would seem that every woman has them for everything except taking care of their health. They look after the Pappy and the kids, seem to give little thought to their own well-being. When you call up an old friend, you may be distressed to hear that she has a bad case of the jitters that doctors call nervous exhaustion. Most one that you haven't seen for some time and you may be shocked to see that she has developed pressure wrinkles. All women are eager to be lovely to the eye, but many of them overlook the fact that health is the basic need.

There is the important matter of nutrition. Eating is not just a physical need to be satisfied through. The home-body makes herself a cup of tea, has a nibble of toast for luncheon. It's too much trouble to prepare anything else, and she is not interested anyway. The career girl, intent on dieting, is the same special. She settles for a soda at the fountain, or she don't find up properly, you can't keep your motors going, our skin will lack coloring; your eyes will be dull and your steps listless.

Each meal should be a pleasant interlude in the day's activities. Food should be eaten slowly. The first processes of digestion take place in the mouth. Your teeth prepare the food for entrance to the stomach. Mastication stimulates the proper flow of the gastric juice quantities and this liquid is necessary for assimilation.

There are three salivary glands in the mouth. These work unregarded by hurry and unpleasant emotions. Even after family arguments will cause them to slow up and so retard digestion.

If food does not look appetizing, these glands may refuse to function. It is true that the right and smell of daintily prepared glands make the mouth water. The digestive organs are swelling their supply of appetizing gourmet. The saliva contains an element known as ptyalin, necessary for the assimilation of starchy foods.

Make it a point to have pleasant, interesting conversation at the table. To talk on depressing subjects is a serious mistake, especially before children.

It should be the ambition of every home-woman to educate herself in the culinary art. Upon the commissary department depends the health of the members of the family.

Fashion Flashes

A FEATURE of many new woollens and tweeds is the widened trim. A box jacket suit in a brown, green and white mixture tweed has ledge knit edges around the cardigan neckline, down the front, at the hems, and at the turn-back cuffs. The matching tweed skirt is a high-rise bid with a brown leather belt.

ETHEREAL dance dresses are going big in college shops. A dream of a dress is one of pale pink nylon tulle, the strapless bodice intricately draped. At the side of the waist is a huge double pouff of pink satin ribbon, the long petals finished with tiny roses.

IMPROVEMENTS in the wool knitwear make this the ideal time to invest in a woolknit dress or suit. A handsome new two-piece has a lacy knit jacket with cardigan neckline, self belt, slash pockets. It fastens with buttons of looped self-knit. The knit-pleated skirt is slightly full. Handsome!

WHEN IT COMES to youth, why, that's where the separates costume shines. Taffeta is used for a little sleeveless blouse with a full, three-pleated bertha collar. The skirt has a needle-pleated hipline.

43 P.C. of Students Failed to Pass English Test

TORONTO (CP) — Forty-three per cent of some 500 first-year students at the University of Toronto failed an English test.

A report on the test released yesterday shows that the students were examined in vocabulary, knowledge of punctuation, ability to summarize a piece of prose, and to outline a short composition.

The test was compulsory for all first-year students at University College, and all first-year students at the faculties of Music, Nursing and Physical and Health Education taking English at the college.

Last year, a similar test given to all year arts students enrolled in English at University College resulted in 56 per cent failures. President Hilbert Smith described the figure "in the highest degree, alarming." He urged secondary schools to increase their training in English.

Students taking the test were required to define 10 of 25 words, including "erudite," "sanity," "complacent," "condone" and "chivalry." The second part of the 110-minute test was made up of a dictation practice.

Of students enrolled in the faculty of arts, 41 per cent passed; of those from the three other faculties, only 45 per cent passed.

A 13-week remedial English course, with tests at the end, will be held by the college's English Department for those who failed.

More than a million Canadians have found Canada Savings Bonds to be a safe, sound method for systematic saving—and the building of a comfortable cash reserve.

They offer you a convenient way to save for the better things in life that you want for yourself and family.

In the meantime your investment stands as an always available source of cash to meet emergencies that might crop up.

Canada Savings Bonds—Seventh Series—mature in 10 years and 9 months. They pay an average of 3.44% per year if held for this full term. The bonds are cashable at full face value plus interest at any time at any bank in Canada. Each bond bears ten 3¼% coupons—the first of these being payable on August 1st, 1954 (1 year and 9 months from date of issue). Subsequent coupons become payable August 1st yearly thereafter until maturity. If the bond is cashed before the first coupon becomes payable simple interest is paid at 3.14% per year calculated monthly. The average return per year gradually improves the longer the bond is held until it reaches 3.44% at maturity. The Seventh Series is available in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1000 and $5000 and the limit for holdings in any one name is $5000. The bonds are registered in the owner's name. Yankees Edge Dodgers 3-2 To Force World Series Into Seventh Game

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

THE BRITISH VIEW

Mr. R. Carruthers, 306 John Street, who with Mrs. Carruthers paid a visit to England about a year ago, sent this department a clipping from an English paper in which a writer describes his impressions of a world series ball game played between the Giant and the Yankees.

After saying the telephone girls, taxi drivers, waitresses, all join in the "mass hysteria," the writer adds "the general frenzy is far beyond anything seen at a Cup Final or Test Match. Perhaps France's great bicycle race, the Tour De France is the only other sporting event capable of producing public hysteria on such a scale.

"The match I saw," he goes on, "was the one where the Yankees rather surprisingly beat the Giants 3-1. What I read in the American papers was "The miracle Giants fell right out over hit the ball at all. But the crowd enjoyed the pitching and thought it was a good game. . . ."

The writer offers the amazing information that baseball is a game played with bat and ball, a game very much emphasizing the individual with pauses and a measured rhythm. (He should see Brooklyn play). It does not compare, he feels, with the game cricket which "one can dream through a long afternoon with hat tipped over one eye, lulled by the green grass and white flannels languidly appreciating the artistry of breaks and strokes." (Hey, guy'nor, how about that four o'clock spot of tea and crumpet?)

"The American crowd," he goes on, "packs into a fan-shaped arena to clap, stamp and eat hot dogs . . . It is more like a ball-fighting crowd than any."

Then this priceless information. "Baseball is a game played by 18 men at a time. Each side has nine innings and an inning finishes when there men are out. A man can be out by being caught, by missing three times or hitting it so someone has time to run to the base before he can get there himself."

"If he does get to first base he leaves on whenever he can do so without getting 'run out.' If he reaches fourth base his side has scored a run. If the batsman hits the ball out of the ground he gets an automatic home run and anybody lurking on any of the bases runs ahead and gets a run, too."

Don't go yet, kiddies, there's more.

"Up in the corner of the ground where all the action takes place, the pitcher kept hurling the ball at batsman after batsman. The batsman kept swiping away with their extended sticks and missing. Then one clever fellow in the topmost chance of them controlling where and how they hit it. If they did hit it, the ball usually flew straight up in the air and was caught."

The writer goes on, "In half an hour of play the most thrilling thing that happened was a loudspeaker announcement that somebody's car was steaming outside and looked like blowing up." (That was probably a Giant fan.)

"Before the seventh innings by immemorial tradition, the crowd stood up, stretched and scratched itself. This a moment of real excitement brewed up. One side had men at all the bases and a good batsman might enable all of them to complete their circuit. But the next batsman on the list was the pitcher who had been pitching wonderfully but was blotic as a batsman."

"So by a bold decision," the writer says, "whoever was running the team withdrew the pitcher from the game for good, and substituted a huge negro as batsman. The thrill collapsed when the negro missed three balls completely, and everyone was out."

"That was all," he concludes, "The famous Joe DiMaggio did nothing. Nor did Bobby Thompson, the Scot from Glasgow. No one did anything except the pitchers and that wasn't spectacular."

It's interesting to see once. But I'll still take cricket."

It Was a Home-Run Classic With Snider Blasting Pair; Dodgers' Faithin Black Today'

BROOKLYN (AP)—Two beautifully-matched and equally gifted ball clubs come down to the wire in the seventh game of the World Series at Ebbets Field, today.

For six games Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees have fought on even terms. One Yank is as, almost, prohibitive favorites to win their fourth straight world championship within five or six games, finally foiled their quest in Manager Charlie Dressen's comeback kids.

If there is any one to today's probable winner, it possibly lies in the fact that the Dodgers have won the only game all the way. They had led the series 1-0, 2-1, and 3-2 before succumbing for the second time to smoke-ballet Vic Raschi will be given Allie Reynolds by a 3-2 score in yesterday's thriller. Today the odd game comes up again. . . .

Black is Ready

Also, there is the pleasant circumstance for the embattled National Leaguers that their great Negro rookie, Joe Black, is ready and anxious to get at the Yanks again after two days of rest. The Bombers can not say quite the same for their ace, Reynolds, who came in to fire 23 pitches and gave yesterday's game to Joe Black.

Except for a brief warmup in Sunday's fifth game, when it looked as though Joe DiMaggio, Carl Furillo, might require some help, Black has not been in action since losing his duel with Reynolds Saturday, when Jackie Robinson cracked the Dodgers with a four-hitter.

Yesterday, Duke Snider, Dodgers outfielder, again stood on the Yanks single-handed. The Duke didn't beat the World Champions again, largely because the Brooks didn't arrange to have anyone on base ahead of him either time he came to bat.

JOE BLACK

Joe Black, sensational Dodger rookie who was given the big job of facing Allie Reynolds in the all-important seventh World Series game today.

Snider connected for a homer over the same inviting rightfield barrig to open the seventh. Then it was his turn to bring in Black. Within a matter of minutes Loes had surrendered a single to Gene Woodling, been banished to the bench, and Raschi had bounced out a single off his leg to put the Yanks out in front 2-1.

Maddie Homers

Mickey Mantle made it 3-1 with his treemendous blow into the centerfield seats to begin the eighth and by the time crafty Preacher Roe came in to pitch to Mantle with one out and two Yankees on base in the top of the ninth, it was too late for the Dodgers to retrieve the victory.

In the meantime, the indomitable Snider had knocked his second home run into the left field lot of the National Leaguers up to 2-3 in the eighth and put some heart into the sparse Brooklyn crowd of only 36,- 371. With two down, George Shuba doubled to left centre and that was when Casey Stengel decided Black should retire, and make room for Reynolds.

Stengel almost certainly would have preferred to hold out Reynolds for today, too, as Dressen did in the case of Black in another mind of the American Leaguers refused to box in the future, which was very short at best. But the Yanks' hands are handled in his map. He was reupgoed, no matter what happens today.

Reynolds fazed five men and struck out two of them. They were Roy Campanella and Rocky Nelson, the pinchhit for Gil Hodges to open the Brooklyn ninth.

The stocky Indian did what Black might well do today, and let Dodgers if Manager Dressen had gambled and brought him forward in the seventh. Stengel, the old form lacker, speculation, as the Dressen, the gambler, played it conservatively may be sorry before the sun sets over Ebbets Field tonight.

Who Will Pitch?

Yesterday, possibly, he could have finished it with Black without having to look at Reynolds again. Looking at Reynolds is not an eveningl proposition, as the Dodgers have found out. When Wahoo was at his magnificent best Saturday, they learned that they couldn't even get him, much less hit him.

It is not certain, of course, that Reynolds will be on the firing line again today. A rumor floated around that Stengel may decide to gamble with young Tom' Gorman.

Gil Hodges 'Mystery Man' Of World Series

BROOKLYN (AP)—The mystery man of the 1952 World Series is Gil Hodges.

The hard Brooklyn first baseman hasn't been able to "tap" a base hit in the Series to date, yet during the regular season he topped the Dodgers in runs batted in with 102, home runs with 32, doubles with 27 and bases on balls with 107.

Hodges' sad tale is simply told: At bat 17 times; hits, nine; strikeouts, six.

The Brooklyn slugger had his worst day yesterday as the Yankees evened the series by winning 3-2. Hodges struck out three successive times, each time swinging futility at a curve for the third strike. He looked so bad that in the ninth inning, when he was due to lead off, Manager Chuck Dressen sent in Rocky Nelson to pinchhit for him.

Did Gil feel bitter about being taken out?

"No, I didn't feel hurt," he said later in the clubhouse. "How far can a manger go? I really sympathize with Dressen."

Boston, Bruins Break Camp

HERSHEY, Pa. (CP) — Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League will break training camp here tomorrow and return to home ice.

Hockey followers still cling to the belief that the Bruins will quit camp loaded with offensive power and break up the defence. But the big brass in the high command appeared pretty confident after seeing a string of camp youngsters work out against Hershey Bears Saturday night.

Coach Lynn Patrick shifted his strategy and is grouping Fleming Mackell and Joe Klukay as his chief penalty killers. In reserve for the killing job will be Red Sullivan and Jerry Toppazzini. The latter has been converted into a defence man but in the training season appeared to shy away from body contact.

One thing is certain. The Bruins brought a fine young crop this year the best string of rookies fans have seen since the war days.

World Series Dressing Room Chat

By TED SMITS

BROOKLYN (AP)—The dignified New York Yankees unbent like kids Monday after turning down baseball to win the sixth game of the World Series and square the count at three games each.

Manage Casey Stengel took the supreme gamble by sending in his ace of aces, Allie Reynolds, to protect his 3-2 lead in the eighth.

"I talked with Reynolds before the game, and we decided if we used him some today we could maybe use him for two or three innings tomorrow," said Stengel.

"It was another hard game today. They played like hell. We had to play like hell to catch 'em."

When Reynolds went in for Vic Raschi, Duke Snider had just hit his second homer of the game to make it 3-2, and George Shuba had doubled. They were two out but Roy Campanella was at bat, a dangerous man during the season although weak in the Series. Reynolds struck him out to end the eighth inning.

"If you had bees, managing the Dodgers, would you have left Billy Loes in as long as Charlie Dressen did?" someone asked Stengel.

"I don't know what I would have done with Loes," Stengel replied. "Dressen is a good guy and a swell fella in there yesterday."

After John Mize's big homer, Carl Erskine of the Dodgers retired the next 12 batters in order Sunday and the Dodgers went on to win 6-5 in the 11th.

"Yogi Berra may have received credit for two Series victories, defeated Stengel's decision in sending in Reynolds to relieve him.

"You gotta respect your leads," he said. "I wasn't tired. But they were just hitting the ball, that's all."

Dressing Room Chat

By WILL GRIMSLEY

BROOKLYN (AP)—"I was trying to get the ball for a curve and it just squirted out of my hands," young Billy Loes said of the weird seventh-inning balk that helped the Yankees knot the World Series yesterday.

"I tied Ruth and Gehrig—for such stakes. I didn't know that," exclaimed Duke Snider, who poled his third and fourth home runs of the series in the Dodgers' losing 3-2 effort.

"I would have put Joe Black in to protect a one-run lead late in the game but I never had a reason to give up on Loes," said Manager Charley Dressen, getting in the first punch at would-be second guessers.

Silence Prevails

Brooklyn's dressing room was so quiet the 32-year-old Loes was heard mumbling to himself.

"I never happened to me before —nothing like it," he said.

"The ball completely got away from me. I had a lot on it. I was sweaty. It was just one of those things."

The catastrophic play occurred in the seventh inning after Yogi Berra's home run, tying the game 1-1 and after Gene Woodling had reached first on a single.

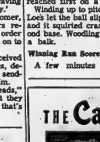
Winding up to pitch to Irv Noren, Loes let the ball slip from his hand and it squirted crazily toward second base, Woodling took second on a balk.

Winning Run Scores

A few minutes later, Yankee pitcher Vic Raschi blasted a shot off Loes' left knee for a single, scoring Woodling with what proved to be the deciding run.

Solder, who struck out eight times in the 1940 World Series to tie Rogers Hornsby's mark, didn't know until he reached the dressing room that his four home runs had put him in the bracket with Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig.

Ruth hit four homers in the 1928 series and Gehrig did it in 1932.



"I'm happy to tie the record of two such rebel hitters as Ruth and Gehrig but I was in good company when I tied Hornsby's strikeouts."

This sprint is not going to extend his track career by skating over Ohio. Conditions was the best, or most dirtable. But it may be one can inform us as athlete who combined greatness of performance and durability to a greater degree than skater Norval Baptie, we'd like to hear about him.

Howie Morenz and I were seated in Madison Square Garden, the roaring night of the day it opened. Canadiens were playing there that night. Out on the ice, surface, a slim figure was pirouetting dizzily, or whirling around the circuit at blinding pace.

Howie Morenz was proud of his own blazing speed, and he was a great competitor. So I asked him: "Would you like to see him once more skate?"

Howie shook his head, grinned, said: "No, he's too fast for me."

The skater out on the ice was the amazing Norval Baptie, one of the truly great skaters, ranking with the late Charlie Gorman, Canada has ever sent to the speed fronts of ice.

It was a November morning in 1925 that we watched Baptie splashing around, gratefully ready for his fancy skating show between periods that night with Gladys Lewis, pearl his wife. If I years before he had set a professional mile record of 2 minutes 8 seconds. He's still skating, coaching others in the art of figure-skating at the Toronto Granite Curling Rink and Colleges Caledonian Raleigh, N. C., even though he has lost all the toes of his right feet.

Canada has probably never produced an athlete of such durability. Baptie was born at Bethany, Ont., March 16, 1879, of Scotch parents. The family moved to Bathurst, N.B., when he was young. He started skating at 10, won titles at 15. He won approximately 1,000 races on the outdoor-curving ice in competition from 220 yards to 5 miles. In 1898 he beat the famous John S. Johnson, the next year he out-skated Johnny Nilsson, until then regarded as the best skater of his day. He won the world speed title at Montreal in Feb. 4, 1905 from Nilsson, Harley Davidson and Sinnlrud.

He holds ten world professional speed records, his straightaway mile in 2.36 4-5 makes Bannister look pretty perhaps the most amazing. He ruled the speed skating world, unbeatable, for 16 years. When he ran out of opponents, he skated in stilts, skated backwards, did fancy skating, actually introduced what are today known as "ice shows" in 1914.

And skating still at 73. Can you beat that for durability?

Eskies Blast Bombers 18-12, Calgary Ousts Sasky Riders

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Now for official Saskatchewan Roughriders' echo: "nice to play host to Western, Canadian football title in 1951, give the wheat province time to remember it, dry out of the running this season."

The Roughriders' dream of "next year-ity" clubbed whispered last night as they went out in rousing fashion with a heartbreaking 26-25 loss to Calgary Stampeders. The victory spoiled the gate for the Blue-Gold game, Saskatchewan post-season playoffs for the first time in two years.

And, after a crippled Rough-riders' week, marking their first game without Jackie Parker, of Calgary, Edmonton Eskimos tickled Winnipeg Blue Bombers with a tense 18-12 victory over the front-running Winnipeg Blue Bombers. It spoiled, also, the Bombers' perfect-season, playoffs for the first time in two years.

And, after a crippled Rough-riders' week, marking their first game without Jackie Parker, of Calgary, Edmonton Eskimos tickled Winnipeg Blue Bombers with a tense 18-12 victory over the front-running Winnipeg Blue Bombers. It spoiled, also, the Bombers' perfect-season, playoffs for the first time in two years.

Jackie Parker out.

Jackie, who has sparked the Bombers to the No. 1 spot in the union, and who hit vaunted on heavily to lead the Bombers to a record 7-0 start, was a crippled spectator. He was replaced by Joe Zeleski but the Bombers never did recover from the loss of their most dangerous all-round passer who has pulled many games out of the fire this season with his superb passing.

The triumph lent the Eskimos, to within two points of the Bombers and it appears now that the 15-game schedule will be run right down to the wire before first place is decided.

Roughriders, playing without the services of halfback Nellie Greene and quarter Sidney Bobbs who were injured in Saturday's game at Edmonton, dropped their chance of 80 million dollars when they bowed to Calgary before the last half. It was the educated toe and sparkling all-round play of Dynamite Dick Fouts that spelled the difference.

He accounted for 26 points, three of them on a crucial placement in the final minutes that broke a 25-25 deadlock.

Altogether, the kicky Canuck scored five touchdowns, four converts and two placements.

Playing behind him, Bobbs fired three touchdown passes for the Stampeders to Jackie Arrington and Stephen Reid, while Arrington, but the Stamps ate away at the Saskatchewan end of things, prior to the cellar-dwellers late in the final quarter.

Prairie Bowl

The game at Edmonton, saw Eskimos' Brisbin Rollis Prather score two touchdowns, one passing ally make his spectacular for the Winnipeg backs by his rushing tactics.

There was no scoring until the second quarter when Prather, who registered converted touchdowns, Eskimos on the first quarter-starter back Claude Arnold passed from Joe Zeleski, to outside Keith Pearce.

Edmonton went ahead early in the first quarter when Prather took a pass in the end zone from Arnold and added the point up the ball game minutes later when he bolted through Winnipeg's defence and caught a touchdown pass for his own team.

A few plays later Prather caught a pass from Arnold and carried it over for the second major. That was the game.

Definite entries included last year's champions Brockville Magnificents, Cornwall Flyers, Canadiens, Cuba, Clinton, N.Y., Comets and Ilderman Rockets whose home ice will be Smiths Falls. Queen's University, Kingston, is a possible entry.

Series Notes

By WILL GRIMSLEY

BROOKLYN (AP)—It's a good thing for Charlie Dressen he didn't sign his next year's contract as Brooklyn manager before the World Series.

Walter O'Malley, the Dodgers' president, said he hid chatted with Dressen about the matter, but there had been no definite terms. It's understood Walter said he'd like to sign the pilot but he and Mac was flew with Charlie.

The Dodgers' loss is a better bargaining position when they get down to the brass tacks of how much Dressen gets.

With or does today, the diminutive Dodger pilot has stamped his stature both with his bosses and the critics by carrying New York Yankees to seven games. Furthermore, he has helped his club to $200,000 more. Brooklyn suffers the club shares of the receipts of last three games.

If Dressen had signed at the .50 of the season, chances are he would have been retained at his present $20,000 salary.

Next year? A year's contract at $40,000.

Meanwhile reports persist that Eddie Lopat, another pilot with Casey Stengel slip off into retirement, not right away.

The latest Lopat report is that Casey is being tempted with a two-year contract at $120,000 per, a presidential salary.

You'd figure the Dodgers would have a slight advantage, playing the decisive games of the World Series in their home park. But it's not so in Brooklyn's case.

"Look at the records," said Dressen. "Don't find one of the clubs home club. We'd probably be better off in Yankee Stadium."

Billy Loes' fantastic talk and the subsequent hit off his hip by Phil Rizzuto helped to inject what proved the winning run brought back memories of similar incidents in Game One, World Series.

John Pesky of Pittsburgh wild-pitched Earl Combs home with the deciding run of the 7-6 opening game in 1927 when the Yanks won.

Fred Fitzsimmons, now a New York coach, was the pitching scoreless ball for the Dodgers during Lindsey's wild streak at the game of the 1941 series when the Yanks' Tommy Henrich "struck" instead a drive off Fitz' leg. The Dodger hurler was carried from the field. The Yanks won, 7-4.

The Dodgers' ability to give the little man a break on series tickets backfired. Some 5,000 more than some 2,000 seats were empty at yesterday's game.

The Dodgers refused to take mail orders except from season ticket holders, but left ticket offices and windows on a first-come, first-served basis. Some folks apparently fell there was no use trying.

The Dodgers' dressing room in New York is scene of unrestrained joy following their third win over the favored New York Yankees in the best-of-seven World Series. In an 11th inning 6-5 thriller the Brooklyn Bums frittered away a chance to win the game the easy way—blowing a 4-0 lead in a five-run Yankee rally in the fifth inning and did it the hard way instead, by banging out three straight hits in the last inning. An estimated 70,336 baseball fans were on hand to see the Dodgers take a 3-2 count in the 1953 series which may eventually lead them to their first World Series title. Above Manager Chuck Dressen, centre, is seen surrounded by Duke Snider, left, who rapped a two-run homer, a single and a double; Jackie Robinson, who tallied one run; Joe Black, back row, relief pitcher and Pee Wee Reese. — Central Press Canadian.

Detroit Red Wings Will Miss Abel But Figure Sinclair Will Fill Gap

This is the last of a Canadian Press Series on pre-season prospects of National Hockey League teams.

By HARRY STAFLER.

DETROIT (AP)—The cast will be much the same when Detroit Red Wings skate out after their fifth straight National Hockey League title this season. Only two familiar faces are missing.

The big change is in the Production line with the departure of centre Sid Abel for coaching duties with Chicago Black Hawks And that's where it could hurt Red Wings the most but the Stanley Cup champions are banking on former New York Ranger Reggie Sinclair to fill the gap.

The other absentee when the Wings open at home Thursday night against the Rangers is defenceman Leo Reise who went to Rangers in return for the 31-year-old similar incident to Abel, who learned his hockey at McGill University and in the Quebec Senior League.

Sinclair, who scored 30 points with Rangers last year, is the lone new face.

Detroit's famed production line will no longer read Abel, Lindsay and Howe. It will be Sinclair, Lindsay and Howe in the future, opens.

Manager Jack Adams and Coach Tommy Ivan could have done some shuffling with their No. 2 and No. 3 lines. But they decided to keep those forward walls intact and move newcomer Sinclair in between right wing Gordie Howe and at left wing Lindsay.

Both Howe and Lindsay say they believe that Sinclair, in his third season, will fill Abel's bill.

With the Rangers Sinclair played right wing and left wing, but he originally was a centre in his amateur days and that's where Ivan believes he belongs.

The other line in the Production Line are not question marks. Howe, winner of the Hart Trophy last season as the league's most valuable player for the last two seasons with 86 each time, Lindsay was runner-up to the 1951-52 season with 69.

The No. 2 line will be: Right wing Marty Pavelich, centre Alex Delvecchio and left wing John Wilson. Glen Skov will open the No. 3 line with Tony Leswick on right wing and Marty Pavelich patrolling the other line. Utility centre will be Larry Wilson and utility wingman Pat Stasiuk.

The Wings' five defencemen are Red Kelly, Bob Goldham, Ben Wolt, Marcel Pronovost and Larry Zeddel.

And, of course, the goaltender will be Terry Sawchuk. No. 1 in the league last year. He gave up only 138 goals in 70 games for a 1.90 average and had 12 shutouts.

Sixteen of the 17 on the roster were with the club last year. Howe, ever, Delvecchio, Larry Wilson, Stasiuk and Zeddel played only part of the season with the Wings.

Sport in Brief

At the end of the race the judges declared Single Jet the winner by the nutmeg paid $6.60 on a $2 win ticket.

Not long after—but long enough to allow payment on some tickets—someone informed the judges Good Travel was the winner and Single Way had run sixth.

The judges and the track owner went into a huddle. The decision: To pay holders of both tickets. The price of Good Traveler: $32.50 on a win ticket. The track said it cost an extra $10,000.

The judges said numbers on the horses and jockeys were reversed with mud, adding:

"It confused us."

TORONTO (CP)—Gordie Johnson, goalie for Toronto West Yorks in the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior series, has been named this year's most valuable player in the league by the O.L.A. sportswriters yesterday. He will receive the Charlie Querrie medal.

HAMMER (CP)—Allan McFarlane last night won a split decision over lightweight Elmer Davies of Philadelphia in a 10-round slugfest. The Toronto speedster, in his second fight since an ankle fracture four months ago, gained the nod for his aggressiveness.

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League and their American League farm, Pittsburgh Hornets, last night played to a 3-2 tie in an exhibition game. Danny Lewicki gave Pittsburgh a 1-0 lead early in the first period only to have Gord Hannigan tie it up a few minutes later. Toronto went ahead in the second period on a goal by Bobby Sollinger. Pittsburgh tied the game in the third when Danny Poland tallied.

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Referee Ashton Donze died of a heart attack during the fourth round of the feature match of a boxing card as the Coliseum last night.

Bruno, Waggoner Close Gap On Curtis

TORONTO (CP)—Hal Wagoner, fancy-dancing Hamilton Tiger-Cat and Al Bruno, Toronto Argonaut glue-fingered outside, closed the gap on Ulysses Curtis, the Big Four Football Union leading receiver during the week-end. Curtis, Argonaut back, was kept out of the scoring for the first time this season.

Bruno pumped over two touchdowns as Argonauts lost 4 to 23-21 thriller to Ottawa Rough Riders and Waggoner tried over for one major in Tiger-Cats' sweeping 36-0 triumph over the hapless Montreal Alouettes.

Statistics compiled by The Canadian Press show Curtis with 45 points, all made on touchdowns, and Bruno and Waggoner each with 30. Tip Logan of Tiger-Cats, dormant Queen's University kicking star, moved into fourth place with a 10-point week-end to bring his total to 27, seven up on Montreal's Virgil Wagner.

Runaway leader in the east is Ron Howard, Imperials' Corby Dutchman, hard-running back who scored two week-end touchdowns to bring his season's total to 60 points. He leads the Ontario Rugby Football Union with 10 points to spare over teammate Archie Mott.

But the Hurrahs are being saved for Saturday when 170-pound John Ponf of Toronto Beaches who has scored eight touchdowns in only four games. The 24-year-old galloper, cut loose by Hamilton Tiger Cats, moved to Toronto three weeks ago and is setting the league on fire with his sensational running.

Mizzy May Be Dizzy, But Izzy ?

BROOKLYN (AP)—Phil Mizzy is what you might call a small businessman with a big faith.

In Monday's lengthening shadows outside Ebbets Field, Mizzy was handing out scorecards. Then he blamed on them in "premature glory was "Dodgers-World Champions of 1953."

It was to have been Mizzy's night, for when Brooklyn figured the Bums to lose to the Yankees Monday?

A less hardy salesman might have shrunk away. Not a Brooklyn Mizzy. Not one Mizzy.

"They weren't forced on me," said Mizzy of the unrealistic pennants. "I ordered them made up in case they'd look nice."

Then Mizzy raised his eyes to the Brooklyn heavens and prayed quietly.

"Tomorrow, just wait 'til tomorrow."

Yanks Favored Over Dodgers

BROOKLYN' (AP) — New York Yankees are favorites to win the World Series today with either Ed Lopat or Allie Reynolds doing the pitching for the Bronx Bombers' Black.

The odds makers, made the Yanks the 6-to-5 choice if Lopat started and 6½-5½ in event Manager Casey Stengel comes back with Reynolds.

STUDENTS ON STRIKE

TEHRAN, Iran (Reviers) —Tehran University closed yesterday when nearly 1,500 students went on strike and refused to attend classes. They started when the students heard that candidates for the police training school would be "hand-picked" instead of chosen by competition.

The Kibitzer

Bridge is often easy pickings when too meekly foes take licklings. Zest is added to the bussel when opponents make you hustle.

If there is no opposition, a pair may be content to stop at a safe, sane, and conservative game. If pushed a little, one side or the other may be provoked into a slam that may or may not make.

On the other hand, the pushers are likely to be caught out on a limb with their points down. As could well be the case in the deal shown here:

	NORTH
	♠ J 10 5 4
	♥ A 8 6
	♦ 7
	♣ K J 9 7 6 3 2
WEST		EAST
♠ K Q 9 3 2		♠ 6 3
♥ 9 5		♥ J 10 7 3
♦ 9 8 6		♦ K Q J 10 4 3
♣ A K J 9		♣ Q 10 4
	SOUTH
	♠ A K 8 7
	♥ K 2 A 4
	♦ A 5 2
	♣ 8 5

Bill Gordon
Nonk

Left to themselves, south and north could not show each other enough values to extend to a slam. They would reach a game of five diamonds and let it go at that.

If east and west tried to sacrifice with five spades, no telling what might happen. North or south might double and beat them plenty. Or they might ignore five spades and try six diamonds.

In some aggressive company the bidding might easily go thus:

South	West	North	East
1 D	Dbl.	2 C	Pass
2 D	Dbl.	Pass	3 S
4 D	4 S	5 D	Pass
Pass	5 S	Dbl.	Pass

The double five spade bid could easily go down three tricks. With a moth-eaten club lead it could take a beating of down four tricks. Not big if it lose so take.

On the other hand, south might not let the double stand and take a flier at six diamond. This would go down. A big swing.

However, none of these things happened here. South had 11 for five diamonds and went led the spade king. Deeply the trumps said by east, pitch in and make it.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Second of two articles on Hollywood's part in the presidential race.

TODAY: The campaign for Stevenson.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The 1952 presidential campaign is drawing the most Democratic activity here in eight years.

The number of celebrities working for Adlai Stevenson still doesn't match the large groups who followed the magic drawing power of Franklin Delano Roosevelt in previous campaigns. But the current race is a far cry from 1948, when only Lucille Ball, Ronald Reagan, Robert Ryan, Humphrey Bogart and Lauren Bacall spoke for President Truman.

Of that group, Ryan now is working for Stevenson, but Miss Ball is on the Eisenhower bandwagon, Reagan, retiring president of the Screen Actors' Guild, came out for Ike before the conventions, but now is leaning toward Adlai. The Bogarts, who attended the Madison Square Garden rally for Ike last spring, are back in the Democratic column.

One of the leaders of the Hollywood effort for Stevenson is Allen Rivkin, a screen writer. .

"We are organizing a mass-media campaign that would cost any commercial advertiser $1,000,000," he said. "But all of the services involved are donated, and the other costs are absorbed by our Hollywood contributors."

Unlike the Republican group, which is concentrating on star appearances at rallies, the Democrats are mainly concerned with radio transcriptions and TV films. On his trip here last month, Stevenson spent an hour and a half before the movie cameras. The Hollywood volunteers are producing four 15-minute films, transcriptions, 26 one-minute shots, skits and songs.

The Hollywood For Stevenson-Sparkman Club books some stars to rallies. But the emphasis is on radio and TV. The group is providing Betty Davis, George Jessel and others to introduce such Democrats as Harry Truman on a radio series sponsored by the A.F.L.

Other players who have publicly supported Stevenson: Dana Andrews, Ethel Barrymore, Eddie Cantor, Jeanne Crain, Tony Curtis, Marlene Dietrich, Jane Greer, James Lydon, Margo Lee, Ann Miller, Dinah Shore, Frank Sinatra, Don Taylor and Shelley Winters.

Manager Tommy Mascaro of the Capitol Theatre has announced that "Death of a Salesman" will be the opening vehicle in the fall program of "Curtain at 8.30." "Death of a Salesman" also won the Pulitzer Prize and the New York Critics Circle Award.

AT THE BELLE

Lilting Score in New Astaire Technicolor Musical Film

Written by Harry Warren and Johnny Mercer, with new song by Rodgey Bitns, the songs reflect the turn-of-the-century era of the gaslight's soft glow and offer Astaire and Vera-Ellen a wide variety of original song-and-dance routines, among them one in which they literally dance in the air!

Included in the score are "I Wanna Be a Dancin' Man," "The Wants to Kiss the Bridegroom," and "Seeing's Believing," sung by Astaire; "Let a Little Love Come In," "Naughty but Nice" and "Thank You Mr. Currier, Thank You Mr. Ives," sung by Vera Ellen; and "When I'm Out with the Belle of New York," "Baby Doll" and "Oops" sung and danced by Astaire and Vera-Ellen.

Keenan Wynn, Alice Pearce, Clifton Sundburg and Gale Robbins support the stars in "The Belle of New York." The picture was directed by Charles Walters whose last was "Texas Carnival" and was produced by Arthur Freed, producer of such outstanding hits as "Show Boat," "An American in Paris" and "Singin' Get Your Gun."

A new and funny Tom and Jerry Color Cartoon, a baseball sports film "That Man Rickey," and a multiple-reel laugh novelty, "A Laugh a Day."

Future of U.S., Action in Korea Centre of Debate

By NORMAN ALLISTEYDER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP)—The history and future of United States action in Korea was the centre of some of the slam-bang debate on foreign policy in the U. S. election campaign.

The campaign's increasing tempo made more heat by President Truman's attacks on Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower during his current tour, has brought out the bitterness over the issue which lay somewhat dormant in the early stages.

Now Republican candidate Eisenhower has put forward what is apparently at least part of his plan for solving the Korean problem. He charged that the Democrats have no plan to end the list of U.S. casualties in Korea and then said:

"We must make certain that those South Koreans . . . can be prepared to defend their own front lines.

"If there must be war (in Korea) let it be Asians against Asians with our support on the side of freedom."

Times Cautious Ike

Eisenhower, however, did not make clear when the South Koreans should "defend their own front lines." The New York Times, which supports Eisenhower, said editorially he should make it clear that there would be no withdrawal of U.S. troops from Korea until the South Koreans are able to defend themselves.

Governor Adlai Stevenson, the Democratic candidate, has emphasized that he sees no easy way out in Korea and that "we can keep it up as long as we have to and we will."

Stevenson argues that Communist aggression has been stopped in Korea and that United Nations action there when the North Koreans invaded South Korea might well be the turning point in world collective security against aggression.

On the Democratic administration's foreign policy as a whole, Stevenson says it has been essentially sound, although some situations have been mishandled and mistakes have been made.

Eisenhower has grown tougher in recent weeks in his condemnation of the administration's handling of world affairs. He says the administration has lost China, allowed millions in Eastern Europe to fall under the domain of Russia, has "bungled" the U.S. close to a third world war and now is satisfied with a "negative" policy of containment.

The Republican candidate, however, approved some of the administration's policies in Europe—with which he claimed he had been associated as head of the armies of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Truman has lashed out at Eisenhower for the Republicans' attacks on administration policies. The President, who has been reported as offering to help Eisenhower get the Presidency as Democratic candidate, now urges all who hear him to send Eisenhower back to the army.

Bitter Reprieve

By Drexel Drake

Birdie's vitals sank with a feeling of nausea during his short walk to the porch. Inside in the confusion while the detectives were finding places for their hats, Birdie, believing himself unobserved, slid his briefcase behind a cupboard chair, kicking it out of view. His hat was still down on his forehead when he followed Ripley's lead into the library.

Talent came forward from the alcove, indicated a chair for Birdie, Birdie sat down uncomfortably. Talent sat across from him.

"Remember the chat your sister-in, Harry?" Talent asked.

"Should I remember it?"

"You sat in it once before."

"Could be. Where was it when I sat in it?"

"You read about the murder of Mrs. Sterling about four days ago, didn't you, Harry?"

"Sterling? Oh, sure." She was bumped off for her diamonds and a lot of dough."

Talent's grin was barely perceptible. "That was the night you were sitting here, in that chair."

"Who says so?"

"My fingerprints!" There was unconcealed alarm in Birdie's voice.

"I finally got them this afternoon on a piece of paper from your desk, Harry."

Birdie felt easier about it.

"On the morning after Mrs. Sterling was murdered upstairs, we found your prints on that chair, and on a whisky bottle and glass," Talent said. "So you must have had a pleasant visit. Maybe you could have helped us then, Harry, if you had told us about it."

It took Birdie only a second to decide not to hold out against obvious knowledge. He was cornered Sterling had talked.

"Okay, Lieutenant," Birdie said. "I was out here that night. But why should I mess in on a murder?"

"That, time were you here?" Talent asked.

"Eleven o'clock."

"A little late for a social call, wasn't it?"

"Sterling owed me 10 grand and he was giving me a runaround. I came out here to collect."

"Did you collect?"

"Not exactly. Not right away." Birdie frowned, chewed his lips. "I'll spill it all to you, Lieutenant," he said. "It can't help much now, but it can't hurt me with Sterling dead."

"Let's have it anyway," Talent encouraged.

"We were sitting here, having a couple drinks. Sterling had the news on the radio. He said he didn't want his wife to hear our voices. Sterling said he didn't have any dough, only what his wife gave him. I needed it pretty grand, told Sterling I had to have it by 1 o'clock. What then?"

"I waited a long time . . . begin to think he took a powder. Then went out in the hall. I figured maybe his wife wasn't upstairs at all, that he run out on me the back way. I was just starting up the stairs when I saw Sterling come sneaking out of a door, closing it so nobody would hear him. Then he came down."

"Then what, Harry?"

"Sterling threw his wife's diamond necklace down on this table. Sterling said I'd have to take it as security till he could get the dough."

"And you took the necklace?"

"Sure, for security. Like he said, it was that or nothing."

"You took it only for security and you never returned it, did you?"

Birdie scowled. "Sterling never came after it."

"Weren't you suppose to return it to Sterling inside that roll of newspapers?"

"What roll of newspapers?"

"The one you gave the young lady who delivered $10,000 to you at the Crosstown Hotel?"

"You ain't got nothing like that on me!" Birdie said hotly.

Talent motioned to the detectives in the hall and Miss Wilson came in, timorously, pale.

"Do you see Mr. Davenport in here, Miss Wilson?" Talent asked.

Miss Wilson's startled eyes rested on Birdie. "He's Mr. Davenport," she said.

"The man who gave you a roll of newspapers for Mr. Sterling in exchange for the package you delivered to him?"

"That's right, Lieutenant."

Talent, on his feet, looked down at Birdie. "But you forgot to put the necklace in those newspapers, didn't you Harry?" he said. "And you never thought of turning it over to this young lady when she was bringing you a package from Sterling every month during 1941, did you?"

Birdie scowled, made a move to get up, changed his mind.

"How much a month were you collecting from Sterling?"

"He was paying up. He was sending me two grand a month."

"Paying up for what?"

"For what he owed me. That first 10 grand he sent me was hot. He was paying extra because I had to wait so long."

"You knew the first 10 grand was hot, and still you hired Joe Steppo to pass out some of it at Belmont. Remember the Lily Francis I mentioned to you this afternoon, Harry? Joe Steppo was her boy friend."

Birdie's eyes flashed poison at Talent. "You're trying to mess me up with something, Lieutenant, but you can't mess me up with what happened here," he said heatedly. "Now I will spill something. I'll show you just what kind of suckers Sterling made out of you cops!"

"We'd be glad to hear it, Harry," Talent said.

"Okay. I went out of here before 12 o'clock. I knew the whole setup was screwy. I knew Sterling had pulled something upstairs. So I watched outside to see what Sterling would do. And I saw plenty. I saw him fix up that window, smash it, come out with a pair of shoes on his hands to make it look like footprints. I saw him knock that clock loose."

"You could see that from the driveway?"

"When he went back in, I stood on the running board of a car and watched. And you ate up his bilge because he moved the clock up to 1.30. It wasn't even 12.30 when he beat it away in a taxicab."

"You probably also noticed that he left the front door unlocked."

"I saw him change the lock, so he could get back in with the shoes on his hands."

"And that is how you were able to come back in here after he drove away, isn't it, Harry?"

"Who said I came back in here?"

"Your thumb print was the last one on the radio dial."

Birdie laughed derisively. "So you think that gives you something on me? I turned off the radio while Sterling was upstairs."

Talent had caught the significance of new voices in the hall. He smiled benignantly at Birdie. "I'm glad you explained that, Harry," he said. "Seems I was making a mistake about it. You have told me a lot to help me, and now you may be able to give me one more little bit of help. It's just possible you will recognize the woman about to come in here."

Birdie's scowl followed the direction indicated by Talent's nod. At that moment, Janet Tragood stepped in from the hall. She halted abruptly, Tragood immediately behind her.

Janet's hazel eyes were wide with alarm when she beheld the assemblage, and she swayed slightly when she discovered all eyes focused on her.

"Mrs. Tragood," Talent said, "when you came into this room on the night that Mrs. Sterling was murdered, were you frightened because you saw this man in here?" Talent gestured toward Birdie, the only one in the room who was seated.

"You don't recognize Mrs. Tragood, Harry?" Talent asked.

"Never saw her in my life."

Talent turned back to Janet. "Then what did frighten you Mrs. Tragood? What caused you to drop your cigaret?"

Janet's lips struggled but her voice did not respond.

Talent looked from her to Birdie.

"Both of you were in this room that night," he said. "Birdie has explained what brought him here. Let me refresh your memory, Mrs. Tragood, about that night six years ago. When you drove away from Edgecraft Country Club at about 1.30, you told Marcus Sterling that you were going to settle accounts with Mrs. Sterling . . . that you were going to put your cards on the table. That was the last thing on Mr. Sterling's mind before he died last week. It had haunted him for six years, because he knew you had been in here."

Janet choked a scream of anguish. "So Marcus did believe me . . . did think . . ."

She braced herself resolutely. The pallor of her face gave way to a deep flush. "I'll tell you," she said quietly. "I never should have been afraid to tell Marcus. I did say that to Marcus, but it referred to some trivial difference between Miriam and me. I don't even remember what it was. I had no intention of discussing it with Miriam that night, but when I drove by here, on my way home, I saw lights in the library. I thought Miriam couldn't sleep because she was at home alone, so I stopped in. I went to ring the doorbell but my hand was on that knob and I turned because the door was unlocked. I stepped into the hall and called Miriam's name. There was no answer. I saw the lights in here and I came in the door, walked in. I thought Miriam had been reading and fallen asleep. Then I saw what had happened in here and I was afraid. My cigaret dropped from my fingers. I rushed out to my car and drove home. That was cowardly, of course, but that's what I did. I never said anything because I was afraid to have it known I was here."

"You were frightened by what you saw in here?"

"The open window, broken glass, the clock knocked over. Naturally I could think only of burglars. I didn't know but what they might still be in the house. I only wanted to get out quickly."

"And the lights were on in the library, were they?"

"That was the only reason I stopped at that time of night."

Talent squinted down at Birdie then. "That gets us back to you, Harry. Now tell us why you made one little over-ambitious slip a while ago. You told me what you had seen through the window. Remember now, just how you were out there on the running board, what you saw. But you did come in through the unlocked door after Sterling went away. You came in and pushed the button in the hall, and that turned on the lights in here. Then you came in here, Harry. If you hadn't done that, you couldn't have known that Sterling moved the hands of that little clock up to 1.30. You couldn't see that from outside."

Birdie's response was a snarl, reaction to the long strain of goading that had been slowly breaking him down.

"Okay, so I came in here," he said. "Why wouldn't I come in here to see what Sterling was putting over on me?"

82 KILLED IN THREE-TRAIN COLLISION IN U.K.

Hard To Tell Injured From Dead Says Eyewitness

No Panic of Any Kind Although Confusion Great

By ANTHONY V. GREGORY
(Written for the Associated Press)

HARROW, England (AP) — The people injured in this terrible crash seemed too stunned to make any noise. Many were so motionless it was hard to tell the injured from the dead.

I live 50 yards away from the scene of the three-train pile-up and was one of the first persons to arrive there.

What struck me immediately was how oddly quiet it was. There was a blue sky overhead and low mauve from people trapped in the cars. But there were no outcries.

Soon the only sound you were aware of was the occasional moan and balances arriving to relays to take away the injured and the chopping of firemen, policemen and railworkers working quickly to free people. trapped in the cars.

The injured were of all ages. They were brought out to the station platform and finally a jumble of baggage was lined up there too.

No Panic

There was no panic of any kind. Those who escaped injury did what they could for those who were hurt. Rescue workers offered one another a cigarette or a cup of tea as she climbed out of a car.

"I'm all right, thank you," she said. "There are many others in greater need of that than I am."

There was a great confusion at wreckage. The engine of one train seemed to have jumped the platform and landed on a nearby line used by electric trains. It had disintegrated like a small.

—I have a particularly vivid memory of the body of one woman, covered with a sheet and placed apart from the others. The rescuers were busy working to save the injured. The dead woman seemed so alone there.

French Police Crack Down On Red Centres

PARIS (AP) — Police launched a series of lightning raids today on Communists and Red front organizations and newspapers in nearly ever, big city in France.

An official source said the French military tribunal ordered the raids to investigate alleged threats to the security of the state and of "demoralization of the army."

Offices of 16 organizations in Paris were searched including those of the two big Communist newspapers L'Humanite and Ce Soir, The Commercial Bank for Northern Europe also was searched and its records checked. Police usually keep a search of Communist accounts.

Twelve arrests had been reported by noon. No disorders were reported.

It was the second time this year that Premier Antoine Pinay's right-of-center government had cracked down on the Reds. In the raids last May and June, Communists said documents seized contained evidence of contacts between the Iron Curtain which might entail charges of treason. No trials have been yet filed, however.

It was probable that the Communists again had an advance tip-off of the operation, as they apparently had in June.

Norman Boyd Says Officer Slapped Him

TORONTO (CP) — Norman Boyd said in court today that he was "slapped" by a Toronto police officer at police headquarters and strapped to a table after his arrest Oct. 1.

Norman is jointly charged with, brother, Lewis Boyd, with the $9,047 robbery of suburban North York branch of the Dominion Bank.

Norman Boyd said Det.-Sgt. Ackerghan Fraser took him to a room, slapped his face and said, "you're the one we want." Then, he said, the officer put him on a table, tied a belt around his head and pushed the table. He said Sgt.Fayne kept him nine hours before letting him go.

Norman denied taking any part in the robbery. He pleaded innocent and Edwin pleaded guilty. The trial, which began yesterday, is continuing.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Variable winds and showers will prevail in the lower lakes regions. Nights have been primarily clear and cold, but most of the daytime have been predominantly cloudy. Today's charts indicate a warming trend of short duration with considerable sunshine for southern sections and at least a few sunny intervals for northern sections. However, cold is still marching across the north country arctic. It will enter eastern and central regions tonight, and likely by break in Southern Ontario late Thursday.

GREATEST CHINESE OFFENSIVE IN YEAR BROUGHT TO HALT

No Penetration Made In Main Battle Positions

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — South Korean infantrymen fighting with bayonets today recaptured the hill-and-crested peak overlooking the ancient invasion route to Seoul in a brutal battle that has raged since Monday night.

An officer said the Korean Hoop put a Chinese battalion of 700 men down to 150 in recapturing the crest of White Horse Hill on the western front.

The push—one objective of the biggest Communist attack in a year—has changed hands more than a dozen times in close fighting since three tanks, artillery and men into the rugged battle.

Charge Through Barrage

A few hours earlier the Chinese had thrown charges through an Allied artillery barrage and captured the crest. Then they hit the Korean defenders on the south slope but the South Koreans held fast.

Fighting was only slightly less fierce elsewhere along the front as the big Red offensive moved into its third day.

Earlier today in Seoul, Gen. Mark W. Clark said many others in the Eighth Army has stopped the greatest Red offensive in a year "without any penetration of the main U.N. battle positions."

Van Fleet, Eighth Army commander, said action has been limited to outposts, and the enemy has paid dearly. He said:

"The price which has participated in the current action has been extremely high, averaging as 1 am. Morale has never been higher."

Associated Press correspondent Milo Farnell reported from the front that the loss of White Horse Mountain was a shell-shattering enemy blow. It changed hands 12 times in 48 hours or almost continuous fighting.

While Horse, and nearby Arrowhead ridge, guard the Pukchon Valley and the gateway to Seoul, 25 miles away, have been the main target of the Red offensive.

Believe Underground 'Dead Sea' Is Potassium Chloride Deposit

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Newfoundland geologists have discovered an underground "dead sea" which may blossom into another valuable discovery for Premier Joseph Smallwood's economic development programme.

While government officials have been reticent about the discovery over the file , it is understood that some quarters regard it as one of the most important mineral discoveries in the province since the lead and zinc deposits at Buchans a few decades ago.

The lake of chemical brine was discovered while geologists were drilling for salt on the rocky west coast. The find is believed to contains salts four or five times more heavy than sea ea. It is whispered that the salt is not the commonly-known sodium chloride but possibly potassium chloride, of greater commercial value.

The discovery came after a drilling crew's persistence in following a "hunch." When they failed to find salt in the upper layer of strata, they drilled deeper, boring down through the normal salt-bearing depths until their bits broke through into the pool.

New Industry Seen

...It is believed the brine would, if in adequate quantities, provide the basis for an important new chemical industry.

Premier Smallwood was the backbone of the once-great German chemical industry.

The find revived the second discovery of salt deposits in the Atlantic provinces within a year. Earlier, in Nova Scotia, a deposit was found near the end of high-quality limestone adjacent to Antigonish harbor.

Industry Minister W. T. Dauphinee said the deposits raised considerable interest in the province would shortly become an important producer of basic industrial chemicals.

The size of the deposit has not been determined. But government officials claim that millions of tons of salt are involved. Even a 2,000,000 tons of limestone almost on top of it.

The salt was found at 779 feet and exploration is continuing in the area.

U.S.A.F. HOSPITAL PLANE FIRED ON BY SOVIET JET

Ship Escapes in Clouds, Reaches Berlin Unhurt

BERLIN (AP) — Two Soviet jet fighters today machine-gunned a United States air force hospital plane in the Allied air corridor 60 miles southwest of Berlin, but the American crew—and into the clouds and reached safety within.

Maj.-Gen. Lemuel R. Mathewson, U.S. commandant in Berlin, protested the incident to the Soviet flight command.

The plane, a twin-engine DC-3, was en route to Berlin with an army nurse aboard to evacuate two patients for special treatment at base hospitals in West Ge

Five Several Bursts

The crew reported the two Soviet MIG-15 jets swooped on them from behind, then attack after attack from each flank and from separate directions. They fired several machine-gun bursts across the path of the American. ship.

The crew said they were cruising at about 1,000 feet, the altitude prescribed for unarmed transports for fli ng through the corridors Soviet East Germany to Berlin.

"The attack came about 830 a.m. at a time when the Russians have concentrate" jet fighter fl—" and also "ve an air target range. It was nearly the same spot where Red fighters shot down another into a- Air Fran- ther last April, severely wounding two Germa passengers.

At the firing, the plane crew notified the cit ol- that they were "nder attack. The base brought out its crash crews including fire engines, expecting a riddled ship.

No Hit

The DC-3 lande normally, however, and an inspection showed no sign of any bullet hits.

The air force imposed a security blackout around the crew until Mathewson had an inquiry on which to base the American protest to the Russians.

Army Has No Job for Brigadier Allan B. Connelly, Retired 11 Years Ahead of Schedule

OTTAWA (CP)—The army has no job for Brigadier Allan B. Connelly 11 years ahead of scheduled. The only reason given yesterday in a 34-word official statement for Defence Minister Claxton was that there is no job for him.

Brig. Connelly, a Calgary engineer who became a brigadier at 31, returned to Canada from the Far East after nine months as head of the Canadian Military Mission in Korea.

Headquarters declined comment on a report, published in the Chicago Tribune, that he was "fired" because he was late in tipping Ottawa last spring when a company of Canadian soldiers in Korea was used to help guard visiting Communist prisoners on Kojo Island.

The Canadian government protested in May to the United Nations that the soldiers were sent to Kojo without prior consultation with Canadian authorities.

Liason Officer

Brig. Connelly, now on retirement leave, was liaison officer with United Nations Headquarters in Japan and as such would be responsible for the Canadian spokesman and keep Canada informed on developments at UN headquarters.

He was also senior military adviser to the Canadian Diplomatic Mission in Japan. He did not have charge of any troops in Japan outside his immediate staff.

He was posted there in August nine months after going to Tokyo. He had served in Germany in two years, but in the two years the Tokyo post has been open it has been filled by four brigadiers.

The first report Brig. Connelly had been retired came in the Chicago Tribune, which quoted a Defence spokesman as saying he "did not let Ottawa know soon enough that Canadian troops were being used in Kojo."

Defence Headquarters yesterday gave laquiring reporters the statement:

"Brig. Connelly is on retirement leave. The department does not normally give reasons for such retirements except that officers concerned are retired when there is no further suitable employment for them in the service."

No Elaboration

Defence Minister Claxton refused to add anything to the statement.

Officials said the maximum retirement age for a brigadier is 52 and that they seldom retire at 44. Brig. Connelly will draw a full pension of about $4,000 a year for his 21 years' service which began when he was at 23 after graduating from Royal Military College in Kingston.

Brig. Connelly became a major at the outbreak of the Second World War. He is one chief engineers who became brigadiers in the First Army Corps in Italy and in 1943 was promoted to brigadier. He commanded the engineers there. Italy. In 1944 he took command of 6 engineer group in England for two years. Returning to Canada, he became commander of the Alaska Highway and later head of the army's Saskatchewan area.

He went on leave for at least two months on his return from Tokyo. He has been living in Ottawa since his return, but army officials said they don't know his where about at present.

Collisions Involved Two Fast Expresses And Packed Suburban Train At London

Two Locomotives Smash Platform Full of Commuters

By ALLAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

HARROW, England (CP) — At least 82 persons were killed here today in two collisions involving three trains that piled wooden coaches 50 feet high in a mass of wreckage.

Some of the dead were mowed down as they waited on the station platform at the morning commuting hour; others died in the wreckage.

Railway officials said the death toll may top 120. More than 130 persons were treated at hospitals and hundreds received first aid.

The wreck came just after 8 a.m. The scene was the station in this middlesex village 10 miles northwest of London.

Rescue workers still were digging through the debris eight hours after the crash, searching for additional victims. Volunteers, doctors and firemen poked in the smoking wreckage, listening for signs of life.

The collisions involved two fast expresses and a packed suburban train.

Officials express running 85 miles-an-hour from Perth, Scotland, to London rocketed into the rear of a stationary suburban train. The express locomotive smashed through the wooden coaches, in an end on collision with passengers seated and standing, and blocked from both main lines.

Second later another express, bound from London to Manchester, plowed into the wreckage. Its two locomotives leaped from the tracks and slithered along a platform full of commuters waiting for other trains, mowing them down like a giant scythe.

Derailed coaches rode up on each other until the topmost smashed into a crosswalk 45 feet above the platform and ripped one segment out of it and plummeting pedestrians into the wreckage.

The terrific double impact threw chunks of debris clear through one end of the Harrow station and into a shopping centre 150 feet away.

Car 40 Mare Dead

When the known dead passed 80, work, a bonnet doll lay twisted nearby.

Station bookspeakers bared for quiet as the men crawled about the wreckage, listening for sounds of life and dying moans.

Two of the three locomotives were flung broadside across the tracks. At one point three splintered carriages were piled on top of one another.

The wrecked bridge connecting the ...ockbound and s outbound-station platforms was twisted down on the wreckage.

Ambulances and doctors hurried to the wreck scene from all main communities in Middlesex county and from northwest London. All available ambulances were called out and motor vans and other trucks were pressed into service to help carry the dead and injured.

Volunteer rescue workers clawed at the wreckage with their bare hands to remove victims trapped in the broken carriages.

'Like Air Raid'

The bodies of the dead were lined up alongside the tracks. One passenger likened the scene to that of a wartime air raid. Crowds of burning steam rolled through the battered coaches, adding to the panic of passengers trying to grope their way to safety.

Many of those with lesser injuries staggered out of the station yard nearby long after rescue men were given first aid.

Provincial police of Wembley, riding in the fourth carriage of the rear London-Manchester express said:

"It just fell to pieces around us. The carriage ahead of us just floated up into the air. Then there was a terrific crash and we were on the platform, or what was left of it."

Mrs. Elsie Webber, the tobacco vendor on the station platform, said: "I saw the express locomotive knocked her little shop down.

"I ran out into the smoke and steam coming all over the place, and she said to me: 'I'm all twisted. There was wreckage piled 15 feet around my stand."

Major Train Disasters In Past 88 Years

By REUTERS

The world's most sensational train disaster — kept a secret for seven years — occurred at Salerno, Italy, in 1944.

More than 520 people suffocated when an Italian train stalled in a tunnel.

War censorship kept the news quiet and it did not leak out until 1951.

Canada's worst train wreck occurred June 29, 1864, when 83 were killed, 200 injured, in a derailment on a bridge near St. Hilaire, Que.

In the worst crash in the United States, at Woodbridge, N.J., Feb. 1, 1951, 84 were killed and more than 500 injured.

Other major crashes:

In 1915 at Gretna Green, Scotland, 227 were killed and more than 200 injured when a troop train, a stationary local train and an express piled up.

In 1938 near Kishinev, Romania, about 100 died when two trains collided.

In 1939, more than 125 died in a derailment near Magdeburg, Germany.

In 1946, 200 were killed in a collision at Osaka, Japan.

In 1949, near Dowy Dwor, Poland, more than 200 were reported dead after the derailment of the Silesian express.

At the request of his family, there were no flowers. He asked flowers contributed to the Canadian Foundation for Poliomyelitis instead.

British Papers Severely Critical Of Jap Bonus to British Prisoners

LONDON (AP) — Two Conservative newspapers today criticize the £15 bonus British war prisoners of the Japanese are to get later in the year as "inadequate and repugnant" and a "miserable sum."

The Daily Mail and the Express compare the compensation—which works out to about three pence for each day spent in prison camp—with the U.S. government's $2,500 award to "shocking inadequate" and adds:

"The Japanese are living a 'soft' people. They have managed by hard to pay more for their misdeeds to Britain, whose people have made available..."

The Express describes the payment as "a debt of dishonor" and says:

"The Japanese act as if, with the payment of £15, they have liquidated their obligations to the British people and tortured and to the widows of the men they treated as less than cattle.

"Let them (the Japanese) understand they have done no such thing. They will be told in the matter what the British government says, there will be in the hearts of the British people an ager that will not soon begin to subside until the debt is paid in full."

The Daily Mail says award is "astonishingly inadequate" and adds:

The Japanese are living a 'soft' people. They have managed by hard to pay more for their misdeeds to Britain, whose people have made available..."

May Change Town to City Status During Centennial Celebration

TRENTON (Special) — Trenton's biggest birthday present may come next year during the centennial celebration. It seems the appropriate time to change the town's status into that of a city.

The present population figures warrant the move and with increased population next spring when two new industries start hiring between 200 and 300 skilled and unskilled workers, town fathers may take the opportunity to make the changeover.

The town planning board apparently foresees Trenton's greatest expansion because recently they advised acquisition of additional land to the west and land laid out for a better-than-average housing project adjoining the golf course. A York Boy farmer with a tract north of the highway east of the Belgrave farm has been approached but no deal has been consummated due to a difference in price. A considerable area for building is implied.

The Little Lake property bought by the town for housing development projects sufficient land for nearly 150 houses and a school area.

The Pyrotechnic industry out West Street is rapidly completing the first of three units and production is scheduled to begin before March. Meanwhile the Lawrence company moves ahead with construction of a new plant on the land known as the Hall farm north Trenton.

And all the time the Air Station to the east of the town is growing and adding more buildings and services. It is understood that another lot of houses will be erected in Middlebrough for ever-increasing married personnel.

Motorist Suffers Deep Gash On Top of Head

TRENTON (Special) — Attempting to negotiate a left hand turn from Dundas Street West to Lorne Crescent, yesterday, Dennis Brooks, of Carrying Place was knocked down his motor-driven bicycle and suffered a deep gash in the top of his head. The young man was treated at the scene by Dr. J. W. Farley and at the Trenton Memorial Hospital. Eight stitches were needed to close the wound.

A spokesman for Robert Major of Niagara Falls swerved violently to avoid striking the cyclist, sliding 34 feet before his machine was brought to a stop. The car and motorized motorcycle were travelling the same direction and apparently the cyclist did not see the car pulling up alongside when he started to change direction.

Passengers in the car were Charles Major, Mary Major of Niagara Falls and Mrs. Charles McCrea of Hopetown, Gaspe.

Another Novel By Harry Moore To Start Thurs.

Harry M. Moore, former editor-owner of the Trenton Courier-Advocate and now resident in Pembroke, has written another interesting story for the Ontario Intelligencer. Mr. Moore's prolific pen which has turned out several novels, and books, is at its best in his "North of 60". The opening chapter will appear in Thursday's edition and run daily to completion.

"North of '49" is the story of the early development of the Lac Petit wild-life sanctuary in western Quebec. It is the story of Colly McKee son of Angus McKee, half-breed "Trader Horn" of the Quebec hinterlands, who leads his father's caravan of a sanctuary come true.

Colly's love story is woven in the pattern of life and action in these faraway places. Mr. Moore writes in a breezy consistent style with plenty of sustained action throughout. For those who like yarns of the northwoods "North of '49" should prove interesting reading.

Bridge Collapses

A small wooden bridge collapsed at the tiny village of Petite Valee, in Gaspe, under the weight of an asphalt-laden truck. One of the many quaint covered bridges in Quebec province, the structure fell in a V-form into the shallow river. The truck driver was uninjured. — (CP Photo.)

Rev. Mr. Good spoke also and said the St. John's were losing two good workers in their parish and that they carried the best wishes of all in their future careers.

Tea was served and many remained for a pleasant fireside chat.

Miss Marguerite has accepted a position in Brampton and Miss Ruth Danford continued on to Sarnia where she has accepted a position.

Weekly Crop Report

TORONTO (CP) — Southwestern Ontario farmers have started shipping table turnips and most areas report a better-than-average silage corn crop, the Department of Agriculture said yesterday in its weekly crop report.

Harvesting of white and soybeans continues in most countries in southern Ontario while husking corn has matured rapidly and is about ready to pick.

In Hastings and Dundas counties, apple picking is the big job.

DIFFERENCE IN VALUES

Some concern has been expressed in City Council over the fact that a piece of property within the City Corporation and a few years ago for $500 is now proposed as the site for the new area high school at a price of $20,000.

One alderman remarked that the difference in values represented inflation to the extent of forty times the original price the city received. This is hardly the case. At first glance it does appear that the ratepayers are to take quite a beating but there have been some surprising changes in real estate values since the war ended.

In the first instance, however, it is to be noted that the original sale of this acreage can hardly be charged against the city fathers as an example of bad judgment, or lack of foresight. The corporations are not engaged in the real estate business. But it is the business of the corporation to see that as much of its land as possible can become tax producing property. To this end it has not infrequently made many municipalities that exceptional concessions have been made to prospective buyers in order that idle lands will become revenue producing.

It might be argued that it should have been retained for the war that this site was bound to become a much more valuable property. But it is precisely because the postwar population increases in Ontario's urban centres were not foreseen by anyone that this and the twenty-one hundred units of wartime housing units still in use today which had been slated for removal or demolition within six months of the end of hostilities.

Not only was it found that the "temporary" housing had to be retained in new home building and new subdividing of suburban and rural properties on an unprecedented scale have failed to meet the needs of expanding population in most cities and the province.

The problem has not been peculiar to Belleville alone and the proposed new high school site is an example of the unusual conditions which have resulted.

The important thing to consider in connection with this property is whether it is the most desirable site. And that, apparently, is agreed upon by all the municipalities participating in the area high school scheme.

CHANGING URBAN SCENE

The decision of most of the retail merchants of Belleville to adopt the Friday night shopping idea is a sensible one. The departure is one that marks the changing scene in the community life in this province.

This shopping trend has become widespread in the United States in the last few years and has been accepted in Ontario only within the last year or so. Since that time every week or so has seen its adoption by merchants in another city.

It was of course the buying public who actually adopted the new idea and, we believe, in New Kingston it is an experiment. It won the instant approval of shoppers. Had it not done so we may be sure that the idea would have been quickly abandoned.

The advantages which it offers the average household of today in urban centres are rather obvious. With so many workers now on a five-day week, and particularly in the summer months when so many take to spend their week-ends away from home, the opportunity to shop Friday night has been welcomed.

We can not recall of a single instance where the idea has been adopted and has not met with success.

E. REGINALD HINCHEY

An outstanding career as a clothes designer and musician came to an abrupt end on Sunday in the death of E. Reginald Hinchey.

His life work was the designing of apparel, specialising in that for the armed services of two nations. His hobby was music, and he excelled in both. His contributions to both phases of his life were important. His memory will live long in the minds of those who love music and especially those interested in that associated with military bands.

Mr. Hinchey's musical abilities did not end with being simply an artist on several instruments. His keen mind devised and wrote scores and arrangements that were accepted and used by outstanding bands in Canada and the United States. His talents as a musician and composer were freely given to community organizations, and his passing creates a vacancy in musical circles here that will be hard to fill.

Deacon Brothers Ltd. with whom he was associated practically all his life, as well as many in the realm of music, will regret the loss his death will mean to his native city.

NOTE FROM JACK DEMPSEY

Jack Dempsey has written a letter of love.
"Intended for men like yourself," he says.
So grateful am I for the privilege of spending the word from the one-time champ
With his gracious offer "this coming year
To start me out on a new career."

The letter states what I don't deny:
He has broken hard knocks, but
And he's a gnawering Jack, since
I've passed three score,

It's a little too late to train for more.
In a rocking chair I would
Be a sorry rock.
I doubt I could even punch a clock.

It's a friendly letter the champ has sent.
I'm certain to help me that it was meant.
But what would my grandchildren think of me
If they made the amazing discovery
That Someone, accepting Jack Dempsey's aid,
Had started to train for a useful trade?

The Word That Fits

(Calgary Herald)

"Autumn is one of the most beautiful words in the language."

Even to pronounce it is a pleasure to the tongue, for it has none of the jarring unmerciful effect of "spring", the menacing buzz of "summer," or the thin harshness of "winter."

It is, in short, a lovely word to describe the season of the year which many find most admirably tailored to their fancy. And it is a pity that the curt, matter-of-fact synonym "fall" has come into such common usage, for this word wears no charm at all on the one blunt note, and the significance is that of an unpleasant mishap perhaps even fatal, which is a gross injustice in the season. It is a word with neither the grace or the dignity befitting this time of the year.

There is a restlessness of the spirit in autumn, a strange stirring within, but some may counter that restlessness and vague inner nuzzlings are also epidemic in springtime. That is true enough, a subtle but important difference between the two. The restlessness of spring is one of vague expectancy, and it is basically a feeling of undefined joy. The restlessness of autumn, on the other hand, is more in the nature of regret and sadness. It is a time of waiting strangely tinged with sadness. The restless urge of spring is an impatient, for more often than not it turns out to be a time of no go in the end, under a tree, whereas the mysterious urgings of autumn are much more likely to produce some definable, honest activity, such as preparing for the winter indoors.

This, then, is the season of spectacular loneliness, when the lazy sun strikes the western mountains with the long shadows of early and luminous grey afternoons when the chill of the rain is not decipher to be that of the snow to come, but only a promise of it.

It is the time when frost warnings crop up more and more frequently in the daily newspapers, and the apprehensive gardener tramps out the door each morning steps out the door each morning with a sweater on, for the silent killer's path has crossed his prized vegetables in the night. Something of one day his gloomiest expectations will not have been fulfilled, and slept beneath the extra blanket.

It is the time when the young starts turning back to school, trying hard to conceal with glum mien the disappointment in their hearts. It is the time when the beckoning lure of the shoreline is more mournful and more far-reaching than ever; it is the time when the childhood fear of the football fan mingles with the soft gutturals of southbound wild geese headed in the dusk and the not-so-soft mutterings of the golfer who did not sow their fields to be dining rooms for ducks.

Autumn is the time of quiet waiting for the winter sleep that seems not but is fatally, it is a time of unwarranted melancholy; it is the season of the harvest and the harvest; it is an interval of hustle, as if things had been left undone too long.

It is the fullness of the year, and it is very, very good.

A Dog Adds To History

(Woodstock-Ingersoll Sentinel-Review)

The really interesting events in history don't always get the space they deserve. Books are full of brief hints that stir our curiosity; but curiosity is always getting let down with a thump.

There is for instance, the matter of General Howe's pet dog.

The author of a Life of Washington gives as many of the facts as he can find, and then speculates upon the rest; and so readers can help wishing that the historians of the old days had gone out of their way a bit to set down the whole story.

What happened was that General Howe, commanding the British army that occupied Philadelphia, had a small dog that he petted highly. In 1778, or thereabouts, Howe made one of his forays out of Philadelphia in the hope of catching Washington off his guard and smashing him.

Washington dodged him; but while they were in camp, and when the roll was called was not to be found.

Instead of staying with his British master, he had wandered off, probably in search of warmer camp, where he was busily making friends with the General Continentals.

A day or so later Washington sent out a squad with a flag of truce. The squad approached the British lines, were met by the outside sentries, and formally handed over a message. Then they trotted back to headquarters to receive the General's compliments on the fine story. And somehow one would be willing to swap a lot of history about the strategy and tactical manoeuvres for a good gossipy account of the flag of truce transaction between the lines.

The thing isn't hard to picture. We can imagine the sergeant of the squad of mounted Continentals stalking into the British headquarters, with the excited dog tugging on a leash, and then drawing a string of half affectionate curses from the sergeant as the dog leaped to the arrival of his squad at the British outpost. We can imagine the sergeant's grim, subtle relaxation of military dignity as he proceeded to relate red-coated British sergeant took the pup into custody and finally, to the delight of the British squad to the commanding officer's tent, with the dog forgetful and frisking forward to stick his wet nose into more than his good-natured British general.

That's the story of history that makes interesting reading. To be sure, it isn't so terribly important; yet, when it does come along the men of that day come to life for us. We realize that those British soldiers can never be mere automatons again, once we have seen them in the process of transferring a stray dog from one army to another.

May Not Be Enough

(Owen Sound Sun-Times)

The sentencing of a young man to a year, possibly two years, in jail on cattle rustling charges at Toronto this week will be applauded by many who consider such thievery, and as reassurance to those who grow cattle and sheep. Many farmers take a considerable risk and have implicit confidence in their fellow men. While some cattle raisers are said to have their herds in close proximity to their own homes, or the homes of their relatives, other cattle raisers and sheep men keep it this vast grazing country of theirs for days and even weeks on end without actually tallying their numbers. Many of these farms are in more or less isolated areas and farmers, during the busy season of the year, are too busy to visit them often. Knowing this to be the case, the rustler knows that when they do visit the herds, it is different to make the actual count, the animals being spread out over possibly 100 acres or more of bush and rough land. It would thus be quite easy for thieves to make off with a beast or two, and the fact not discovered for some time.

In view of the situation, and the need for protection, if the vast industry is to continue the one year sentence is not a bit too long. In fact it may not be long enough.

A WORD, ON GOLD

(Northern Miner)

We applaud the Canadian Metal Mining Association for telling Ottawa that enough is enough. It should get off the fence and get on its feet, and back up South Africa and others in demanding a higher gold price from the fund. Mr. Abbott represents the second largest gold-producing country in the world. He should be lived up to it—that is, unless the Canadian government is prepared to let the gold industry fade out of the Canadian picture.

Personal Health Talks

LONDON VERSUS LOS ANGELES

The report of the government-sponsored Medical Research Council of Great Britain that found scientific experiments on human volunteers over a period of years "in no case was any evidence obtained that such conditions" (as wet feet, drafts, etc.) bring on a natural cold or insufficient clothing) "would either bring on a natural cold or increase susceptibility to experimental infection with the cold virus" gave the old fogies in the medical profession quite a turn.

What! Give up the old "lowered resistance" dodge? Quit stringing patients along without a diagnosis? Admit we haven't seen do. The old fogies raised a fund, contributed to the investigation, and launched the umpteenth scientific expedition to find out, in nature, cause and cure of that elusive, undefined ailment which they are pleased to call the common cold." Now a dime will get you a dollar. Already there are weak sounds heard from they will not have enough evidence to controvert the findings of the British Medical Research Council.

It is indeed a long hop from London to Los Angeles, but the Research Council's report has not yet reached Los Angeles, so the doctors, the health officials and educators in that neck of the woods are still doing their level best to keep the old hokum alive. A recent circular sent to parents and pupils by the Health Service Section of the Los Angeles City School District is titled How to Prevent a Cold. In this leaflet the confused authorities include equal parts of the Lo Lee Lee Lo common sense and hokum and thus keep everybody confused. Thus the twentieth century view is expressed.

"The first few days of a cold are infectious and should be avoided" (meaning, probably, that respiratory infections are most likely to spread in the first few days). "The exclusion of one child or one school employee with an cold" (meaning, probably, the cri—any respiratory infection, including measles, diphtheria, sore throat or the like) "may save the others. What appears to be an acute cold" (meaning, probably, a respiratory infection which can't be identified offhand) "may be the beginning of a more serious communicable disease."

Having delivered that bit of common sense, the Los Angeles City School District Health Service authorities make a quick change of slogans and, turning around tell teachers and children first what To Avoid:

"Sitting in classrooms with damp clothing, rubbers, raincoats, etc.

"Standing around or sitting inside with insufficient clothing.

"Avoid fatigue but take light exercise when preferably in the open air and sunshine."

Angelenos who refuse to follow the advice of the city school district health service section must have as hard a case of the sore-gripe-hanger keeping bundled up or exercising indoors instead of getting light exercise in the open air.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

DANGER SPOTS

Barbara Ward, the great English economist whose writings and observations on world affairs always have arrested the attention of the world's leading statesmen, has declared: "To maintain our spiritual freedom in the world, we must develop a high moral integrity—if history passes an inexorable sentence of condemnation on current corruption and moral laxity is not less stern, then our salvation must from within before it was overcome from without."

The conclusion at which Miss Ward arrives in this: "The record is clear. Decay is inescapable. The United States is on trial from without under the pressure of Soviet power, and from within to relax the standards, to forego responsibility, to lose its moral vitality, to ignore formidable and more difficult to resist, because less dramatic, dangers of honest government, civic responsibility, social decency, and human generosity will be the arena where the real battle is fought. Here is another case of our worrying about the bombs which may fall on us from an airplane and paying no attention to the ones we carry around in our pockets. If you are looking for national and international danger spots, look into your own heart and the hearts of those about you.

With Ties, With Tartans

(Peterborough Examiner)

The Manchester Guardian comments on the Labor backbenchers' scraps in New York exhibition and says that the Labor Party, in fact, the distinctive ties of several distinguished British regiments. Here is a suggestion for tailors to buy them because they like the pretty colors, ignorant of their associations and sometimes, with true American frankness, they have a husband-hunter to match.

Probably nothing can be done about this, but it is odd that those who wore a tie belonging to a regiment in which they had never had no connection would court severe social disapproval, but American buyers of ties might say, with perfect justice, So what?

It is the same with the kilt and the tartan. Since the eighteenth century tartans have been associated with particular Scottish clans, and to wear something in tartan which was not one's own was considered bad form and done. But tourists have chosen tartan and kilt as suited to them, or because the tartan matched their eyes, or just because they preferred the pattern, and when the Laird o'Cockpen meets Mr. Jones-from-Jersey wearing an evening jacket made of his tartan, he will be pleased to find the world the Laird can do about it.

We have some sympathy for the outraged Scots Guardsmen, and products of the Dear Old Country, but we can only suggest that they devise for themselves a tartan and a distinctive, supremely hideous that nobody would dream of pinching them.

Miss J. Armour Addresses W.I. On 'Treasures in Your Attic'

RAWDON— The River Valley school house was a pleasant place to gather on Friday evening for the Women's Institute conference. Bouquets of dahlias and marigolds added to the setting.

Twenty-four members of River Valley W.I. were in attendance and seven visitors from River Valley and Stirling.

Guest Speaker

Mrs. Ed. Heasman opened the meeting with Mrs. Earl Morrow as pianist. The president introduced the guest speaker, Miss Jeanne Armour, of the Home Extension Services, Toronto, who gave an interesting lecture on "Early Canadian Furniture," and pointed out the value of "Treasures in Your Attic."

"As Canada is a young country, we, as a people, do not know too much about furniture. To date there has been no really authentic book written. However, little by little the department is trying to create interest in the old furniture found in our own homes and also in the homes of friends.

A study of furniture goes back to the study of history.

The speaker pointed out the difference between the straight line and the curved line in furniture and said today's modern furniture is again following the trend to have a curved line.

Miss Armour also gave a vivid picture of the early French, English, United Empire Loyalists and Victorian styles and passed around pictures to further explain her points.

"This study of old furniture gives us a better idea of how those old pioneers lived, in the days gone by. Their first thought was a log home for shelter; then their everyday food requirements and then they began to make a bit of furniture either themselves or perhaps a handy neighbor made a chair or a table for them.

Cabinet Making

"In 1863 in the new French colony in Quebec cabinet making became a profession and these crafts were kept going until the people gradually became prosperous enough to purchase ready-made furniture. The habitants were very fond of color so they painted most of their furniture. They also built pieces of furniture that could be used for more than one purpose such as a chair where the back turned down to make a table and the seat became a storage place for small articles.

Settees along came upholstered chairs, high back, made strong and trimmed with deep fringe; following this, the curved line was introduced and more carving was used.

"Florence E. Wright has compiled a book with lots of actual cuts entitled "Three Centuries of Furniture" and this ably describes the furniture here America colonial days, Windsor chairs, Hepplewhite, Sheraton, Duncan Phyfe, Empire and Victorian and tells of the work of the Adams Brothers who were architects in that line.

"About 150 years ago, cabinet makers worked in rosewood and mahogany. In the Empire period the lines were more severe as cabinet makers and painters took the Swan style was very popular.

U.E.L. Brought Good Furniture

"In 1775 the United Empire Loyalists came to Canada and they brought several good pieces of English furniture with them and these appeared in log shanties in our Canadian woods.

Miss Armour graphically pictured the typical furniture found in the homes of that period. Chests were used extensively to hold articles of value. In 1635 there was a chest with one drawer and in 1650 a chest with two drawers and now in 1953 there is a chest of six drawers.

"If anyone is fortunate enough to own a piece of furniture of Georgian design, they have a great treasure which can be used in the modern homes of today." Pictures were shown in books to give illustrations.

When Queen Victoria ascended to the throne, Canada was a very young country but she was pretty well organized and good pieces of furniture were constructed from curly maple, bird's eye maple, cherry wood and birch.

Victorian Style

All furniture made in the years previous to 1837 was Victorian style and these were designed and produced over years with a large number of varieties. he Victorian Gothic pieces are still found among old treasures. One of these styles "The Shell and Rock" is very rare. Other Canadians do not value these things that are close to them and so they sell these expensive pieces to antique dealers. The Victorian furniture would be prized as they were hand-made.

Then came mass production of factory-made furniture and many articles of value were thrown or stucted. Today many women are covering their horsehair sofas with velvet and their chairs with needlepoint."

The speaker pointed out the high standard of design and construction found in genuine antiques and said it was wise to have an expert appraise them if you were anxious to dispose of these heirlooms. Often these are found hidden away in attics and barns."

Women should always remember that the real value of the antique is "What is the article worth to you."

Refinishing Old Pieces

Miss Armour gave full directions for refinishing old pieces and said "this means a lot of work but it will give you a lot of satisfaction and pleasure when when the job is completed and the natural grain of the wood is in view. It is wise to start on a small piece first, use a commercial paint and varnish remover, applied with a brush. Keep your article horizontal, work on one small area, keep your can on a tin plate and avoid drips on other articles. When the old coat of paint begins to bubble then scrape with a putty knife, after which use steel wool and sand paper. Always rub with grain of wood. For dark spots, bleach with one ounce of oxalic acid powder or crystals to one pint water. These are professional wood bleaching agents but these are tricky for the amateur.

The next step is putting on the new finish. Staining might darken the wood. It is wise to try a sample underneath where it won't show. Several thin coats of shellac are better than a thick coat. You can thin shellac with denatured alcohol. Lastly give a coat of oil and turpentine and your article will be like silk. Finish off with several coats of wax, lots of elbow grease at the more you rub the more it shines."

There is a penetrating wood-seat made by paint companies Factories spray and varnish but in an ordinary home varnish takes a long time to dry. Another alternative is paint, but an article made of good wood with an attractive grain is better not painted.

Miss Armour passed around several charts showing odd articles of furniture and how, by means of a bit of remodelling and painting, they were all combined into one unifying whole and made an attractive room.

She then showed the group a number of slides depicting a large array of articles found in the Toronto Museum—which included actual chairs together with dating in pioneer days.

There were also several pieces of furniture which are highly treasured by institute members in their homes throughout Ontario. In many cases the owner posed beside her heirloom. There were antique clocks, wash stands, a book case made from an organ, and desks from pioneer wash stands. These gave a vivid picture of the various types of articles. The history and how they can be used in the modern home of today.

"A furniture Quiz" gave the group further information re Hitchcock chairs, English - Canadian-Georgian tables, French Canadian pine cupboards, and other styles in chairs.

Thanks Tendered

Mrs. Roy Bush extended thanks to Miss Armour for her educational lecture and slides on "Pioneer Furniture." Today the lecturer opened up a new trait of thought as they learned more of this interesting subject.

Mrs. Seldon McIntosh and Mrs. Ernest Carr conversed the meeting as they had been appointed hostesses for October and this meeting was cancelled in order to have the lecture. They were assisted in serving refreshments of sandwiches, cake and tarts by Mrs. Murney Scott, Mrs. Fred McDonell, Mrs. Earl Morrow, and Mrs. Alex Bush.

Two invitations were dealt with at this juncture. An invitation to visit Seymour East W.I. on Thursday was accepted, also an invitation to attend a conference sponsored by the Pine Grove W.I. given by Mis Ethel Chapman, as instructor on the subject, "Aids to Effective Speaking." on October 28 at Marsh Hill United Church. The morning session is at 10.30 a.m. and ladies are asked to bring a box lunch for noon luncheon.

There will probably be a Hallowe'en party on the last Friday evening of the month at the school but Mrs. Ruth Philp and the committee had not completed their plans as yet.

That same afternoon, Miss Armour gave the address to about 50 ladies in Stirling Community Hall. This included members of Stirling and Chatterton W.I.s and visitors from Madoc.

The previous afternoon, Miss Armour had given a lecture at Madoc on "Early Canadian Furniture Color," and five ladies journeyed to Stirling to hear her talk on "Treasures in Your Attic."

CONSERVATION

Ketch's Korner

by the ROVING SECRETARY of the CARLING CONSERVATION CLUB

Last year's report from the Department of Agriculture stated that approximately two hundred farm ponds have been established in the southern part of Ontario. There has been considerable activity this year by private and local farmers in extending ponds on their premises. Some of these farm ponds have been constructed with the aid of grants from the province and individual counties. Many others have been constructed entirely by the individual farmer, but regardless of the source of financing the net result is a decided improvement in production.

It seems that Halton County took the initial step in granting assistance in the building of these ponds, and now the other counties are falling into line with various forms of financial and other encouragement. It's good to see more and more people getting established in localities where the soil has a real potential, for many cases the Department of Agriculture has sent engineers to survey and lay out the ground for the guidance of the farmers. All this adds up to a most important phase of conservation, achievement in the field of its fullest worthy of encouragement. It would seem that the next step prior to the introduction of fish and other marine life would be the reforestation of suitable places around the ponds. Then the entire locality would be entering its most productive phase, and every possibility of the area would be put to the maximum use.

As the number of ponds increases, it will improve the condition of, underground water tables, as will reforesting and soil health. In other words, the building of farm ponds is a really basic requirement for the improvement of agriculture generally. Farmers are also influenced by foresighted to create ponds by whatever means at their disposal are making a tremendous contribution to the conservation movement in this province. Let's have more farm ponds . . .

Weddings

SHANNON—BLACK

Sacred Heart Church, Marmora, beautifully decorated with baskets of giant dahlias and asters, was the setting for a pretty autumn wedding on Saturday, October 4th, at 10 a.m., when Mary Audrey Black, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Black, became the bride of Clarence Joseph Shannon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Shannon, all of Marmora.

The marriage was solemnized and the Nuptial Mass was celebrated by the Rev. J. A. O'Neill, Rev. G. Scanlan, of Marmora, was assistant in the sanctuary, and the Very Rev. H. J. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of imported white French net with bodice and sailtrop of Alencon lace. The bouffant double net overskirt was worn over a crinoline. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was held by a sweetheart bonnet of Alencon lace and she carried a shower bouquet of red roses.

Miss Gladys Black was her sister's maid of honor, wearing a gown of burnt toast French net over taffeta with velvet jacket and mittens in burnished copper and matching bandeau of velvet and baby 'mums. She carried a bouquet of large bronze 'mums with satin streamers caught up with baby 'mums.

Bridesmaids were Miss Verna Black, sister of the bride, frocked in apple green faille taffeta with laurel green velvet jacket, mittens and matching bandeau of velvet and baby 'mums. She carried a bouquet of large yellow 'mums.

Miss Patricia Lynch, Reg.N., gowned in gold faille taffeta with velvet jacket, mittens and bandeau in intermission shade, carried a bouquet of large mauve 'mums.

'Modern Education' Subject of Talk By G.E. Currie

On Tuesday evening, a successful Home and School meeting was held in the senior classroom of the Prince of Wales School, with a large group of parents and teachers present.

Mrs. Annie Dickens, president, presided and opened the meeting, with Mrs. E. Price at the piano.

There being no special correspondence, Mrs. D. Watson did not have a report this month. Mr. J. Durrant read a favorable treasurer's report. Mrs. G. Black's room had the attendance banner.

The devotional period was taken by Mrs. D. Cowles.

It was decided that the banner be kept as is for the present, not being discarded for new design or material. The association agreed that the executive group be allowed to spend $10 instead of the previous $5 without consultation of the association. Mrs. Martin will be in charge of the program for the November meeting. Mr. H. Wilson and Mrs. W. Wilson agreed to join the program committee.

Mr. Murray and Mr. Sproule are to attend to the opening of the school doors for the future meetings. Mr. Stuart Martin, of the program committee in charge of the October meeting led the group in singing some old favorite songs.

Mr. Sproule introduced Mr. G. E. Currie of the B.C.L.V.S., mentioning Mr. Currie's many attributes as teacher, citizen and scholar. Mr. Currie spoke to the group on the subject of "Modern Education", and the need to understand today's child's approach to education indicating the newer ideas and mediocrity of today's education and some of the needs of the child which education needs but most today and cannot supply; also of the necessity of skilled and proficient workers who have yet to be imported into the country, his spoke also of the need of parent and teachers working together more closely and of the fact that it is useless to lecture the teen-ager.

A brief question period was held.

Mr. Durrant tendered thanks for most enlightening facts of modern education placed before the association by Mr. Currie.

Mr. S. Martin then led the group in "Find Your Name", game which proved valuable as a getting-acquainted method. Mrs. Sproule and Mr. Watson were the winners having spoken to the most people.

This was followed by the hilarious "Pass the Cups and Saucers, Please", which would have had disastrous results had the cups and saucers not been made of plastic material. Mrs. Swaffer and Mr. G. E. Currie were the proud winners of lovely cake plates.

A vote of thanks is due to Mr. S. Martin, Mr. W. Royle and Mr. Sproule for this month's program.

Part II of the sing-song was held while the room mothers of Grade I served light refreshments. An enjoyable social hour followed closing what is considered one of the best meetings held by the association thus far.

Pretty and Practical

By TRACY ADRIAN

TIME was when knitted mittens and gloves were strictly for the school-child set. Mamas and older sisters used their nimble fingers for little boys and girls, and the results were pretty and warm.

But this year there is a new gimmick in knitted gloves which are designed for anyone of any age with an eye for glitter and fun. And it is a fascinating idea—knitted gloves with shiny embroidery trim. The one picture has a star motif and come in black, white, red, maize and pink. They are perfect for dressed up casual and country costumes.

Lloyd Skeaff Gives Talk on 'Teen-Agers'

Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School Home and School Association held the first meeting of the fall season on Monday with Mr. F. L. Allcorn, vice-president, as chairman. It was gratifying to see so many new members present.

Mrs. G. Williams, corresponding secretary and Mr. Bennett gave their reports, following which, Mr. G. Currie, principal of the school, introduced the new teachers and then the other members of the staff, making a total of 46 teachers. The members of the Boy of Quinte High School Board were introduced by Mr. H. C. Seldon.

Guest Speaker

The speaker for the evening was Mr. Lloyd Skeaff, newly appointed secretary of the local Y.M.C.A., who gave a most interesting address on "Teen-Agers" and the problems which confront them. He stressed the importance of the home and the parents in the training of the child and the necessity of the parents knowing the child's friends and their parents.

Following the address, refreshments were served under the direction of Mrs. Kane, Mrs. Weston and Mrs. O'Connor.

Two positions on the association are at present vacant, these are, that of president, and of the social convener. It is hoped that this year will be the most successful year to date, if how kind mother and dad will lend their assistance.

Those who had come to the 'end of the line' included Mr. W. G. McGee, Mr. Frank Parsons and Mr. Patrick Lynch, Mrs. W. G. McGee, Mrs. Frank Parsons, Mrs. George Gulliver and Mrs. Percy Welch were also present.

A hearty welcome was extended to all by chief engineer, Dave Fisher, while Henry Drury acted as master of ceremonies. Grace was said by the Reverend Everett Smith, assistant rector of Christ Church.

Toasts were proposed by several to the Queen, by H. Drury; to the railway officials by Brother Ken Bunnett, to which superintendent A. Wilson replied; to the Grand International Auxiliary by Brother Neal Robb, to which the president of the G.I.A., Mrs. Pearl Kerr, replied; to the men- tive power by the local chairman, L. Grey and replied to by G. C. Vince; to the Grand Lodge chief officers by Brother Bishop, grand chief of engineers, to which U. Ottawa.

Mrs. Franklin and Mrs. Allcorn and the devotional with worship as the topic was introduced by Mrs. Franklin.

Mrs. Lawrenson added to the enjoyment of the meeting by singing two songs.

The film "The King's Man", was suitably introduced by Mr. Taylor Franklin. This is a picture which captures the sound and beauty of African Africa. The story is of a little African boy, his education and growth in a Christian Mission.

His work, first as a teacher, and then as a minister to his people, clearly demonstrated to all the role that trained native missionaries are playing in modern Africa. It is to be hoped that many will see this outstanding missionary picture.

Mrs. Houston thanked Mr. Franklin and those in charge of a fine meeting.

Taylor Franklin Introduces Film 'The King's Man'

A goodly number of members and guests of Bridge Street, Missionary Society were present on Thursday evening to view the new film, "The King's Man".

Mrs. Houston, the president, extended a welcome to all. Mrs. George Campbell Literature secretary, spoke of the book "Along African Trails", as a most interesting study and undertook to make copies available to all those interested. Other books were recommended such as "Wide Windows".

The rummage sale which was held on Saturday was successful.

Final arrangements were made for the annual banquet, which will be held on November 5, and the conveners were named.

Father Martin spoke briefly to the members.

Mrs. Alex Therrien offered her home for the next meeting.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by some members. A social hour concluded the evening.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Is Mom Jinxed—Want to Be?

"First dear a girl so after she is pleased in many differ-ways, is a question that occurs very often to me. I have always been especially often these days when boys in general are so touchy, that anything love for a short acquaintance, then suddenly cut off, leaving the fluid confused either to come—sure-ly.

Such is the familiar story of a 19-year-old who put the question at the beginning of this column.

"I was so madly in love with my mother," she says, "but he left town shortly, telling me he never intended to come back. This was the last he came from Florida, from where he wrote me almost every day, sent me lovely gifts and always told me that he cared for me.

"Then he was first home, he was so nice to me of ever, but suddenly he became very nervous and didn't seem to please me very much. He is a moody person, so I tried to be extremely nice, in order to avoid quarrels. I tried to be understanding and make him happy, and to do everything I could to please him, but now he has left me without a word, and I cannot understand why he has done this. I've tried to forget him, but find it difficult because I love him so deeply. I want to be happy, but don't know where to find happiness, or what I can do to forget this boy.

"I've liked no one more thing. He has many letters of mine which are tender and ripped, and I would like to have them back. I write him a short, polite letter asking for them, but he did not send them. Should I try again to get them back, or just forget them?"

In any situation of this kind, there are two things that young girls should do their best to understand:

Boys Do Seriously

The first is, that boys in general should not be taken too seriously when they talk of love to girls they have known only a very short time. Of course it is ever safe, under any circumstances, to be too quick to take things in love seriously, but especially, sure love develops only after a boy and a girl, or a man and a woman, have given themselves sufficient time to know each other thoroughly. But it's specially important not to be carried away in times like these, when young men are having their love turned upside down so constantly that they grasp hastily at any momentary happiness, and it too often mistake temporary pleasure for permanent devotion. So, while it will not help this girl right now, it would like to say to her for future guidance that, a young man is about to go off for service, it is not the time to accept at face value his assurance that he is in love with her. Leave him, except such things with a smile and a grain of salt, and wait for the boys to show his hand before planning for wedding.

And the other thing young girls need to realize is that no boy ever goes "overseas" any more for pleasure, and get the whole thing in proper perspective, so that it does not occupy the centre of the stage in their thoughts any more, and the way to do this is to devote one's conscious effort to trying to forget" but rather to turn that effort toward normal things, putting attention on other things as much as possible, following out the usual round of activities and looking for new interests everywhere.

If for the letter the girl mentioned, I suggest that she drop the matter of their return entirely, perhaps the boy has already destroyed them and doesn't want to all her so, in any case, I also maintains her own dignity, and things the best behind her. It will not make any difference in her affairs one way or the other.

ALLOT DENTURES

WASHINGTON (AP) — The army medical service estimated today that it is saving about $500,000 a year by using a chrome cobalt alloy instead of gold in manufacturing partial dentures and dental replacements. Maj.-Gen. Walter D. Love, chief of the U.S. Army Dental Corps, said the alloy, which looks somewhat like silver, is stronger, more durable, lighter and considerably cheaper than gold.

Special-Purpose Menu

By Mary Moore

Fillet of Sole with Tomato Sauce
Cauliflower
Diced Buttered Turnip
Finger Salad: Cucumber and Celery Sticks, Stuffed Celery
Chunk Pickles
Spiced Applesauce with Honey Banana Bran Muffins
Coffee

DIRECTIONS

Brush fillets of sole with melted butter, sprinkle with salt and paprika and place on strips of parchment paper or foil to fit them. Place under very hot broiler and broil on one side until flecked with brown. Turn over onto fine strips of paper, brush with lemon juice and broil second side until just done. Do not over cook fish. Serve with

ALL-PURPOSE TOMATO SAUCE

Brown gently in 2 tablespoons butter 1 tablespoon each chopped onion, celery and parsley for short five minutes. Add 2 cups canned or fresh peeled tomatoes, 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, 2 teaspoons sugar, shake of pepper, 1-2 teaspoon celery salt, 1 1-2 teaspoons minute tapioca and simmer gently about 30 minutes. This is good served with any fish and makes a nice sauce for poached eggs on toast when served with a vegetable plate.

Make applesauce but sweeten it with honey (not too much) instead of sugar and add 1-4 teaspoon each cinnamon and finely ground nutmeg and tiny shake of cloves. Delicious served warm with

BANANA BRAN MUFFINS

One cup flour, 1-3 teaspoon each salt and baking soda, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 2 tablespoons shortening or margarine, 1-4 cup white sugar, well-beaten egg, 1 cup all-bran, 2 tablespoons milk, 2 cups thinly sliced or chopped ripe bananas. Sift the flour as measure it then sift it with the salt, soda and baking powder. Cream the shortening, add sugar gradually, and cream well. Beat in the egg, then add the bran and milk. Mix this and allow to stand while you slice the bananas. Add bananas quickly and mix in. Quickly stir in the sifted dry ingredients. Bake in greased muffin tins at 375 deg. Fahr. for about 25 minutes. These amounts make 12 muffins.

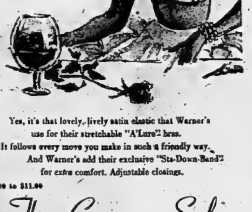
QUESTION;

. . . some day publish a recipe for Pumpernickel Rye Bread with Caraway seeds.—Mrs. Gerald J. C.

ANSWER:

I have sent all other requests by mail. Thanks for your charming letter.

PUMPERNICKEL RYE BREAD WITH CARAWAY



Mix together 1 1-2 cups lukewarm water, 1-2 cup molasses, 1 tablespoon salt, 2 tablespoons caraway seed. Crumble into this 1 cake compressed yeast (or 3 envelopes granular yeast and 3 teaspoons sugar), and stir until yeast is dissolved. Add 3 tablespoons very soft shortening. Mix well with a spoon and then, when stiff, with the hand 2 3-4 cups coarse rye meally flour (or if not available use ordinary rye flour) and 2 1-2 to 3 cups sifted white bread flour. This dough with rye flour will be sticky so add enough while flour to make it handle easily. Knead on floured board for five minutes. Let rise in greased bowl, covered, until doubled in bulk. Knead again and let rise again. (Two risings are necessary with rye flour to get a light and fine texture.) Shape into two round or oval or long pointed loaves. Place on large flat baking sheet strewed with a little cornmeal. Let rise until fully doubled. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 40 minutes. To make crust hard, brush with cold water at 5 minutes intervals, three times, 15 minutes before baking time is up —but work quickly so as not to allow oven temperature to fall.

Tomorrow see menus for Thanksgiving Dinner.

Modern Version

The chesterfield is back and when the public gets it, many little variations from the old format will be apparent. For one there is the drooped shoulder line in contrast to the former padded shoulder. Then, too, the sleeves are apt to have a different look, narrowing at the wrists and then cuffed. This coat has a vented back, is not too full in line, and is rather on the boxy side, but it is still in the chesterfield category. It is made of nubby tweed in a herringbone weave and has a black velvet collar lining for warmth and beauty.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Attention, Bridegrooms! In the receiving-line at your wedding reception, be sure that your bride stands at your right. This is extremely important...all those with wedding know-how will know that this is the correct procedure. The lady-at-the-right-of-the-gentleman . . . that's the idea, the tradition to be followed.

* * *

Difficult Situation for Fiancee's Family: When Fiancee's Family Make an Move to Welcome Fiancee

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter became engaged two weeks ago. We have never met his family—they live several miles from where we live. My problem: does the family of the bride-to-be or the family of the groom-to-be make the first move to entertain? We're delighted with our daughter's fiance: he has an excellent character, he's had two years of college, he's finished his war service, and he now has a fine position. They are most congenial, and of the same religion. But frankly his mother has not accepted this engagement, even though her son has showered gifts on my daughter, a beautiful engagement ring.

We had thought that of course she would invite my daughter to a family dinner she is giving this week, but she didn't. Should I should think this would be an excellent opportunity to introduce her son's fiancee to the members of the immediate family. Or isn't this proper until the parents have met?

Would you suggest that I invite the parents to a Sunday night supper, in lieu of a dinner? (We have seven children living at home. We haven't really fine things for table settings, but we love to entertain simply and informally at home, and we have some mighty good friends! —S.M.

First thing to remember: it is the young man's parents who should make the first social move. This doesn't mean the move to entertain...but it does mean that when their son tells them of his engagement, they (or at least his mother) should get in touch by phone with her mother, to make that sa-very-important "welcoming into the family" call. If the distance is too great for a personal meeting, the parents should either telephone to the girl, or write (in) welcome-into-the-family letter. After this gesture has been made, either family may invite the other. But, since your daughter's fiance's mother hasn't made the important gesture, and since you say to the family dinner, I doubt that it would be a good "timing" for you to invite them to your home just now.

I strongly suggest that you talk over this perplexing situation with this fine and wise young man to whom your daughter is engaged, ask his suggestion as to the best way to bring the two families together, to establish the important relationship that should be established between the two families. Surely he would know his mother's point of view, and how you could most graciously and sensibly meet it.

THE COLLEGE SHOP has become the favorite happy hunting ground for nice clothes at easy price. Housewives, career girls and homebodies are busy girls and home-bodies are busy for their Fall clothes. Nice town or country tweed suits and separates, good woolknits, winter dresses—they like 'em all, as they do the predominating blend tones.

A GOOD BUY for a small wardrobe is a suit of golden brown tweed. It has a slim skirt and a boxy jacket of good length, millium lined, which could double smartly as a topper.

RIFE AVOCADO is about the best description of a beautiful shade of yellowish green that has been turning up in collection pieces and shows. This tone is used for both the sheer wool dress and the poodle cloth jacket of a new ensemble. The jacket has a rounded, cutaway front and just the hint of a neckline. The dress has a V neckline into which a leopard ascot is tucked, and a peg-top skirt.

TOGETHER with tweeds again is the fine skirt length—big, roomy, very polished—many of the newest with shell frames or tonsures. Deep color is a favorite shade, as is caramel and oyster gray.

Housecleaning

(By Anne Allan, Hydro Home Economist)

Have you wiped off those splashes and sticky spots that happened during the canning days? There seems to be spatters and spills, and indistinct, dirty film that cooking food may bring. Although should spread to cleaning-up as soon as a smudge occurs there isn't a moment to spare at the time. Now comes the reckoning.

To Clean the Range

1. Soak the drip pan, removable inset bowls, and oven shelves in the laundry tub filled with hot, sudsy water for two hours, then wash off. Use steel wool on stubborn places.

2. Wash the porcelain and chrome parts of the range with a cloth wrung out in warm sudsy water. Be sure to rinse with a cloth wrung out of clear water and then dry.

3. Use a wooden skewer to clean around solid elements or crevices.

4. An oven cleaner may be necessary to apply on the sides and top of the bake. Use a cheap new paint brush with care for this job and let the cleaner paste remain until dry. Remove with a soap-absorbtive pad, then rinse and dry.

To Clean the Electric Refrigerator

1. Defrost completely.

2. Sort out the leftovers and perishables.

3. Wipe off all containers.

4. Remove shelves and drawers and wash every part of the interior as well as the shelves with a new piece of cheesecloth dipped in baking soda water, (1 tablespoon baking soda to 1 pint cool water.)

5. Dry out the refrigerator with a clean cloth—never use dish cloth or towels as they may have greasy odors.

6. Wash, then rinse off the exterior.

7. Wiggle out the refrigerator from the wall so that you can use the vacuum cleaner dusting attachment to clean the dirt which collects on the condenser unit.

8. A good automobile wax applied to the exterior part of the refrigerator makes cleaning it next time an easier task.

9. Replace all perishable items in covered containers, except eggs and citrus fruits. Be sure the milk cartons or pitchers are covered with foil or plastic covers.

10. To store processed cheese, place it in a bowl with 2 cubes of sugar alongside it, then cover with an elastic type cap.

11. An opened jar of olives may be kept free of mould by pouring a little salad oil into the container.

12. Late cucumbers or cobe-of-corn will keep moist and fresh if wrapped in aluminum foil.

13. Do not fill the ice cube trays more than three parts full of water and perhaps one tray will do at this season of the year.

14. Leave a piece of charcoal or a lump of sodium soda in a tumbler on the refrigerator shelf if there is ever an unpleasant odor develop due to neglect of sortive out foods. (Never place jewelle water in the refrigerator).

15. Always leave a space around rectangular dishes in the cabinet, whereas boxes or frozen foods should be stacked close to the wall of the frozen food compartment. By the way, use 6 or 8 pages of newspaper to wrap each box of frozen food and stack them in a pail before defrosting.

To Clean the Sink

Use a brush in hot sudsy water to clean sinks and faucets. Go around the drain and taps with a wooden skewer. If stained use bon amil or kerosene. (Avoid any harsh abrasive cleaner that which will dull the finish.) Rinse and polish dry.

To Clean Walls

1. Kitchen walls are usually washable and there are doughtype, cleaners that pick up dirt, paste cleaners that absorb grease and pastic products that coat and underfast paper to make it easier to keep clean in the future.

2. For woodwork there are liquid cleaners to wipe off stains, powdered cleaners or synthetic detergents that dissolve in warm water for washing paint or varnish.

3. Rinse and dry all woodwork before you add a liquid wax for easier cleaning in the future. By the way, there is also a cream wax that cleans at the same time it polishes. All you need is plenty of elbow grease to go with the job.

Note: Always dust wall and woodwork first with the vacuum cleaner attachment for this purpose, or a soft cloth cover on the mop. Then wash with a brush from. Test your cleaning method first in an inconspicuous place. Clean small areas at a time, over-lapping your strokes to prevent streaks. Rinse after is easily done with a sponge squeezed out in clear water.

Under-Eye QUESTION BOX

Mrs. C. F. asks: How may unpleasant effects be removed from eyes and skin?

Answer: Wash cuts and cares in hot water to which a harmless one that will give water Faces been added. Soak if dusty day.

Under-Eye Circles

Circles under the eyes do not necessarily mean eye strain or ill health, but may be caused by a difference in the pigment or insufficient fatty covering in those areas. Pouches under the eyes may be a horrid inheritance from some ancestor who had them or may signify some physical disturbance. Whatever the reason, there's a new cosmetic on the market that will help to camouflage dark circles and pouches. It's a white cream. Dampen your finger, smooth on the cream, blend it in. Presto! Those dark rings disappear like magic.

Don't abuse your eyes. They are the only ones you have. Never rub them. Never touch them with a gloved hand. Gloves can carry germs that cause infection. If your eyes have a marked aversion to light, or if the type blurs when you read, you are ready for specs. Do not hesitate to get them. Eye strain will bring many tracks and who wants them?

When reading, you should hold the book about 11 inches from the end of your nose. If you have to bring it closer, it is another sign that you need specs.

Inflamed Eyelids

If there is any sign of pus, if the eyelids are inflamed, do not resort to home treatment. See a medical man who specializes in treatment of the eyes.

Much responsibility rests in the hands of mothers who should be on the alert to detect the first signs of eye trouble in their children. If the school nurse reports that an examination is not satisfactory, see that the child has professional care immediately.

You can camouflage those dark under-eye circles by smoothing on a new white cream. Blend it in and work magic.

By HELEN FOLLETT

CAN you believe your eyes? Probably not after a sleepless night. Sparkle has gone, lids are heavy. The beauty of your soul orbs depends upon vitality, health and animation. So, like a wise woman you should like a well-organized life, endeavor to take good care of yourself. Nobody else is likely to do it.

Keep at hand an eye lotion. Your druggist will recommend a harmless one that will prove refreshing, especially after a dusty day.

WEST HUNTINGDON W.M.S.—W.A.

The W.M.S. and W.A. of West Huntingdon United Church met at the home of Mrs Frank Hammond with a fine representation of members present. The president, Mrs. W. Grant, presided.

Business and announcements included the rally day for the East Belleville Presbyterial to be held at Holloway United Church, Holloway, Ontario, on Thursday, October 30, at 2:30 a.m. and continuing all day. There will be a luncheon at the noor hour.

The speaker, Mrs. Ford, introduced the new study book, "Along African Trails", which told in a most interesting manner about the country and its people.

Mrs. Grant tendered appreciative thanks to the hostess for her hospitality. A social time followed the close of the meeting.

ST. MARGARET'S GUILD

The regular meeting of St. Margaret's Guilla was held in St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill Church on Monday evening with Mrs. Arthur Watson, president, in the chair.

Rev. L. A. Page made an appeal to the Guild to underwrite the cost (or a portion thereof) of 30 kindergarten chairs for the junior Sunday School.

Last minute arrangements were made for the serving of tea after the confirmation service next Sunday afternoon.

Plans and talk then swung inevitably to next week's tea and sale with all the members having an opportunity to make final plans for their own particular departments.

Mrs. F. E. Moore moved a vote of appreciation to Rev. and Mrs. L. A. Page for a year of faithful service which was seconded by all.

Mr. Page and the Guild members then enjoyed coffee and sandwiches served by the hostesses for the evening, Mrs. D. D. B. Allan and Mrs. F. H. Clarke.

SOME OF THE WAYS IN WHICH YOUR AUTOMOBILE MIGHT BE DAMAGED

FIRE—Short circuits and defective wiring cause thousands of damaging fires each year.

TRANSPORTATION — An accident in which the carrier by rail or boat is involved is likely to damage your car too.

WINDSTORM—Falling trees and other debris can easily reduce a car to junk.

THEFT—Thieves often damage car in unsuccessful attempts to steal them or abandon them later, badly smashed.

COLLISION OR UPSET—Are you sure that you won't be involved in one of the automobile accidents that occur every year?

GLASS BREAKAGE—Thrown objects, stones flying from the wheels of other tires, thieves and vandals smash windows and windshields.

HAIL—Sometimes shatters glass, rips through fabric tops, and even mars bodies on cars.

FALLING AIRCRAFT—This is becoming a greater hazard every day, especially if you are near an airport.

EXPLOSION—Any explosion wrecking property might demolish your car if nearby.

FLOOD—In some localities, floods can cause tremendous property damage.

EARTHQUAKE—Hardly a common risk, but you insure against damage it might cause.

RIOT—Mob violence seldom respects the property of even the innocent bystander.

IT'S NATURAL that the many rough-textured fabrics should call for smooth contrasts, such as are found in calfskin bags and shoes and gloves. A beige capeskin shortie is nicely smartened by a braided border in deeper beige calf, while another glove has a bit colour that motif underlaid with a contrasting color.

EARLY SALES in millinery departments and shops indicate much interest in the elaborately jewel-trimmed small hat for late afternoon wear. Looks like the choice to wear with new afternoon frocks. Black velvet is used for a crescent cap cut to show much hair pin front and at the sides. It is heavily embroidered around the edge with pearls, crystals and rhinestones, and is completed by a short, filmy veil.

Thanksgiving Dinner

Thanksgiving is a time when friends and families traditionally meet in honor of the gifts of the harvest season—and there is nothing quite like a dinner bulging with golden grain and the stockpiles of gaily colored fruits and vegetables. It is a time of fun and feasting highlighted by that never-to-be-forgotten dinner.

First, a prelude with hot spiced apple juice to whet the appetite. Then there is the star of the performance, the turkey or chicken, majestic and bronzed to perfection, gamily stuffed with aromatic dressing and garnished with molds of cranberry jelly. Supporting roles are ably played by autumn's tantalizing vegetables. There is a wide selection to choose from—buttered broccoli, onions stuffed with peas, mashed potatoes, baked squash, and of course, fluffy mashed potatoes are an essential. The grand finale can be traditional with spicy, fragrant pumpkin pie, or for those who had too many helpings of chicken or turkey, a lighter dessert like fresh fruit salad may be preferred.

Deserts for Thanksgiving

Did you know that the first pumpkin pies weren't really pies at all? Early North American colonists made them by slicing off the top of a pumpkin, then they scooped out the seeds and filled it with milk and spices and then sweetened the mixture. The pumpkin was then baked in hot ashes in a brick oven and the filling was eaten from the shell with a spoon.

The home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture point out that pumpkin pie is not the only Thanksgiving dessert that can be served—in fact, quite often a lighter one, like Grape Velvet is preferred. To make it, fill six cups of slightly crushed grapes gently for nine minutes, then rub through a sieve. Add one-half cup of sugar and one-quarter teaspoon salt, to the grape pulp and reheat, stirring constantly, until the sugar is dissolved. Soak three tablespoons gelatine in two-thirds cup cold water for five minutes. Add this to the grape mixture and stir until dissolved. Half fill lightly greased molds with half of the grape mixture; to the other half add two beaten egg whites, or 2 tbsp. of cream if preferred, add one and a quarter cups of whipping cream, whipped. When the two portions have started to set, pour the second half containing the egg whites or whipped cream over the first to make an attractive two-tone dessert. Chill until firm and serve with a custard sauce.

Thanksgiving Bird

When it comes to the Thanksgiving bird, here are some suggestions for preparing it. When preparing the chicken or turkey, first clean the bird thoroughly and wipe with a clean cloth and wash in running water. Do not allow it to soak in water. If the bird is frozen, thaw completely before cooking. Rub the inside of the bird with salt, then fill loosely with a favorite dressing. Do not pack it too tightly season-ed. Allow one and one-quarter cups of dressing per pound (uncooked weight) of meat, remembering that one slightly stale loaf of bread makes one cup and one-half pounds will make about six cups of medium dry crumbs. Close the openings and truss, then place the bird breast down on a rack or crossed skewers in an uncovered pan. It is not necessary to add water or fat, but a piece of cheesecloth dipped in melted fat may be placed on top of the bird during roasting, or the bird may be roasted in parchment or brown paper.

Roast chicken in a 325 deg. F. oven, allowing two to two and one-half hours for a three to four pound eviscerated bird and three to four hours for a four and one-half to six and one-half pound bird. Turkey should be roasted at a slightly lower temperature of 300 deg. F., allowing about 20 to 25 minutes per pound.

To test for doneness, run a metal skewer or a long fork into the thick part of the breast or thigh. When it is done, the meat is tender and the juice does not show a reddish tinge. If a meat thermometer is used, it should read 190 deg. F.

The beige tones are very good this season and go beautifully with dark brown or black accessories. Sheer wool in beige is used for this beautifully handled dress, a good choice for general daytime activities of the more social kind, such as a luncheon or tea. Collarless, it has a surplice crossed bodice, draped gently to the side seams. The midriff is smooth above the black suede belt which is pointed in front and moulded to the back. Tucks radiate from the waist to mould the hips, and the flare-pleated skirt is moderately flared.

Form Bloc to Defeat Bevan Rebels

Arthur Deakin, general secretary of the Transport Workers' Union of Great Britain, largest union in the country, is shown making the speech which caused an uproar in the British Labor party conference. He told the conference at Morecombe, England, that the Bevanites were "guilty of using subterfuge" and "guilty of creating mistrust" that would destroy the confidence of the electorate in the party. Deakin said thousands of trade unionists believe there is "a struggle for leadership" being waged by the Bevanites, and that an organization will be set up to counteract it. The leftist bloc of Aneurin Bevan recently won two additional seats on the party's national executive committee. — Central Press Canadian.

Candidates Changing Tunes As Both Bow to Pressures, Compromises in Policies

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP). — Both the Republican and Democratic parties have pressed some of the individuality out of the views of their respective candidates under the pressure of campaigning for the United States election.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower appears to have taken on more of the Republican party's traditional concepts that he had previously disdained. Governor Adlai E. Stevenson has added somewhat less of the party-line Democratic outlook.

But both men have made it clear that the race for the Presidency is more between two parties than two individuals. The desire for party unity and voting organization has dictated compromises with the individual's beliefs.

Eisenhower Changes Attack

Eisenhower started the campaign saying that peace is the great issue of the election. Later it was the "mess in Washington." He was Supreme Chief of Allied Powers. U.S. troops were withdrawn from Korea and he was head of the North Atlantic Treaty armies under the Democratic administration; now he lambastes the administration foreign policy as "bungling" close to a third world war. Before the Republican national convention he indicated he was opposed to the so-called right wing of the Republican party; now he welcomes the opportunity to gain their support.

Last week Eisenhower endorsed Senator Joseph McCarthy, running for re-election in Wisconsin. Previously Eisenhower indicated distaste for the methods McCarthy used in pressing his charges that the Democratic administration is riddled with Communists.

McCarthy had attacked Gen. George Marshall, former State Secretary, as a "traitor." Marshall and Eisenhower had been close friends.

Stevenson started the campaign saying he believed the Taft-Hartley labor law, which labor considers restrictive, should be amended; now he says it should be repealed. He has fallen in line with the Democratic party's views on federal legislation on civil liberties and federal control of tidelands oil, instead of state control.

Supports Party Policies

Stevenson had the edge in freedom, from party entanglements when he was drafted at the Democratic convention in Chicago. The draft gave him the right to say he owed nothing to any one in the party. Since then his rift with President Truman has been halted although three Democratic state governors in the southern states have decided to back Eisenhower — largely on the issues of civil rights and tidelands oil.

Eisenhower's so-called "liberal" section of the Republican party won him a majority in the national convention but since then there has been a steady shift to bring full support behind him of his former opponents in the party. The climax was the meeting of Eisenhower and Senator Robert Taft of Ohio, whom Eisenhower beat for the nomination.

Stevenson says Eisenhower surrendered to Taft in allowing Taft to follow the meeting with a statement calling on his former supporters to work wholeheartedly for Eisenhower, indicating that the two men now are as one on major policy.

Earlier, the Republicans made much of a Stevenson-Truman meeting, saying it showed Stevenson as a captive of the President.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma and pop were getting dressed for a party, and ma said, I'd love to wear my silver ear rings, William. They just seem to go with my temperment, and they match this gown perfectly, she said.

Then by all means wear them instead of changing your temperment and your gown, pop said, and ma said, The problem is, the catch on one of them is loose, and it's libel to fall off without a moment's notice. I cant be tightened, she said.

Old rubber bands have the same drawback, pop said, and ma said, Even if I only lost that one, the result would be disasterous. One ear ring is practically more useless than none, she said.

To a woman with 2 ears, that's true, pop said, and ma said, But still, William, it's a crime against bewty to hoard lovely things so they're no use to you or to anyone else. After all, you can't take them with you, she said.

By gollies that's a fact, pop said. I heard of a woman who kept her 250 piece set of Royal Crown Ducal ware under lock and key for 50 years for fear a single olece mite get chipped, and she left it to herself in her will and had it buried with her, but her grandchildren went to law and broke the will, so she lost out after all, he said, and ma said, Well then all rite, William, I'll take your advice and wear my silver ear rings, but don't forget, if I lose one the responsibility will be absolutely and entirely yours.

You win, my dear, it's still a woman's world, pop said.

Grape Festival Makes Its Debut in Canada

The grape festival at St. Catharines, Ont., first of its kind in Canada, lived up to its advance publicity by having a parade of festival floats, dances and singing by various European national groups, and, of course, a beauty contest. On this float which had a pair of live Indian maidens paddling a cardboard-canoe through waves under a bower of oversize grapes — was Jeannette Lastowka, later chosen queen of the festival. — Central Press Canadian.

New Magic Box Can Mean TV For All

(From Financial Post).

Canadians may soon get the chance to watch TV without having to live near a TV transmitting station.

And for this variety of TV you won't even need an aerial—just a line to the nearest telephone pole. But you will need a television-set, a "magic box" and some loose change in your pocket.

Last month, Telemeter, something new in the mushrooming television field, was purchased for Canadian distribution by Famous Players Canadian Corp. Through Telemeter, the company hopes to bring the latest movies, sports events, Broadway shows, and operas to thousands of Canadian homes.

The pictures will be transmitted by wire, not through the ether, though conventional TV receiving sets will be used.

It's "pay-as-you-see" TV system that works on the same principle as a pay-phone. The whole family can view a first-run movie, for example, for the price of one ticket dropped into the Telemeter box, an attachment that can be connected to any existing TV set. Each set is then wired to a "community antenna" on the outskirts of town, and also to a special studio where films can be televised. If the area is very remote, out of reach of any TV programs, sets will only carry the filmed programs.

Key to the new system is a coin-in-the-slot arrangement that clears the "scrambled" picture sent out over the Telemeter channel. After you've deposited the right amount of money, you just relax and enjoy the full-length show without the interruptions of commercials.

About 15 minutes before the show starts, a verbal announcement tells you what will be playing. If you don't want to see it, you just don't pay. If you put money in the box and then change your mind, you get that much credit for the next night's performance. The price of shows will range from five cents to $2.

Money from the Telemeter box is collected once a month in a rapid, three-minute operation. And here's where plans are way ahead of realities. Machines that will count and separate coins are already being developed, and even the lateness of trucks that will do the collecting have been designed.

Could Be "Wireless"

Telemeter actually needs no transmission lines; it only needs its own channel or temporary use of an existing channel on a rental basis. For Canadian consumption, however, lines will have to be used, as no private TV stations are being licensed.

"Community antennae" to relay CBC and other programs could be constructed almost anywhere. Thus, the system could act as an extension of the CBC, without involving the government system in any expenditures.

But Famous Players President, J. J. Fitzgibbons points out that "if CBC-TV won't give us permission to use their programs, we can originate enough of our own in fact television couldn't afford to produce our kind of program." The Magic Box.

The solution to all the electronics problems involved in making Telemeter possible are enclosed in a 4x6x8 inch plastic box which can be attached to any TV set in a few minutes.

The box contains a mechanism which unscrambles the picture; a device which sets that mechanism working as soon as the correct amount of coins has been deposited; and a moving electronic tape to record how much money was paid, and for which particular show.

First place to get Telemeter will be London, Ont. Already many miles of cable have been laid and an antenna has been put up on a local golf course. It's being sponsored by a group of local businessmen, headed by Harry Anderson, an electronics engineer.

Other cities will get the system, but arrangements have not been completed anywhere else, the company officials won't say who's next.

At the moment Telemeter is not operating anywhere in the U.S., because the Federal Communications Commission has not given its approval yet. This writer an experimental station will begin operating in Palm Springs, Cal., to gather data for the FCC hearings.

What It Will Cost

How much will the Canadian TV set owner pay for Telemeter?

The attachment will be leased, not sold, but at what rates has not yet been decided. A monthly fee, also not yet determined, will be charged for use of the "community antenna," wherever applicable.

When the operation is launched on a nation-wide scale, which is year from now, Telemeter bosses hope to become part of regular TV sets. Already seven major U. S. manufacturers have expressed interest in incorporating the gadget into their units. Canadian TV manufacturers would likely follow suit.

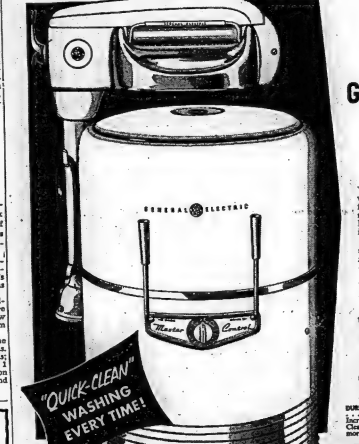
In Montreal, Rediffusion Inc. (The Financial Post, Apr. 12, 1952), has been distributing TV on an experimental basis for about a year. Main differences between the two systems are that Rediffusion collects a flat weekly fee, rather than the "pay-as-you-view" twist, and that in the Montreal system, the customer does not own his television set, but has to pay a $100 installation fee to rent a unit.

To handle the new sideline, Famous Players Canadian has formed two new subsidiaries: Trans Canada Telemeter Ltd., the other still unnamed. No decision has yet been reached on whether one company will make its own equipment or job out the necessary contracts.

Officers and directors of the new subsidiary will be the same as those of Famous Players. Jean A. Poulit is chief engineer of the project.

Paramount Pictures Corp., which controls the Canadian theatre chain recently acquired 50 per cent of International Telemeter Corp., Los Angeles, the home company, for a reported $350,000. It's now privately financed, but if and when FCC approves a national system, public financing is expected to become necessary.

Clock Stumps Landlubbers To Tell Time



WELLFLEET, Mass. (AP) — When the bell in the town clock strikes eight, the residents of this Cape Cod town know it's noon, four o'clock, eight or midnight.

The ship's bell idea was approved by the annual town meeting as in keeping with the town's sea-going flavor. The bell was adjusted during the last week.

So far, the only person mystified by the new bell system are visiting landlubbers who know nothing about the salty system of time keeping.

Now, each bell, bells divide the day into four-hour segments. Twelve o'clock is eight bells. 12:30 is marked by one bell; 1 o'clock by two bells and so on until eight bells at 4 o'clock and again at eight o'clock.

Missing B-29 Believed to Have Encountered Plane From Direction of Red-Held Islands

TOKYO (AP)—A B-29 Superfortress disappeared yester d a y shortly after reporting an unidentified plane approaching it from the direction of the Russian-held Kuriles, the U. S. Far East Air Forces said today.

The air force said the radio traces of the two planes merged.

It did not say the unidentified plane was Russian or that the Superfort was attacked.

A spokesman said there were no other U. S. planes in the area at the time.

Search Planes Guarded

The F. E. A. F. reported armed P-84 Thunderjet fighters are guarding planes searching for the missing B-29. The plane disappeared off eastern Hokkaido, Japan's northernmost island which is separated by a narrow strait from the Kuriles.

The spokesman said a voice distress call in English, presumably from the bomber, was heard and then a crew member shouted:

"Let's get the hell out of there."

The newspaper Asahi said Japanese fishermen reported a vessel belching black smoke, crashed into the sea near Nemuro, northeast Hokkaido, and sank there yesterday. They said the plane hit in international territory.

The spokesman refused comment on that.

On Routine Flight

The air force said the Japan based B-29 was on a routine flight at 15,000 feet when it came under cursatory U. S. radar observation. The radar plot showed it was heading for the air force added:

"A second but unidentified sighting was plotted at about 3:15 p.m. on a westerly heading about seven miles inside Japanese territorial waters.

"The tracks of the unidentified aircraft and radars were followed until they merged on the radar scope about eight miles northwest of Nemuro, which point is in Japanese territory about 15 miles from the international border.

"The merged radar tracks, still over Japanese territory, continued southeast for a few moments and then disappeared from the radar scope. Shortly thereafter, a single unidentified 'May Day' call (voice) on the area band was picked up from the Superfort. Then there was no more.

The spokesman said it is possible for two planes in the same general area to merge on a radar scope if the yare close together. He said it is possible for a plane to go below the range of the radar line of sight. He could account for the disappearance of the unidentified plane.

Royal Family Has Contributed Pounds to Fund

LONDON (Reuters)—The Royal Family has contributed a total of £2,900 to the fund for a memorial to K..g George VI, Lord Mayor Sir Leslie Boyce, in charge of the fund, announced last night.

The Queen, Queen Mother Elizabeth and Queen Mary, each contributed £1,000.

The Duke of Edinburgh and the D of Gloucester each gave £250 and Princess Mar, ry gave £100.

The subscription yesterday passed the £100,000 mark and kept going strong.

Most of the amount has come in big lumps from industrial concerns, "ut thousands of individual Britons flooded the Lord Mayor's offices with their private gifts, ranging from shillings upward, with messages to King George, who died last February, will take his place in the City Temple and a charity plan to benefit both young and old.

A fund spokesman said no collection centres will be opened outside the metropolitan area, but contributions addressed to the Lord Mayor of London will be welcomed.

In Ottawa a spokesman for the Secretary of State department said the fund is regarded here as a United Kingdom fund.

Dread Mau Mau Society Kills Chief of Tribe

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters) — Members of the dread Mau Mau society yesterday killed Senior Chief Waruhiu of the 1,000,000-strong Kikuyu tribe in a daylight attack outside a church miss sion seven miles from Nairobi.

The gunmen fled in a waiting car. The secret society, whose members are drawn from fanatics among the Kikuyu tribe, has vowed to drive the white men from this British colony.

The 53-year-old chief had denounced Mau Mau terrorists at a mass meeting of his tribe near Nyhoki a few weeks ago. Decorated by the late King George VI last year for his services to the colony, Waruhiu has served the Kenya government for more than 30 years.

Some sources here believe the chief was murdered as a challenge to the new colonial governor, Sir Evelyn Baring, who is on a three-day tour of Mau Mau areas north of here.

Lewis Thunders Disapproval Of Senator Taft

CINCINNATI (AP)—John L. Lewis thundered disapproval of Senator Robert Taft yesterday and said he couldn't see how anyone could vote for a man "whom Taft lead around by the collar."

The 3,000 delegates attending the ning session of the 61st union convention of the United Mine Workers took this as an expression from the veteran union leader against Democrat Adlai Stevenson, the Republican presidential nominee whom Taft is supporting.

Lewis failed to mention Stevenson by name, however, and did not express a preference between the General and Governor Adlai Stevenson of Illinois, the Democratic nominee.

Lewis may follow the A.F.L. and C.I.O. in coming out fully for Stevenson before the end of the 10-day m i n e r s convention, the union's first conclave in four years.

South Koreans Criticize Ike On Statement

PUSAN, Korea (AP)—Two prominent members of South Korea's National Assembly yesterday criticized Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for saying the Korean battle line "should be manned primarily by South Koreans."

Vice- r m a n — on Chi Yong demanded the recall of South Korea's ador at the United Nations, H. Lee, saying that Ambassador Limb made a speech welcoming the Republican presidential candidate's policy on Korea.

Yoon in a statement said American policy "should not be responsible for the Korean War." He said U. S. troops should remain until the Korean Army is strong enough to repulse any aggression.

Chairman Kim Chul Hol of the Assembly's defence committee in another statement said U. S. troops should remain until the Communists have been defeated.

Eisenh..er's speech last Thursday said that Korea was pulling US troops from Korea. He proposed tr the South Koreans so they could feed lines, with other United Nations troops re- reserves.

Drew Calls for Effort to Make Pound, Dollar Interchangeable

LONDON (CP) — George Drew, leader of the Opposition in the Canadian House of Commons, called last night for a Canadian effort to make the dollar and the pound sterling interchangeable, at least within the Commonwealth.

Drew said he offers "no precise formula" for the interchangeability but should be contributed. But he urgently appealed for an Anglo-Canadian solution to what he called the "dollar-pound roadblock".

In an address at a dinner organized by the Empire Industries Association, the Progressive Conservative leader said:

"Until we walk in an exact balance on buying and selling before foreign exchange, we are enslaved. What we need above everything else is to find some way in which our producers can come here and sell what you want to buy, and you can continue to increase your trade for your own profit in Canada."

Drew proposed hope that when the Commonwealth Prime Ministers meet in London next month to discuss commonwealth trade, "there will be a determined and successful effort to make the dollar and pound interchangeable, at least within the Commonwealth."

Drew also spoke of the "rejection" of development in Canada by British firms in favor of a bigger part.

Drew launched with Prime Minister Churchill at 10 Downing Street. He returns to Canada by air today.

LONDON (CP)—A suggestion that Canada's Governor-General Vincent Massey, or Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent be invested with one of the great ceremonial offices in the coronation of the Queen next year, is made by Senator W. Rupert Davies, of Toronto and Kingston, Ont., in a letter published today by The Times.

President of the Kingston Whig-Standard and high sheriff last year for his native county of Monmouthshire, the senator offers the idea in support of proposals in the United Kingdom press that overseas Commonwealth authorities be given a more active part in the Queen's coronation.

To make this possible, "The Round Table," a periodical devoted to imperial affairs, drew out the drastic suggestion that accompanies be made for the dominions and colonies at the abbey ceremony by limiting the peerage to a representative dele gation. As compensation the journal thought an older function of the lay lords, suspended since 1831, should be revived.

Too few residents of Great Britain, the senator letter says, are aware of the fact that the dominions are completely autonomous or that George Elizabeth is as much the Queen of Canada, Australia, and the other member nations of the Commonwealth overseas, as she is of the United Kingdom.

"Anything that can be done to tighten the bonds of the Commonwealth at this time should be done," the senator writes, "even at the inconvenience of some of the British high officials and peers of the realm, many of whom seldom grace the House of Lords when there is work' to be done.

"It would be a fine recognition of the importance of Canada, for instance, if Governor-General Vincent Massey, Mr. Vincent Massey, or our distinguished and scholarly Prime Minister, Mr. Louis St. Laurent, could be given one of the great ceremonial offices at the coronation. I am sure it would warm the hearts of the Canadian people."

Senator Davies and his wife, who have been spending the summer at their country estate in Muskoka in northern Wales, sailed for Canada aboard the Empress of Scotland.

Cattle Rustling Spreading In Simcoe County

BARRIE (CP) — Cattle rustling has spread to Simcoe county, Provincial Police Inspector Leonard Neill of Toronto said yesterday. He said the cases have been reported "epidemic proportions."

Most of the cases involve beef cattle from a number of farms in the southern part of the county, he said. Police have difficulty tracing animals because of delay by farmers in reporting cattle stolen. "Don't mind false alarms if there has the slightest reason to believe an animal may have been stolen. Be sound report to the O. P. P. at once."

"Two men from the area could have supplied a truck load of stolen cattle and with the wild market conditions prevailing, could have sold 12 head of allegedly stolen cattle very loaded on a truck belonging to Glenn Saunders, 25, of Shelburne,when the vehicle bogged down Saunders at first reported the truck stolen but later pleaded guilty to attempted cattle theft and public mischief. Joseph McDermott, 28, of Beeton, was the other man charged in connection with the incident.

Reports of rustling have come from the Kitchener area and elsewhere in the province during the past summer.

Plowing by Mayors Is Feature As International Match Opens

By KEN KELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CARP, Ont. (CP)—The big money goes on the line today at the International Plowing Match here.

Plowmen from Canada and the United States are out for more than $2,500 in prize money in first-day competition at the international match. They also have the added incentive of a possible crack at the $1,000 Massey-Harris trophy for two-furrow tractor plows.

The championship matches, one for tractor and the other for horse, get under up Friday.

Maritime plowmen, including the Prince Edward Island champion, are making their first appearance in the entry list. Glen Morrissey, the P.E.I. title-holder from Cherry Hill, entered late yesterday and another Island plowman, Harry Long, of Moore of Charlottetown.

Main attraction for the sightseeing public is the Mayors' Class open to mayors of Ontario municipalities. The class is an outgrowth of a challenge issued by Mayor Lancelot Watkins of Ottawa to Mayor Allan Lampert of Toronto. The entry list swelled to nine when Mayors Hamilton and Lampton and Lampert. Each competitor will plough a furrow and a half in a field near where Premier Leslie Frost of Ontario officially opens the match.

Mayor Lampert is perhaps the most experienced of the nine entrants. A practice round yesterday showed he has the knack of making big tractors used in these matches.

"One-Horse Job"

"I'll take a moment underestimate the competition," he said. "But I plowed a field last week a one-horse job so I'm not a complete greenhorn."

"I can't do any worse than second to Mayor Whitton."

Miss Whitton, an experienced plowhand, is one of three women entered. The others are Mayor Bernadette Smith of Woodstock and Mrs. H. McKenzie, reeve of Beaverton.

The balance of the class is made up of Mayor Jack Dunbar of Stratford, E.C. Sargent of Owen Sound, Mayor Hamilton of Ottawa suburb of Eastview, J.T. Moran of Pembroke and Bill Emery of Parkhill in Western Ontario.

Nursing Sister from Trenton In Para-Rescue Team Featured By U.S. Magazine, Televison

By HARY J. WITTENBERG
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP) — A pair of attractive R. C. A. F. nurses have just got themselves a spread in a U.S. national magazine and showed American television audiences how they carry out para-rescue work, but they got an even bigger kick out of shopping and sightseeing in New York.

FO. Marion MacDonald of Vancouver and FO. Isabelle Thomson of North Bay, Ont., headed home to duty today after a two-day visit here. ies Thomson is stationed at Trenton.

The nursing sisters were invited to New York by Look Magazine and the NBC in connection with a five-page picture story in the magazine's current issue on their para-rescue work in out-of-the-way areas of Canada.

Guests on TV

They were the guests yesterday of Dave Garroway on the television show "Today." A film was shown of the girls in action during a skyhook-type rescue near Jasper, Alta. Miss McDonald was shown in the action of the film which showed the two nurses jumping from a plane, falling into the tall trees with their cumbersome gear and making their way through the trees to their patients.

The girls were shown riding with an accident victim on a stretcher, across a deep, wide canyon with only a nylon rope and a pulley and pulley for support.

But they were more inclined to talk about their New York visit.

"Oh, we've had a wonderful time shopping and visiting some of the night clubs," Miss MacDonald said.

"We've been terrified," Marion told Garroway when he referred to the Dominion as the wild north. "You have to go pretty far north to get away from shops and towns."

Miss Thomson made a jump last June 22 in a vain attempt to find eight airmen after a mid-air collision near Edgerton, Que. The men were found dead.

Ready for Anything

"We can't always be successful," Miss Thomson said, "but if we can reach them while they are still alive, we are prepared for anything."

The Volunteer Rescue Corps—there are only seven nurses, five doctors and 53 non-commissioned airmen—have trained for the qualified medical personnel as well as in bush lore and the art of combatting jungle, arctic and desert rot at least 19 jumps to qualify.

Miss MacDonald is instructing para-rescue and first aid technique at the R.C.A.F. Survival school in Edmonton.

Communist East Germany Shows Sample of Might

BERLIN (AP)—Communist East Germany showed a sample of its potential armed might yesterday for a beaming Russian Soviet president Nikolai M. Shvernik.

In cold, drizzly weather, 250,000 men, women and youngsters, marched past Shvernik with fists clenched in the air and shouting Communist slogans.

Scattered through the legions, were units of the new Soviet zone armed forces, included an air arm.

The occasion was the third anniversary of the Communists regime, known as the German Democratic Republic, which rules the 18,000,000 Germans living in the area from the Elbe to the Oder.

Shvernik is the highest ranking Russian to visit Berlin since Prime Minister Stalin came to see the Potsdam pact in 1945.

The German Reds used the parade to display for the first time how Russianized their new armed forces have grown.

The people's army, expected to reach 125,000 by next year, was represented by a 4,000-man regiment with tanks. There was nothing German about them.

The sea police followed the regiment. Some 1,000 strong, stepping men and then came the first showing of the big-spending luftwaffe. Five hundred air police, wearing blue lapel tabs with gold broidered wings, stepped off their paces and brought a big cheer, Observers here believe that the new is airborne is still a Communist secret.

British M.P. Criticizes U.S. Tariffs

DANVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The United States tariff policy is "about as difficult as humanly possible" for Britain to sell its goods to American markets, a member of the British Parliament said here yesterday.

"High tariff and prohibitive customs have restricted British exports to the United States that sales of British goods in the States amount to only one-tenth of one per cent of sales of American manufacturers," said Edwin H.D. Leather, a member of Commons, who is touring the U.S. on a lecture tour.

British exports here are "very little more than those to New Zealand which has a population 75 times smaller," he added.

Born in Port Colborne in 1877, he attended St. Michael's College in Montreal, and was ordained in the priesthood in 1902. His first appointment was as curate at St. Michael's Cathedral in Toronto and then he became chaplain at St. Michael's Hospital. He was appointed to St. Monica's in 1921.

CAIRO (Reuters) — The head of former King Farouk's "Iron Guard," Gen. Hussein Sirry Amer, will soon face trial by a high military tribunal, it was announced last night. The charges against Amer and 10 others are undisclosed. The army has accused the Iron Guard of being responsible for several political assassinations.

GREATEST

Farnell said the battered remnants of a Red battalion are dug in on the slopes. Gaullic Koreans just off the peak on the eastern side. The crestline itself is a rubbish mass of log-and-dirt bunkers.

Big guns on both sides pounded the crest ceaselessly.

Battle Continues

The hard-fighting South Koreans hit back from the ridgeline shortly after noon. Chinese reached the top and were driven off by artillery. The savage battle still was raging today.

The Chinese were paying a terrible price, Farnell said they may have lost as many as 2,000 men in the White-Horse-Arrowhead sector alone. Reports from other fronts were incomplete, but indicated Communist casualties were high.

Allied big guns ripped into one group of 1,000 Chinese reinforcements. Spotters said half the Reds were killed or wounded.

U.N. planes and artillery caught smaller groups of Reds in the open and pounded them with shells, bombs, rockets and machine-gun fire.

Korean Hand Fest

The Chinese assault force that smashed up the slopes of White Horse today was peppered with a wedge of 500 men who charged with bayonets bared. Another 700 Chinese were right behind. The South Korean troops held their ground.

At the crest the opposing sides closed in hand-to-hand fighting, grenades, bayonets, gun butts and fists being used.

The South Koreans held off the Red infantry but had to give ground when the big Red guns opened up. When the Chinese reached the crest, Allied guns began a withering barrage.

Earlier today the Chinese captured the crest but counter-attacking South Koreans routed them with bayonet charges.

The heaviest fighting was on White Horse, but there were bitter battles on a smaller scale on Arrowhead, Finger Ridge and other isolated points across the 155-mile battlefront.

Wherever the infantry clashed, Allied and Communist artillery joined in. In the 24 hours ended at 6 p.m. yesterday the Communists had fired 93,600 rounds—almost double their previous high for a single day.

The Communists also brought off about 450 Chinese before dusk last night. More Reds poured into the valley between White Horse and Arrowhead just before midnight. A French counter-attack drove them off.

Fighting flared for nine hours around Finger Ridge, 7 1-2 miles east of Kumsong on the central front. Allied soldiers attacked positions the Reds seized yesterday. At last reports the opposing sides were dug in within hand grenade range and the position still was in dispute.

West of the Munsung Valley Allied soldiers regained one of the positions lost yesterday. They moved into the outpost without firing a shot.

Firemen Refuse Call as Minister's House Burns

While the rectory of Rev. Lionel Rowe was burning in Barrie, Ont., the fire department at first refused to answer the call as the house was outside the limits of the town. Residents say the original blaze could have been controlled, but when firemen arrived the roof collapsed and Rev. Rowe, his wife and eight children were homeless. Neighbors at first tried to tackle the blaze but were unable to keep it in check. — Central Press Canadian.

Another Good Potato Crop In New Brunswick

Prices received by growers for the 1951 bumper yield of some 18,000,000 bushels went up to $10 a barrel. They may go even higher for this year's crop. A predicted shortage in the United States and reduced New Brunswick production are expected to improve the market.

Heavy spring rains followed by drought dealt a blow to the yield in this province. Growers estimate the crop will be about 25 per cent less than that of 1951. The quality, however, is reported excellent.

The average yield last year was about 125 barrels an acre. Growers believe it will be nearer 100 barrels this season. Farmers spend close to $3 in grow and harvest each barrel of potatoes.

The Reds still hold five of the minor positions they grabbed in the impetus of their opening attack Monday.

A television appearance by Mrs. Nancy Hodges, former British Columbia Legislature Speaker, during a visit to England interested the Harrises in B.C., so they sold their home, packed up and embarked for Canada with a trailer and their youngsters, Jennifer, 5, and Stuart, 3.

They travelled for three weeks across the continent via the United States.

Centenary of Holy Trinity Parish, Shannonville, to Be Observed Oct. 12

The Rt. Rev. K. C. Evans, Lord Bishop of Ontario, will be in attendance at the 100th anniversary of Holy Trinity Parish, Shannonville, on October 12th, at 11 a.m. The Bishop will officiate at the confirmation service and will be the special preacher.

According to the records in the archives of the Diocese of Toronto, the parish of Shannonville was founded in the year 1852 before the present Diocese of Ontario was carved out of the Diocese of Toronto.

The first Anglican Church at Shannonville was built in the year 1854, was of frame structure and situated just north of Highway No. 2, on the Shannonville-Roslin side road. This church was destroyed by fire in 1873, and until 1878 when the present stone church was erected, services were held in "Robert's Hall."

In the parish vestry records which go back to the year 1863 and which are still in use, there is recorded the following minute "Moved by William Pratt, seconded by Mr. Appleby, that the recommendation of the Committee on Church Site," be approved and that the church be built on the south side of the river, at the eastern limits of the village on either side of Young Street."

Money to build this church was subscribed by church people in the village and with the help of the S.P.C.K. with the building of the new church pew rents were to be abolished, and door rents not to be placed on the ends of pews. A dollar was worth a dollar in those days for it is recorded that $50 was sufficient to pay a year's rent for a house for the rector. In 1879 a house, near the Masonic Hall, formerly belonging to Mr. L. Roberts, was purchased for the sum of $800.

A perusal of the records between 1863 to 1900 reveals such names as William Pratt, Robert Pratt, Charles Long, Clarence Long, Albert Mark, Thomas Pratt John Artis and John Raley. The descendants of many of these churchmen are still active in the present day church life in Holy Trinity. Three generations of the Long family have been either Rector's Warden, People's Warden or Lay Delegates to Synod since 1863. A third generation, in the person of Arthur Long is now serving as Rector's Warden.

Early in the turn of the present century we have such names as Herb Houston, S. J. Pitzgerald, Joseph Huff, W. N. Bell, J. Bennett and H. Wright, T. Young and John Kent.

Twenty-eight clergy have served as rectors, commencing with the Rev. W. Lewin. The Rev. T. Winter, C. P. Heaven, A. E. Pepper are among former rectors still serving in the Diocese of Ontario.

The church contains several memorials. The east window is in memory of the Roberts family, the north window near the pulpit in memory of the Rev. Alfred Bareham, a former rector; a baptismal font in memory of the Rev. William Lewin, one of the earliest rectors, and a plaque and two flags placed there by Mrs. Joseph Hall in memory of a slater.

The present church - wardens are: Mr. Arthr Long and Mr. Cecil McCarthy; and Lay-delegate to Synod is Mr. S. J. Fitzgerald.

The Women's Guild has played a great and noble role in the life of the church for many years, and the members are now preparing to sponsor an anniversary dinner on October 17.

DODDS KIDNEY PILLS

Abbott Holds Out Possibility Of Some Tax Cuts

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott said last night he will be happy to break even on this year's federal budget, but he held out the possibility of tax cuts if Canada's production keeps rising.

Only higher production or an easing of the cold war could bring major reductions, the minister told the annual meeting of the Maritime Provinces Board of Trade. He was not optimistic over the early international prospects.

Mr. Abbott said he shares the view of those who question the need of paying taxes under present conditions to provide a substantial budget surplus.

Since the Korean war broke out, he had budgeted three times for a balance. However, each time there had been a surplus, because of greater-than-expected business expansion and lower-than-expected defence expenditure.

Dealing with external trade, Mr. Abbott said Canada's policy has been to achieve the highest possible level of unrestricted trade and he feels this country must do all in its power to keep the channels of world commerce free.

However he said, "a great many countries, many of them traditional markets for Canadian products, are still attempting to solve their balance-of-payment difficulties by maintaining and increasing import restrictions, exchange controls and the like.

"We believe, and experience has shown, that measures of this kind hold no hope of a permanent solution of these difficulties."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON

The Eldster

When the trumps that you lack nestle bunched in a stack, give the smother a try. It may help you get by. As a little the smother turns out to be grand when the colocating trump cards are found in one hand.

The deal we are talking about is shown again here:

	NORTH
	♠ 10 5 4
	♥ A Q 6
	♦ J
	♣ 8 7 6 3 2
WEST		EAST
♠ K Q J 9 8 7		♠ 3
♥ 8 5		♥ 2 10 7 3
♦ 7		♦ 10 8 5 4 3
♣ A K J 9		♣ Q 10 4
	SOUTH
	♠ A 2
	♥ K 9 4 2
	♦ A K 10 9 6 4 2
	♣ None.

Squat south in a contract of five diamonds. The lead you notice from west is the king of spades. The dummy hand goes down and what you are now able to see gives you something to plan.

It is quickly evident that you must lose the second round of spades and a fourth round of hearts. This means you must not lose the second round of spades and a fourth round of hearts. This means you must not lose a trump trick and you set about hoping for best.

Grab the first trick with your spade ace and lead a heart for dummy queen to capture. Have dummy come back with the diamond jack. When east refuses to cover, let the jack ride for a trick.

So far so good. If opponent trumps are correctly divided you should pick them up with two big trump leads. So, trump a dummy club and cash your ace of diamonds for another trump round.

Here is where you get the bad news. West fails to follow suit and east is left with queen and eightpot that will take a trick in trump. Your only hope is to smother him out of it.

Win second heart trick in dummy and ruff another club. Take your heart king and lead your spade, which west must take. He can return only a black card. It will be spade queen or club king.

In either case, east will play club queen as you ruff in south. But now you call down your hand by leading your fourth heart. East wins it and has nothing left but his two diamonds.

He cannot excuse himself and go out for more ice. Even if he does he is finally smothered into leading one of his two trumps. You thus take both last tricks and leave him gasping.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Anne Baxter considered one of the more conservative of the younger actresses, started busting loose in her last picture. She played Cleopatra in one sequence and wore a rhinestone in her navel. That did it.

Now she has dyed her hair blonde and is smoking cigars!

"They're short and thin, like a cigarette," she said, "but they're the same makings as the cigar men smoke."

Heavenly Smell

She credits Alfred Hitchcock, her director on "I Confess," with introducing her to cigars.

"We were on location in Quebec," she said. "After dinner, Hitch took out a cigar. It smelled heavenly, light and fragrant. Not the foul, heavy kind of smoke that clings to men's clothes. I liked it and was delighted. So Hitch sent to Cuba for the short, thin cigars, which are more suitable for women. I've been smoking them with coffee after dinner, and they're wonderful."

Miss Baxter said cigar-smoking by women is prevalent in Europe. She sees no reason why American women shouldn't follow suit."

"Of course, the men will raise a fuss," she remarked. "They always complain when they think their domain is being invaded. It was the same way with cigarettes and cocktails. Women might as well get some pleasure out of smoking, too. Cigarettes have become so pure, they're nothing but a nervous habit now."

Stop Talk

The actress also has a campaign to cure what she calls the dearth of good conversation in Hollywood.

"Most conversation in Hollywood has a boring sameness," she said. "It's all stop talk. Nobody talks about anything but the movie business."

She plans to do something about it Screenwriter Helen Deutsch has offered her home as the locale for some Sunday brunches aimed at producing stimulating conversation.

Fred Astaire and Vera-Ellen literally "dance on air" in "Belle of New York", showing today at the Belle Theatre for the last times, and the spirit of everyone viewing this captivating new musical will be lifted accordingly. Laid in the nostalgic period of New York's gaslight, horse-drawn streetcar and Currier and Ives era "The Belle of New York" comes as an endearing blend of songs and dances, colorful sets and costumes, and a plot bubbling with goodwill. With "The Belle of New York", director Charles Walters adds to the laurels of such of his previous hits as "Summer Stock", "The Barkleys of Broadway" and "Easter Parade", while producer Arthur Freed presents his new musical as the latest in a hit parade including "Show Boat" and "Annie Get Your Gun."

Here's the new and funny Tom and Jerry M.G.M. color cartoon, "Mouse Comes to Town", heads a varied array of entertaining short treats.

Field Marshal Erwin Rommel (portrayed by James Mason) battles against hopeless odds in the Nazi campaign in N. Africa and, when defeated by the Allies is assigned command of the German forces preparing to resist invasion along the Atlantic coast. Becoming more and more certain that Hitler is leading his people to destruction, Rommel nevertheless hesitates to join other high-ranking militarists in a plot to get rid of Ded Fuehrer. However, finally convinced Hitler is a lunatic visionary, Rommel joins the conspirators. Hitler miraculously escapes a bombing plot while Rommel himself is seriously injured in another accident. In the purge that follows, Rommel's name is linked with the plotters and, given the choice between a futile trial and a forced suicide, he selects the latter to protect his family.

ALL OVER

"Somewhere the sun is shining, somewhere the kiddies shout"

But there ain't no fun in Flatbush, since the Dodgers was put out."

Nope, there was no sallvasting on the banks of the Gowanus last evening. There were no furious fireworks in Flatbush, a ball of gloom hung over the place for didn't their beloved "Bums" bow to the "damn Yankees" in that heart-breaking seventh game. The Dodgers, baffled by Yankee hurling, failed to come through in the clutches, even gallant Duke Snider, their ace of clubs, who could have had a whole city borough hoist be slipped the ball yesterday when a hit meant runs and possibly victory. But the Dodgers' clutch clouts were conspicuous by their absence.

The experts put the hex's laurel wreath atop the brows of Mickey Mantle, sensational young Yankee outfielder whose powerful bludgeon blasted out victories for the team, and Casey "Old Perfesser" Casey Stengel, the second manager in the history of baseball to win four world series in a row.

Casey may "weaken" the King's English, but the boys in the know say his brainwork in yesterday's game was out of this world.

However it was a tense, exciting series, one of the best in years. Then tension was terrific as first one team took the lead and then the other with the smashing climax coming in yesterday's battle. This series will furnish cracker-barrel topics for years.

BELLEVILLE-BORN DODGER

When Mel Allen, or was it "Red" Barber television and radio announcers for the world series, warbled over the microphones the other day that the Brooklyn Dodgers rivel rightfielder Johnny Rutherford was born in Belleville, Ontario, it gave the "hello gals" at the Bell Telephone office here plenty of extra work.

Since the announcement this department has been nearly swamped with calls from fans wanting to know who Johnny Rutherford was, and is, and as one wag put it "whyinell wasn't he playing for the Redmen last season."

Michael J. Hodden, Kingston scribe has apparently been the recipient of similar calls since the erudite Miguel phobed this department with a query for news.

We got in touch with Frank Graham, head of the public relations department of the Brooklyn Dodgers, who confirmed the rumor that Johnny was born here. He also forwarded the colorful Dodgers year book which contained some pertinent information regarding the young rightfielder, if you call 27 young as baseballers go.

In any event the Dodgers management seems to think a lot of the hurler, whom it seems has no relation to the Duke.

Early in spring training in Clearwater next in the Dodger year book Johnny Rutherford came to a Dodger official and said, "Can you get me an apartment in Brooklyn?"

The official was a bit startled by the confidence of the little (Johnny weighs but 155) Canadian-born rightfielder who wasn't even on the Dodger roster but had a right to be startled. Not given much of a chance to make the big leagues last winter, Rutherford was told to report to the Dodgers when Charley Dressen started looking around for a replacement for Don Newcombe. One look at Rutherford and Dressen was convinced Clay Hopper, who managed him in St. Paul in 1951 wasn't kidding when he labbed him the "rightHanded Preacher Roe."

"Here's that rarity," writes the Brooklyn scribe, "a rookie who knows how to pitch. He hasn't an overpowering fast ball, but he knows where to put every pitch. Watch him field his position. When he delivers the ball he comes off the mound ready to stop anything that may be hit back at him. A cocky kid, but very confident, he has yet to discover that every manager could use more of. "I don't strike 'em out say's Johnny, "I just get 'em out."

That's the opinion from the banks of the Gowanus.

Johnny was born here on May 5th, 1925, but little can be learned of his whereabout after that. We did discover that he played for Port Hope in the Lakeshore league for a period of five years before being discovered by a scout for the Ocean team in the Penn League. Johnny played with Ocean in 1947-48 and then moved to Pocatello in the Pioneer season and copping 14 and losing nine in the second. From there he went to Danville of the Three-I League winning 13 and losing 9 in the season of 1949. The next season he was with Fort Worth in the Texas League and finished with a record of eleven wins and twelve losses. A Brooklyn scout spotted him and in 1951 he went to the St. Paul team of the American Association also the "home" that year of the sensational rookie, Joe Black. This season he was, as mentioned before, brought up to the Dodgers as a replacement for Don Newcombe.

* * *

He is, we are given to understand, a relative of Finnegan Hills, a well-known hockey and baseball star of the old days who shone for his home town of Port Hope and who is still a resident there.

JUNIOR PRACTICE

"Red" Doran had the first workout of his 1952-53 junior "B" Hawks the other night with a number of the old faces missing and not a few new ones looming up. George Jackiys and Henry Therrien, members of last years Hawks and who are not classed as imports this year, are back with the squad. Dalbeacho, a stocky youngster is in town from the Hawks headquarters and shaped up well in his first workout. Duke Doran, Ted DeGray and Billy Strahan are over the age "bump" as juniors and have been working out with Don McNevin's senior "B" squad. The junior Hawks will practice every Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings starting at 6.30. As was mentioned before any player of junior age in the district will be welcomed by Manager Bill Cook and Coach Doran.

Dodgers Falter in Clutches; Mickey Mantle, Casey Stengel Hailed As Heroes of Series

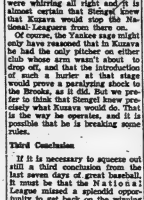
By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—Two main conclusions may be drawn from the World Series which ended yesterday with Brooklyn again in mourning, for the sixth time.

The first is that 20-year-old Mickey Mantle is destined to become enwrapped within a few seasons as the greatest baseball player in the history of the game. The kid can't miss. There's no defence against him.

The second, equally inescapable, is that Casey Stengel, the bemused manager of the New York Yankees, gave advance information from the elves before he makes each move. It would be difficult to prove that he isn't the smartest pilot the game has seen.

Mantle's contributions to his club's 4-2 series clincher yesterday at Ebbets Field were more spectacular than Stengel's. Everyone in the arena saw him clout the home run and the single in successive innings—the first unblanded, the second rightHanded to put victory beyond reach of the Dodgers.



Nobody Saw It

Nobody saw the wheels whirring in Casey's head, either, as he waved in Bob Kuzava to pitch to Duke Snider, the hottest of the Dodgers, with the bases filled and only one out in the seventh inning. They were whirring all right and it is almost certain that Stengel knew that Kuzava was the best of his Medieval Leaguers from there on.

Of course, the Yankee sage might only have reasoned that in Kuzava he had the only pitcher on either club whose arm hasn't about to drop off, and that the introduction of such a star at that stage would prove a paralyzing shock to the Brooks, as it did. But we prefer to think that Stengel knew precisely what Kuzava would do. That is the more impressive, and it is possible that he is breaking some rules.

Third Conclusion

If it is necessary to squeeze out still a third conclusion from the last seven days of great baseball. It must be that the National League missed a splendid opportunity to get back on the winning side. This is not one of the finest

CASEY STENGEL

Four in Row

Yankee teams. It was a team not deep in pitching, although it was ripe to be taken. The Dodgers fiubbed it, and such an opening might not come soon.

Providing he does not go into the service, Mantle will be still better next year, and a team which has such a tremendous performer seems to draw fire from him. In only his second season the kid has done everything for the Yanks that Joe DiMaggio did, in an inspirational way. But Snider, Duke Allie Reynolds proved once again that it takes more than two really fine-players to win a world championship. That is, if a team has a manager who doesn't have to guess what is going to happen, but knows.

There was some debate last night whether Snider or Johnny Mize, the old codger, set the outstanding Yankee in the Series. In this spectator's opinion, it was no contest. Mize, it is true, came in when things were not looking too good midway of the Series and made a number of tremendous contributions to the Yankee cause. In fact, he put them back in the contention when they appeared to be licked.

But It Was Mantle

But Mantle was in there all the way, starting Brooklyn pitchers to death and fielding like an angel. He led the assault which enabled the Yanks to tie it at 1-1 behind Vic Raschi Thursday. He proved the insurance second run in Reynolds' Saturday shutout by tripling in two runs with the outstanding Reese's error.

His home run Monday proved the winning run in the 3-2 Yankee victory which sent the playoff to the seventh game, and he killed the Dodgers with his two big ones yesterday.

In all, he Mick propelled 10 hits in 29 appearances for an average of .345. By an amazing coincidence this was exactly what Reese and Duke Snider did for the Brooklyn cause. Snider's .320 was not far behind like the hero of the series. In fact, the big swinger from California battled the Yanks right down to the wire while others on his company failed to hit. But in the end he had to yield the honors to Mantle.

New Daily Here

It turned out to be one of those Series where there was a new hero every day. In the first game of each game it appeared that the winning club had the big prize well in hand. This observer personally counted the Yankees out of it at least twice.

The most unfortunate figure was Joe Black, the big Negro rookie who rocketed the Dodgers in front with a beautifully pitched triumph over Reynolds in the opening game, but was turned back by Allie's shutout in the fourth. Manager Charlie Dressen obstinately held Black out of Monday's Yankee equalizer in order to have him well rested for yesterday's big one—and then Joe didn't have it!

The opinion here, dfered timidly in opposition to some of the finest baseball brains around—Dressen's own—was that the Dodger manager should have rushed Black in there when Snider's homer gave Brooklyn a 2-1 lead in the ninth inning of the sixth game.

Well, Charlie didn't and that was the last time the Dodgers ever led in the Series. Black the Yanks down smartly for the first three innings yesterday, and we like to feel, as we mentioned before, that he would have done the same thing the previous day if Dressen had only heeded the thought waves.

After yesterday's third inning, it may be conceded, Black was tired and wavering. So was Ed Lopat, who started for the Yanks. So was Reynolds, who succeeded Lopat, and Vic Raschi, who tried to take Reynolds off the hook. Preacher Roe, who came in after Black had given up Rardi's a thing except a long time between pitches. Everybody was terribly tired out there

Timbermen Edge Vancouver 8-7 For Second Win

TORONTO (CP) — Vancouver Pilsners, although down two games to Peterborough Timbermen are still very much in the running for the Canadian Senior Lacrosse championship.

Toronto fans looked for a one-sided series for the Mann Cup after Peterborough's top-sided 8-4 victory in the best-of-seven opener Sunday. But last night the Western boys squeezed a totally different club and the Timbermen were hanging on for an 8-7 victory at the final bell.

The first quarter ended 3-3 and Peterborough edged ahead 4-3 in the second frame. It was 6-3 at the three-quarter mark and the hard-checking Timbermen appeared to have the game well in hand.

They added another tally as the final 15 minutes got under way. Then the fun fell in. The Pilsners struck for two quick goals and the Timbermen rallied for one about the eight-minute mark, to give them an 8-6 edge.

One-Goal Difference

Vancouver made it 8-6 a minute later and kept up the pressure for another in the closing minutes. The Timbermen passed around the Peterborough net in search of the winning marker when it ran out.

Russ Slater—Peterborough's second-leading scorer during the regular season with 84 points—was the offensive star. He scored a goal in the second period and the final tally proved to be the winner.

Only Last Year

Denny Huddleston, Vancouver's top player of the night, and Ernie Smith got three goals apiece. The other western tallies were by Dave Redline, Jim Anderson and Jim Swanson.

on the mound and you felt, in all humanity, that their respective managers should relent and give each of them a long rest.

And that was the point at which Stengel wheeled out his secret weapon, Kuzava, the only pitcher in the park who wasn't about to collapse. Casey used the same tactics against New York Giants a year ago. It was Kuzava, pitching in relief, who won swiftpaw in modern history, who snuffed out the final three Giants in the '51 World Series.

And Stengel was right around thanking Lord that the little man whom nobody else could see, he told each of them personally, that he had done a whale of a job all year, and that he was, then next spring at the same old stand.

Open Saturday Evening — Closed Wednesday Afternoon.

A One-Arm Carry: Hold the ball in the right hand, tucked under the arm, point of ball to rear. Left arm up and back of ball. Hand carrying ball low on right hip. Elbow of right arm pressed against body. Left arm on ball when tackled. Carry ball in one hand when running free of tackle.

Two-Arm Carry: When passing, head downfield or carrying ball in front of body, carry ball with both hands. Ball is held in front of body with fingers extended along laces of ball. Elbows are held close to body. Ball is not seen by opponents.

Shifting the Ball: Place the hand under a point of the ball and it will be supported by both hands and forearm. Grip with fingers and free supply move it either side of body to protect ball from attack. Perfect control is a cinch.

Yes, it's control that counts. In football and in every game — control which brings the extraordinary flexibility that adds one performer above the other. It is the ability to approach things coolly, to control angry nerves and keep cool. See the answer to better results.

This is one of a series designed to increase the pleasure of Canadians who participate in sports.

Dow BREWERY LIMITED

Obscured by Series, Football N.H.L. Season Opens Thursday

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—The 19-game National Hockey League schedule opens on two fronts Thursday night but the usual pre-season pub thumping has been drowned out by World Series and Canadian football hysteria. At this early date the ice fellows are the forgotten men of sport.

They've been going about their own business the last month or so pruning here and there in efforts to mould big-time clubs and generally it's paying like cheery big business corporations, honkuses or no other, ask w predictions and dire threats of "we'll be tight up there this year" are missing.

The usually voodoo-cult coaches and managers have refused to go out on a limb. Only Sid Abel, newly-appointed coach of Chicago Black Hawks, has been willing to do some public star-gazing.

"All I can say is we'll be trying to get out of the cellar and into the playoffs," said the former centre of the Stanley Cup Champion Detroit Red Wings. "The Hawks have had a reputation to go but up in the six-team circuit the last few seasons and maybe this time Hawks coach in seven years, may provide the spark to boost them a notch in the final standings."

Loss Playing Coach

The veteran of more than 10 years in the big leagues will be the only playing-coach in the big nine. He plans to go in "wherever and whenever I think I can help the club" and it is possible he will be stick-handling around the Maple Leaf Gardens ice Thursday night when the Hawks open against the standpat Canadiens.

The closest to any outright prediction has come from Art Ross of the Boston Bruins. He considers this 1952-53 edition of the Bruins as the strongest since the team's last playoff club of 1940-41. That year Boston won the Stanley Cup.

The Bruins haven't made great changes from the club that lost out to Montreal Canadiens in the Stanley Cup playoffs last spring and at this date there's no particular reason to believe that they'll topple the rambling Red Wings.

Coach Dick Irvin of Canadiens is basking on practically the same 1951-52 club to carry the Canadien colors this season and predicts only that Maurice (The Rocket) Richard will break the league scoring record of 59 goals he set in 1944-45 "if he plays the full 70-game schedule."

One thing is almost certain. The Rocket will eclipse the 324-goal lifetime record of Nels (Old Potato) Stewart this season. Richard has 219 so far and he should add another chapter to the record book before the season is very old.

Leafs Shake Well

Toronto Maple Leafs, who ignominiously bowed out of contention in four straight to Detroit in the Stanley Cup semi-finals last year, have made the biggest changes of any club in the circuit. They have only eight veterans of the 1951-52 squad and the experts aren't too enthusiastic of their chances.

Leafs figured in the biggest pre-season trade when they disposed of goalkeeper Al Rollins, defenceman Gus Mortson and centres Cal Gardner and Ray Hannigan, from their Pittsburgh farm club, for Chicago goalkeeper Harry Lumley. Other regulars missing are Joe Klukay, sold to Boston, defenceman Bill Juzda and forwards Ray Thompson and Danny Lewicki.

New York Rangers, who missed a playoff berth last season, open the campaign at Detroit Thursday. They've lost centre Don (Bones) Raleigh, out with a broken wrist in an exhibition game, traded centre Ray Sinclair and pitched up defenceman Leo Reise from the Rangs in a pre-season trade.

Manager Frank Boucher isn't predicting big things for his Rhoshirts. He's taking one game at a time and about Thursday's opener at Detroit, pre-season favorite Dan Centre says: "In my opinion, the Red Wings are the only club in the league who haven't bettered themselves."

But the wags, runaway leaders over the regular schedule the last couple of years, probably aren't worrying too much.

Wins Police Pistol Tourney

TORONTO (CP)—Constable Edward Barclay of Toronto yesterday won the grand aggregate championship at the annual Toronto police department invitational shoot. More than 100 officers from Ontario participated. Barclay scored 346 of a possible 360.

Constable Robert Steele of Hamilton won the first master shoot. The Hamilton group won the team contest. St. Catharines came second and Toronto third.

SNOW HITS NEW YORK

CORNING, N.Y. (AP)—Up to two inches of snow fell in Southwestern New York yesterday. An old-timer said it was the earliest he had seen snow in at least 22 years. The storm disrupted power service in Wellsville and two schools in Hornell were closed because of the hazard of live wires torn down.

Sport in Brief

VICTORIA (CP) — A British Empire Games Committee, which asked the provincial cabinet for $500,000, received a good start on the public fund-raising phase of its campaign yesterday.

After the delegation finished presenting its case for a government grant, Premier W. A. C. Bennett said:

"I will start things rolling by making a personal donation of $1,000."

No sooner had the delegation caught its breath than Mayor Fred Hume of Vancouver, leader of the delegation, replied:

"And I'll match it with another $1,000."

The delegation asked the government for the $500,000 to aid in defraying the games in Vancouver, in 1954.

The cabinet reserved decision on the request but assured the delegation it is "100 percent behind the effort."

GUELPH —(CP)— Manager Frank Boucher of New York Rangers yesterday assured Guelph Biltmores he will return the four junior players who have been working out with the National Hockey League team.

But he would not guarantee they would not be called later in the season.

The four are forwards Andy Bathgate, Dean Prentice and Ron Murphy and defenceman Lou Howell. All were instrumental in leading Guelph to the Memorial Cup and all have another year left in junior hockey.

Existing regulations permit Rangers to call any amateur until Nov. 15, but they can obtain permission from the amateur club concerned.

TORONTO (CP) —Jack Dempsey said yesterday that Rocky Marciano, heavyweight boxing champion, doesn't know what he's about fighting.

But, the former heavyweight king said, "I can't see anyone licking him for the next three years."

Dempsey said the three most important factors to a fighter are the ability to take it, to give it, and to have a fighting heart. Marciano has a good punch, can take it and "can knock you out with one blow."

The Manassa Mauler is in Toronto helping promote a heavyweight tournament next Tuesday night.

Kitchener (CP) — Goalie Bill Harrington, voted most valuable player in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A circuit last season has signed his playing certificate, Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts said yesterday. Another player to sign yesterday was defenceman Jack Evans.

Left winger Orv Tessier has left for Cornwall after signing a contract promise offer by the Greenshirts. He rejected terms of $85 a week and a bonus of $200 for Cornwall, depending on his performances and where the club finished. He asked a flat $100 weekly.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Guelph Biltmores last night defeated St. Catharines Teepees 6-3 in an exhibition hockey game. Both teams are members of the Ontario Hockey Association junior A series.

Scott Jones of Guelph scored two tallies, Connolly, Prentice and Murphy scored one each. Jones and Plata were the St. Catharines marksmen.

CHICOUTIMI, Que. (CP) — Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League last night defeated Chicoutimi Saguenays of the Quebec Senior Hockey League 7-4 in an exhibition game.

Bill Gadsby scored the Hawks with two goals. Other Chicago marksmen were Ted Lindsay, Gerry Labanda, Bill Mosienko, Gerry Couture and Gus Mortson. Saguenaen scorers were Lou Smrke, Marius Groleau and Gerry Glaude.

REGINA (CP)—Jim Chamberz, 22, 6-year-old halfback with Edmonton Eskimos, and Johnny Bright, the Drake-based Calgary Stampeder import, rate as the most dangerous ball carriers in the Western Football Conference.

League statistics show Chamberz rookie of the year in 1951, has a 7.3 yards average for his ground-gaining feats with 1,021 toss. He carried the ball 49 times and has a net gain of 360 yards.

Bright is close on Chamberz with a 6.9 average, with 691 yards gained on 105 tries. Bright has been the circuit's busiest backfielder.

WINGS FARM OUT LUND

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Joe Lund, rugged defenceman, was returned to St. Louis Flyers yesterday on loan for the season from Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League.

The Wings obtained Lund from Cleveland Barons in exchange for Bill Brennan, a goalie who will report to the Barons' Seattle farm club in the Western League.

World Series Dressing Room Chat

By TED SMITH

BROOKLYN (AP)—"We can always win on the road," shouted Casey Stengel and cheers and laughter swept the hilarious Yankee dressing room yesterday.

The American League champions had just won their fourth straight World Series championship, a picture of frustration that seemed to envelop the players who had knocked on the door of baseball's top championship and had seen it rudely shut in their faces.

Beaten 4-2 in the seventh and final game yesterday, the Dodgers kept their unenviable record of never having won a World Series. This was their sixth try.

Bitterly Disappointed

Robinson didn't try to hide his disappointment.

"We came so close," he said. "We had so many opportunities. But Mantle was the difference."

Joe Black, the giant Negro rookie who went in the second three games against the Yankees and who beat them the first time but falled in the other two, said: "It gnaws at you. It tears you inside. We got so many men on base. We kept saying to ourselves 'This is it' and then there was that let down.

"It would have been better if we had had our brains knocked out, lost 10-0. We would have felt better about it."

Manager Charlie Dressen was late making his appearance, and Brooklyn President Walter O'Malley was first to the Yankee dressing room to pay their respects to the seemingly perennial champions.

"We fell every minute we would get a hit in the ball game," Dressen said.

Praise Knava

Dressen, Robinson and Duke Snider paid tribute to Bob Kuzava the Yankee reliever who rescue. Vic Raschi in the seventh with one out and the bases loaded.

He made Sc ler and Robinson pop weakly.

"That Kuzava was burning his fast ball in here," Dressen said. "He was very c ok. But both Reynolds and Raschi were in the low their effectiv and of previous games.

"I ow w ould get th..n if they stayed in."

Dressen said he thought the Yankees' Allie Reynolds was the difference in the hurling.

"Mantle and Mize (Johnny Mize, who hit three home runs) hurt us but in the long run it was Reynolds who gave us the most trouble. He's big and strong. a great pitcher."

First baseman Gil Hodges, Brooklyn's heaviest slugger, became the only man in World Series history to go through seven games without a hit. He had 21 appearances and not a single safety.

"I'm snake-bit, I guess," he said.

Remember Stengel for Zany Antics; Second Manager to Win Four in Row

BROOKLYN (AP) — When Casey Stengel, the millionaire manager of New York Yankees, decides to call it a career he will be best remembered for:

1. His zany antics during his career.

2. The fact that he became the second manager in big league history to win four straight World Series.

After they, Yankees defeated Brooklyn 4-2 in the seventh and deciding game of the World Series yesterday, Stengel assured all that he would be back at Yankee Stadium in 1953.

Only Two Others

The only other manager to win four straight World Series is Joe McCarthy, pilot of the great Yankee teams of 1936-39. McCarthy and the fiery John McGraw are the only other leaders to capture four consecutive pennants. McGraw's New York Giants won the National League flag from 1921 through 1924.

Stories about Stengel are legion.

They say he once doffed his cap and a sparrow flew out from underneath it. Another tale has it that he once stepped into a manhole cover in the outfield and pulled the lid over his head. A fly ball came his way and he stepped out just in time to catch it.

Somewhere along the line of a career that began in 1910, Stengel invested in oil and struck it rich.

The fact that he was well off financially is said to make it difficult to lure him back to the big leagues after he managed his home town Oakland club of the Pacific Coast League from 1946 to 1948.

Casey decided to come back and prove that he could manage in the big leagues and win proved he was given something to work with. He had spent terms with Brooklyn Dodgers and Boston Braves without spectacular success.

Proved His Point

No one doubts now that he has

JOHNNY EUTHERFORD

proven his point.

Despite his reputation for clowning, Stengel was a pretty good ball player. He wound up his major league career that included stops at Brooklyn, New York, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and Boston with a lifetime .284 batting average. He played in the 1916 World Series with Brooklyn and the 1923 and 1922 fall classics with the Giants and finished with a series .393 average.

Stengel accounted for the only two Giant victories against the Yanks in 1923, batting up both games with home runs.

Bitter Reprieve

By Drexel Drake

"And to make sure all the way about what Sterling was putting over on you, you went up to Mrs. Sterling's room didn't you?"

"Sure, I went up there. Why wouldn't I? Wouldn't I want to know what kind of a jam Sterling was trying to get me in by giving me those diamonds? Now you got something on me, Lieutenant, because I didn't spill what I knew about Sterling bumping off his wife."

Talent glanced surprised. "Sterling did that?"

"Sure he did it. Who else?"

"You turned on the light in the room and saw it?"

"I didn't even believe Mrs. Sterling was in the room. Yes, I turned on the light. Then I saw why Sterling came down from there looking like a ghost."

Talent sat down. He looked at Bindle patiently. "No, Harry, you're mistaken. You're confused about it. Sterling hasn't killed his wife. You exonerated him yourself, a little while ago. You said you saw him sneak out of the room and close the door slowly without a sound. He did that because he didn't want to awaken her. He didn't want her to discover that he had robbed the safe. But you awakened her, Harry, when you turned on that light."

"You wanted to make sure you could keep those diamonds, just as you have kept them, didn't you, Harry? That put a great temptation up to you when Sterling turned that necklace over to you . . . a temptation that made you willing to murder Mrs. Sterling when you found her awake. You knew you were putting Sterling on the spot . . . that you could even make him pay to keep you silent . . . that he could never accuse you of anything."

Bindle's head snapped back. "Surprised?" Talent went on quietly. "Yes, this is just about the end for George Bandello. I've known that quite a while, Harry . . . about George Bandello. Chicago lost track of you, George, but now Joe Giappo and Mrs. Sterling are charged up against you."

The tormented man's fingers clutched the arms of the chair and his chin dropped low. His eyes stole a side glance from under the brim of his hat toward the tall open window, the sill barely two feet above the floor. No one barred the way.

In that instant of breathlessness after Talent stopped speaking, the man who had slipped from the police to 18 years of freedom by swimming under water in Chicago's harbor again sensed all their effort to take him. Springing from his chair in a crouched position, he leaped for the open window. But he did not know that, before Miriam Sterling had been buried a week, because Lucy Gowder had demanded it if she was to remain in the house as cook, a grille of heavy iron bars, observed from within because of the drapes, had been firmly anchored in the masonry outside the window.

Bandello hit the barrier with crushing force and rebounded into the room. Miraculously he retained his balance, still on his feet. When he pivoted to face his astonished audience, he held a menacing automatic he had slipped from under his left armpit.

From across the room, Detective Ripley's heavy service revolver spoke twice. The first bullet shattered an elbow and Bandello's gun dropped to the floor. Because he lunged at the wrong moment, the second bullet bored into his chest, over the right lung, and he tumbled heavily.

Lieutenant Talent's reaction was spontaneous, displaying a burst of energy he rarely revealed. He clipped directions to Ripley arrested the momentary atmosphere of pandemonium.

"Call the ambulance, Gus." Talent said. "We want to pull him through. He has a lot to answer for."

As Ripley sped to the telephone Talent's long legs strode quickly across the room. Talent beckoned Trapgood to follow him.

Talent knelt over the prostrate form of George Bandello, Trapgood on one knee beside him. The wounded man's breathing was tortured. His eyes swam in a focus, fixed pleasingly on the long face above him.

"You're at the end of the long trail, George," Talent said. "Don't you want to square yourself . . . get it off your mind?"

Bandello's lips worked to form words . . . his eyelids fought against their own weight . . . his eyes rolled in a side "I know when I'm licked," he said weakly. After a gasping pause, he added, "You had it right, Lieut. . . . she went for her rod . . . it was me or . . . me or her . . . I didn't want to . . . The voice was engulfed by a thick, incoherent gurgle

As Talent and Trapgood got up, Isabel Wilson pushed impetuously between them. She had jewels over one arm. She knelt beside the stricken man. Her fingers went to work on his tie . . . his collar. Bandello's breathing had become difficult rasping.

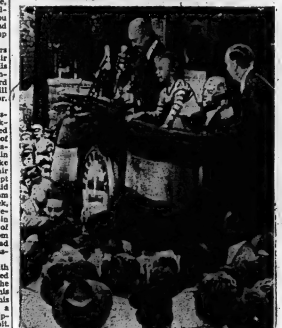
Albert Brant came into the room from [illegible] . . . searched until they rested on Talent. His calmly unemotional announcement registered indistinctly above the hushed murmuring in the room.

"I beg pardon," the butler said. "The unfortunate gentleman, when he came in, put this behind a chair in the hall."

Brant held out the Bindle briefcase. The two headquarters detectives exchanged sheepish glances. Ripley, back from telephoning, took the case to Talent. "We had no idea it was behind there," he said, "but I told him he might as well bring it along."

Talent emptied the case on the coffee table. Eyes bulged at the bundles of money. Talent picked up the sealed envelope, fumbled with his sensitive fingertips. He let Ripley glance at the penned notation . . . Marcus Sterling's flourished signature.

"The necklace!" Ripley exclaimed, "The bird was ready to fly."



"Seems so, Gus. You trapped him just in time."

"Why did Sterling put up the necklace when he had the money there?"

"We have to guess at the answer to that. Sterling could not have known what he took from the safe, besides the necklace, until later."

"He could have saved himself a lot of trouble, couldn't he?"

"A lot of trouble," Talent agreed thoughtfully. "Too bad Marcus Sterling couldn't have lived long enough to learn who murdered his wife. He deserved at least a final hour free of torture."

Gen. Ike Rewards an Admirer

Seven-year-old Jimmy Waldzak is introduced by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower to the crowd at Bay City, Mich., after having chased Ike's campaign train for a mile as it slowly rolled into the town. The GOP presidential nominee, who promptly invited Jimmy aboard his car, told his audience that the boy's run "was one of the gamest things" he had ever witnessed in his life. — Central Press Canadian.

Death Toll Rises To 94 In Triple Train Collision

Newspapers Hint 'Human Element' Might be at Fault

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HARROW, England (CP)—The death toll in Britain's triple train crash rose to at least 94 today as rescue workers searched through two splintered coaches at the bottom of a 30-foot mound of debris.

They died in yesterday's fantastic collision of two express trains and a suburban local in the Harrow rail station. Estimates of the injured ranged as high as 300.

Fourteen bodies were dug out of the mass of twisted steel and splintered wood today and another victim, an 18-year-old girl, died in hospital. Doctors said the first basket of mangled remains taken from the wreck contained three and possibly five persons.

Workers continued the grim task of searching for bodies while officials worked to identify the dead remains.

One man was brought out alive at 7 a.m. today. He had been entombed for nine and wood for nearly 24 hours.

Still Many Trapped

A fire-brigade official, helping to slice through the tons of twisted steel, said this morning: "There are still many bodies in there. We do not know how many may be alive."

British railways announced a private inquiry will be opened immediately into the "worst and worst in this country's history. No date as to the cause has been given. Some newspapers hinted that the "human element" might be at fault.

The wreck occurred yesterday morning at the Harrow and Wealdstone station, just outside London. A deeper train from the south was travelling at a 70-mile-an-hour clip, plunged into the rear coaches of a stalled local train, both crowded. Seconds later, a business men's express hit the twisted engines and coaches piled on its path, slewed across the station platform and overturned.

School books found on the lines indicated there might be children still buried in the wreckage of local train.

Red Cross nurses said they thought some children were still underneath the debris. Others have been no sounds of life, but perhaps some are unconscious."

The line has been used by more than 1,000 persons—many of them school children—every hour as they jammed into the local train.

U.S. Air Force personnel rushed from nearby bases helped in treating the injured.

Survivors Tell Story

One U.S. airman said it was the worst disaster he ever saw. "But the British don't cry," he said. "The wounded were wonderful."

Hour by hour through the night, rescue workers, using acetylene blast cranes wearily hacked their way through the debris, 30 feet high in some places.

Hacking and cutting through the debris, rescue squads managed just before dawn today to lift the locomotive of the express from the press off the track.

Casualty figures are sawed throughout the night. At one time, doctors had said the death and injury toll had reached as high as 116, but later said this was in error.

The wreckage was cleared away with almost surgical delicacy in the remote hope some of the passengers might still be alive despite the passing of more than 24 hours.

Married For Seven

Twice before railway officials declared they could not guess survivors and twice were proved wrong. Yesterday afternoon a survivor was found in a coach after being buried for eight hours.

While the wreck went on, service was restored. Trains edged between the walls of twisted debris this morning, their passengers leaning out the windows to stare.

Police arrested a man which against looters working under cover of darkness. One man was arrested.

ROYAL STAMPS

LONDON (CP)—The Queen has given her permission for photos of the Royal children, Prince Charles and Princess Anne, to be reproduced on New Zealand postage stamps. Surcharge on the stamps will be used to provide holidays for poor children.

Youngest Son Late President With Republicans

NEW YORK (AP)—John Roosevelt, youngest son of the late Democratic president, said today he'll back the Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower for President.

Roosevelt, a distributor of cosmetics and soaps, said he voted for Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican candidate, in 1948. Before that he backed his father, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Two other sons of the late president, James Roosevelt and Representative Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. (Dem. LI.—N.Y.), are working for Eisenhower's Democratic opponent Governor Adlai E. Stevenson.

A fourth, Elliott, said in July he was going to vote for Eisenhower.

John Roosevelt said of the family split:

"We're all individuals and that's what makes a horse race, as father used to say."

Mass Daylight Raid Leaves Targets in Ruins

TOKYO (AP)—Ten U. S. B-29 Superforts teamed with 132 navy and air force planes in a mass daylight raid Wednesday and left targets in northwest Korea in flaming ruins.

The raid on Kowon was one of the largest of the war for the U. S. navy, 71 sent in 196 planes from three carriers.

Kowon, rail supply and communications centre, lies near Sukchon airfield about 25 miles north of the battered Red port of Hungnam.

Fifty fortress and navy releases today said F-86 Sabre jets and navy jets flew protective cover as attack planes swarmed in over the target. The raiders met no enemy fighters in the ground fire.

The B-29s flew in a "tight battle box" formation of 3 x 3 x 3 and bombs visually on a supply target. Sukchon, hit by 2,500 feet in size, the Far East Air Forces said.

As the Superforts pulled away, navy planes dropped their bombs on marshalling yards, bridges and rail lines.

His 37 years as pastor here was one of the longest terms in Windsor's history.

TWO CANADIAN SOLDIERS RECEIVE MILITARY AWARDS

Bring Back Prisoner In Daring Daylight Raid

OTTAWA (CP)—A Canadian lieutenant-col corporal in Korea have received high military awards for leading a daring daylight patrol into Chinese positions and bringing back the 25th Brigade's first prisoner in several months.

Lieut. H.R. Gower, 25, of Kingston, led the patrol leader, has been awarded the Military Cross and Cpl. Karl E. Fowler, 24, of Kingston, had won the Military Medal. The honors were presented in the field to the two members of the Roy. 1 Canadian Regiment.

Lieut. Gower, released by the army yesterday, tell how they led a six-man patrol to a Communist position as daylight was breaking and carried off a prisoner despite heavy fire.

Lieut. Gardiner and Cpl. Fowler, covered by their four companions, moved to within 75 yards of an enemy kitchen area before the point. They broke a communication wire and waited for enemy troops to come to check the break.

One Chinese soldier appeared, but he was overpowered by Cpl. with a blackjack while Cpl. Fowler covered him. The captured Chinese soldier yelled, despite repeated blows on his head, and hit Lieut. Gardiner in the face before officers tried to choke him.

Armed Chinese soldiers appeared and opened fire with automatic rifles. Then, the lieutenant and the Corporal made off with their prisoner, the rest of the Canadian patrol covering their withdrawal with rifle and probably wounding two others.

The four other patrol members were Cpl. M. Pauley, Moss Jaquodoit, N.S.; Pte. Donald R. Moodie, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.; Pte. Edward L. Mc Donnell, Perlican, Trinity Bay, Rfld., and Pte. Edward J. Knight, Sarnia.

Mayor Lamport of Toronto Wins Plowing Match Against Eight Other Ontario Mayors

By KEN KELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CARP (CP)—The competition will be keener today at the international plowing match but there won't be any many laughs. With Mayor Allan Lamport's victory in the "mayors" contest in a match with eight other Ontario mayors, most of the comedy disappeared.

The mayoralty race drew the biggest crowds and was the best show from the spectator standpoint, of the first two days of plowing. From now until Friday, however, plowmen in horse and tractor events will be seeking championship titles and perhaps a free trip to Europe.

The first test against time in the tractor class today likely will be as big a thrill for spectators as the later t'mayor's big tractor event for the championship and European trip. The youngest plowmen, under 18 years, also will show their skills today. Premier D.D. Reid of Brampton and Eldred King of Markham, are good bets for the tractor event, which starts in the open tractor classes yesterday.

Mayors Steal Show

But yesterday's events were overshadowed by the hilarious contest among the Ontario mayors which resulted from a challenge by Mayor Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa to any other mayor to a contest. They broke a communication wire and waited for enemy troops to come to check the break.

One Chinese soldier appeared, but he was overpowered by Cpl. with a blackjack while Cpl. Fowler covered him. The captured Chinese soldier yelled, despite repeated blows on his head, and hit Lieut. Gardiner in the face before officers tried to choke him.

Armed Chinese soldiers appeared and opened fire with automatic rifles. Then, the lieutenant and the Corporal made off with their prisoner, the rest of the Canadian patrol covering their withdrawal with rifle and probably wounding two others.

The four other patrol members were Cpl. M. Pauley, Moss Jaquodoit, N.S.; Pte. Donald R. Moodie, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.; Pte. Edward L. Mc Donnell, Perlican, Trinity Bay, Rfld., and Pte. Edward J. Knight, Sarnia.

'Within Measurable Distance Of Preventing Attack on West', Eden Assures Party Meeting

SCARBOROUGH England, (AP) Conservative Secretary Anthony Eden said today that western unity has forced Russia to shift its propaganda emphasis.

In a speech to the Conservative party's annual conference, Eden said:

"There has been some progress in the world situation during the past year, and it is now possible to detect a certain change in the phasis in Communist propaganda. They are now relying on their old belief that the capitalist world will destroy itself.

"We hope that we are now within measurable distance of having the means to prevent attack on the west."

The explosion of Britain's new atomic weapon in the Monte Bello Islands is "a deterrent to war," he added.

"The Soviets are perhaps beginning to be puzzled about the one destroyed by direct methods."

"We have no illusions about its difficulties in practice. It is an achievement of outstanding importance that it should spring from a variety of human skill and ingenuity."

Eden told the conference that Britain must have financial solvency to keep her military power in proper perspective. "We cannot claim the status of a partner unless we can pay our way in the world. Solvency and industrial peace are both indispensable to our international field."

Eden's warnings that Britain must struggle to remain solvent were echoed by Defence Minister Earl Alexander.

Alexander told the Conservatives: "We cannot maintain military securityat the expense of national bankruptcy. We must distribute our defence burden in which are absolutely essential and those which are less essential."

Warning of Russian atomic development, Alexander said: "There is no doubt if we can build as many air squadrons as they can build we can produce more equal them in manpower resources so that we must keep our superiority in the scientific development of weapons."

Three Hundred Girls Stationed At Clinton

CLINTON, Ont. (CP)— Three hundred girls who swapped desks, soda-fountains and even the stage for air force careers are stationed at the R.C.A.F. station here.

The only radar and communications school in the air force, this base personnel weekly turns out airwomen trained to plot the movements of enemy planes or direct the interceptors of friendly fighters.

These girls are proving a real asset on R.C.A.F. station," said Wing Commander A. Sidney Hall, assistant to the chief administrative officer.

Flt. Sgt. W. R. Edwards said that in some cases they compete with men.

"We even make mechanics of them," he said. "Communications girls, for instance, learn to check operators, test transmitters, receivers and teletype machines."

Among those attending the session at the Radar School here, Lake, Sask.; Millie Overwater, Winnipeg and Stella Bertram, Mattawa, Ont.

$150,000 Fire Loss

HARRIETSVILLE (CP)—A $150,000 fire last night burned the Harrietsville grain elevator, capacity of about 100 persons.

The fire destroyed a 100-year-old frame structure, adjacent feed store, the Harrietsville Co-operative, a large barn and a new cold storage plant.

Carl Jackson, 56-year-old owner of all the buildings, said he could not say what the fire started in the storage section of the general store.

TROOPS GUARDING DUCHESS BARE AMBUSH ATTEMPT

Discover Concealed Trenches Near Road

SINGAPORE (Reuters)—Troops guarding the Duchess of Kent on her visit to Malaya today bared an ambush attempt by the Communist underground.

A guerrilla band dug concealed slit trenches overlooking a road to be taken by the Royal party.

Army headquarters at Kuala Lumpur said troops discovered the ambush Tuesday night after the party was due to pass.

But the Communists, estimated at about 50 men, had fled, apparently warned of the guards' approach.

The Duchess, 45 - year - old widowed aunt of the Queen, has been touring guerrilla-infested Malaya with her 25-year-old son, the present Duke, since last week.

The jungle was searched for 150 yards deep on either side of the 46-mile road from Kuala Lumpur to Port Dickson.

The terrorists' calthps were found in the heart of marching Pass overlooking the, winding road.

Firing positions and observation posts were found on the ideal ambush positions.

Plans Strafe

Earlier this week before the Duchess arrived, the whole of the terrorist-infested areas between Kuala Lumpur and Port Dickson had been extensively "patrolled, bombed and strafed" by the R.A.F.

This precautionary barrage may have driven the gang out of the position.

Though the strictest security precautions were taken, it was admitted that there was every likelihood that the Duchess would travel the route.

Terrorists have been known to wait in ambush a month as a week for a specific target.

The Duchess and her son travelled with Governor Gurney in a four-day visit to Malaya and flew back to Singapore from Kuala Lumpur.

The Malayan capital gave the royal party a tumultuous welcome. Thousands of Chinese, Malay and Indian children with flags and banners lined the route—the entire four-mile route to the airport.

Davies Will Be Sent for Trial On Fraud Charge

OTTAWA (CP)—The Crown yesterday built a web of fingerprint and other evidence against a former officer of the Canadian Communist party in an effort to have him to trial on a charge of passport fraud.

Raymond Arthur Davies, alias Rudolf Shohan, 44-year-old Montreal-and-Toronto-born former party official, is charged with conspiracy to obtain passports under false names with intent to defraud.

The Crown claims Davies made false statements in applications for a passport in 1936.

Magistrate Jean Sirike made the committal decision yesterday after a two-hour preliminary hearing in Ottawa police station courtroom, a hearing that has been four times adjourned. He was free on liberty on bail of $1,000 since his arrest in Whitby early in July.

Archbishop Sees Neither Human, Divine Remedy for 'Apartheid'

LONDON (Reuters)—Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury, criticized racial intolerance as a dinner last night celebrating the 50th anniversary of the Council of Christians and Jews.

Dr. Fisher said that the United Nations formally set aside the problem of white and negro and "in effect" condoned "apartheid" the racial tension waiting to rear up in South Africa.

Racial prejudice "springs partly from economic fears," he said.

"It is intolerance between African and European that is at this moment causing grievous tensions in many parts of Africa."

He said that this was an age which has brought the invention of the word "apartheid," which meant "separates" and which has no human meaning, certainly no divine remedy and therefore no place in life.

"Apartheid" is the name given to the policy of Dr. Malan and Mr. Malan's racial segregation policy in South Africa.

Lewis Issues Hint Owners May Be Tapped Again

CINCINNATI (AP) — John L. Lewis has issued a street hint to coal mine operators that they may be due to be tapped again for increase in the welfare fund royalty.

The leader of the United Mine Workers, who are meeting in their biennial convention here, looked into strong complaints on the convention floor yesterday by delegates who said the miners were not getting enough benefits from the fund.

Lewis, answering delegate complaints about the welfare fund, said:

"I think we want to retain our sense of values on this subject and keep our feet fairly well on the ground. The welfare fund admittedly has not yet achieved perfection. What it does have, however, it have not had enough money to do everything we want."

More Equitable Sharing of Burdens Wanted by Lie

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) —Trygve Lie, United Nations Secretary-General, said yesterday there should be a "more equitable sharing of the burdens" of the Korean war.

He did not amplify on this call for unity among U.N. members in seeking Korean war objectives.

But it was interpreted as urging military aid in Korea from' more U.N.' members and more forces from some of those now contributing. At present only 16 of the 60 members have armed forces in Korea with a total of 45 participate in some way.

The Secretary-General's request came in a statement on the world situation and the U.N. The statement is an introduction to the annual report of the U.N. which will be presented next Tuesday with L.B. Pearson, Canada's External Affairs Minister, expected to be elected Assembly president.

Lie also told the U.N. Monday, in a letter answering a U.N. query on the matter, that he has taken steps to implement collective measures against aggressors, that Canada does not at present contribute the recruiting and organization of further units of its armed forces for service with the United Nations."

Tuberculin Tests In Local Schools Now Completed

The T.B. tests in local schools have been completed. The tests, conducted by the local health department, revealed 30 positive reactions from the students in P.C.I.V.S. and one at St. Michael's Academy.

According to Dr. Breuls M.O.H. a positive reaction does not necessarily indicate the presence of the test has tuberculosis, but rather, he has been exposed, had the disease in a mild form at some time, or has the germ now in his body. Following a positive reaction the patient is sent to the chest clinic for X-ray. This has been done in all but two cases and out of the 673 students given the test and the 31 with the positive reaction, no sign of T.B. has been discovered.

In a statement today, Dr. Breuls said, "We were using the more tuberculin tests this year than last. The co-operation of the students and parents alike has been good. We have noticed that a few students have had a reaction the patient is sent to the chest clinic for X-ray. This has been done in all but two cases and out of the 673 students given the test and the 31 with the positive reaction, no sign of T.B. has been discovered.

"It may be also interesting to note," the doctor said, "that out of the 673 students tested, three per cent were found to be showing the positive reaction. This percentage is slightly lower than last year's, which is also a good sign. The period of time, that fewer people are being exposed and so there is a decided drop in positive reactions when tested by school."

Not All Tested

All the students at the schools are not tested. Each year, pupils in grade one, two and six are given the tests. This has been true in both St. Michael's and P.C.I.V.S. The purpose of testing only these three grades is to catch the students just entering school, those leaving on graduation and those who have left before completing senior matriculation. However, if the student stays in school any length of time, he will be tested.

Testing of the secondary school students and juvenile schools has been in operation since 1939. Up until the city got a full time M.O.H. Dr. G. C. Brearley, director of the local chest clinic, carried out the tests. Several years were missed in that period due to various reasons, but now, students will continue to be tested every fall.

Test itself is actually a simple procedure, one tenth of a c.c. solution is injected into the body between the two layers of skin, that is, between the epidermis and the dermis. In no case is the solution entered into the blood vessels. The solution, known as "Old Tuberculin" is an extract of the dead T.B. germs and what is known as the Mantoux Test.

School Teachers Going to N.Y., Stop in Town

Trenton (Special)—A group of 20 county superintendents of education came from Nebraska to get a look at Canada and in a few short hours found Canada to be friendly and hospitable. They were on their way to the national convention in New York City and stopped off here Wednesday night for food and lodging. There were 24 in the party besides the bus driver, who had been hired by the group himself to any capacity. Most of the time the driver the big silver bus was the only one picked up along the route here been called upon to do practically everything from dress school teachers can think up. And this "host of the big bus" never appeared to be the least tired and the most joyful of the entire party while seeking reservations here last night.

One of the party proudly boasted he was born in Canada. He is George Marshall, now of Nebraska, who first saw the light of day at Cobden, Ontario, as he admitted, "quite a number of years ago."

Few Buffalo Around

Gourmets with a special craving for buffalo meat were found few to satisfy their appetites this fall. The buffalo have left the plains, the woods near here have been eaten badly by wolves.

A favorite recipe for preparing buffalo is followed by most of the connoisseurs. A rump slice from white buffalo is laid inch thick on a platter. Peel slices of onion in egg batter and sprinkle generously with cracker crumbs. Fry until they are done well with salt and pepper. The food cooked in this way has a taste almost resembling beef steak.

Weather Plays Curious Tricks On TV Reception

Old Man Weather plays curious tricks on television viewing, and he's doing anything to a local TV sales and service man.

The unpredictable is supposed to be almost outside the area in which TV reception can be expected yet most of the time the signal received by most sets is acceptable. It all depends on changing weather conditions, with right temperatures sometimes making for the best reception.

Rochester is the station tuned in by the great majority of the sets in this area, although some owners report receiving both Buffalo and Syracuse occasionally when conditions are right. Set owners with a channel 9 antenna report reception from Toronto is poor even with the aerial up to the height permitted early this week.

But Belleville is fortunate in receiving any stations at all, according to TV technicians. Only the fact that atmospheric layers "bend" television signals back toward the earth has set this district in the so-called "fringe" area.

Next spring the Rochester station will increase its power to 100,000 watts when reception from across the lake is expected to be considerably better than at present.

Increase Noted in Number of TB Cases Recommended for Treatment

A substantial increase in the number of people recommended for sanitarium care over last year, has been noted at the local chest clinic. With this year lacking two months until its end, and an average of five cases being sent to the sanitarium a month, the figures for this year could leap to 75 cases at the close of 1952.

To date 65 patients have been sent to sanitarium while in this area, 14 of these were from this city, an average of slightly less than 30 per cent. By the end of 1951, 90 cases had been sent for treatment with no deaths recorded from this area. To the end of July, 1952, three district deaths have been recorded, one from Belleville, one from Marmora and one from Trenton.

More Being X-rayed

However, as the patients to "can" have increased, so have the numbers of people taking the chest X-ray. In 1951 it took 13,000 X-rays to find the cases of TB. In 1952, when the highest rate of percentage for the local hospital was recorded, slightly over 80, only 4,000 people were X-rayed. So far, Dr. Brearley has picked the cases in this year is highest in 12 years and it probably will be hard by the end of December.

According to Dr. G. G. Brearley, director of the local clinic, three times as many people are appearing for the chest X-ray than in the first year the unit was opened up.

The death rate for this area, which spans a radius of 50 miles, is on the decrease, according to the clinician. Dr. Brearley said the number of deaths far out prior to the sanitarium is not decreasing in proportion to the steady decrease in the death rate. This area has one of the best, if not the best, record in Ontario as far as the death rate from TB is concerned and since Quinte itself has the lowest death incidence of all provinces per year, it would seem logical to suppose Belleville might have the lowest death rate of any place in Canada.

Also it must be noted, the three deaths are included in this year's figures of those sent to the sanitarium. Actually the Brearley these people may have been in the hospital for the past three years and the death rate can hardly be blamed upon them.

"Tuberculosis is on the decline as the death rate is concerned, is definitely on the decline, not only locally but all over Canada," Dr. Brearley said today, "but the decrease can not be credited to immigrants coming into this area from Europe. We have definitely not found much TB in these new Canadians."

Final Tribute Paid to Late E. Reg. Hinchey

Final tribute to the memory of E. Reginald Hinchey was paid yesterday afternoon by a large gathering of city, district and provincial friends at the funeral held in Christ Church, from the Pinkston Funeral Home, Church and Victoria Ave.

Canon A. B. Creegan, rector of Christ Church, officiated at the service assisted by the Rev. Everett P. Smith. Canon Creegan offered the graveside prayers.

A crowd-packed church and many floral tributes as well as the large number of out-of-town attendants were solemn evidence of the high regard in which Mr. Hinchey was held.

Masonic tribute was also paid. On Tuesday evening Eureka Lodge No. 223 A.F. and A.M. conducted Masonic rites in the Pinkston Funeral Home chapel under the direction of Worshipful Master Lyle C. Weddup, Jr., taking part were W.B. Roland Orr; W.S. Douglas Mouland; W.S. Everett Wood; W.B. Charles Meyers; and M. Howard Aselstine; Very Worshipful Brother Ezzett Smith and W.B. Neil McNab.

Many of Mr. Hinchey's former associates of Mr. Hinchey were present. These included Bedde Lieut.-Col. H. E. Pense, D.S.O., M.C., Kingston, former commanding officer of the 21st Battalion with which Mr. Hinchey served overseas, and other ex-comrades; Fred, Johnson, former bandmaster of the Belleville Municipal Band, now of Niagara Falls; Professor C. F. Thiele, head of the Waterloo Music Festival, of Waterloo; Wilfred Manning, president of the Canadian Bandmasters' Association; Fred Monk, president of the Waterloo Music Company, sponsors of the festival and many others.

The honorary bearers were Messrs. Harry Moorman, Garr Dobbs, Walter Aselstine, William Grant, John Deacon, Fred Johnson, William Dawson, Major Fraser, Mayor A. McLean Haig of Belleville, F. F. Thiele, Fred Mouck and Wilfred Manning.

Active bearers were Messrs. Lyle Tweddle, Cecil Watt, Carl Casey, James Allen, George Locke and Allen Mouck.

Following is a tribute paid to the memory of Mr. Hinchey, written by Mr. Fred Hart, who served with him overseas with the 21st Battalion, C.E.F.:

We of the old Twenty-First Battalion for what he was, unassuming, decent, a real gentleman and a good soldier. We remember him, with Garn Dobbs and Bill Woodcock being busy as beavers in and "over the stables" billet back of the line, shaping companies for the war—"the war" which was to end all wars" we then fondly believed. Yes, Rex and his men were a busy band up the line digging trenches, carrying up rations and doing all those back-breaking jobs which was the lot of soldiering. And that "good old band" would come up to cheer us as we slogged wearily out of the line.

"Days and one occasion which we will never forget. We were coming out of a particularly muddy sector—that was not as usual—and as we were nearing our billets, that old band struck up "Home, Sweet Home" in quite time—and they never relived that one down. Many times since we have "Nidder Reg about Lead his response was that sweet and happy smile, which all us knew so well. And many of his old war-time comrades came to pay their last tribute at Christ Church and finally to accompany the flag-draped body to its last resting place. Lieut.-Col. H. E. Pense, D.S.O. M.C. came from Kingston to join with Lieut.-Col. E.

Officer Tells Of Hand Fight With Communist

WITH CANADIAN 25TH BRIGADE IN KOREA (AP)—Lieut. H. R. (Russ) Gardiner, Arnprior, and Cpl. Kaz. E. Fowler, Kingston, told today how they captured a Chinese soldier by clubbing him with a blackjack and pistol in a daring daylight raid. Both are members of the Royal Canadian Regiment.

It took nearly 30 blows to subdue the prisoner and even then he never lost consciousness, Gardiner said.

He added:

"As we stood near their water point the Chinese soldier passed us. We noticed wire on the ground and broke it.

"Within five minutes the soldier came down the hill checking the wire. He turned to examine the break. I hit him over the head with the blackjack and Fowler pinned his arms. He was crying out loudly so I struck him again and again. He refused to be silenced or pass out.

"I tried to gag him but each time he spit it out and once bit my finger.

"Cpl. Fowler struck him on the head with a pistol and I hit him on the jaw with a gun butt. This must have pacified him because he stopped struggling.

Annual Apple Day Saturday

On Saturday over 500 Boy Scouts and Cubs, each carrying a basket of apples, will be going from door to door soliciting public support for their most worthy cause.

The boys will cover the city, selling tags? No. They will give you the tags and also an apple in grateful appreciation of your help.

Those are the boys who ("promise to do a good deed every day"). Among other things they help elderly people across the street, clean windows in church Sunday schools, take out garbage, shovel snow and cut grass for sick people, deliver blood donor posters, plant trees for reforestation, and help in fire prevention under the direction of the fire department.

They are trained to help in civil defence, messages carrying, signalling, first aid and many other important smaller duties are their task. Scouts learn to look after themselves outdoors. They learn to light a campfire with—not more than three matches without the use of paper; go out on overnight hikes, as well as know how to cook their own meals. At their Scout camps this year, all cooking was done by the boys themselves in small groups.

All of this training takes money although no one in the organization receives any remuneration for their work. An opportunity will be given for the general public to assist in this work on Saturday. Be as generous as you can.

CAREFUL APPROACH

CHESTERFIELD, England (CP) —To boost recruiting for civil defence, 48 canvassers headed by the mayor and town clerk have completed a course in psychology,

THE PLOWMAN'S ART.

Modern mechanization has changed drastically the age old habits and customs of tilling the soil but the ancient and honorable agricultural institution of the plowing match is still with us.

This week at Carp in Carleton county the plowmen's perennial tent city has sprung up again and is a busy scene where thousands will witness the competitive skills of sod-turning experts from many parts of Canada and the United States. This is the big match each year in Canada but all over Canada and in many parts of the world each autumn local matches are being held. From the great International, however, Canada's best in the two select classes for horses and tractors will qualify for free trips to Europe to compete against the plowmen of the old lands.

From the dawn of history to the present time there have been few fundamental changes in the husbandman's primary craft. Actually the important ones have occurred within the living memory of many Canadians. While the substitution of the wooden plow for the stone hoe came first, there are still many who remember the days of the oxen being replaced by horses, and the later revolutionary adoption of mechanized plowing as modern as the automobile.

Now the horse has almost disappeared as the source of power, in most of the smaller matches this year it is seldom that more than three or four teams have been in competition and some matches have seen no horses at all in the field. The tradition of skill by the man behind the plow is, however, being steadfastly maintained at the International.

Nevertheless, it is there that the introduction of power farming and the new techniques in contour cultivation are more apparent than anywhere else. Indeed these modern methods in the plowmen's heels have been in competition and some matches have seen no horses at all in the field. The tradition of skill by the man behind the plow is, however, being steadfastly maintained at the International.

THE NEW BROOM IN B.C.

The political amateurs out on the Pacific Coast who gathered together under a somewhat vague Social Credit banner in spring one of the biggest political surprises of the year a couple of months ago, are still producing surprises.

It seems that the new minority government, headed by two experienced Conservative legislators but made up otherwise of almost pure political neophytes, is pursuing a novel course in its administration. When the Social Crediters appealed to the electorate they promised that they could, and would, cut down on costs of government. In office, that is just what they are doing.

First they cancel the order that government departments should hire no more employees, except in cases where technical personnel was needed. Any B.C. civil servant caught using a government car for private or personal purposes will be dismissed. Any civil servant employees using government cars and running foul of traffic rules must pay their own fines.

These are not momentous things, perhaps, but they will be welcomed by the electorate as an earnest of responsibility and stewardship in handling the affairs of the people. The cynics will probably remark that they have seen the new broom work before. In Ontario some will recall the auction sale at Queen's Park which was staged with such a flourish by Mitchell F. Hepburn in 1934, and smile knowingly.

But there are many people who feel confident that their amateurs in the provincial capital are men and women dedicated to the principles and policies which they preached before the election. It is noteworthy that the characters of their campaign was strikingly different. Their campaign struck a religious note which was maintained throughout. More than one meeting was regarded by experienced politicos as something closer to an old-time prayer meeting than a political rally.

They preached the fundamental virtues as pre-eminent qualifications for public office. They did not hesitate to stress the place of God in many aspects of things. It may be that they won a considerable protest vote against the old parties but experienced observers in the coast province insist that they had struck a new and impressive theme which appealed directly to the instincts of a great many ordinary men and women as completely sincere and deserving of support.

It will not be long before the minority government of Premier Bennett will be forced to make another appeal to the electors in order to carry on for a full term in a satisfactory manner. It has apparently gone a considerable length already to strengthen its position.

JUST FOLKS

ABSENT SECRETARY

Because I let the due date pass
I lost the interest charge for gas.
Another blunder then I made:
The telephone bill twice I paid.
And what it worse (though I should not),
A lunch engagement I forgot.
Although it's shameful, I confess
That my secretary is "in a mess."
Not from corruption's evil fray
But from my bumbling ways.
Bumbling ways, I've left undone what should be done.
Mine is the office I can't run.
At filling one so skill
The fates are locked. I've lost the key.
I don't know where the stamps can be.
My secretary says
"I'm in a mess," again I'll say.

The first Commanding Officer's parade of the Argyle Light Infantry for the fall training was in every way a marked success and Lieut.-Col. E. C. Keeler was gratified with the manner on parade and the smartness of the battalion's appearance. To Quartermaster Major Vincent Doyle and his able band-reading assistant, R.Q.M.S. Patrick is accredited much of the credit for the neatness of the men in their first turnout for drill this season. For the first time the parade was formed up on the floor of the armories by the new Regimental Sergeant Major George B. Lancaster, who succeeds in this rank the late W. H. Ponton. Between 141 all ranks on the floor of the armories when the new R.S.M. Lancaster turned over the parade to Major F. J. Gilmore, the adjutant. For the first time three new subalterns of the battalion in commissioned rank, Lieuts. Ormonde Butler, Tom Mason and Keith Scott were on parade.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON OUTWAITING

Listeners are valuable people in radio-land. They usually wait their turn for talk, and often wait a long time. Many a great human being has waited all his life for someone expressing what lies deep within him. Many a fine human being has died thinking was going on, and proudly possessing a fine personality that almost always appears to such.

One of the best ways of learning is to outwait the other fellow who is talking. Sometimes he can steer away in your mind what you learn, without the other one appreciating the fact. I have been intrigued at the way a skillful baseball pitcher will outwait his batter, and vice versa. In many another sport this plan works out to one's advantage. In war, also, many a victory has been gained by outwaiting the adversary.

But it doesn't pay to wait too long, for then you get static and nothing is accomplished. Someone may be outwaiting you. The jockey on a race horse and an athletic runner have often realized that the final burst of speed essential to win. Outwaiting must be carefully timed.

I often think of former President Herbert Hoover, who has so magnificently outwaited his former accusers and detractors. Posterity waits them all. It outwaited Lincoln and it is outwaiting Winston Churchill. It outwaited Edgar Allan Poe and scores and scores of others in all walks of life. History is impartial and can only record the truth. Man alone tries to change it.

Many a man in public life, as well as in private life, tries to outwait all his enemies and former adversaries. And besides Time is a great healer of things. If we have patience, faith, and vision, we can outwait all worries and disturbing happenings that we imagine might happen, but which fail to happen. We can outwait all bitterness and all dire disappointments until they have disappeared.

A Chat With Stalin

(By Gerhart in New York Herald Tribune)

Archie Robbins is one of the few American performers who ever addressed Stalin. Back in 1945 was in line of duty as G.I. entertainer. Under Uncle Sam's Army, Robbins and private Mickey Rooney were assigned to a top secret assignment. Their job was to laughs at the Potsdam Conference. After the performance the G.I.'s shook hands with President Truman and Mr. Churchill and Stalin tapped Robbins on the shoulder, saying Premier Stalin wanted to see him. The dictator grinned, nodded and then said something Archie hopes he'd might join him a proposition. The interpreter shattered that dream in a jiffy. "Premier Stalin asks," he said, "if you'd like to set your watch."

COSTS TOO MUCH

(Kingston Whig-Standard)

Fat people don't live nearly so long as thin ones, but in this era of high food prices they probably seem as long as they can afford to.

Lincoln, Too Was a 'Clown'

(Hamilton Spectator)

A polished phrase-maker, Gov. Adlai Stevenson's campaign speeches have bristled with telling jibes, but occasionally guilty of ridicule and sardonic humor. Republican campaign managers, politicians and columnists, as a result, have labelled him a wit, a wisecracker, a wet, a weight jokester, more fitted for television and radio studies than the White House.

The times, they say, call for a "serious" man, not a political quipster. In their consternation that the grave days ahead do call for a man who is keenly aware of that gravity and has the ability to face up to enormous problems they are correct, of course. But their charge that Stevenson is not fitted for the office of President of the United States simply because he uses the weapons of biting humor and ridicule may be ill-founded.

One cannot help but wonder if present day Republicans are not as guilty as Democrats-during Adlai Stevenson as did the Democrats of old during the gruelling presidential candidates who injected humor, both good-natured and biting, into his speeches - Abraham Lincoln.

Perhaps the U.S. President in history has been as bitterly attacked as Lincoln, or as vilified as was Lincoln, one of the truly great men of history. Read some of Lincoln's enormous fund of jokes quips--and puns--in which he delighted, and you'll begin to see the fiercest attacks.

Lincoln was recorded by one newspaper the announcement that he intended to speak at the consecration of the Gettysburg Cemetery is a striking example of Lincoln's humor, in the midst of political partisanship.

"The principal feature on the ceremony, the editor of a newspaper in Lincoln's home state, the Springfield Register, noted, "the President could have been more inappropriately left out." It was learned that prince of jokers, Old Abe, to be present on the occasion, and that day, one of the noblest passages in the English language.

But No Gaelic

(From BBC London Letter)

Harold Siddons, great-great-great-grandson of the famous actress, Mrs. Siddons, appeared in a radio programme about his new job, which is Gaelic broadcasting. An advertisement appeared recently in the agony column of The Times" newspaper, per of London, saying: "Voice with Scottish accent urgently required for broadcasting. Gaelic an asset." Siddons was rather surprised when he answered it and was invited to go for an audition at Broadcasting House in Gaelic.

The owners of the parrot, which was beautiful but unfortunately dumb, were Scots who had bought it for their children and could not want to lose their investment. Siddons was rather nervous when the other applicants, particularly a native Gaelic speaker, performed apparently thought the language a sailor would teach their pet might be a bit too strong. But the parrot settled the matter itself by giving Siddons a first class testimonial.

He is now to be paid ten pounds a week during the broadcasts. He is not a small Scottish vocabulary, his small method is to put the bird in a room by itself and prevent anything from behind the door, when the parrot, in search of food, or a word or phrase it is not supposed to hear, promptly picks it up and, if it can speak at all, repeats it. By this simple emergent Siddons expects to bring real Scottish sounds from a hitherto silent beak.

Tending An Open Fire

(Ottawa Journal)

There's an intangible something about an open fire that instinctively appeals to many men. Perhaps a fireplace is a link in men's minds with pre-historic days when cavemen crouched beside an open fire at the entrance to their homes. Since men learned to use fire for cooking and comfort, hearths have played dominant roles in what one brilliantly calls modern civilization.

The countryman enjoys watching the first fire of autumn. A good fireplace needs a deep bank of ashes to hold the heat. The true hearth lender is not concerned over a few stray ashes that fall on to the rug, or a few flying sparks that brand brown dots on wool fibres. A large, hardwood backing of oak or maple with accessory a few split pieces of birch or ash are excellent for the kindling.

Fortunately there is in most of us which makes us enjoy poking a fire; but the danger is not overdone, for once flames are well started the host creates its own draft.

Each kind of wood makes an individual fire. Pine burns fast and sets burn slowly and serene-ly, while birch and maple produce the debaters, orators and philosophers whose crackle and pop and fly red sparks. Old apple wood burns with such a subtle, spicy fragrance through the room.

Literal-minded people think a fire exists only to heat a room, some men know that fire when it is built in the hearth also kindles dreams in the heart.

Luring Them Back

(Waterloo Times)

In far distant spots of the Scottish Highlands there are appearing freshly-built cottages, and the Highland Development Board, induced by weathered farmhouses to be restored with new, and more durable cottages-with kitchen walls and ceilings, is giving away to the spirit of a cheerful prosperity.

For at last developments are taking place in the Highlands, and those people who were forced to vacate those mountain regions by their chances for earning a living among the rocks and mountains as the forests are being replanted, are finding that new jobs are being established, and ruin is arrested.

It was in the early 18th century that Prince Charles' rebellion was finally crushed by Highland mountains and moors. For it was then that the Highland owners enclosed their immense holdings, and it impossible for the crofters to pasture their animals or farm their land while the owners turned enormous Highland domains for grouse shooting and deer stalking. Many parts of the countryside saw a steady depopulating as the one-time residents found a livelihood in Canada, New Zealand, Australia and Canada.

Now the rather deserted Highlanders never ceased to cast a longing look back to the land they left behind. The mountain air was in their blood; a longing for the heather was in their hearts which were passed on to their children. Personal Health Talks

Signed Letters, Not More than One Page, or 100 Words Long, Pertaining to Personal Health and Hygiene, Not to Disease, Diagnosis or Treatment, Will be Answered by Dr. Brady if a Stamp, Self-Addressed Envelope is Enclosed, Etc.

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

THE DENTIST AND HIS MAGIC

Doctors here give novocaine when small fillings are needed. Years ago we never heard of it, especially for children's teeth. Please give your opinion of this through the newspaper. There must be a great many who are concerned about it. (Mrs. D.M.F.)

Probably the reader meant to say dentists give novocaine when small fillings are needed. It is proper and correct to address a dentist as "Doctor" - except, perhaps, on the bowling green, where one may apply other epithets - but generally when we speak of doctors we mean physicians.

In my opinion the use of novocaine in everyday practice constitutes one of the greatest advances medicine has made in a century - more than offsetting the mean all branches of medicine and surgery including dentistry.

The dentist with skill of the dentist in the use of this agent commands admiration, confidence and respect, second only to the dentist's aseptic technique. Nothing leaves us - I mean let us leave dental sequels in a separated sense - and I feel less afraid to deal with it today.

In the good days when Topsy was a colt and Mickey and I and Lita Roshi were serving time in the very shadow of the great Bethlehem mills home of the famous Prince Arthur, in Penn Yan, N. Y., dentists here and there used cocaine as a local anesthetic in occasional instances but with questionable success as drug was too dangerous.

"It was not until the era of Tray the World Terror that the safe local anesthetic, procain, now better known as novocaine, came to the sophomores, pans -amiabenmyl - diethyl-aminoethanol hydrochloride, was introduced. This is a coaltar derivative and not a modification of cocaine. It has little or no pain-relieving or anesthetic action when applied to the mucous membranes but is effective only when injected into the tissues. Certain conditions have another great advantage over cocaine solution solutions - they may be sterilized by boiling, whereas 'cocaine solutions become decomposed boiled; because novocaine is compatible with aseptic-surgical cleanliness, that is.

By the routine use of novocaine the skilled dentist robs dentistry, any and all dental treatment, of its terrors. A patient who has experienced under local anesthesia what in earlier days would have been extremely painful treatment learns to approach the dental chair without fear. I know, I've had it in both epochs, and believe me when I say that modern dentists are wonderful. In ways you dumb laymen little know, they protect and build health, wife and dignity.

There, there, now, Brady, get hold of yourself. Remember, dental sepsis or the lack of it remains to be discussed in another article.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Vitamin for Growth

Boy, 10, shortest in his class. Can you suggest any sort of 'growtal' pill? (M.M.H.)

Answer - I believe - mind, now I don't KNOW - that regular daily intake of a fair ration of calcium phosphorus and iodin. Calcium(Ca), Phosphorus (P) and vitamin D, as described in the pamphlet Young Folks are the chief factors in growth. For copy of the pamphlet send 3 cents, self-addressed envelope.

Starch

Does pure graham flour contain starch? Is it good for me? Should I bake my own bread of it. (Mrs. H.R.)

Answer - Virtually the same amount of refined white flour. But graham flour has more of the minerals and vitamins. Wheat germ ground in graham flour or power mill at home is best of all. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope and ask for de writing. (clipping will not suffice) for pamphlet Starch. Eat whole wheat bread, how to restore the staff of life to your family diet.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

It is a strange thing that in an warlike an age as the past fifty years the walking stick went out of fashion and took with it the basic weapon of mankind. All other weapons are mere modifications of it, or accessory to it. The sword is the walking stick with a point on it, the arrow a spear that could be projected, the rifle a spear with a metal stick. The bullet was an arrowhead that could be flung without the stick. The bullet was improved so as to explode, and thus we got the shell and then the hand bomb. But the walking stick wouldn't have thought up any of these weapons, because it was weapons. And what is more, the modern gentleman who used to stick after another comes and goes, like the spear, the sword, the sound and the rifle, has left behind. The mountain air was in their blood; a longing for the heather was in their hearts which were passed on to their children. Now, instead of the domains for grouse shooting and deer stalking, many parts of the countryside saw a steady depopulating as the one-time residents found a livelihood in Canada, New Zealand, Australia and Canada.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL I. DOUGLASS

DECIDING WITH PURPOSE

How do you make your day by day decisions? By default or as the result of divine guidance? Do you believe in the God that God stands ready to guide you in the making of your decisions? Do you expect Him to do so.

If you believe in God at all, can you possibly believe in the God who has made this complex universe and then left the slightest particular any part of his creation? Microscope and telescope both testify to the ingenuity and glory of God. There is nothing so small that the presence of the Creator is not found there. There is no planet in the heavens so extensive and remote that it is not held within the powerful hand by which it was first created.

Again is the fact that you live in a world which God created and which He still maintains. Stop allowing the circumstances of life to drag you along by the hair of the head. Start being strong; not by an imperious exercise of will power, but by the relinquishment of your will to God's guidance. Live through which all that now is came into being and by which the whole of your existence is guided.

Stop making your decisions by default. Make them as the result of prayer. Ask that God's will be done. Seek it, and you shall receive; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you."

6,000 Attend Madoc Fair, Entries, Events of High Order

MADOC (Staff Special) —Madoc village lived up to its claim of being the "hub" of Hastings county when Wednesday afternoon, an estimated 6,000 persons thronged their way into the Madoc fair grounds for the annual fall fair.

Favored by typical fall weather that saw the sun repeatedly break through the clouds, the annual fall classic drew fair visitors from every part of the county with the north being particularly well represented.

In fact Madoc, rare is an event looked forward to all summer by many residents in the northern part of the county and attendance is considered a "must."

To many from the north, the fine showing of cattle and horses pigs and swine as well as the agricultural exhibits, are of secondary importance. They spend most of their time on the midway and waiting for the novelty events into which they enter enthusiastically and with no little success.

And yesterday was no exception. The northern residents entered the novelty contests just as enthusiastically as ever and as usual they took home most of the money in the popular log sawing, step dancing and fiddling contests.

But both cattle and horse exhibits were up from last year with all accommodation for both classes being taken up. Show horses were tied to trucks and other conveyances and so many racing horses put in appearance that three classes instead of the expected two were run.

Holstein Show

Fifteen Hastings county Holstein breeders turned out to show their prized herds in the Black and White Day Show held in conjunction with the fair. Ninety-seven cattle were shown, two more than last year.

It was the official show of the year for county Holstein men and the breeders, together with members of the junior calf clubs, made it a predominantly Holstein day.

Madoc calf club members held their achievement day in connection with the fair with an inter-club contest by county calf clubs also being featured. The Madoc club was the event with a brother and sister act, Isobel, Douglas and Ted Burnside were J. Burnside, Philo Harris, David

Many Beef Cattle

There was a good showing of beef cattle with D. Sine and Son of Stirling and Tom Moore of Springbrook showing Herefords and John Trotter of Madoc, and W. A. Dunford and Son of Springbrook showing Shorthorns. Polled Angus were shown by Fred Holmes of Madoc.

Lorne Jarrell of Corbyville and Garnet Kerr of Campbellford showed Jerseys, while Elmer Wood of Crookston showed Ayrshires.

Sheep and swine exhibits were up, the former being shown by Don Heath, Hillcrest; John McGuire, Crookston; Cecil Acres, Ongoode; Everett Mark and Son, Little Britain, and Campbell Ash of Crookston. Swine were shown by Wesley Finch, Cecil Acres, Heath and Leonard McGee of Hastings.

Horse lovers also had their innings, it taking all afternoon to show all the classes ranging from four horses teams down to the smallest ponies exhibited by enthusiastic young showmen. The best horse in each within a wide radius of Madoc was paraded for the benefit of fair visitors. It was dark when the last pony classes were completed.

Farm machinery dealers were out in full strength with the latest in mechanized equipment being displayed.

Entertainment included the Havelock Pipe band under leader Harry Anderson, with two girl drummers, Shirley Anderson and Shirley Seabrook highlighting the performance with the difficult Scotch sword dance. Miss Anderson also did the Highland Fling.

Log-Sawing Contest

The Freeman brothers of Birch Creek took top honors in the log sawing contest dropping their axes for through cross-maple log in just 23 seconds. The Card brothers of Gilmour were second in 27 seconds; Eligh Elair and Bill Cassidy were third in 1-5 seconds, and Vince O'Hara of Carrying Place and Roy Wilson of Coe Hill were fourth in 33 seconds.

In the ladies' nail driving contest Mrs. Howard of Belleville was first, driving four spikes into a hardwood plank in just 15 seconds. Mrs. Armstrong of Smithfield was second and Mrs. Sansom, Cobourg, third.

A new feature was the husband calling contest won by Mrs. Charles White of Enterprise, with Mrs. Mildred White, of Boulter, taking second. The woman coming the longest distance to the fair was Mrs. Spencer, New Liskeard, with Charles Plumpton, of St. Mary's, taking the same honor for the men.

Dan Lyons, of Enterprise, won the step dancing honors with Rose Sears, of Birds Creek; R. Lessard, of Bannockburn, and J. W. Woods, 91, of Selby, finishing in that order.

Kevin Roy, of Madoc, won the dubious honor for having the most freckles but was provided with stiff competition by George Wiggins and Rita Quinn "who also finished in the money.

Horse Racing Events

The horse racing program provided thrills as well as spills. George Davis, of Trenton, was thrown from his sulky on one of the turns during the free for all when another horse cut across in front. The horse finished the race driverless while Davis escaped without serious injury. Only two horses finished.

Miss Wanda Swan Honored by Showers

On Saturday evening, Mrs. Arthur Balesmqui opened her home for a towel shower in honor of Miss Wanda Swan, bride-to-be, with Mrs. Wilfrid Clare as co-hostess.

The evening was spent in compiling a bride's book after which little Harry and Nancy Huffman, nephew and niece of the bride-to-be, posing as bride and bridegroom, entered the dining room, drawing their beautifully decorated wagon laden with a clothes basket of gifts.

A fitting address was read by Mrs. Clare, then the bride opened her gifts to find a grand assortment of towels and tea towels for which she thanked her guests kindly. Knitting all to visit later in her new home near Stirling.

Refreshments were provided by the hostess which all enjoyed and a social half-hour was spent, everyone wishing Wanda the best of luck.

"Not money by the peck," but groceries by the bushel, were showered upon Miss Wanda Swan, of Corbyville, bride-to-be, at a party given in her honor at the home of Mr. Harry Walker, with Miss Phyllis Walker as hostess, when the members of the office staff at Corbyville, gathered on Monday evening.

An enjoyable evening was spent during which Wanda was presented with a bushel hamper filled to the brim with groceries and a gleaming white enamel foot-pedal waste can.

Wanda thanked her co-workers for their lovely gifts and invited everyone to visit her in her new home. She especially thanked her hostess for her kind hospitality.

Christ Church Little Helpers Present Their Thank Offering

"Oh that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men! And let them sacrifice the sacrifices of thanksgiving, and declare his works with rejoicing." Such was the exhortation of the psalmist, which was made literally true yesterday afternoon when over 200 Little Helpers of Christ Church, in their annual thank offering service brought their penny banks to the Lord and presented them before His altar in an impressive and lovely service of thanksgiving and praise.

The church, which had been beautifully decorated for the recent Thanksgiving service—its stately pillars shrouded with stalks of corn, crimson cockscomb, and clusters of red Rowanberries; its lovely stained glass windows were bowers of tiny oat sheaves, scarlet salvia, and golden corn on the cob, interspersed with ruby tomatoes and rosy apples; the chancel lined with sheaves of oats; the sanctuary and altar a recess of beautiful gold and white gladioli and golden and white baby chrysanthemums—was softly candlelighted by the twin seven-branch, red gleaming candelabra, all testified to the loving care with which it had been prepared.

Welcomed by Canon Creegan
